Summary

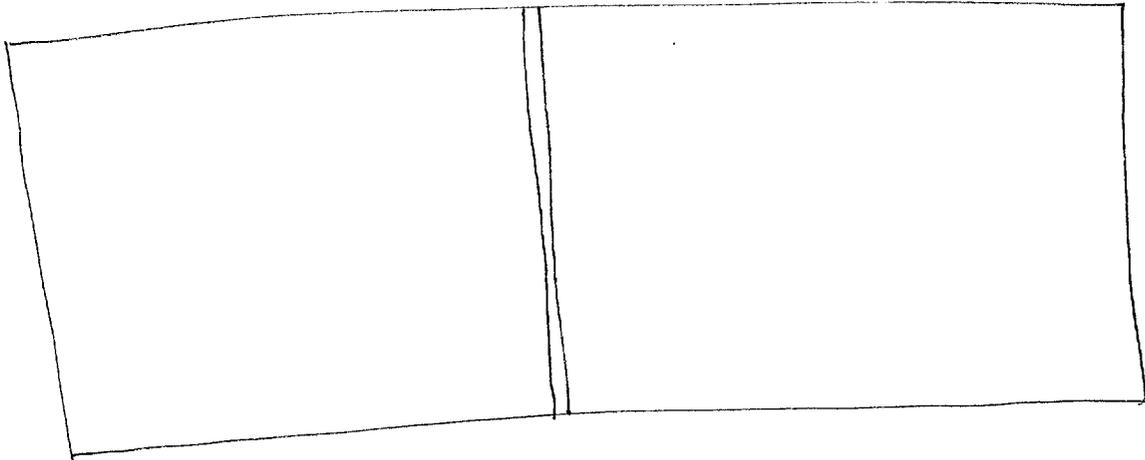

Long double rounded florescent lights are on the inside of the building. To the left, there is a room with a large window on the far wall and a bed which has mussed cheap linens on it (books 1 and 2). The rooms are far and few in between. Further down the wide hall on the right, there is another room with large mechanical generating machinery. People have stayed or have been in this building at some time and for some time (overnight). Human resources are involved. Experimental conditions. Cleanliness is an issue within the structure itself. The army soldier in combat boots and plain baggy washed green fatigues is loitering just outside of the room with the bed in it. He is strong, fully capable and in good health. He is looking into the room from out in the hall (near the door opening) and somehow appears hesitant. He is associated with the army/military but that may not be his intent or purpose at this juncture. This is not a large official military establishment. However, this young man (Latin American?) and probably others are affiliated with the military government. Humans are being worked with directly. Health is an issue (life support). This is not, however, primarily a medical facility. Some activities are covert or kept quiet. A front is kept up. There are not many people there now. A handful of people are involved in a project (psychological artificial one). In another room there is a small library of old books. There are plain brown wood shelves along the walls extending from the floor to the ceiling on basic theory or (science/sciences). A few books are historical and some are self-written. This rudimentary library has predominantly outdated basic instruction experimental procedures books with simple diagrams.
