

For this reason I am highly skeptical about the objective of my 'sighting' report of a floating, mysterious object in the sky monitored by an equally surprised and unprepared observer. And those estimated two per cent of U.F.O.'s absolutely fail to raise my blood pressure. I mean, sixty-eight per cent is a mighty good selling average. I wish we could amount for sixty-eight per cent of what we observe in many other fields of human endeavor. But even since the Middle Ages it has not been customary for business to sell on quotas or allocations or little green men from Mars or whatever we are confronted with a strangeness the which we do not yet have a satisfactory answer.

To those who, I fear, through personal observation or through hearsay based on other people's accounts, still believe that objects of extra-terrestrial origin are roaming through our atmosphere, I respectfully ask that I have never seen such an object and cannot believe in their existence until I do.
