SIGHTINGS FROM LAST SPACE SHUTTLE MISSION

by Fernando Correa

Atlantis successfully ended its last mission between 8 to 21 July 2011, STS-135. With this we end the space shuttle era. In its last mission, astronauts aboard Atlantis experienced close encounters with unidentified objects. Bright objects moving at similar speed as the space shuttle, over 25,000 kms/hour. These objects could definitely not be space junk. When NASA has detected the dangerous presence of space junk the International Space Station has been evacuated at least 2 times. These are unidentified bodies. Since the first day of the mission, the medias reported the presence of strange lights near Atlantis. Channel Spacevidcast broadcasted these images live. Observe closely - we can see bright objects on the background. One of them moves upwards. This would be the beginning of a series of sightings that were reported by our colleague Santiago Yturria, who has recorded and seen all the space missions for over 6 years.

One of the most amazing sightings in the space shuttle era happened in the final mission...

When Atlantis undocked from the space station they registered the presence of another UFO....

One of the most amazing sightings in the space shuttle era happened in the final mission, when Atlantis was getting prepared to dock with the space station at an altitude of 386 kms. One of the most delicate moments during the mission. A really amazing object appeared. It was pretty big and had its own light. The images speak for themselves. While operators, following NASA's policies, never talk about what they are seeing. Observe this form of the close-up of the object. It apparently moves very slowly, but remember its movement must exceed 25,000 kms/hour. It is relatively far, possibly hundreds of miles. This can give us an idea of its size, maybe dozens or hundreds of feet. It has a triangular shape and its own light. We can also see a halo of energy that seems to vibrate. NASA operators, with no further comments about this UFO, continued with the delicate docking maneuvers, until the object disappears behind the International Space Station. It's not space junk. Twice before the crew have entered the Soyuz 13 escape capsule when danger from junk threatened. It passed by less than a mile away. Therefore this object must not be considered to be space junk, since they would have forced the crew to perform several evacuations.

Observe closely and compare.

In Atlantis STS-135 this video was recorded where we can see a mysterious object going up. It has its own light and a similar shape to the UFO caught during the docking. Observe closely and compare.

When Atlantis undocked from the space station they registered the presence of another UFO. This time it moves down. There has always been the presence of UFOs. Astronauts know it, space station crews know it, NASA knows it, Houston Space Centre knows it. Astronauts have never been alone in space.

EXPLORERS FIND BIZARRE, SPACESHIP-LIKE OBJECT IN THE BALTIC SEA

By Annalee Newitz

Several days ago, we reported that a Swedish team of shipwreck hunters discovered a strange, circular object at the bottom of the Baltic Sea that looks sort of like the Millennium Falcon. The group was using sonar to plumb the depths of the waters, hoping to find shipwrecks that might contain treasures they could sell. The Ocean Explorer team isn't sure what to make of this strange discovery that some are calling a crashed UFO, but they've released more information about it.

Peter Lindberg, from the Swedish Ocean Explorer team that discovered the object, explained what they found. At 87 meters down, between Sweden and Finland, they saw a large circle, about 60 feet in diameter. You see a lot of weird stuff in this job but during my 18 years as a professional I have never seen anything like this. The shape is completely round...a circle.

Apparently there are tracks about 300 meters long leading up to the object, leading Lindberg to speculate that the object has moved. So far nobody has explored the object yet, so hopefully we'll be learning more about this as the story develops.

ECLIPSE UFOS

Moonshadow - The Story of the Total Eclipse, a book by Terry Manners, is a chronicle of man's fascination with the phenomenon of the solar eclipse. But as well as having the information on the causes of eclipses, historical information and myths and legends connected with them, it also has a chapter entitled "The Unexplainable". This gives details of many strange sightings during solar and lunar eclipses, throughout recorded history, with observers including the great astronomer William Herschel.

775: A monk, living in what is now England, described seeing a bright light following the passage of the Moon. It accelerated past the lunar surface and then slowed down just moments before totality.

1675: British soldiers in North America reported seeing a strange, rectangular shaped object in front of the Moon during a lunar eclipse.

1700: French astronomer M. Messier saw moving glows around the middle of the disc, as the earth blocked out the light over the lunar surface.

1783: In Australia, during a lunar eclipse, astronomer William Herschel reported seeing "luminous points of light on or in front of the moon".

1787: Herschel saw them again during another eclipse, and wrote that he had seen "150 points of red light on or near the Moon".

1836: While watching a total solar eclipse, Professor Auber, in Havana, Cuba, said he saw a "considerable number of luminous bodies which appeared to move out from the Sun in diverse directions".

1848: During a lunar eclipse, Senor Rankin in Spain reported seeing "points of light obscuring the Moon".

Undated: Studying a solar eclipse through a telescope in the state of Iowa, Professor wrote that he had "observed some bright objects crossing from one cusp of the solar crescent to the other, each one taking two seconds to pass, and all of them moving in straight lines, nearly parallel, in the same direction".

With each successive eclipse came a flurry of sightings: bright lights speeding along in formation, huge balls of fire leaping from cloud to cloud and hurtling across the dark face of the eclipse, and a single ray of light playing on the Moon's surface.

1878: Two astronomers, Lewis Swift (Director of the Warner Astronomical Observatory) and James C. Watson (Director of the University of Michigan Astronomical Observatory) were studying a total eclipse of the Sun in Colorado through a telescope. They saw "two red, disc-like objects through a different telescope, estimating them to be at least 0.8 km in diameter".

1887: While observing a total solar eclipse, two French astronomers named Codde and Payan recorded "an unknown body that appeared on the Sun's limb for 20 to 30 seconds after the eclipse. The body was round, with an apparent diameter about one-tenth that of the Sun".

1900: After recording a total solar eclipse in North Carolina, astronomers Professor Pickering from Harvard and Mr. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institute could not decide whether certain images on the photographic plate were due to unknown planets or defects in the film.

The Mexico eclipse UFO

1954: Potential UFO images which could not be dismissed simply as defective film, were photographed in Scandinavia. Two shiny, white rotating discs appeared on 10 seconds of a colour film shot from a plane. They were seen for about half a minute by 50 people in 3 separate aircraft, flying near Lifjell, Denmark. The witnesses included scientists and journalists taking part in an expedition to observe and film the total eclipse of the Sun on 30th June that year.

1991: During the total eclipse of the Sun in Mexico City, as the Moon began its passage in front of the Sun, a single saucer-shaped object appeared. It stopped between two large buildings in the city centre. The totality of the eclipse lasted about 7 minutes and, during the entire time and for a further 13 minutes afterwards, the object remained in place, silently, over the world's most populated city, during an event that had all eyes turned skywards.

Eclipse UFO in Turkey

The sighting was witnessed by hundreds of thousands of people. The object was also photographed and filmed by many independent sources, from several different vantage points. Some shots clearly seemed to show a metallic, disc-shaped object in the sky. This began a massive UFO flap in Mexico.

2006: In the five pictures which I took of the totality of the eclipse in Turkey, a starlike object appeared on each - but in different positions. It was the only one on each photograph, seeming to indicate travel in an erratic course.

New Mars Anomalies for 2011 - Mars Town and Vegetation

Norman Bryden writes, "Images show a probable travel system laid out as a grid, with buildings located within the matrix. Some of the light-colored road-like structures appear as two lanes of traffic separated by dividers. Bridges and underpasses are present. This image is less than 1 km wide."

Phoenix Lights seen again

In a letter to Lionel Beer, it was reported that the Phoenix Lights, subject of a TV programme that is often repeated on National Geographic channel, have been seen again in October this year, seemingly identically to the previous sighting:

"My stepson Frank, who is studying for a diploma in Space and Aeronautics, is living in Phoenix with his family, and, as an ex-pilot and trained observer, he has been very sceptical about UFOs and never showed any interest in the subject. On a clear day over the city in the late afternoon there appeared low (how low is not established) a UFO of boomerang or triangle shape and over 10,000 people saw it. There was a clear sky with no hinderances and it was unmistakably an unconventional object.

"Here is what is not unusual; the authorities silenced the newspapers and news networks. They are notorious for this sort of thing, not to cause panic as they say, or because of national security. Nowhere was this incident broadcast, although everybody was talking about the sighting all over town."

Is Venus Inhabited?

This article, by Dr. Charles Maney, Emeritus Professor of Mathematics at Defiance College, Ohio, appeared in the September-October 1965 issue of Flying Saucer Review, after the probe Mariner 2 had reported surface temperatures of 800° F on the surface of Venus, which have reportedly been verified by later probes:

Soviet studies of the planet Venus made at the Crimean Astrophysical Observatory by Professor V.K. Prokofiev, and at the Jilkovo Observatory in Leningrad by Dr. N. Kozyrev, have shed some important information about the Venusian atmosphere. The night glow or "ashen light" of Venus, produced by a dense flow of electrified solar particles, is at times of sufficient intensity to allow for spectroscopic study of the atmosphere. Lines of atomic oxygen and nitrogen have been identified as a result of these studies. Professor Prokofiev suggests that it is "possible that the oxygen of Venus' atmosphere is being formed, as on earth, as a result of the life functions of plants". Professor V. A. Firsoff, Fellow of Britain's Royal Astronomical Society in commenting on the discoveries of these men, concludes that the resulting mean surface temperature of Venus would be only about 6° F higher than that of the earth. It should be added that an American scientist, Gordon Newkirk, also secured spectrograms of the electrified night sky of Venus, and that his photographs along with those of Kozyrev were subject to detailed analysis by B. Warner at the University of London.

The very recent studies of the planet Venus by Dr. John Strong, eminent American astrophysicist of John Hopkins University, represent a great achievement in astronomical spectroscopy. Dr. Strong secured very reliable data on features of the Venus atmosphere, through instruments attached to a large telescope of 12 inches aperture hoisted by a balloon to an altitude of 16 miles. Dr. Strong measured the quantity of water vapour above the clouds of Venus to within 5 percent, a degree of accuracy remarkable in astronomical measurements of this character. Indeed, the actual amount of water vapour present in this portion of the Venus atmosphere corresponds closely to comparable levels in the earth's atmosphere!

A second and equally important recent finding by Dr. Strong using instrumentation attached to the same balloon telescope is that the upper clouds of Venus, like those of the earth, are made up of ice crystals, particles of frozen water.

Dr. Strong accepts the figures secured by Mariner 2 as registered data, but rejects their interpretation as publicised by official sources. He regards the Mariner 2 figures as measurements of the temperature of the extreme upper atmosphere of Venus, which being rare and subject to intensive bombardment of high energy particles from the sun, could display a temperature of 800° F. Experts on cloud physics are finding that even gently turbulent clouds give off radio waves.

Dr. Strong also doubts the theory that the carbon dioxide known to be present in the atmosphere of Venus in larger amounts than in the earth's atmosphere, is adequate to trap sunlight by a greenhouse effect to produce the very high temperature of 800° F, attributed by official sources to the temperature of the planet's surface.

Thus we find that America's scientific team, along with the Soviet astrophysicists who found atomic oxygen and nitrogen in the dark light of Venus, together present powerful evidence to the effect that the atmosphere of Venus is quite like that of its sister planet, the earth.

And if such is the case, might we not speculate that conditions for the support of human life being as equally favourable on Venus as on the earth, that Venus is also inhabited by human beings not too unlike the people on earth? Continuing this speculation it becomes obvious that perhaps we do not need to look to the distant stars for other life akin to human life, and a degree of scientific advancement superior to our own. It might well be that UFOs are space ships from our sister planet, Venus.

In the same issue of Flying Saucer Review, there were a number of sightings of cigar-shaped objects:

This incident was first reported by the Review in the Stop Press column of the July-August issue. The following letter gives some greater detail:

Sir - I expect you are aware of the Bristol and Weston-super-Mare "sightings" reports, and also I believe at Exeter, which have been reported by both Radio and Television, at any rate in the West.

Following this I had a report of a sighting by a young man by the name of Bunce of 15, Abbotsbury Street, The Grove, Portland, who, returning home last Saturday evening about 10.45 a.m. from visiting his girl friend, saw an object moving fairly fast from North to South traversing his field of vision in about 8 seconds. His description was as follows. Three bright lights yellowish white in colour equally spaced and with an orange coloured trail. It was estimated at about an inclination of sixty degrees and covering one foot at arm's length. There was a clear starlit sky, no moon, very little wind and no noise at all from the object.

I interviewed this lad myself and am inclined to believe his story as he had little previous knowledge of our subject.

F.E. Marshall, 8, Reap Lane, Weston, Portland.

From the Exeter Express and Echo, of June 21:

A large, rocket-shaped mystery object, with orange flames shooting out of its tail, has been seen over Exeter. It was reported today by a 22-year-old architectural assistant, Mr. Michael Clark, of 30, Milton Road, Exeter. He saw the object on Saturday evening when talking to a friend, Mr. J. Pickard, of Chaucer Avenue.

Mr. Clark said: "It was visible for about ten seconds, and appeared to be climbing. It went behind a bank of cloud, and disappeared, It was the most vivid orange I have ever seen in my life".

From the Devizes Wiltshire Gazette of June 24:

Mr. Frederick C. Mizen, the clerk to the Marlborough police, of Ellsworth, Salisbury Road, was driving home along the A361 Devizes road when his wife spotted the object. "I had a look and realised it was something unusual so I stopped the car", Mr. Mizen said. "It was long, very large and shaped like an eel. It seemed to be illuminated the whole length and was definitely not an aircraft. It was heading from the direction of Yatesbury towards Netheravon. We watched it for five minutes before it disappeared into cloud. It made no sound."

From the Bath and Wilts Chronicle of June 21:

Two Bath people are talking about a mysterious brilliant white object which they saw flying over Bath Race Course on Saturday night. One, Mr. Ron Wakefield, (50), a railwayman, of 91, Southlands, Weston, said he saw it as he was going to bed at 10.30. As he opened the bedroom window the cigar-shaped object came into sight over Lansdown flying at 4,000 to 5,000 feet. "I watched it for about seven seconds. It was shining like a sparkler. It was a wonderful sight. It looked like a lit-up train, but it was going much faster."

Mr. D. White, of 35, Freeview Road, Twerton, also sighted the object - "a line of lights travelling across the sky, accompanied by the glow associated with space craft". Mr White continued: "The lights, about six, travelled across Bath from Lansdown to Odd Down, and were in view for about ten seconds. They travelled on too straight a course for shooting stars, and there were too many of them and in too straight a line to be an aircraft. They were moving at an incredible speed too."

Could this have been the so-called "flying train" which was reported in The Surrey Comet (Kingston-on-Thames) on June 23rd?:

While taking his dog for a walk in London Road, Ewell, at 10.35 p.m. on Saturday night, Mr. J. B. Hawkins of 3, Ruherwick Close, Stoneleigh, saw a silver-grey flying object come out of the light western sky travelling towards the east. Mr. Hawkins described it as a very long, pencil-slim cigar-shaped object, with four evenly-spaced lights along its length. It also had a visible trail behind it and made no noise, said Mr. Hawkins. He said that it was visible for about three seconds, halfway between the upper and lower cloud formations. Its speed was comparable to a low-flying aircraft breaking the sound barrier, said Mr. Hawkins, who is a chartered mechanical engineer and served his apprenticeship in the aircraft industry.

On telephoning the Ministry of Defence, Mr. Hawkins discovered that he was not the only person to see the object. The Ministry received many reports from people having seen it. Mr. Hawkins was told it could possibly be one of the stages of the Russian rocket, Cosmos 68, which was launched on June 15th.

Mr. Hawkins told the Surrey Comet: "I personally feel doubtful about this explanation, because of its height. It should have burned itself out before I saw it"

A letter signed "Trained" of Bradford 4, appeared in the Telegraph and Argus of that city (July 6 edition). We append an extract:

"I am surprised that no-one has written in to describe the missile that passed over Bradford on Saturday, June 19th at 10.50 p.m. It first came to my view as a white light. It made no sound whatever and did not appear to be very high as it passed overhead.

Credit: Miss M. Heseltine and others.

Again, from the Grimsby Evening Telegraph of July 29:

Seen in the sky late at night over Long Eaton and West Bridgford, three mysterious objects. A former R.A.F. pilot described the objects as "saucers". He was Mr. W.L. Freitag, headmaster of Angela House School, West Bridgford, who lives at 9, Fox Road.

While exercising his dogs at 11.20 he saw the three lights travelling from the north-west to the north-east. "I saw them for about two minutes and there was no noise at all. They cruised majestically overhead before they disappeared" he said.

A few minutes earlier two young men at Long Eaton on their way home saw the lights. One of them, Mr. A. Sheldrick (19), of 15, Florence Avenue, Long Eaton, gave an almost identical description of the passage of the mystery objects. Like Mr. Freitag, he described how they were silent and how one of them seemed to glow brightly and then dimly."

From Nigel Stephenson we learn that at Luton a local UFO investigation group reported on July 16 that a pencil-shaped object was seen flying in the sky. It was luminous, and suddenly reversed direction while in flight.

These sightings of cigar-shaped objects came about two months after the death of George Adamski, who wrote much about such craft.

In the same issue of Flying Saucer Review was an early crop circle account:

From the Colchester Gazette of June 1, we gather that:

"Until Army bomb experts visit Rockingham's Farm, Layer Marney, the mystery of the crater in the barley field will remain unsolved. The sudden appearance of the crater, about 5 ft by 3ft 6 in, was reported to the police by the farmer, Mr. J. W. Black. He found it in a field of young barley, with the crops around the crater flattened.

"A puzzling feature of the crater is three 3 inch holes, arranged in a triangular shape to one side of it, that extend 3 feet into the ground. The police are unable to give any clue as to what caused the hole, but among the theories advanced so far is that it was caused by a meteorite or some object dropping from an aircraft.

The Army bomb disposal squad yesterday dug down 6 feet but found nothing. A spokesman said the crater might have been caused by some natural gas explosion under the earth.

THE HIDDEN UNITY and BEGINNINGS

The Hidden Unity looks at the strange phenomenon of subconscious siting of ley points, and notes that places of worship, of all religions and all ages, tend to predominate on leys. The environmental and philosophical implications of this are discussed, and the apparent necessity of worship but irrelevance of doctrine. Two ley centres are given as examples, and investigated in depth - the Shah Jehan Mosque in Woking and the Guru Nanak Sikh Temple, Scunthorpe. There is an appendix by Eileen Grimshaw on the significance of the Pagan religion to this study. Illustrated with photographs, maps and line drawings. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

Beginnings is about a series of potentially useful discoveries, mainly made by Jimmy Goddard over a period of about twenty years, but having some overlap with discoveries made by others. For various reasons, the investigations are all in their early stages, and some have not been continued. They include earth energy detection, natural antigravity, subconscious siting, ley width, and the solar transition effect. There is also a chapter on cognitive dissonance - a psychological factor which seems to have been at the root of all bigotry - scientific, religious and other - down the ages. The booklet is concluded with an account of the discovery of leys by Alfred Watkins. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

EARTH PEOPLE, SPACE PEOPLE

In 1961, Tony Wedd produced a manuscript Earth Men, Space Men, detailing many claims of extraterrestrial contact. It was never published, and I had thought it was lost, though it has recently been located - Tony had given it to Timothy Good. To try to make up for the loss in a much more modest size, this booklet was prepared. As well as giving details of some of the more prominent contact claims, there are articles on the history of the STAR Fellowship and some of its personalities, evidence for life in the Solar System and investigation into extraterrestrial language.
