Structure of interest has floors/levels, numerous large and small rooms, bright, focused lights. It is organized with one overall "authority," and several (perhaps five) direct subdivisions--a sort of "vertical organization" without intermediate sub-steps. From inside the structure are images of ropes of colored wires and shiny metal, with bright lights and access ramps, curving transparent pieces and "moving machines"--"like" forklifts, except specialized. There is also a sense associated with this building involving disbursement/dispatch, as if some sort of inventory is being distributed. Advice is also given, "like" a central clearing house for what's involved here (i.e. "proponent agency"). Both actual things and also information, advice, and directions are provided. There is some sort of unusual sound, like a "whistle-zap," seems to be made by some sort of affiliated machinery. There are lots of confused, jumbled images of large, complicated metal machines. One further form/object was perceived that was rounded, curving, smooth, white, somewhat pliant, reminded me of a large propane tank.
