Re: Publicity and things.

Status of Project

Program Review

As part of Professor Utts' responsibility with regard to conducting a review of the research, she has been in close contact with me by phone. Although I have not yet seen her report, she has given me a general overview of it and of Ray's report as well.

I would like a formal opportunity to provide commentary on their review of our work and hope that it would be included in your written report to Congress. It seem natural that since they have been examining my (and my colleague's) work during the last 10 years, that a written commentary would bring completeness to the review. Perhaps this would be useful even if the reviews are generally favorable.

Either as part of such a commentary or separately, I would like to have copies of their official reports and, if possible, of AIR's report to you.

Visit

I plan to be in Washington on 23-25 October. As you know, we are setting up meetings with members of the House and Senate Intelligence Committees during that time. I anticipate that my clearances should be in your shop by then (if not by now). Could we plan to meet for an hour or so in the morning of the 23rd? I could come to ORD to meet with you and whomever else you think is appropriate.

The agenda is to discuss the future and to obtain a copy of your report to Congress in preparation for our Congressional meetings.

Publicity

One of my responsibilities as the Director of the Cognitive Sciences Laboratory, is to track and report the publicity with regard to anomalous mental phenomena (e.g., psi, ESP, etc.). For your information, this section includes the relevant portions of my report to my management.

Jim Schnable and British TV Channel 4

I have obtained an NTSC VHS copy of an hour program that aired a few weeks ago in England. In essence it is a video representation of Schnable's written piece in the Independent Sunday paper. The program features Mel Riley and Ed Dames but includes interviews with MG (ret) Ed Thompson (former ARMY ACSI), Adm. Turner, Dr. Puthoff, Lyn Buchanan, and John Alexander. Please find a copy of the tape enclosed.

In my opinion, the show is sensational and makes no attempt to separate fact from fiction. By implication it attempts (and perhaps accomplishes) to raise the credibility of Dames, Riley, and Alexander by association with generals, admirals and the Intelligence community.

We have developed over a lengthy period of time, protocols to prevent "transformative experiences" as was described on this tape. These protocols have already been successful in our laboratory in that none of our people have such, what I view as, negative "transformations." While these protocols have been developed within the flexibility of a contractor situation, it may be possible to adapt them to a government one. What is very clear to me is that the setting in which AC was used for intelligence was not, for the most part, a productive contributor of useful data. With the exception of some obvious "successes," the apparent failure of the operational unit was primarily a methodological problem, and some of the unintended consequences of which are clearly displayed in this tape. It remains to be seen the degree to which AC can provide useful operational data once the methodology is sound. Properly configured, I am optimistic for AC's positive contribution.

As, perhaps a very naive scientist, I thought the papers I signed with regard to classified material were binding regardless of the content and age of the material and could only be released by formal protocol. Many of the individuals in this show appear to make a mockery of those agreements they, too, had to sign. Some of the mentioned individuals are seeking private counsel with regard to legal action, given that the appropriate DIA authorities are seemingly unwilling to act. Dr. Vorona has sent a carefully worded letter of protest to the editor of the Independent.

The story behind the ABC 20/20 show is complex. It begins with a well-known author, Jim Marrs, who was initially writing a book about Psi-Tech and Ed Dames. During his research, Marrs encountered Dave Moorehouse, who claimed that the RV-training he received while a member of the Ft. Meade unit "caused" him to suffer extreme mental distress. (I know that Al and Angela had to provide testimony with regard to this case.) Marrs decided to focus his book on Moorehouse, and I understand that Dames obtained a court injunction against Marris claiming a violation of some agreement they had. In the meantime, a book/media agent (name withheld here) is thought to be romantically involved with Moorhouse and was pushing the ABC piece as an ersatz advertisement for Marris' stalled book. It is also rumored that ABC owns Random House, the publisher of Marris' book.

I am told by the 20/20 people that they could not put a whole piece together about Moorehouse and had seen the Schnable tape. At this moment the show, which was scheduled for airing on 29 September is on hold; they want to interview MG. Thompson who they were able to find in the phone directory. I will be notified in advance of, of if, it s actual air date and time.

It seems unlikely at this time that the 20/20 show will have an impact prior to your report to Congress.
