They were promised complete anonymity and if they could report their sightings to a group of serious, respected scientists who would regard the problem as a scientific one, then they would be willing to cooperate to the very fullest extent. Astronomer I suggested that an article be written in some astronomical journal informing the astronomical world that a reliable clearing house for such information exists. (See Footnote.) Astronomer I, and others, were of the strong opinion that the astronomical world should be informed through reliable channels as to what the Air Force is doing in tracking down these objects, and what is being done to put the investigation of such incidents on a scientific basis.

Astronomer J, from Germany, has sighted none himself but tells that flying saucer reports also exist in Germany, but he believes that very few have been introduced by the Organization Forces. He reports that rumors are frequent that the flying saucers might be from Mars, but that these reports are taken by the intelligentsia simply as American propaganda to cover up the existence of quiet weapons. Or, they say, if not the Americans, then the Soviets.

Astronomer M, from England, has made no sightings himself. He tells that such sightings are talked about in England, however. The only specific case he knows anything about is that of the falling ice which killed the sheep. These very heavy "flying saucers" served a very good purpose in getting around most remaining because when a sheep was killed, obviously for some use, the stone was put to falling ice. The reporter added when a chemical examination of the only authentic case of such a fall showed the ice to have been acid in it. This led to a change in the investigation routine along the lines planned

Footnote: The writer does not agree with U.S.A. as it would almost immediately fall into the hands of the press and the ensuing publicity would be a strong detriment to the receipt of reports.
