Subject: Become A Warrior Of Light. Part 2 of 2. July 12, 2012.

This shows how all of this ties into the year 2012.

And the more you tune in to your energy signature, to the universe, to your guides, guardians, ancestors and helper friends, the more finely attuned your conscience will become, you will, in fact, begin to predict the consequences of actions, or words, or glances, in all their subtlety, before the action has been performed - not on the usual level of a debate in the mind, but as a split second feeling, a knowing, an argument with Self that has been finished before it has begun, you will just know if a course of action, or expression of words is in tune with your signature, if it is really, truly, who you are and what you think, or whether it is ego talking, self-interest, manipulation, or greed.

Not that these things don't have their place, there is reason for all, but to be conscious of your conscience on an elevated level, more finely attuned, where the topics of debate are more subtle, have more consequences, even things that you cannot predict, or are unaware of, but know, surely and soundly, that a particular phrase or action from yourself is the right one - something that on ground level would have no answer, you just felt it to be right.

This is what this tuning in is all about - about actions and words that are in keeping with your signature, your own balance, your own harmony, this is a new and improved level of being in balance, of being true to your true self, and yet at the same time learning who this Self is, to naturally allow it to flow, and in so doing progress you on your path - surrender is merely to open the door to the true self, to allow your full spirit to work through you, in conjunction with others that you have chosen. And in this way, man e-olves.

Consistency is also a factor here. You cannot pick and chose when to listen to yourself and when not to - to do this is to send your soul on a roller coaster ride, at one point up, then down, then all around - this is not harmony, it merely touches it at a middle point! A whole evol-ement of character is called for here, and no, it is not an easy path, yet must be walked to be transformed. You can do it, you know this deep inside, you would not be stood here contemplating it if you could not, you would not have come here and met with this challenge on this earth, at this time, if it was not what you knew you could do.

There is a duty here, a responsibility, for those who can, to do! And like the first creatures crawling out of the sea lead the way for ev-lution into man (and so many other species), so it is now our turn to lead the way into a new world, to light the way, to act as example, to show, to teach, to learn from others, and for you to put out your hand and help others up, as we try so often to do for you. They will come once the way is lit, humanity is desperate for evol-tion, and though many will fall by the wayside, the true of heart will lead the others through.

I do not mean by this that there is some Valhalla on the other side, I am not speaking of spaceships and absolution and wh-te light, of the rescued few forming another r-ce, of the favoured becoming saints, of cults being right all along of course not (though within each of these subjects there are tiny elements of truth and history, each with their own fascinating lessons - for another day!)

I'm speaking of an adjustment of perspective, of shifts in energy, of an awakening of different parts of the brain, an acknowledgement of eternal being, of mans place within the universe, an awakening of skill, of te-epathy, of travel, inter-dimensionally.
A new era for humankind that is lighter, more giving, more in tune with all life, where people know themselves, know why they came here, and are truly in tune with that which makes them tick.

This world can put an end to w-r, can help revive the planet, can he-l with - m-racles that suddenly seem so simple, we once were Warriors of the Light, it is now time to pick up that mantle yet again, and to rise with the growing consciousness of Mother Earth, to harmonize with her shifts and changes, with the shifts and changes occurring in the Universe, to be as one - our own signature, yet uniquely connected to everyone and everything.
The new world is a new consciousness, a new way of viewing, of being, of loving, of healing - and it is for everyone.

This is not a time for preaching (was there ever a time?), for lofting your views, for talking airy fairy psy-hic - ma-ic - we all have the ability, we always have, we always will, the difference is that now the energies are right for us all to grow - and our job (our being anyone reading this for you have found your way here), our job is to assist by first looking at our selves, by harmonising to who we truly are, and by doing that finding our own path, our own - attunement and balance - not in moments of workshop, or tra-ce, or candlelit sage wafted me-itation (I speak to my own med-um here), but in everyday life, in being attuned at every moment an awareness.

As consciousness expands you will know your own energy so well that the old issues of open and closed - and protection will become less and less relevant, you will naturally be a shining light, and in true harmony, nothing can penetrate that - nevertheless you will be aware, at even the distance approach of harm, from whatever dimension, and able much more quickly to dispatch/heal/or send it on before it comes half as close as was previously possible.

So it all begins with Self, your awareness, your consciousness. And then your conscience, that tuning in so as every move is right or wrong by feeling, knowing, instinct - you don't know why something is right, you just know, in your gut, and this is your truth. Inspire others, not formally, not loudly, not in headlines (although this works too!), but by your very nature, your Being in the world, your consistent honouring of your truth.
And this is the final step - consistency, it is not always easy, and we all make mistakes, even in the spir-t world! try to be true, and if you find yourself out of kilter, then realign yourself, find that harmony once more, draw energy from that place of balance, from the universe itself, and let any mistake go, do not dwell on it, but move on, and regain the calm, the true, the You.

This is how the Shift will work, this is what 2012 is all about. The shifts are planetary, for Mother Earth it has already begun, for those of you who tune into her energy, you are already noticing the differences, indeed it would be hard to miss them.
We are all feeling the effects in some way, life is not easy for anyone right now, but if you tune in and find your flow you will no longer be fighting against the tide. The current, - current, will take you on your journey through the universal sea of consciousness, to the next level, the next place, and that journey is what you came here to do.

It is no accident that we are shifting at the same time as Mother Earth - it is called for, it is necessary, for us all to live in harmony, connected - and who knows what the future holds, what boundaries there will be if any, the scope for transformation is unlimited, the possibilities for humankind manifold.
So encourage, explain, be subtle, be honest, be true and explain your truth to others, they do not have to agree, but perhaps a spark of what you say will ring true for them and set them off to find their own signature, their own harmony, perhaps subconsciously - you may never know the effect you will have, but by being conscious, by making friends with conscience, and by being consistent, you will have done all you can for your own development, expansion, and future, as well of that of humankind.

And on that note, be well my friends, be love, be laughter, and be Self, the time is now, the light is in your hands, Shine.
