OUT OF THE BLUE - ADAMSKI SCOUTSHIPS!

In a recently televised UFO documentary Out of the Blue (giving a history of the subject from the foo fighters onwards, but not mentioning the contactees), there was quite a bit of video footage from the middle to late nineties. It was surprising to see that a number of the items seemed to be of Adamski scoutships and cigars, refuting yet again Jenny Randles' infamous statement that these ships have never been seen.

Somerset craft edge-on

One was from Somerset (actual place there not stated), and was a twelve minute video sequence of a craft moving above an aerial mast, taken by Rod Dickinson. There was some camera shake and out of focus parts due to the autofocus not coping with the fairly featureless background, but quite a number of the frames were sharp and seemed to show the shape. For most of the time, the craft was edge-on, but at the end it tipped and showed its disc shape. The craft would seem to be the more flattened Saturnian design pictured by Adamski with a diagram, rather than the better-known Venusian one pictured in the famous photographs.

Somerset craft showing globes and centre underside structure

The video was taken to Lucas Films special effects department, Industrial Light and Magic, where Bill George (special effects supervisor, who had worked on effects for Star Wars films) said it was almost certain that the object seen had been in the sky, as the camera shake affected the object and the clouds together; likewise both went out of focus together when this happened. This would be extremely difficult to do with a superimposition.

Somerset craft tilting, showing disc shape

There was another case where there was no photographic record but involved a larger craft seemingly releasing a smaller one, as in Adamski's descriptions. This was in September 1976, when a Phantom of the Iranian Royal Air Force tried to fire a missile at a UFO. Radio and power went dead while the craft was near; the smaller craft emerged and circled the aircraft.

Other seeming Adamski-type craft included a video sequence from Beijing, China on February 3rd, 1995 where a lighted craft was seen at night, and one from Carp, Ontario, Canada on August 18th, 1991 which seemed to show the underside arrangements. One from Vaxjo, Sweden on July 14th, 1996 shows shape changes similar to the Madeline Rodeffer film (attributed to forcefield effects) but some frames seem to show the Adamski shape. There were no further details of these cases given.

Simulation of the Iran Air Force incident, from the programme

There was also a video of a cigar-shaped craft seen over Krasnodor, Russia on April 3rd, 1990, and another of unknown origin in 1950, as well as one from the Mir space station on March 31st, 1991.

The Ontario craft

One of the frames from the Vaxjo, Sweden video. It darted about and appeared to change shape as in the Rodeffer film.

These pictures, from a programme which ignored the contactee history and did not seem to realise the significance of the shape of some of the craft pictured, and which were taken fairly recently (many years after the so-called "contactee era") show clearly the reality of these craft.

Cigar seen from Mir space station

Another programme, about occurrences in the San Luis Valley, Colorado, USA, had further video sequences of cigars. One was photographed by Tim Edwards who was with his daughter Brandy on August 27th, 1995 when the craft flew over his house in Selida, Colorado and was visible for several minutes. There were two others from Selida for which no other details were given, and one from the Sand Dunes area of Saugache County in the San Luis Valley. The programme also mentioned cigars seen in the area in the 1897 "airship" flaps, and again in 1917, taken from the local newspaper records.

THE STAR FELLOWSHIP VIDEO - This video contains three titles:

THE ADAMSKI SCOUTSHIP

The "classic" flying saucer, as photographed by George Adamski. Yet some claim they have never been seen - this video shows otherwise, with numerous independent sightings, including some from the U.K. It also contains George Adamski's own account of his first contact on the California desert, from his talk in London.

A VISIT TO TONY WEDD COUNTRY

A visit to Chiddingstone, the home of Tony Wedd, founder of the STAR Fellowship. See Tony's home, as well as the Chiding Stone, the Bull Rock cave, and Chiddingstone Hoath, all mentioned in Tony's writings, as well as other ley points in the area. Also the talk Skyways and Landmarks, with Tony's own voice and slides.

THE ALBURY SIGHTING

Denis Shipwright gives the details of his sighting from Newlands Corner, Guildford, the day before we went to the site and found a stone with strange markings, which seemed to closely match a photograph of Mars taken two years earlier by Mariner 4 space probe. Details of the Mars picture and its correlations, and UFO sighting as the signals were being received.

NOTES AND NEWS

Cigar over Aldershot

The sighting of a mystery object in the sky on Saturday, September 4th, 2004 has baffled passers-by, air traffic control experts and Army officials. A couple spotted the object as they played with their sons in Aldershot Park. The cigar-shaped object appeared in the sky at about 2.15 p.m., and the family watched it ducking around for about 20 minutes. "It caught our attention because it didn't move like an aircraft" said the mother. "It was a shiny cylinder-shaped object with random moves and it turned and flew horizontally, vertically and diagonally. The News received several other calls about sightings. The director of Farnborough International Airport, Ann Barnaby, said the object was nothing to do with them. The Army said "We were not flying any cylinder-shaped aircraft on Saturday afternoon."

Disc at Goodwood Air Show - twice!

This year's edition of the world's famous Goodwood Revival Festival was, as usual, a success for the thousands who gather every year in this British West Sussex province to enjoy the traditional vintage celebration. The Festival took place the weekend of September 3, 4 and 5 with the usual vintage racing cars along with other attractions - including the annual World War II fighter aircraft flying display featuring Spitfires and Mustangs among other classic planes.

On Saturday, September 4, 2004, the vintage aircraft display began at mid-day. The weather conditions were perfect. On the ground, the expectant crowd was enjoying the beautiful manoeuvres of those old war planes flying in formation. And among the audience was a young man videotaping every move those planes performed. Simon Anderson, resident of West Sussex and devoted fan of racing cars and aircraft displays, was in attendance, as always, for the annual Goodwood exhibition. Simon likes to travel through the UK attending the most important racing car events and has a passionate interest in their competitions...and always carrying his videocamera to capture the exciting moments performed by his favorite racing drivers.

Last year, on September 5, 2003, while at the Goodwood Revival Festival, Anderson captured on tape a very unusual incident during the aircraft display. Suddenly, from out of nowhere, an unknown flying object with a strange shape and flight characteristics flew right in front of two airplanes causing immediate worry and a dangerous risk of collision. The images taped by Simon were quite clear, and that disc-shaped object, apparently metallic, remains unidentified and unexplained to this day. The incident occurred very quickly and fortunately there was no collision.

Then, on this past Saturday, September 4, 2004, while preparing to tape the aircraft display at Goodwood, Simon wondered if the UFO disc would make a return appearance. As it turned out, Simon had another appointment with destiny. Suddenly, while taping three airplanes in formation, once again, a mysterious flying object appeared. The intruder passed through the formation in a spectacular maneuver that represented, as the year before, a collision risk.

Simon instantly saw the UFO among the planes and was, if anything, even more amazed than the 2003 airshow appearance. The three WWII fighters made a turn, and for a second time, the unknown object flew directly in front of the planes at high speed. Simon's camcorder caught this second incident on tape. Because of its tremendous speed, the disc appeared in only five frames of the video... obviously a metallic object most clearly seen in the fifth frame.

By this time, Simon was certain the UFO was interacting with the airplanes in an intelligent, controlled fashion. His videocamera continued rolling without interruption and Simon recorded even more images of other airplanes with the strange dark object always around. At the end of the aircraft display, Simon knew well what he had recorded, fully realizing the extreme importance of the tape in his camera.

Simon Anderson is a UFO witness and experiencer who has witnessed a number of sightings, had encounters and situations with UFOs and paranormal presences and has developed an extraordinary ability to sense and detect these unknown presences in advance - and then documenting his experiences on video and gathering a vast dossier of visual data.

The Simon Anderson case is not a lone or completely unique case of its kind. There are other experiencers in the world who, like Simon, also have his kind of unusual sensory perception - or precognition - enabling them to detect and interact with the unknown, and be able to record many of these sightings and encounters on video and in still photos.

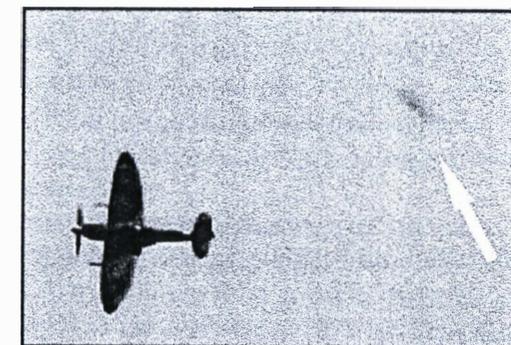

Their cases represent a challenge to our knowledge. Ignored or rejected by scientists, they rely on our work as researchers, and interact with us out of mutual respect and comprehension that we all pursue a common objective: to learn as much as possible about these astonishing flying machines and who or what is flying them.

The Goodwood Revival Festival proved again this year to be an exciting and unpredictable event for all those racing car fans - but now also for the UFO researchers who, maybe next year, will come to the Goodwood Festival to see if the visitors will make an appearance for a third year in a row. Simon Anderson will be surely be there...

Evidence of craft at Tunguska

Members of the scientific expedition of the Siberian state foundation Tunguska Space Phenomenon have managed to uncover blocks of an extraterrestrial technical device, which crashed down on Earth on June 30th, 1908. In addition, expedition members found the so-called "deer" - the stone, which Tunguska eyewitnesses repeatedly mentioned in their stories. Explorers delivered a 50-kilogram piece of the stone to the city of Krasnoyarsk to be studied and analyzed.

An expedition was set off for Evenkia in July 2004 in order to solve the mystery behind the popular phenomenon known as Tungus meteorite. The expedition, organized by the Siberian Public State Foundation "Tunguska Space Phenomenon" completed its work on the scene of Tunguska meteorite fall on August 9. It was the first expedition to the region since 2000. Guided by the space photos, the researchers scanned a wider territory in the vicinity of the Poligusa village for parts of the space object that crashed into Earth in 1908.

Researcher Yuri Lavbin has spent 12 years researching the mystery of the Tunguska event, and believes he has found the key to one of the great scientific enigmas of the last century. His theory is that a comet and a mysterious flying machine collided 10 kilometres (6 miles) above the earth's surface, causing the explosion that occurred near the Tunguska River in Siberia on June 30, 1908. The blast felled an estimated 60 million trees over 2,150 square kilometres. On this day, local residents observed a huge fireball, almost as bright as the Sun, moving across the sky. A few minutes later, there was a flash that lit up half of the sky, followed by a shock wave that knocked people off their feet and broke windows up to 400 miles away.

The explosion registered on seismic stations across Eurasia, and produced fluctuations in atmospheric pressure strong enough to be detected by the recently invented barographs in Britain. Over the next few weeks, night skies over Europe and western Russia glowed brightly enough for people to read by. In the United States, the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory and the Mount Wilson Observatory observed a decrease in atmospheric transparency that lasted for several months.

The size of the blast was later estimated to be between 10 and 15 megatons. Until this year members of numerous expeditions have failed to find any remains of the object that caused the event, but Lavbin says his team have found, between two villages, two strange black stones in the form of regular cubes with their sides measuring a metre and a half (five feet). He claims the cubes are the remains of a flying machine, perhaps an extraterrestrial spaceship. He also found a huge white stone "the size of a peasants' hut" stuck in the top of a crag in the middle of the devastated forest. "Local people call it "the reindeer stone". It is made of a crystalline matter which is not typical of this region," Lavbin said. He suggests that it is part of the core of a comet.

MY PREDICTION FOR CURRENT MARS PROBES

By C. A. Honey

This will be a prediction of things to come in regard to our proposed and current exploration of the planet Mars. I usually do not make any predictions but this time I will and then list the things that will prove or disprove my predictions. Before making the prediction, let me review what has happened prior to January 2004 in relation to space probe failure in regard to Mars probes.

If you recall both the United States and Russia tried several times to send vehicles to certain areas of Mars, and each time a failure occurred, with some of them under mysterious and unexplainable circumstances. Those of you who have a copy of my publication #231 last issued on 10 October 2001, can verify my earlier statements regarding Mars exploration attempts and the failures they had encountered. If you do not have a copy of Publication #231, let me know and I'll immediately send you one.

As of 10 October 2001, the launches toward Mars totaled 19 since 1962. Only six of the 19 attempts succeeded. All six were space probes launched from the United States and all were prior to the Viking landings of 1976. The U.S.S.R. made two attempts to send probes to Mars during the early 1960s. Both failed under mysterious circumstances. Then in November 1964 a Mariner probe failed as it approached Mars. A successful Mariner flyby occurred in July 1965. In 1976 a successful Viking probe sent back photos that included the humanoid face near Cydonia, as well as evidence of ancient civilization.

The U.S.S.R. sent two probes to Mars in 1988; both disappeared. Phobos 1 had what appeared to be a normal failure, but Phobos 2 experienced very strange activity before being reported as lost. It appeared that it had been hit or destroyed by a missile fired from the surface of Mars. The last picture it sent to Earth before failure showed something approaching from the surface of the planet. Controversy exists around the failure since conflicting views were presented to the public and the last few frames of the pictures sent back to Earth were censored and not released.

In 1992 an Observer was launched toward Mars. On August 21, 1993, at precisely 6 pm Pacific Standard Time, as the probe was approaching Mars, the signals abruptly stopped. That is, a NASA spokesman said they stopped. Since documented evidence now exists that NASA is censoring all space signals before releasing them to the public, the exact status of the probe is unknown. In the beginning of our space program NASA released all information as it was received. Then after receiving live video recorded by our astronauts during Earth orbit, showing UFO activity to the world as it happened, all transmissions from space, no matter what the source, were delayed until any such activity could be censored.

NASA's Pathfinder, scheduled to reach Mars on July 4, 1997, was successful as it was in an isolated area about 500 miles from the landing site of Viking 1. If they had attempted to land it near any of the structures in the Cydonia area it would not have been allowed to send back any photos.

It has always been interesting to me that the Sumerians believed that Mars was inhabited and regularly communicated with Earth. They depicted this on a cylinder seal, which showed Earth and Mars communicating with each other. In addition, indications on the seal imply that such communication occurred during the Age of Pisces (roughly 24,000 years ago). Obviously this is a date well within probability, since the arrival on Earth of the Anunnaki was somewhere between 300,000 and 400,000 years ago. It would seem logical that two-way communications between Earth and Mars was a daily possibility. For that matter, indications from writings of thousands of years ago indicate that regular communication occurred between the Anunnaki (Nefilim) and their home planet Nibiru. Just as our scientists are planning to do in our space program, the Anunnaki established a base on Mars, and another on the Moon. They used these way stations for those journeying to Earth from the far reaches of space where Nibiru was located.

In October 2001 my Publication #231 documented 25 attempts to send spacecraft to Mars. The United States made 10 of these attempts while Russia made fifteen (15). Details of these attempts are in the referenced publication. Documentation showing that Russia's PHOBOS 2 failure was caused by an apparent missile launched from the surface of Mars is also in the publication. Some time later, the Soviet released the statement that something appeared between the craft and the planet, the implication being that "something" had been fired at the spacecraft, raising the possibility that the probe was disabled purposely by "something or someone" on Mars that didn't want certain areas photographed. The Soviets used the expression that it was an "odd-shaped object between the spacecraft and Mars," but stopped short of calling it an Unidentified Flying Object.

We are allowed to present evidence of prior civilization on Mars and of bases on our own Moon but that's as far as it goes. Any evidence about what we actually discovered on our Moon, and why the Moon probes, especially manned landings, are strictly forbidden by our own government, and are not allowed. Evidence that such artifacts dates back thousands of years is OK but any evidence that someone is still there and might dispute our closer attempts at landing or proving current ET inhabitation is not allowed. So far all attempts by anyone from Earth to get closer to solving the puzzle is not allowed, not by Earth's governments, but by the ETs themselves.

I was made aware of a base on Mars way back in the early 1960s and it had existed for decades even at that time. In those years a lot of evidence from Earth's Moon was in existence that proved visitation and a base manned by ETs. In those days we called them "spacepeople" but since it has become popular now to use the term ET to mean anyone coming here from another planet as an "extraterrestrial," I will use either term, depending upon the context of my writing at the time.

So after all of this, what is my prediction about Mars? To protect themselves from invasion of their planet, it is entirely possible that only certain types of probes or flybys are allowed to approach Mars. Even then, only certain desolate areas of the planet could be landed upon by unmanned probes, and allowed to function undisturbed. It is very simple. Nations of Earth have a long history of arrogance and belief that they are the only ones in the universe and no one else exists on any other planet. If any nation on Earth should try to establish a base on any other planet (Mars for example), they would feel it their right to destroy the people there (as happened to the Indian nations), and refuse to acknowledge that the ET inhabitants had any rights at all.

In this example, Mars has every right to resist what they would call an invasion by hostile people. Basically, since the majority of our scientists are apparently atheists in belief or at least believe in various aspects of evolution, they never stop to consider that Martian people might object to their controlling Mars as new territory owned by Earth. I have read the reports from the Soviets that describe what is apparently a missile rising up from the planet's surface and impacting the satellite and destroying it. The implication was that it was a UFO that stopped the transmission.

I think it is possible that NASA has wised up enough to avoid too close an examination of the Cydonia area of Mars. NASA's Pathfinder, scheduled to reach Mars on July 4, 1997, was successful as it was in an isolated area about 500 miles from the landing site of Viking 1. If they had attempted to land it near any of the structures in the Cydonia area it more than likely would not have been allowed to send back any photos. Certain flybys will be allowed to take their photographs and perform various analysis activities, if they quit trying to hide the truth from the rest of Earth. The only landings that will be tolerated are those that are far enough away from the inhabited area so as not to disclose things that the ETs wish to keep secret.

In the meantime, Earth must stop trying to cover up the true facts of our origin and allow further disclosure of the ruins on Mars so that eventually everyone will know the true history of human origin here on Earth. We have great pictures of constructions on Mars and since they cannot be explained away they are routinely ignored. Many of these are available on various websites for your examination. Some are also reproduced in Zecharia Sitchin's book GENESIS REVISITED. In this book Zecharia Sitchin stated: "Evidence (is) that a space base existed on the planet Mars in antiquity; and what is even more startling, that it might have been reactivated before our very eyes." He then continues to give almost 41 pages of written and pictorial evidence. Since his book was published in late 1990, a lot of additional evidence has been discovered and is available on various scientific sites on the Internet. I personally don't believe that a space base was activated or re-activated during the last 40 or 50 years. I had evidence over 40 years ago that an active base was on Mars at that time and had perhaps been populated for decades.

THE HIDDEN UNITY and BEGINNINGS

The Hidden Unity looks at the strange phenomenon of subconscious siting of ley points, and notes that places of worship, of all religions and all ages, tend to predominate on leys. The environmental and philosophical implications of this are discussed, and the apparent necessity of worship but irrelevance of doctrine. Two ley centres are given as examples, and investigated in depth - the Shah Jehan Mosque in Woking and the Guru Nanak Sikh Temple, Scunthorpe. There is an appendix by Eileen Grimshaw on the significance of the Pagan religion to this study. Illustrated with photographs, maps and line drawings. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

Beginnings is about a series of potentially useful discoveries, mainly made by Jimmy Goddard over a period of about twenty years, but having some overlap with discoveries made by others. For various reasons, the investigations are all in their early stages, and some have not been continued. They include earth energy detection, natural antigravity, subconscious siting, ley width, and the solar transition effect. There is also a chapter on cognitive dissonance - a psychological factor which seems to have been at the root of all bigotry - scientific, religious and other - down the ages. The booklet is concluded with an account of the discovery of leys by Alfred Watkins. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

EARTH PEOPLE, SPACE PEOPLE

In 1961, Tony Wedd produced a manuscript Earth Men, Space Men, detailing many claims of extraterrestrial contact. It was never published, and I had thought it was lost, though it has recently been located. To try to make up for the loss in a much more modest size, this booklet was prepared. As well as giving details of some of the more prominent contact claims, there are articles on the history of the STAR Fellowship and some of its personalities, evidence for life in the Solar System and investigation into extraterrestrial language.

£2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

THE LEGACY OF TONY WEDD

This CD-ROM is an electronic form of the travelling exhibition Tony planned, using his voice, writing, photographs and drawings to illustrate his research and findings in the fields of flying saucers, landscape energies and lost technology.

£9.99 from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.
