Incident #208 -- Subject, North Carolina -- 8 March 1943

The speed of 600 mph, the lack of an engine trail and the reported "nearly horizontal course" make it extremely doubtful that the object seen in this incident was a jet. The "weird reflection which did not flicker" also points against this possibility. While the object was a technical one, it was not such likely that his power output was so enormous. Subsequent search to find what was the actual hypothesis.
