Biographical sketches

James E. Webb

James E. Webb (1906-1992) was director of the Bureau of the Budget when President Truman agreed that Herbert Hoover should be the chair of the Commission for the Reorganization of the Executive Branch of Government, commonly known as the first Hoover Commission. Webb saw this as a 'happy development' since Hoover's understanding of the need for efficiency in large-scale organizations and commitment to balanced budgets in the federal government were consonant with Webb's own views. Hoover's experience as President was also vital. Truman was not as sanguine about Hoover's appointment, replying to Webb's enthusiastic memo with two words: 'No commitments.'

Webb's career was balanced between public service and the private sector. Prior to his July 1946 appointment as director of the Bureau of the Budget, he worked in the Bureau of Education and as assistant to Congressman Edward Pou (D-NC). He also worked at a Washington law firm and as assistant to the president of Sperry Corporation. This broad experience served Webb well in the Bureau of the Budget. He drafted the first balanced federal budget since the Hoover administration in 1930.

In 1949, Webb was appointed Undersecretary of State under Dean Acheson. While Acheson tended to substantive policy matters, Webb supervised the reorganization of the State Department as recommended by the first Hoover Commission. With the 1953 change of administration, Webb returned to the private sector, working in the oil industry and serving as an informal foreign policy advisor to Senator Robert Kerr (D-OK).

Kerr supported Webb's appointment to head the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in 1961. Webb took the reins of NASA just before it became the centerpiece of the Kennedy-Johnson administration's efforts to put a man on the moon. He oversaw NASA as its budget quintupled to $5 billion by 1965, then doubled again over the next three years. Sensing the imminent election of Nixon, Webb resigned from NASA in October 1968, and retired to write and lecture. Webb died in 1992. For more information see: American National Biography v. 14 pp. 848-850; and Dean Acheson's Present at the Creation, pp. 184-185 and 312-314.

Grant,

My responses are in bold below.

At 8:15pm July 9 1947 Webb calls Dodd. Who is Dodd?
I believe this may be Norris E. Dodd, Under Secretary of Agriculture.
At 12:45pm July 10 1947 Webb calls AG. Who is AG?
I believe this may be Tom Clark, the Attorney General.
At 12:35pm December 6 1950 Wegg calls Souers. Is there a Souers?
Should this be Webb?
Sidney Souers was the Executive Secretary, National Security Council, 1947-1950. From 1950-1953, Sidney Souers was a special consultant on military and foreign affairs to President Truman. Wegg should probably be Webb.

Thanks

David

Will let you know on the finder's guide shortly.

A question. In the attached scans of White House phone records I would like to know who a couple people are.

At 8:15pm July 9 1947 Webb calls Dodd. Who is Dodd?
At 12:45pm July 10 1947 Webb calls AG. Who is AG?
At 12:35pm December 6 1950 Wegg calls Souers. Is there a Souers?
Should this be Webb?
