Larson Air Force Base, Washington

8 January 1955

I. Description of Incident

An F-100 2 over sixty varied military and civilian airmen observed one green, disc-shaped object. The observations continued for fifteen minutes during which time the object moved in a southeasterly direction while bobbing vertically and going sideways. There was no sound. An F-100 aircraft was scrambled but a thirty minute search of the area produced negative intercept results.

II. Discussion of Incident

A check of adjacent radar sites revealed no unusual returns or activity in the area. The winds were generally from S-W at an average of 20,000'. Thus the object would appear to move against the wind since it must have been below the clouds. There was no air traffic reported in the area.

III. Conclusion
