PIONEERS? SETTLERS? OR SQUATTERS?

The above title was inspired by reference which was made to your Editor recently by a chairman, prior to a lecture .

Probably although a little flattered, the title was true and accepted by yours + truly, for with a few others which remain he does hold that very esteemed honour as far as Flying Saucer Research is concerned.

As such therefor he has watched the growth and spread of the movements through Australia and is well acquainted with the history of, especially the earlier sections of the formation and intrigues which went on. Many of which have been well covered up and laid aside in the skeleton cupboard. Lest it harm the prestige of their present cause. or more directly in some cases the social standing of others , who desire to be classed as the ultra-scientific groups.

We have spoken of this before so will not dwell on the social climbing section which inevitably creeps into any group once it becomes " respectable", which of course brings us back to our title. and the days when our subject was NOT so respectable or socially accepted. Days when to believe in flying saucers meant you had to be willing to be classified as a crackpot.

I suppose no field of pioneering investigation has held such ridicule as this mainly because we had no text books to even give us a glimmer of support, all evidence was that of similar folk like ourselves who either claimed observing them, or who were brave enough to accept such evidence as came from people whose characters were beyond reproach, in their fields. Even they too were doubted and considered by their colleagues as " out on a limb".

So many pioneers have either passed on. been pushed out, by both the known forces of their own groups, who trod all over them to gain a place in the now fashionable Flying saucer groups. or even the more enigmatical and mysterious forces which so far no one has given the complete explanation of. " Those men in black" for despite any ridicule on the part of those who laugh this off even among so called Flying Saucer investigators (so called) there have been some very strange events which have driven well known pioneers from the field and we don't have to go out of Australia to find them .

Your Editor is well aware of the earlier day experiences of quite a few, and even today some of which remain unexplained. although some factors have been exaggerated, and which have been cleared up by facts known and tabulated. still leaving others yet unexplained.

All glory to those who have steadfastly remained. despite the kicks, mainly from within , after all the main point is as long as they remain pioneering , then we have hope that continued new fields will open up the intriguing mass of still unexplained facts about flying saucers.

But here is where it appears to the Editor. most have failed in that once having found a place in the sun. of the flying saucer world. the vast majority no longer remain PIONEERS , but become SETTLERS. No longer blazing the way digging up facts, but settling down to a cosy little position as leader of a group. making public statements here and there. generally building up prestige for the group, and particularly themselves. but NEVER DARING to blaze a way into some unknown factor, some by path, out on the limb or questionable theory of the subject, but becoming purely a settler. gathering such facts and peddling them as fit the general accepted consensus of opinion. Well knowing if he dared to suggest even some delving into some side of the Flying Saucer subject which was frowned upon. he might well lose his position as President, or some other high office. or may be if he went far enough against the ruling "minds" of his group become an outcast. because he was no longer a "yes man".

Of course there is the third class. the squatters. who come in and not only settle in a group, but begin to prate and publicise their knowledge, none of which they have earned, but merely acquired by book knowledge. no spirit of pioneering to their credit. no desire to investigate. even worse. maybe just come to meetings and sit a bear and talk and get thrills from the latest sighting report. or event. squatters just sitting on their rumps and doing nothing but sit and meditate like a Buddha contemplating his navel.

Of course, like your Editor, age does cause many to give up a lot which maybe one would love to do. the drive and force no longer there. the spirit being willing. but the flesh very weak indeed, but this does not stop him from organising the younger keener members into pioneers. to carry the mission ahead which age has compelled him to lay down. In this way he remains a pioneer for from his past experiences he can advise and guide others into new fields or what to guard against. or more how to PROTECT themselves from the more subtle dangers which lie in the path of the unwary who dig "DEEP" into the saucer story.

This all brings us to the point of challenge. WHERE DO YOU STAND? WHAT ARE YOU? A Pioneer, Settler, or Squatter,? Have you stopped pioneering and become a settler using as an excuse your age. your health. or do you still pioneer using your past knowledge and experience and the youth around you to carry a continued programme of research into the yet unexplained. and thus still participating as a pioneer.?

What a challenge lies to us all. if we call ourselves sincere seekers and investigators,

If of course you prefer to remain in the respectable class, please don't hamper those who are fired with a pioneering spirit, remain where you are. you'll get your reward. But maybe it won't be what you think it will be.

One thing is for certain. you are safer where you are if such is this case. for the true pioneering calls for courage, daring, probing into the UNKNOWN and UNSOLVED answers, gets a bit sticky at times, and is no place for weaklings. besides it needs special knowledge most of which does not come from book learning, and such available in the Flying Saucer libraries.

I have insisted from my early days, and Gray Baker spoke of this in his book "They knew too much about Flying Saucers" he rather tended to laugh at my ideas, which by the way were given confidentially and never intended for print. A lesson I learned by sad experience. I said then "there are two forces at work the negative and the positive. dark and light. evil and good, call them what ever you will. "... I have never had any reason to alter that opinion in fact events in Australia, which were strongly confirmed by many more from overseas more than strongly confirmed this and still do. even in some of the latest books written. plus some magazines of late referring to the strange happenings to well known investigators, some of whom are still "pioneers".

No. if you would valient be and a pioneer become or remain. don't overlock to have the knowledge how to protect yourself, from the alien forces which are NOT the true flying saucer people. but theirs, and yours and mine, vicious enemys.

Crackpot. I hear some say. well they said that 17 years ago. They said that of us when we told them the above words. , but could not explain the strange happenings to pioneers all over the world. and right here too. some of these men can no longer be traced, they are lost, no postal addresses, no possibility of asking them now about what happened. and the only ones who do know are the old pioneers. "The crackpots". who DARED to delve into the unknown and found out from their own similar experiences. that we face the greatest battle of all ahead. not only on this earth. but war in the heavens.

But all this is too much for the settlers. the squatters. its either too scary or too crackpot for consideration. They prefer to have teachers with pretty talk to tickle their itching ears, and please them with lovely stories and sightings. So did the idle rich of Noe's day. the lust ridden city of Sodom, the debauched people of Rome. . Greece . history records how they all derided those who told them of TRUTH. but they preferred to ignore the pathfinders. the pioneers. who foreshaw inevitable events from the knowledge they had gained from the "Inner Source". They were the crackpots of their day.

That sad picture, what a gloomy Jeremiah, NO. merely a pioneer pointing out that we face the worlds greatest events it has ever known. and that EIGHT NOT NIGHT must win. TRUTH will conquer error. LIGHT forever dispels darkness. IT all depends on what side you are on. as to whether the future is gloomy or bright. If you serve Mammon or Babylon as better known to some. then, may have high position wealth, power, even to control many people, but that insidious world power is soon to be broken. and the forces of LIGHT are here and coming to ASSIST us to do just that. for what and when we are powerless to do things ourselves, ONLY THEN will they come to our aid. WE must do our part. as far as lieth in our hands. what we cannot do will be done by those from other places. The FUTURE is BRIGHT and full of HOPE. PREPARE YOURSELF FOR IT.

"For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

Those are the forces which have caused the strange happenings in the lives of some of your pioneers. and the many wierd and unexplainable events which have caused you to ask yourself. "Are all saucers good?" These are the powers combined which control the world both physical and spiritually inspired men who are determined to bring it under their control and would do so. if it were not for the forces of LIGHT already arrayed for the battle. to overcome them and DELIVER Earth and men that dwell thereon. that all may live in Harmony.

The Aquarian Age, The Golden Age, The Kingdom of God. call it what you will is here. The clock of the sky has told the time and it cannot be put back like your alarm clock. greater hands keep it in order. Hands that made and created the clock itself and all that is. THE GREAT CREATOR.

WE move toward this new age. more quicker than we dream. but it cannot be reached without being BORN into it. and every birth brings pain, but beautiful is the babe which it produces. and the exultant joy of those who gave birth to it. is worth all the darkness which its birth the prelude to the new Dawn.

"Dawn is breaking. and a new day is born.

The world is singing the song of the Dawn".

Editorial (4)

So goes the words of the old song. Full of deep meaning especially for us today.

No matter category you may fit into in those set out as our heading. To all will come great changes, to those who see ahead and expect the change will not have such an ill effect as to those not prepared. for the old adage still stands true. to be forewarned is to be forearmed.

The man who sees dark clouds gathering portending a storm, battens down all that is loose and liable to be effected by what he sees ahead.

In the last of the 22 cards of the Tarot. is depicted a fool walking heedlessly ~~but~~ straight ahead lies a chasm, or as depicted in the pyramid, the bottomless pit. a dog snaps at his hool. but he whistles a tune oven heedless of the dog.

I have often wondered about that dog. I have read many interpretations of it. I humbly suggest one. It is his pet. he sees his masters danger and tries to warn him, but the fool as he is called in the Tarot. doesn't even give heed to his humble canine friend.

I could be well off, in that interpretation. but at least it depicts what I am trying to impress on my readers. and that is, that if over we need to be alert and not sitting at ease in any place where we may serve. it is today.

As a pioneer you cannot be at ease. for what you discovered in the past has taught you a maxim well known to many Australian servicemen.

" The Eternal price of Freedom is VIGILANCE".

The greatest danger therefor of becoming a Settler or worse a Squatter is that it is a sure thing to cause you to lack this very Vigilance. If you are to find the answers to the saucers. Keep plugging away as a pioneer watch for every angle whercin and answer may be found, do not be satisfied with the accepted ones, maybe there is some greater answer than that generally considered to be the real. an answer that perhaps you or others have avoided because it was a little offbeat, and you were afraid of being looked askance at, or perhaps NOT SO POPULAR. Well if its popularity you want stay where you are. you certainly won't find the path of a Pioneer exactly bringing popularity, in fact probably the opposite except from the deeper thinkers.

Having said all this, it will be obvious that this very article may not be very popular with some. It may even cause many to call down on myself their anathemas, who cares? I stand in good company. for the pioneers of all truth were so treated. alas some oven martyred for what they KNEW to be the TRUTH and had the tomerty to declare it fearlessly. to the hurt of those in high places. and who had the power in their hands to destroy them, simply because they dared to oppose them. I don't exactly expect that. even if I have been phoned and told I am going to die etc etc. I'm still here. well over the due date set for my demise.

Now to those who I KNOW are true pioneers. those who in some cases are leaders of groups. some of whom are deep thinkers and are still pioneering on. still searching and digging. and finding pearls or even diamonds among the hidden recesses of the hidden truths. To you I salute you. Continue your great quest. do not be deterred or swayed from it. and if age and health cause you to take a quieter way of life. continue by giving all aid to the youth. hand the torch onto them. let the force and energy of their youth be your sword, and your mind and experience their inspiration to achieve what cannot be finished

2 THE TIME HAS COME! The Walrus Said.

From New Zealand Scientific Approach to Cosmic Understanding . Newsletter 54.
By Fred and Phyllis Dickson.

Have you ever thought what your reaction would be if you were given the choice to vacate the Earth in order to survive, or stay and perish?

Have you ever thought what your reactions would be if you were told that to continue living you would have to go to a certain spot, by a certain time (maybe a matter of a few hours) to be taken away from your country by a Space Craft for a destination unknown ?

Would you be torn by indecision, - whether to go or stay behind with your friends relations and worldly possessions etc ?

The again , would your family or friends believe you if and when you told what was about to happen : atomic holocaust, gerowarfare, an Earth flip, Earth burning up etc? We are NOT SAYING IT WILL TAKE PLACE , but all must admit that anything could happen these days, as the state of things on this planet of ours is far from being harmonious and happy.

So for this Editorial we thought we would just ask you all to imagine what you would do in this situation ever came up. It would be interesting to ponder over this topic sometime and ask your family and friends what they would do if this case ever came to be a hurried necessary contemplation.

In fact it may be as well to have some idea just what you would do as this could save you a lot of time and soul searching at the period when TIME just may be at an end.

It would certainly be very difficult to abandon everything , leaving your home, possessions, friends and perhaps some of the family who just think that you are 'crackers', and yet who rarely give the matter of UFOs any serious thought. There would be many who are so deeply steeped in churchianity, that to believe they were being helped by " Angels" of past Biblical mention, would unfortunately translate the offer of help to be a " gimmick" of the devil, and would certainly not contemplate the move.

Many people who do not know this UFO subject and the history behind it would surely reprobate that nothing like this could ever happen now or in the future, and yet with a little research they could soon establish in ancient writings that these disasters have occurred before, catastrophes like this HAVE happened, and if we believe that history repeats itself, then it could happen again. One consolation perhaps is , as in days gone by, Saucers have at times rescued those willing to go before devastation took place---so our one hope is, or would be, rescue by the space people who are now making themselves conspicuous in many countries throughout the world.

As before, MAN has brought these shattering blows on himself by the misuse of powers which if used intelligently could be of great and uplifting benefit to all concerned.

We hear somewhere ; that Man has copied Nature and has mastered many things, he can travel on and under the sea like a fish, he can walk and run like animals. and he can fly like the birds, the only thing he has to do now is act like a MAN. This is all so true. and yet what animal or creature would treat his fellow species, the way man treats man today!?

No the time has come , " the walrus said, " to think of many things..

REPORT ON SIGHTINGS OF U.F.O. BY HIGHWAYS DEPARTMENT DRILLING TEAMKINGSTON - ON - MURRAY

The U.F.O. was observed on three separate occasions for periods of time ranging from half to three and one hour hours. A plan is enclosed showing the location of the site at Kingston and the direction of movement of the craft. A detailed description of the three sightings at the Kingston Bridge Site follows:

1. The U.F.O. was first seen on Wednesday 27th September, 1967, at 10.30 a.m. by one of the drillers. It was approaching the drilling rig on a bearing N 140° at a fantastic rate. The driller shouted to his work mates to look at the craft. They turned & saw it coming straight towards them. They feared that it might crash the drilling rig but suddenly it stopped. It remained in a stationary position as shown in figure 1 in relation to the E.T.S.A. pole and the branches of the tree.

However, while in this stationary position for 3 hours, it was continually changing shape. Figure 2 and Figure 3 show the appearance of the two views which occurred approximately every 15 seconds. One driller described the craft as slowly rotating.

The craft was a bright silver colour and appeared the size of a 50 cent coin held at arms length. In figure 2 the brighter part looked like glass. In Figure 3 the centre portion of the circular craft appeared dark.

The sky was covered with cirrus clouds which appeared like fleecy wool & were moving from North West to South East. The clouds broke up when approaching the U.F.O. & the clear blue sky was visible in the area around the U.F.O. At the edge of the blue sky area, great turbulence of the clouds was occurring. The area of turbulence appeared as a ring around the blue sky which had the U.F.O. at the centre.

The U.F.O. remained in this position until approximately 1.30 p.m. Then it moved from position with bearing N 140° to bearing N 200° in approximately 5 to 10 minutes. The angle of elevation with the horizontal was approx. 23½° for both positions. The U.F.O. moved in a circular translatory motion as shown in the plan. The direction of movement was in part against the direction of the wind.

After reaching the second position the U.F.O. remained stationary for a few seconds and then disappeared.

2. The second sighting occurred on the next day Thursday, 28th September 1967, at 10.45 a.m. Another driller saw it first in the same position as the previous day. It looked the size of a 20 cent coin held at arms length. The other three drillers all observed it.

The craft remained in this position, bearing N 140°, angle to horizontal 23½°, for approx. 2 hours & then moved slowly in a circular translatory motion to the position N 200°. The performance was a repeat of Wednesday's procedure.

Suddenly the craft moved vertically upwards & away from the drillers. A few seconds later a jet propelled aircraft was seen moving underneath the U.F.O. The aircraft was at an angle of 24° to the horizontal & the U.F.O. at approx. 34° to the horizontal.

The jet aircraft was seen for approx. one minute. There were two white exhaust streams of condensed vapour extending back from the aircraft. The noise of the jet was heard as a rumble coming from the direction of the first position bearing $N 140^{\circ}$. During this time the U.F.O. appeared to be vertically above the jet, as shown in figure 4.

The jet appeared a silver colour & equal to the size of a $\frac{1}{4}$ " long pencil when held at arms length. The U.F.O. appeared to be the size of a 20 cent coin. The U.F.O. appeared to be five times the length of the jet aircraft as shown in Figure 4.

The jet aircraft gradually faded from view & the U.F.O. then moved vertically downwards to approx. the position of the jet aircraft. Then the U.F.O. suddenly disappeared.

During the time from 10.00 a.m. to 2.00 p.m. the sky was a clear blue colour with no cloud.

3. The third sighting occurred at 10.30 a.m. on Friday, October 6th, 1967, which was eight days after the second sighting.

The U.F.O. was first viewed in the Northern sky at a position with bearing $N 310^{\circ}$ and an angle of 40° to the horizontal. It was stationary & appeared the size of a 10 cent coin held at arms length. There was no change in the shape of the craft. It appeared a bright silver colour.

At approx. 11.00 a.m. it moved to the West in about 10 minutes to a position with bearing $N 260^{\circ}$. The movement was in a straight line with no circular motion as in previous sightings. On reaching the new position, the craft suddenly disappeared.

The sky on this day was blue with occasional clouds. The U.F.O. was seen against a clear blue sky.

CONCLUSIONS:

1. Calculations show that the jet aircraft was between 10 & 15 miles South of Kingston Bridge Site in Figure 4. (A second sighting by another group of people at Cobdogla to the East enabled distance to be calculated more accurately at between seven and eight miles).
2. The size of the U.F.O. Would be approx. 500 feet in diameter.
3. The U.F.O. was not a balloon as it moved against the wind.
4. The U.F.O. is capable of hovering in the same position indefinitely.
5. The U.F.O. is capable of extremely great rates of acceleration.

The following article was considered by the Editor to be so timely and full of good common sense reasoning, that he felt it important to include it in this issue.

The Magazine "Topside" a good Canadian production of UFO workers, may not reach all the readers of this magazine, especially in Australia, as since we claim to have the Panoramic View, we feel that this will assist others in at least getting the Canadian View point on this matter and with which we concur.

HOW WE SHOULD DEAL WITH UFO NEGATIVE PROPAGANDA

Article from "TOPSIDE MAGAZINE"

Published by, OTTAWA NEW SCIENCES CLUB

95 Centre Street, Aylmer, Quebec, Canada.

Over the past 2 years especially, an increasing amount of reports, rumors talk and wild speculation has been circulating around the UFO scene concerning such matters as the pressuring and silencing of private UFO researchers; UFO publications being forced off the market; loss of, or interference with, UFO mail, including valuable documents, photographs and even registered mail and telegrams "going astray"; queer stories of "Men in Black" and more recently menacing drivers of unlicensed black Cadillacs - black garbed, Oriental-type man who silently photograph the houses and families of UFO-witnesses (as per John A. Keel's article "The sinister man in Black", Fate, April, 1968); an increase in literature on the "Flying Saucers are Hostile" theme (laughable, this - if they were really aggressive, UFO's with their advanced technology, could have wiped us all off the face of the earth centuries ago); the distorted, negative portrayal of UFO occupants in the TV show "The Invaders"; suggestions that the members of the "Silence Group" are infiltrating UFO associations with the alleged idea of using these organizations eventually to pass on false information and negative thinking; a few UFO periodicals warning us in effect: "Be on guard, Big Brother may be watching you!"; odd UFO questionnaires that include the intriguing question: "Have any members of your Association been subjected to government scrutiny or intimidation?" - and coming right home, even a mysterious rumour that Topside was being "suspended", which we can assure our readers is entirely unfounded! Dr. Edward Condon is reported as saying that the findings of the Colorado University's UFO study project "will not necessarily add to the nation's peace of mind" and later reports indicate some disintegration among his original group of scientists, with Dr. Condon reported to be suffering from a recurrent heart ailment. Then there are even more disturbing suggestions, e.g., Gordon Creighton, President of Britain's largest UFO research organization BUFORA theorizes that there may be something sinister in the unusual number of recent deaths among well-known ufologists. We do not claim to know the truth, but this does seem like stretching coincidence to the point of melodrama, and one might ask here why such key UFO figures as Keyhoe, Rynak, McDonald, Vallee, Fuller, Edwards, the Lorenzons, Fry, Yanish, Barker (USA), Duplantier (Canada), Cramp, Cleary-Baker, Caswell (Britain), Petersen (Denmark), Michel (France), and many others have been left unscathed?

Where lies the truth.

The whole picture, as described above, adds up to a mass of negative thinking, which, to say the least, is damaging to the work of genuine UFO researchers and is probably diabolically devised to discourage and intimidate not only them but the vast mass of lay people who are becoming increasingly interested in the UFO mystery. How much of this negative material is based on truth, how much is exaggerated sensationalism or downright lies, or how much of it is carefully-conceived negative propaganda designed to harm the UFO cause, and whence it all emanates, are questions which as yet, cannot be answered accurately. As with the UFO mystery itself, we can only theorize. Many believe it is the work of the governments, acting through agencies as the CIA, etc; others attribute it to the vague "Silence Group", while some suggest that certain people with warped minds have jumped on the UFO band-wagon and are attempting to terrorize ufologists for sheer kicks. A few, and probably more accurately, lay the blame at the door of a mere handful of people - that small and select but all-powerful syndicate of international financiers who control world governments, their destiny and thinking and who fear, in the spreading of UFO truths, the eventual crumbling of their vast financial empires. Wherever the truth lies, there is little doubt that negative forces of some sort are actively at work on this planet, and therefore we must be prepared to deal with them.

A Timely Warning.

Regrettably, a number of UFO writers and publications have been responsible for damaging the UFO image by giving undue prominence and publicity to this negative propaganda and in this regard we refer to those writers who appear to delight in "sensationalizing" their articles with dramatic half-truths or blown up rumours of a negative nature which they consider will make their material more saleable, particularly to the 'Yellow Sheet' type of publication. While keeping a watchful eye on negative developments and constantly seeking the truth, we would be a lot wiser and serve a better purpose if we kept such doubtful negative material out of our journals. Otherwise, we may only be falling into a carefully-laid trap and serving the ends of the negativists. Rather, we should concentrate on the constructive, positive side of our search for UFO truths and become our own "Silence Group" when dealing with destructive negative propaganda. Above all, we should be particularly careful about what we say on this subject in public statements or in interviews with news media, which often provides an open invitation for our views to be distorted in the sensation-seeking press. A typical example of this may be quoted in the unfortunate experience of Mr. Ralph Jarrett, President of the UFO Investigators Group of Charleston, W. Va. In a speech addressed to the Charleston Exchange Club in March 1968, he commented that those who learn too much about flying saucers are mysteriously "Silenced". The following day, "The Charleston Gazette" published an account of this address under the exaggerated headline of "UFO Probers Doomed to Die"! In a statement published later in the Gazette in which Mr. Jarrett objected to this headline and clarified his meaning (i.e., "silencing" did not mean death), he commented sadly: "In six short words, this headline could have destroyed more than it has taken me a year to accomplish." We have every sympathy with Mr. Jarratt for being so badly misquoted and we print this mainly as a warning to others. If we publish UFO negative material at all, rather than treat it too seriously, it might be a better idea to give it the same ridicule as that heaped on the serious research conducted by private UFO groups for so many years. This approach proved very effective for the famous "swamp gas" alibi, and for a laugh, we might add the retaliatory slogan of the Amalgamated Flying Saucer Clubs of America: "Flying Saucers are Real - the Air Force doesn't exist!".

Some Practical Approaches

Assuming there is some truth in the negative propaganda allegations, how can we best protect ourselves from such activity? In the case of "lost" mail for which some evidence of veracity exists, we think we can do no better than to quote the following warning and sound advice as issued by Dr. P.M.H. Edwards, West Coast Director for CAPRO & APRQ:

1. Submit evidence primarily only to authorized organizations (CAPRO, APRQ, NICAP etc, to list a few)
2. Submit only COPIES (never originals) of photographs to the authorities (this applies especially to the USAF, Bluebook and other government agencies, but also applies to the private agencies as well). If the agency wants to see the original of a photo or negative, make arrangements with that agency to send a representative with proper credentials to receive the original/s. When the agent arrives, check his credentials very carefully, then telephone the office that sent him to verify the fact that this is actually their man. When the agent takes the photo make absolutely certain you obtain a receipt with a return date on it. Also make sure that you have 2 or 3 witnesses in attendance.
3. Try to refrain from mailing originals out of the country. Copies, of course, can be sent. Many agencies and private individuals in Canada have run into a delivery problem with the U.S. Postal Authorities - a great deal of original material has been "lost" and never reached its destination. We know of one Canadian agency which mailed a complete report and analysis of a very important case to its parent organization in the U.S. by Registered Mail. A few days later, the package was returned to the Canadian agency with the words "No such address" stamped across it. Now the American agency to which the report was sent, has been in existence for 13 years and its headquarters have never been changed, so "No such address" did not apply in this case. Also, the package had been ripped open and most of the material taken out. This is theft - a federal offence - all you have to do is find who opened the package, which of course is impossible.
4. If the material is very important, refrain from using the organization's name or even its initials; preferably, mail it to a person at that address and this way it may escape the attention of the postal authorities. If the organization's name appears on the package, it immediately becomes suspect. It is a fact that almost every post office in Canada and the U.S.A. is aware of the full names by initials, of most of the well-known UFO organizations. (Topside confirms this, having received mail addressed "ONSC, Canada", "Wilbert Smith's Club, Ottawa, and even "UFO, Canada") So, for mailing investigations, UFO reports and especially originals of photographs and negatives DO NOT use the organizations name or initials."

If They Try to Silence You

With regard to the alleged "pressuring and silencing" of private UFO witnesses and researchers, which apparently is more prevalent in the U.S., we quote below a condensed version of an excellent article on this subject which appeared in the March-April 1965 issue of NICAP's "UFO Investigator". While slanted primarily for American consumption, the advice given is equally applicable in most countries.

1. If you sight a UFO, mail a report to NICAP (1536 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington DC, 20036, USA) at the earliest possible moment - if possible, before an interview with a government agent. (A NICAP investigator may contact you; if so, ask to see his credentials.)

2. If a government, or even municipal agent contacts you, ask for credentials first. Be courteous; many investigators oppose the secrecy and are only following orders. Write down names, official agency, key data on identification cards and the date and time. If credentials are refused, you can refuse to talk, even if the investigators are in uniform.

3. If informed of the interview ahead, have one or more witnesses present, and/or a tape recorder. If the agents order the witnesses to leave, ask for the legal authority involved. Since there is none, you can politely insist on witnesses or taping, or both, to keep the record straight. If they still refuse, you can end the interview.

4. Before reporting details, tell the investigators you reserve your civil rights to make this information public if you wish. If they object and order you to keep silent, ask by what legal authority.

5. If the agents agree to your provisions, then carefully give them all sighting details. However, if you have photos of a UFO/s, DO NOT GIVE UP THE ORIGINALS. If possible, have copies made before any interview. Offer investigators a copy. They have no legal right to take the original film and there are recorded cases where owners never got their originals back. If you do give up a photo, original or copy, be sure to get a signed receipt showing name, title, agency involved, and date with brief description of the photo and condition.

6. If the agents insist on silence, you should ask the specific reasons, besides the legal authority, then the decision is up to you - not the agents. We suggest that if you agree, you insist on their writing out the silencing order and signing it, with an explanation. If you don't agree and no authority or good reason is shown, you would be free to release the report to NICAP, the press or broadcasting stations. However, if the agents ask you merely to delay publicity a short time - for a fair reason - you could agree. (This would not prevent a temporarily confidential report to NICAP.)

7. Regardless of interview results, get photos, if possible of the investigators as they leave, also their car and numberplate. This is very important if the agents are in civilian clothes and vitally so if they refuse to show credentials.

If you are in a "sensitive" position, NICAP certainly does not want you to risk your job. But if you are free from pressure, you have every right to report silencing attempts to newspapers or broadcasting stations. If you can't risk publicity, send us a confidential report of the entire affair. But unless you are compelled to remain anonymous, please don't make your report public.

HOW WE SHOULD DEAL WITH UFO NEGATIVE PROPAGANDA Continued.....

If more witnesses hit back and reveal silencing attempts, the censorship will soon collapse".

The Best Protection of All.

There is only one way to deal effectively with the Forces of Darkness and that is by the Light of Spirituality from which all evil shrinks. If we beam out thoughts of goodwill and compassion to these unhappy creatures with sick minds, in complete faith of God's protection, they cannot harm us. We willingly give sympathy to a person with a sick body, so how much more compassion should we extend to the morally bankrupt, with diseased minds. If we project thoughts of hate and fear, we only open up a 2-way channel which puts us on the receiving end of negative activity. Far better that we pray for these lost souls stumbling blindly in the dark, in the firm belief that each prayer will cast a ray of light into their world of spiritual darkness.

Digest in English of the TREATISE ON TIME, GRAVITY AND THE UFO PROBLEM

written in Esperanto, by Manuel Falvelik.....

COSMOGONY:

Contemporary "Big Bang" theories, about the cosmological origin of the Universe, present the picture of a sort of gigantic energy sack full of nuclear marbles, densely packed together, now that the "Continuous Creation" theory is becoming abandoned. The author goes one important step further, arguing that the Primeval Atom was rather a concentrically layered sphere of energy-matter, the Cosmosphere in which no nuclear particles as such were present. This enormous ball of pure electromagnetic energy - whose properties can be deduced on the one hand by "extrapolation" of known physical laws and phenomena, and on the other by "intrapolation" of theological considerations about eternity and infinity in an absolute sense - must have had its double in an impalpable, non-material, but nevertheless real sphere, the Metasphere whose nature may be described either by the Hindu concept of Brahma, or by the nowadays more or less neglected Western concept of the Ether. Thus the duality matter/spirit is seen from a new angle.

TIME:

Owing to its special nature, the Metasphere must have been and still is, continuous and utterly indivisible, although in intimate contact with physical matter and capable of local concentrations or deformations. As such it may be identified with relativistic Curved Space and can be approached only in mathematical or abstruse religious terms. From the very beginning of existence it started to expand in every direction, while at the same time revolving around an imaginary axis, thus giving rise to an outgoing spiralling motion which can account not only for the known expansion of the Universe but also for Time itself. In the first instance, it may be considered the immediate driving force behind all physical phenomena, and the second case arises because its motion occurs at the incredible but absolutely constant speed of 2π times the speed of light. This cosmic spiralling motion process must be seen as an angular velocity in which the expanding radius (c) need to be multiplied by the circumference (2π) in such a way that, whatever the point in space considered, the product remains constant, irrespective of local disturbances. This can be done by taking into account also the angular deviation of the vector which links the point in question to the origin of the Universe (Centre of the Metasphere). In this way, by classical measuring methods, a speed of exactly $2 \text{ Pi} \cdot c$ may be found at the metaspherical equator, while only c may be encountered at the metaspherical poles, although from the cosmological point of view, all points/speeds on the surface or the inside actually amount to the same absolute value. As a direct consequence of this constant value, the expanding universe is seen to be revolving ever more slowly as its radius extends, thus reaching eventually a point at which it must come to a halt, the End of Time. Moreover, by taking into account that the value of a given "spiral arm" must be calculated on the basis of the original sphere - acting as an absolute cosmic measuring norm, with one complete revolution as a cosmic unit both for distance (1 Džino) and for time (1 Vremjo) - an explanation is found for the fact that the local evolution of a given system, such as the history of our Earth, continually increases its rate of change concurrent with travelling ever further away from the original situation.

GRAVITY:

As for the Cosmosphere, in accordance with its purely material and discontinuous nature, it was unable to follow the compulsion of the Ether by expanding similarly, and became filled with the enormous strain of conflicting forces. As a result it exploded into a myriad elementary fragments of electroagnetic matter.

Now on philosophical grounds it is the proposition of the author that this primeval ball of energy was intrinsically constituted:

- (a) of a vast accumulation (half the biggest possible item-number) of tiny energy spheres, completely merged one into the other, and
- (b) of two complementary but opposing halves (fitting Chinese principle of Yin and Yang,) divided all the way by the imaginary equatorial plane of its etheric counterpart.

So the explosion created an enormous mass of absolutely elementary corpuscles, falling into two categories: one with centripetal tendency of growing ever smaller while accelerating, and one with a centrifugal tendency of growing ever larger while decelerating. It is these absolute elementary particles which, by combining with each other in a multitude of ways, gave and give rise to the miniature solar systems we have grown accustomed to call "elementary" nuclear particles (protons, mesons, electrons and the like) which in turn constitute the great variety of atoms and ultimately all matter as studied and explained by astrophysics, chemistry and so on.

The properties of these absolute monads should in the end account for every physical law or phenomenon as follows, and thus pave way to final formulation of the unified-field theory:

- (1) Basically revolving at the absolute angular velocity of $2 \text{ Pi} \cdot c$, and forced by the need of equilibrium, they take on the form of a lens which can expand or contract laterally over astronomical distances, while both the frontal curvature and velocity make inverse adjustments. Thus for instance, if a monad with centripetal tendency is suddenly slowed down by collision with another, it immediately starts searching for a new equilibrium by expanding sideways, giving rise to what is known as a pjoton or unit wave or Planck-quantum. (Unless the manner of encounter permits building more complicated structures; like the electron). The fact that his spiralling expansion appears to occur at the normal speed of light, is due to observation of the radial-dilation component only. On the other hand, the monad then contracts its convex front and back, growing ever flatter although evidently at a much slower rate (perhaps with the enigmatic factor 10^{40}). However, its frontal motion is always perceived as a corpuscular effect (Note - By revolving around a companion, it will form a closed and electrically neutral system (reminiscent of a double star), which system would be none other than) a neutrino which thus gets identified as being the absolutely fundamental building block of matter. In a similar manner can easily be explained the puzzling duality wave/corpuscle as well as the duality magnetism/electricity. The former may indeed be looked upon like cog-wheels capable of interpenetration acting on one another laterally and, according to the sense of rotation, either attracting or repelling one another. The latter must be considered as constituted by the frontal trajectory itself, which thus becomes not an abstract notion but a truly palpable factor, inherent to the body; not of this fundamental brick but also of any mobile, whether microcosmically large or microcosmically small. It is argued that at the cosmic level every motion of this (frontal) sort is again a absolute constant, making really independent individual speed a mere illusion! Similarly, electricity and inertia are put into the same category: acceleration corresponding with attractive positive charge (drawing into the mobile) and deceleration with repulsive negative charge (pushing out of the mobile). All of these properties are carried along into more complex configurations creating the different nuclear forces (strong interactions) and different sorts of particle behavior (i.e. positively charged proton, negatively charged electron). The apparent disagreement between the new principle of frontal expansion cum acceleration, and the classical (Fitzgerald or) Lorentz-contraction cum acceleration, may be due to misinterpretation, because in the usual relativistic view, Time is a separate dimension, whereas in the author's view it is an inherent prolongation of the space dimensions, specifically of the X-axis (This drawing should be completed with the word korpo (body) between 0 and X and with the word movigo (motion) between X and infinite.).

(2) Each of the two species of monad spends its life travelling back and forth between two extremes of motion (unless captured on the way): zero velocity (c both of which can be actually attained, given the one condition that the monad in question remains individual and that it has not merged with another one as it may easily do because of its electromagnetic nature. At either of these extremes the monad may turn into its own mirror reflection, for example if revolving clockwise while flying ahead; it will be revolving counter-clockwise while flying backward, after (and if) passing beyond that particular velocity threshold. Thus there came into existence four different kinds of monad, which indirectly account for the 4 different kinds of neutrino observed.

Symbolically the fundamental properties are represented as L (clockwise), K (counter-clockwise), A (advancing), R (retracting), P (centripetal) and F (centrifugal). The centripetal couple is capable of forming stable systems, i.e. normal particles, whereas the centrifugal kind is not capable of doing this, so its configurations turn out to be short lived anti-particles.

TREATISE OF TIME, GRAVITY AND THE UFO PROBLEM Continued.....

(3) As a centripetal monad in free individual motion speeds up, it starts spiralling inwards until at precisely the speed of light, it starts spinning like a top, thus acquiring the shape of a minute but perfect sphere. In that way there appears the physical reality of the mathematical concept "point" and also what may be defined as graviton, the particle associated with gravity which is thus shown to be an intimate combination of lateral movements, perpendicular to each other i.e. a frozen circuit of magnetism and electricity. Indeed, at this stage the lateral and frontal vectors of the corpuscle must be of identical length, and consequently so should their corresponding forces, or rather their respective densities.

TIME TRAVEL:

It should be clear from the foregoing, that there must exist two different sorts of gravity, according to the different senses of magnetic rotation vs. orbital motion. Consequently it may be deduced that different kinds of gravitation will repel each other, while gravitons of the same kind will attract each other; which makes the (inverse) parallelism with electromagnetic forces complete. Thus, when a vast number of kindred gravitons merge together, there is little difficulty in imagining that they will constitute a field that could be used as an ideal propelling force... if one could succeed in producing it artificially. This would apply not only on Earth, but especially for the purpose of space-travel. By generating an attractive or a repulsive field, one could drop towards a heavenly body or be catapulted away from it at fantastic speeds, without suffering even the slightest inconvenience from inertia. In fact, every molecule and every atom inside the artificial gravity field would move along with it simultaneously, without offering inertial resistance. Also, regulating the flow of neutrino current and the direction it takes, the speed and direction of the vehicle and motor (Two-in-one) could be adjusted at will. The author proposes a sort of (inversely functioning) cyclotron or gyratron in which the particle flow would be directed not outward but inward towards a central point, in such a way that both the artificial gravity field and the electromagnetic superconducting torus generating it, would act one upon the other and upon environment for the purpose of maneuvering the craft. The manner in which monads of any kind might be produced should be similar in some "perpendicular" way to the generation of waves, but their control and guidance would perhaps constitute an insurmountable problem for contemporary technology because of the incredible weak interaction of these really elementary particles.

But the usage of gravity fields for space-travel is not their only possibility. In fact: according to the nature of time, as expounded in this essay, material structures expand along with the expansion of the universe in such a manner that in a given cosmic period and for a given quantity of energy-matter, there should be a corresponding density of this energy. One and the same gravity field would thus get more "diluted" as cosmic time grows older, while in earlier days it would have been more "concentrated". In this way it should be possible to make a gravity field jump into the past and into the future by respectively condensing or expanding it, which might be done by the same apparatus as employed for special movement. This effect is strikingly analogous to the one observed in electrons jumping from higher energy level to a lower one, by omission of a quantum, or inversely. An analysis is given of the principles underlying time travel, making it apparent that current relativistic views must be correct and that this sort of journey would always occur at the same absolute speed ("Pi.c) in keeping with the "ordinary" forward time movement of the cosmos. So the aging process of the passengers would remain perfectly normal, but they would be unable to reach (from a given starting position) every point in time since time-jumping would be conditioned "forbidden" energy levels, comparable to that which occurs in the atom.

UFOLOGY:

This hypothesis offers a precise explanation for the so-called tunnel-effect observed e.g. in alpha-radiation for the missing part of the track would be found in the "past tense". It also has a direct bearing on the UFO-question, explaining not only the spacial behaviour of these vehicles, but also their sudden appearance (or disappearance) out of nowhere. In view of the great variety of UFO-spacecraft and occupants reported, the author concludes that their origin is to be sought in the future, not only of our earthlings but of extra-terrestrial beings as well, either separately or in collaboration.

So, the "flying saucer" phenomenon constitutes a challenge, a fantastic one, both to our technical ability and to our mental resilience, since we will have to abandon the age-old but never proven belief that we are sole masters of the universe.

The essay intends to be nothing but a preliminary basis for discussion among physicists and mathematicians and needs to be provided with serious mathematical foundation before it can be turned into a fully fledged theory published in a definitive version. To attain this goal - the author - who is just a humble amateur, incapable of doing so himself - hopes he will receive the necessary assistance, information and criticism from professional scientists, so as to make the new theory a product of international team-work. Although he has written the treatise in Esperanto for that purpose, he will nevertheless be glad to correspond also in English, German, French or Dutch.

" FLYING SAUCERS BELOW THE U.K."

"Advertiser " Sat. July 13th 1968.
Rome.

Renato Vesco, an Italian aeronautical engineer, says he has solved the mystery of flying saucers.

They are real objects, conceived and put into action by English technicians and built in secret factories deep in the forests of Canada. Also hidden there are bases from which they take off on flight missions " still covered by military secrecy "

Mr Vesco says this is his book " intercettateli Senza Sparare" published by Ugo Mursia and Co. of Milan.

Mr. Vesco claims that astonishing German scientific experiments made immediately before and during World War II produced not only the V-1 and the V-2, but, had the war lasted another year would have given Hitler an enormous quantity of

UNUSUAL METHODS IN SPACE (From "Flying Saucers"

"In our own excursions into space, and our projected travel into and landing on other planets, we are already speaking of ecological systems which involve making the human being LESS physical, and more 'psychic' & 'mechanical'. We are talking about doing away with all internal life support organs and replacing them with gadgets and chemicals. We are talking about using mental powers, induced by hypnotism and even psychic means, to supplant the mechanical in communication. Rather than depend on a primitive radio to communicate with other worlds and astronauts in space, we would be doing it telepathically, or even by some fantastic method such as 'astral projection'.

You would be amazed by the thinking now going on, very seriously, in our most sophisticated space agencies, in the field of bio-medicine, ecological systems, and, yes, the psychic field! Nothing is being left out in our considerations of how to overcome the problems of leaving this planet and going where no earthman has ever been before, in environments totally strange to us. We must be able to survive when we get there. It may be that before we ever set up a colony on Mars, we may ourselves be duplicating the incident of a "Snippy" on that planet, analyzing our evidence and preparing ourselves for further ventures on the basis of what we find. Certainly there is enough food for thought here, in the insistent reporting of UFO interesting themselves in animals to the extent of dissection and kidnap, to cause us to give it serious consideration. We ought to know what is going on, and why. It may be more important than we realise.

SEE TELL OF SKY OBJECT .

"West Aust" July 9th 1968.

Credit Mrs B' Perkins.

Two members of a youth group told yesterday how they had watched an unidentified flying object for about 20 minutes south of Pinjarra on Saturday night.

Graham Daniell (20), of Inglewood, and Alan Stevens (15), of Kelmscott, said that the object was round and bright and yellow.

They were in a party of 70 on a weekend camp organised by the Youth Hostel Association. A group of 8 had watched the object.

Mr Daniell said the object dived toward the ground from low clouds and the group watched as it travelled parallel to the ground.

"It was travelling very fast and we could just see it flickering through the treetops," he said.

He and Alan Stevens agreed that the object could not have been a meteor. It seemed to be between five and ten miles from where they stood. They said the group watched the bright object for about 20 minutes about midnight.

The following morning another group, three-quarters of a mile from the camp, had heard a sound like a high wind, but there was no wind.

Mr. Daniell, a clerical assistant in a Taxation Dept., said he later took a compass bearing from where he saw the bright object. It had been travelling.

Daily News West Aust. July 9th . 1963

The search for an 'unknown comet' in Western Australia's eastern ~~shores~~ will probably be made by the Observatory at 2 a.m. tomorrow following a report from a 24-year-old technician.

Keith Berridge, based at the Carnarvon tracking station, told the Daily News today he sighted a comet-like object last Saturday at 2 a.m.

He was driving from Carnarvon to Perth and saw the object from the Great Northern Highway near the 110-mile-peg.

"I had driven all night and was fairly tired," he said.

"Suddenly I was looking at a glow so bright I thought I had made a 180 degree turn and was facing Carnarvon with the moon in front of me.

"I knew I wasn't facing the sun, it was too early for the sun to have come up. It looked like a comet because the tail it was trailing was very long. It seemed to be on fire. It moved in an arc parallel with the horizon and eventually disappeared into heavy low clouds."

He said the object was visible for about 15 to 20 minutes.

"I had to stop my car, get out and have a look, just to make sure it was actually moving. You know how it is when you're driving in the country, even trees look as though they are moving,"

Government Astronomer B.J. Harris, said "Unless a conversation with Berridge makes it appear that it couldn't possibly be a comet, we will almost certainly set up a lookout.

At the moment it seems it is not the type of thing you can just write off

"if it is an unknown comet then it is one we want to investigate."

Mr Harris said before deciding what to do he would need to check with Mr Berridge how far he thought the object moved.

"I want to check if he thought cloud movement at the time may have made the object appear to move.

"There is a possibility too that the moon was reflected in a thin cloud ahead of him,"

Mr Harris said he was disappointed that Mr. Berridge had not reported the incident immediately to the Observatory.

He said comets were known to fade fairly quickly.

If an object could not be sighted by the naked eye it would be difficult to pick up by telescope. "Our telescopes cover only a very narrow field," he said.

Then follows the report of that sighted by Daniells and Stevens on Saturday night at Pinjarra, and adds.

Their sighting, before the object dived toward the ground from low clouds, would have been about 145 miles as the crow flies from Mr Berridge's Saturday a.m. sighting.

In a later report Mr Harris the astronomer was stated as saying

"It is like looking for a needle in a hay stack".

SCIENTISTS SEE U.F.O's.

Santiago, Chile.

Scientists at a Cosmic radiation observatory, high in the Andes Mountains, have reported having photographed U.F.O. which they say could not be meteorological balloons or man made machines.

The scientists at the observatory, which is run by the University of Chile, saw two brilliant lights in the sky, one immediately beneath the other.

Observatory director Gabriel Alvial said: "We believe scientists all over the world should develop technical ways of studying these phenomena.

Further to the above. "Sydney" daily Telegraph." June 13. 1968

Prof. G.A. Caceres Director Chile. Uni. Cosmic Radiation Centre, said the "unexplained phenomenon" was photographed from the University observatory 12,600 Ft. up in the Andes, on May 17th.

The large cigar-shaped object was stationary in space for about an hour, he said.

Another "flying saucer nest" has been discovered in North Queensland.

Children horseriding in a can field near Cairns found the nest yesterday. It is similar to the "flying saucer nests" found in 1966 in a reed swamp near Tully, 200 miles farther south.

The Cairns nest is an oval-shaped area of flattened cane, measuring 70 ft by 36ft, completely enclosed by cane.

The children who found the spot, Joanne Reid, 13, Nirra Vlasoff, 12, and Douglas Dickens, 12, all of Cairns, said they were sure it was not there when they passed the spot on Wednesday.

unbelievably fantastic arms in the aeronautical field, many of which were a out to be mass produced when the war ended.

Plans for these fell into the hands of the Allied powers and enabled scientists to conclude similar but "more backward" experiments they themselves had been conducting. Where are those plans today? They went, Mr Vesco asserts to Britain and there to Canada.
