

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
OFFICE OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY POLICY
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20502

June 12, 2001

FOIAs 01-47

Dear Mr. Cameron:

This is in response to your May 29, 2001 request to the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) under the Freedom of Information Act, 5 U.S.C §552. Your request was received in OSTP on June 8, 2001 requesting documents missing from your FOIA Case Nos. 01-22 and 01-23. The missing documents Nos. 5, 7, 16, 19, 22, 24, 29, 32, 35, 47, 62, and 64, are enclosed.

Any documents prior to the two Clinton Administrations are in the hands of the National Archives and requests for documents would need to be addressed to:

National Archives and Records Administration
8601 Adelphi Road
College Park, MD 20740-6001

This completes our action in response to your FOIA Request 01-47 and I apologize for the omissions. If you consider this to be a denial of your request, appeals may be made in writing within 30 days of receipt of this letter. Both the letter and the envelope should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Act Appeal." Determinations of administrative appeals must be made within 20 working days.

Sincerely,

Barbara Ann Ferguson
Assistant Director for Budget and Administration

Laura -- After our conversation last Friday, August 8th, I called GMA back that afternoon to advise them I would inquire about the President's science advisor (Jack Gibbons) relative to their request for an interview on Area 51. It turns out that Jack Gibbons will be away from the White House this week, so their request may be moot -- at least as far as we're concerned (I'm not convinced that Gibbons is the right person to tackle this topic). I've misplaced the piece of paper with her name on it (I think it was Meg, and she was a futures editor in NYC). Do you wish to follow through or should I call with a polite decline?

Mary, Alan brought this over to the General this morning. By the way you should not call this area 51 -- it's not correct and there was a court ruling about it and this term should not be used.

... about now I thought up the theory of relativity. And they have a terrific conversation.

The second guy, he says, what's your IQ? He said, 140. He said, let's talk about globalization and its impact on climate change. And they had a terrific conversation. And the third guy kind of hung his head, and he said, what's your IQ? And he said, 40. And Einstein said, oh, don't worry. You can always go into politics. (Laughter.)

I want you to know, though, in preparation for this day I've been spending a lot of time trying to get in touch with my inner nerd. (Laughter and applause.) ~~And~~ My wife helped me, because she's been having these Millennium Lectures at the White House to discuss big things. And the other night, she had Vin^{de} Cerf, who was one of the founders of the Internet, and Eric Lander, who's helped to develop many of the tools of modern genome research. ~~And~~ That really got me thinking, and I want to say some more serious things about ~~that~~ in a moment. And then my staff challenged me to actually order Christmas gifts over the Internet. And I did that. And while doing that, I learned that with just a click of a mouse, I could actually order ~~any~~ ~~I did this, I'm embarrassed to say -- I ordered~~ Arkansas smoked ham and sausage delivered to my door. (Laughter.) So I think the 21st century has more for me than I had originally thought. (Laughter.)

As all of you know, Albert Einstein spent a lot of time here at Cal Tech in the 1930s. And three weeks ago, Time Magazine crowned him the Person of the Century. The fact that he won this honor over people like Franklin Roosevelt and Mohandas Gandhi is not only an incredible testament to the quantum leaps in knowledge that he achieved for all humanity, but also for the 20th century's earth-shaking advances in science and technology.

Just as an aside, I'd like to say because we're here at Cal Tech, Einstein's contributions remind us of how greatly American science

President Bill Clinton, The White House, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President,

This is certainly a first for me, writing to a President from space, and it may be a first for you in receiving an E mail direct from an orbiting spacecraft.

In any event, I want to personally thank you and Mrs. Clinton for coming to the Cape to see the launch. I hope you enjoyed it just half as much as we did on board. It is truly an awesome experience from a personal standpoint, and of even greater importance for all of the great research projects we have on Discovery. The whole crew was impressed that you would be the first President to personally see a shuttle launch and asked me to include their best regards to you and Hillary. She has discussed her interest in the space program with Annie on several occasions, and I know she would like to be on a flight just like this.

We have gone almost a third of the way around the world in the time it has taken me to write this letter, and the rest of the crew is waiting. Again, our thanks and best regards. Will try to give you a personal briefing after we return next Saturday.

Sincerely,

John Glenn

Norman Rockwell is one of the most recognized and prolific illustrators in American history. His paintings seem to capture the essence of the American spirit. According to the donor of this artwork, the filmmaker Steven Spielberg, “Rockwell painted the American dream—better than anyone.”
