Summary

Site is an urban area or city; it is dirty, rundown, made of blockwork, cement, with <sup>rectangular</sup> interesting streets (grid system); it's cold windy, has abandoned buildings, has many levels or layers, of medium height. It spreads over a wide area, and is occupied ~~by~~ by people who are relatively regimented, resigned to their situation, repressed to a degree, in a semi-isolated, ~~and~~ dry, windy, high-plateau-like area. It is involved with heavy industry, factories, steel, and is smoky (colored smoke), gritty, smelly, and has railroads. The area is ancient, has a Soviet/Asian/S. West Asian feel, + 2 national groups are present - natives, who are primarily workers, + "Supervisors," who ~~control~~ control socially + economically. Elements are primarily Political + Civilian, but there is a military presence. The people further are vestige + calloused, alien to western culture, and may be of Turkic/Mongolian origin. The city was One Great, and is <sup>historically</sup> ancient. Tashkent comes to mind.

2d Summary

A major river runs from the heart of the city; along river is a large, long, flat, wide bldg within which some sort of construction or assembly is taking place. Large machinery is present, welding is being done, and some large object is the subject of this assembly/construction. Large, curved steel plates are involved in the construction of the object. Some sort of Naval or maritime connection seems to be involved.
