COMET 'ISON' IS ON THE WAY!

There is growing speculation that the Earth is in for a disturbing few weeks, commencing from the 1st to the 16th of December, when it is predicted that we will be pelted by Asteroids that have been disturbed by the Comet 'ISON' during its trajectory heading for and around the Sun.

Several prominent astronomers have postulated that the debris field of asteroids will cause a wide-spread display in the night sky and will possibly cause seismic activity in various parts of the world.

It has been pointed out that some space debris has already arrived from the Asteroid Belt (see p.3).

Meanwhile, we have the mystery of a series of photographs that have appeared on an American UFO internet page, showing a mysterious light that it is claimed, has been seen and videod hovering over Derby? We have nothing on record and would welcome any information from our readers about this event.

Another mysterious phenomenon has recently been photographed from the ISS (International Space Station.) It has since been stated that the luminous cloud was the result of a Russian Missile test.

UK/England Dome Shape Bright Light (From Filers Files #41 to #44 2013)

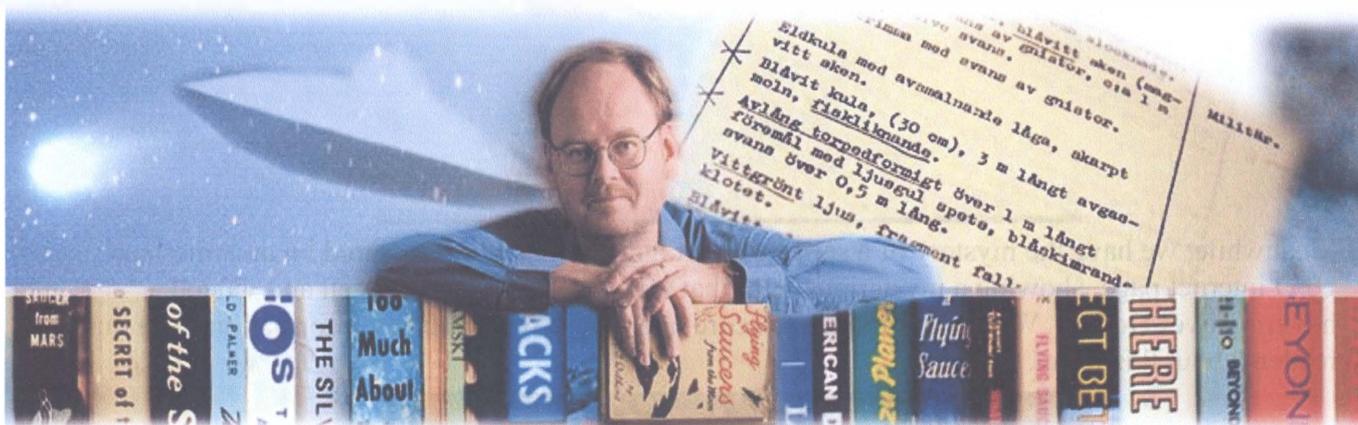

STOCKTON-ON-TEES-- At 3:30 AM, I went out onto my second story flat roof to relax on the September 27, 2013 and watch the sky. A pea green flash caught my eye in the southwest pulsating to a dirty white colour, then a burnt orange, and finally a brass color. At first it was static then started to move slowly then stopped again after maybe 30 seconds. It shot out a short beam of light from the object, but this beam did not touch the ground. Then the object moved very quickly and suddenly stopped. Then the object dropped about 30 degrees shining down the beam as flew south-east in plain sight. The object came to a stop still pulsating and just seemed to cloak and then disappeared. This object was under intelligent control far beyond any technological capabilities that we have at this time.

OTLEY – I stood by the back door to my garden and noticed a thick white cloud on October 1, 2013. The object had a dome shape bright light that flashed, and next to it was a row of ascending lights, then flashes like little stars all around. By the time my husband got the camera it had stopped, but I can provide a sketch if needed. Thanks to MUFON CMS

SCUNTHORPE, NORTH LINCOLNSHIRE – I saw a white glow miles away very high up on two objects that were separating then moving away at high speed before moving back together on October 5, 2013. It happened three times around 11:10 PM, at speeds and direction changes that I doubt any plane could ever achieve. Thanks to www.ufoinfo.com

KIRKBY IN ASHFIELD, NOTTINGHAMSHIRE – On October 26th, 2013, I was a rear passenger driving towards Kirkby town centre at 2:45PM, when I noticed a silver thin rectangular shape appear in the blue sky at cloud base level. I was so shocked that I did not tell my fellow passengers because I did not want to alarm them. It had no visible wings or anything sticking out and I would say looked quite slender. I losight of it as we journeyed on. Thanks to www.ufoinfo.com

The PRA Has Donated Further 'FT' Files to AFU (Sweden)

Director, Clas Svahn

Archives for the unexplained (AFU) preserves a rich world-wide heritage of paper archives, book libraries, recordings, e-files, objects and other materials related to all kinds of unexplained phenomena. Their aim is to continuously develop an independent archive foundation for research by generations to come.

Clas Svahn and a colleague, visited the PRA in Derby on the 29th September and discussed their progress in Sweden, where they employ a total of 10 staff and their present facilities has a total shelf capacity of 2 kilometres. After cataloguing recent donations, the library will include more than 20,000 titles/editions about anomalistic phenomena of all kinds.

The PRA has now made a second donation of files and documents which will be processed and made available on line at a future date.

Is Comet ISON Debris Hitting Earth Now ?

According to a newly released compilation video from Jason A and testimony within this video from the Reverend Michelle Hopkins on the Hagmann and Hagmann Report, the Earth is already being pelted with debris associated with Comet ISON. With ISON still out beyond the planet Mars, is THIS what we have to look forward to in the coming months and is NASA busy preparing for ISON.

(Due to be closest to the Earth from the 1st to 16th December 2013)

Ison 3 mile diameter asteroid - travelling in towards the Sun at about 69000mph by the time it comes round the Sun at about 845000mph - escape velocity heads back out of the Solar system Has a rather large trail of debris - looks like a pair of wings. Understand may "brush" past Mars and some of the debris will probably hit the planet. Also we may experience some of that debris on Earth. This might explain what preparations are for between NOW and about the End of January 2014

Large Fireball Seen Across Six Midwestern States

October 1, 2013 over OHIO— A brilliant fireball lit up the skies over the Midwestern United States, treating bystanders on the ground to an amazing light show last Friday (September 27th).

The cosmic display came courtesy of a meteoroid travelling at about 114,000 miles an hour (52km/s) that crashed into the Earth's atmosphere high above Columbus, Ohio. The light show could be seen in 14 states.

This was a very bright event, Bill Cooke of NASA's Meteoroid Environment Office told Spaceweather.com that flares saturated out meteor cameras, and made determination of the end point (the terminus of the fireball's flight through the atmosphere) virtually impossible. Judging from the brightness, we are dealing with a meter class object. The bright event amazed people who happened to be watching from the ground.

As of Sept. 28, the American Meteor Society received more than 450 reports of the fireball sighting with more than 400 yet to be reviewed. It was the most brilliant fireball that I have ever seen Angela McClain told Spaceweather.com. The entire landscape lit up. I spun around and there it was, a bright green light, streaking across the sky. Even when it was gone, there was still a bright green line in the sky about 20 seconds later. We were all stunned. Friday's fireball may not have been the only major meteoroid event witnessed in the Midwest last week. On Sept. 26, the AMS got more than 730 reports of separate fireball sightings in Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Indiana and Wisconsin.

Shape: Flash : Duration:3 hours: Flashing white lights with orange glow & loud sounds, during the event. (National UFO Reporting Center) (Edited by the PRA)

My husband (and I saw) bright flashes of light coming south west of us. What got our attention was the noises we heard, it was disturbing like world war 3!

We went out front 1st to listen and the sound continued along with the flashes of light! That's what made us look closer, There was not a cloud in the sky we could see all the stars, it didn't make sense why where there flashes of light like that in the exact same spot for several minutes along with this weird sound-best described as like dinosaurs stomping in close proximity!

We went to the back porch to check it out from the back and we got a better view from there. Bright flashes WITH loud LOUD stomping noises! I'm not sure how else to describe the sound, other than world war 3!

We checked local news to see if maybe there was (any) construction going on to explain this or if we were in fact being "attacked" .. We couldn't find a thing. the noises stopped around 10:30 but shortly after around 11:00 they started again! Only this time right out the front door!! We could clearly see bright flashes of white lights with an orange red glow! Now I'm a rational person, I tend to believe there's a reason or explanation for most everything, but this was very weird!!!

The lights would come and go but in almost the EXACT same spot each time and again we could clearly see the big dipper along with other constellations this made NO sense at ALL!! How is it these lights came with no clouds? Why were they there? So again we checked the local news, nothing!

We even turned on the computer scanner sure we would hear a rationale explanation for this, but we did not find one!! So we stood outside watching these "strikes" of light but that sound, that sound I'll never forget! It was so eerie.. I've heard people say they have seen crafts but never any noises at this point now I'm thinking outside the box!

As the entire block (of people) gathered, (there was) a retired police officer & his family the other a judge here in Billings, and so forth and we are all completely confused! All of us watching and now we (could) see the bright white lights (and) behind those lights an orange reddish glow from below and behind this "event". We'll call it seeing, as no one has mentioned it on the local news or anywhere other than social media sites.

We did not see any kind of "craft" or anything like that, other then when the light came it was very peaceful outside, clear beautiful sky's, no storm cell's NOTHING out of the ordinary except these weird lights above and behind our homes!

The strangest thing is, they moved around Billings in a FULL circle, my husband called his sister in Lockwood about 8 minutes out of Billings-as we listened and watched in disbelief we could hear and see it moving. She (had) also heard and seen these strange lights and sounds out in the Lockwood area!

She had thought maybe a storm had kicked up out of the blue or maybe the refinery was having issues as they sometimes do here! She also said the noise was so loud that the car alarms in HER area went off each time this happened-but in this case I think we can safely say this was NO storm & had nothing to do with the refinery's!

Again this went on from 10pm to 1am..if anyone can please help explain what this may have been I would be very grateful for any information! It was July 12, 2013.. on & off from 10:00pm to 1:00am .. very fast moving lights bright white, (with) very loud war of the worlds sounds, along with an orange & red glow about it more at ground level,

I know this may sound completely crazy but not one of us can figure out what the heck was going on!!!

In total there was me, my husband and to be fair, I would say 20+ people - some with their children so not counting the little one's, but that's how badly this "event" has freaked us all out!

Again I'm a fact based type of personality so I am trying to find some logical explanation for this.

I just want to know if any one at all, knows what it could possibly be!

While we watched, it did cross our minds that maybe we were being struck by a meteor shower by the sound of it and at first sight! It was not that, so, again sorry.

(I've spent) so long just looking for good info on this event!

I almost forgot my husband just reminded me as I read to him what I am posting on this, it is very important, I cannot believe I left this part out! Sometime around 11:00 pm all the way until 1:00am we did hear and see a helicopter and several airplanes! You could see and hear they were not big crafts like jet planes going back and forth city to city. These looked & sounded smaller, like maybe military or we could be totally wrong and it could be just the local airport. It's just kind of ironic (that) the sky was completely clear until this event and then we had seen and heard airplanes and a chopper..

Thankfully my husband reminded me of a very important detail I almost left out! .. Because I am certain the crafts we DID see are from the area I didn't check the little box that asks the # of crafts seen (?) but in total we saw 1 helicopter and 2 aircraft - not like ufo aircraft as they looked like ours ..

I would say for certain they are ours ..but did not witness any strange aircraft- i.e. ufo or strange looking crafts .. I just want to be as clear as possible and give all the facts and give them right so there's no confusion ..

NB. 'Billings' is in the vicinity of 'Yellowstone Park' Nature Reserve. (With thanks to our colleague Jim Smith of Billings, Montana, USA.)

Connecticut Alien Encounter

FALLS VILLAGE --

I was driving home from work around 9:45 PM, on February 11, 2013, the roads were still slick from the heavy snow when a deer bolted in front of my car. I slammed on the brakes and skidded into the deer that ran off, but the car was now stuck in the snow bank. My driver's side headlight was smashed and I was stuck so I called for a tow truck. I noticed lights coming toward me on the road that were large and very bright, so I figured that it was the tow truck.

As the lights slowly proceeded towards me several more lights illuminated above and below the others. The vehicle, or whatever it was, stopped about 50 yards from me and remained there for several minutes. Then I witnessed a brightly lit 'being' floating through the woods across from me. It reminded me of those bright white aliens from the 'Cocoon' movie though I didn't see any facial features.

This being quickly floated through the trees then out onto the road. It started to come towards me and I was petrified and could not move. It didn't have arms or legs but there was definitely a head and something on the end that resembled a fish tail. It stopped directly in front of me and hovered no more than ten feet away. There were no eyes or mouth, but I did feel warmth coming from it.

It was very calming and comforting. Then it suddenly whisked towards the lights. After a few minutes the bright lights started to fade until it was completely gone.

The tow truck operator and a neighbour arrived and I asked them both if they had noticed any vehicle with intense bright lights, but they both looked at me like I was crazy. After they pulled me from the snow bank I drove home.

I decided to have my headlight fixed and approached the area where I had been stuck the night before, I noticed the area where the lights had been was completely barren of snow and the roadway was dry. Did I have an alien close encounter? Was it simply a spirit of some kind?

Peru's UFO investigations office to be reopened

Air force to revive office that lay dormant for five years after increased sightings of 'anomalous aerial phenomena'. By Dan Collyns: Lima, Peru 'The Guardian' Sunday 27th October 2013.

Peru's air force is reopening an office responsible for investigating UFOs due to "increased sightings of anomalous aerial phenomena" in the country's skies.

The Department of Investigation of Anomalous Aerial Phenomena (DIFAA), first created in 2001, is being revived after lying dormant for five years because more UFO sightings have been reported to the media, said Colonel Julio Vucetich, head of the air force's aerospace interests division.

The unit will bring together sociologists, archaeologists, astronomers, meteorologists and air force personnel to analyse these events, Vucetich told the Guardian. "Many people don't report UFO sightings because they fear they will be labelled mad or made fun of, but nowadays with new technology – cell-phone videos, Facebook, Twitter – they can be much more open, without feeling that they are the only ones who have seen what they've seen," he said.

"This new office needs those people to come and report their sightings so we can open a file and, using their information, do the respective analysis and investigation," he added, flicking through a hefty scrapbook of newspaper cuttings recording Peruvian UFO sightings dating from 1950 to the present day. Peru's Institute for Studies of Historic Aerospace is turning it into a book.

Vucetich said the office had responded to increased sightings of natural and artificial phenomena, from meteorites to "space junk" in Peru. "When you present evidence of UFOs, people can react with terror or hysteria, so we have to be very careful how we present it," he stressed.

UFO sightings are not uncommon in Peru. Two weeks ago, local media reported that villagers in Marabamba, in Peru's central Huanuco region, watched luminous balls of light in the sky over several days. Numerous reported sightings of UFOs have been made in Chilca, a beach resort 59km south of Lima. The unexplained sightings have attracted UFO investigators from around the world. One former resident, Paulina Jimenez, 82, told the Guardian how 16 years ago she saw "a huge number of flashing lights" over a bluff overlooking the resort's Yaya beach, the most regular location for UFO sightings among local residents.

There are various locations in Peru where there are regular sightings. What's bad is that those reports have never been proven so I can't, on behalf of the air force, verify those," Vucetich said.

He added that he, too, had seen what he could only describe as "anomalous aerial phenomena". "On a personal basis, it's evident to me that we are not alone in this world or universe."

The UFO office has a telephone hotline, an email address (dinae@fap.mil.pe) and a website for reports of UFO sightings.

The revival of the UFO office will allow Peru to compare and share information with similar agencies in Uruguay, Chile, Brazil, Ecuador and Argentina.

Last week, Antonio Huneeus, a Chilean UFO investigator, told Open Minds UFO Radio that the Peruvian move responded to greater interest in such phenomena in the region.

"There are a few cultural reasons too, the public is more open-minded about the phenomenon of UFOs," he added.

1996-The Klondike Highway UFO Encounter: By Billy Booth

Klondike Highway UFO

A very well researched and documented series of UFO sightings occurred along a 134 mile strip of the Klondike Highway in the Yukon Territory, Canada, on December 11, 1996. There would be three major locations of interest: Fox Lake, The Village of Carmacks, and the Village of Perry Crossing, and at least 22 separate witnesses to the event.

Traveling the Klondike Highway:

Two cousins were traveling in separate vehicles from Whitehorse to Carmacks, northbound on the Klondike Highway, which ran parallel to Fox Lake, when they saw a UFO over the frozen waters of the lake. Seeing the object was such a shock, that they both came to an abrupt stop, about 1/4 of a mile apart. One of the men left his car to get a better look at the UFO, as it slowly moved toward him, eventually being almost directly above him. His cousin stood watching the object and his cousin as it eventually crossed the highway and disappeared behind a hill.

Two More Witnesses:

About the same time of the two cousins' sighting, two other witnesses were nearing the southern tip of Fox Lake, also traveling northbound. They both observed rows of lights moving across Fox Lake. They thought at first it could be a large truck, but being over the lake, they dismissed that idea, and then they thought maybe a large plane about to crash, but that too was discounted because the object was moving so slowly. It was a UFO.

Four Witnesses Discuss UFO:

Soon, the second set of witnesses passed by the two cousins, who were off the side of the road, and looking into the sky. They turned around, and went back to talk to the cousins. After a short discussion about the UFO, the second set of witnesses drove off and eventually came to the Braeburn Lodge, about twenty miles north of the cousins. Steve Watson, the lodge owner immediately told the two witnesses about another witness who had seen the UFO.

Witness at Braeburn Lodge:

The witness from Braeburn Lodge had been driving along the lake when he saw a light in the distance, which was out of place. As he got closer to the light, he could see that it was lighting up a long, smooth surface. After a moment or two, he looked again, but the light was gone. But he did see a group of rectangular lights moving behind a hill to his east. He sped up to reach a place more advantageous to see the UFO, but when he arrived, the object was not visible. He later made a drawing of what he had seen, and told Steve Watson.

Object of Immense Size: The two cousins would soon tell their story to the lodge owner. Also a sixth witness would come forward who had seen a large array of lights. The proximity to the lights affected her car's performance. Between 8:30 and 9:00 PM, the Village of Pelly Crossing was also being visited. One witness, about two hours drive north of Fox Lake, saw a row of lights moving over the hills. The object was about 300 yards ahead of him and he had to turn his head from side to side to see the immense size of the UFO.

Object Moved Slowly, Silently:

Two more witnesses would come forward also. Traveling just south of Pelly Crossing, they saw to the north a large row of lights slowly moving. They pulled into a gravel pit to get a better look. One of the witnesses could see the Big Dipper, and stated that the object was about the same length. Also, four women attending an evening course at a community college saw the huge row of lights when they were outside taking a break. They stated that the object was huge, and made not a sound. They watched it move slowly out of view, disappearing behind a hill.

Village of Carmacks:

Near the Village of Carmacks nine additional witnesses would see the object. Four men saw the UFO as they rode in a pick-up truck just south of Carmacks. A husband, wife, and three children who were watching television spotted a row of lights through their window. The four men stopped near a landfill and saw the UFO move toward the northeast, curve toward the south, and move close to a microwave tower south of the village. There it just disappeared. The family saw the lights moving just above the tree line. The lights shut off one at a time right before their eyes, as if going through an invisible wall.

Conclusions:

With almost twenty known adult witnesses, the Klondike Highway encounter is rich in credibility. The only unfortunate thing about the series of sightings is that no photographs were taken of the large UFO. However, there can be no doubt that something extraordinary occurred on December 11, 1996, in the Yukon Territory.

'Coast to Coast' : 15th October 2013

Discovery of America:

In the latter half of the show, author and former submarine Captain in the British Navy, Gavin Menzies, shared his latest discoveries about who discovered North America, and how amazing journeys of the Chinese pre-dated Columbus.

Columbus sailed from Spain using a map (on right) that was received from China in 1434 which accurately showed the placement of the Americas, and he was not on a discovery mission, but acting as an administrator on behalf of the King of Spain, Menzies argued. There have been constant voyages to the Americas dating as far back as 40,000 BC from Asia & the Eastern Mediterranean, he continued, adding that simple ships from southeast Asia and China took advantage of the currents. As evidence, he cited how human remains were found in a bog in Florida dating back as far as 9,000 years, and they had DNA that comes from eastern Mediterranean people. There were some 6,000 voyages between the Americas and Asia, and many plants and foods indigenous to the Americas were brought back to Asia, he said. Between 1405 and 1424, Admiral Zheng He made continuous voyages to the Americas, but toward the end of that period the Chinese Emperor overextended their country's resources, and all further sea voyages were curtailed, Menzies detailed.'

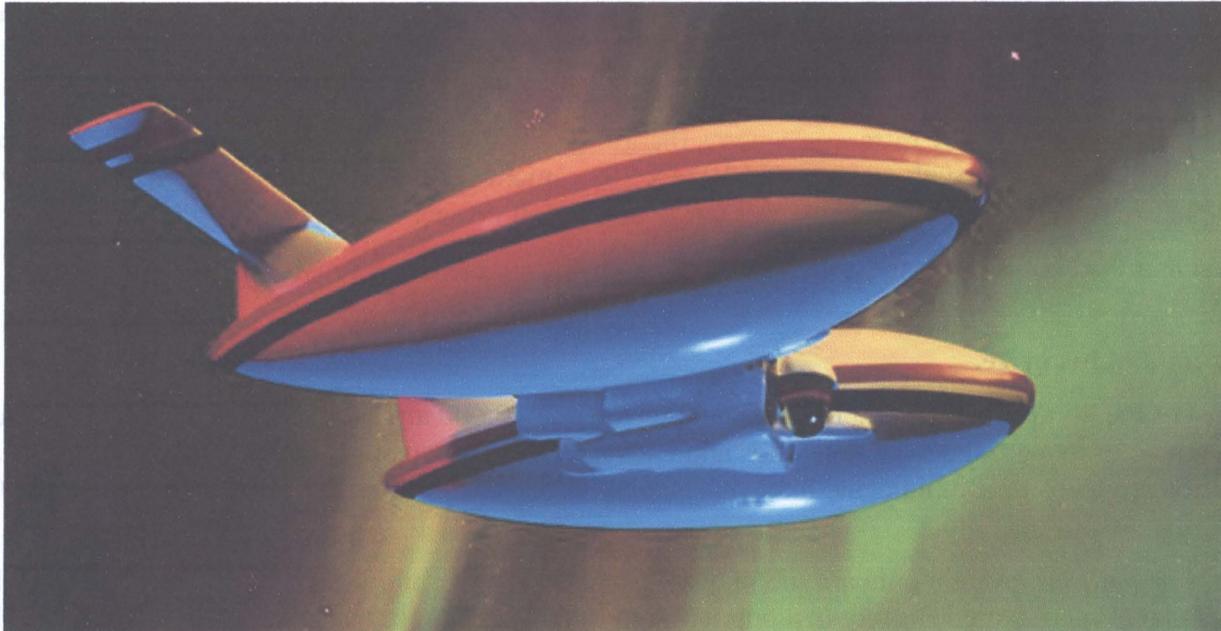

Gavin Menzies: "The Liu Gang 1418 / 1763 map proves that the Chinese had a sophisticated understanding of the Earth's geography, and had made exploratory voyages to the Americas before Columbus set sail."

Falcon Project in Pursuit of Bigfoot

A Global Forum for the unmanned aircraft systems community.

Posted on October 3rd 2013 By the Editor UAS Vision:

The Falcon Project is a kind of supernatural missing persons mission, calling for “eyes in the sky” in combination with a “quick response investigative ground team.”

They would spend months at a time scanning undisclosed locations with high Bigfoot potential, hoping not only for irrefutable video, but to make contact. “You know, putting out a transmitter in a banana that can be passed through the gut and while it’s internal serve as a tracking device,” says principal investigator Jeff Meldrum. “Those kinds of things.”

Those kinds of things. As outlandish as the plan sounds, it has the imprimatur of Idaho State University, which set up an account to receive tax-deductible donations.

The reason why is Meldrum. He’s the most reputable face not only of the Falcon Project, but of all Bigfoot belief. Meldrum is a tenured professor at ISU who teaches human anatomy and publishes papers on how (non-Bigfoot) primates walk.

But a sizable hunk of Meldrum’s CV falls under the category of “cryptozoology,” where he applies his knowledge of primate gaits to footprints identified by amateur Sasquatch-ologists.

This work is published not in Science or Nature, but places like his own journal of Bigfoot Studies, the Relict Hominoid Inquiry. “Some would label me as a crackpot, and [say] that I’m an embarrassment to the university,” says Meldrum.

Of course, if finding Bigfoot were as simple as strapping a GoPro to a quadcopter and heading for the forest, Meldrum would have more than footprints.

“When you’re looking for a needle in a haystack, it’s not like you’re just flying over farmer John’s pasture to count how many white-tailed deer are coming out every night and bedding down in his alfalfa,” he says.

To catch an unlikely creature, you need an unlikely drone: quiet enough to escape notice, sturdy enough to carry NASA-grade cameras and long-range enough to sweep vast swaths of potential Sasquatch stomping ground.

“The disadvantage of helicopters is obviously they’re noisy,” says Meldrum. “A fixed-wing aircraft has the disadvantage of not being able to hover.”

Hence the proposed solution, the falcon of the Falcon Project: a 50-foot-wide double-blimp, catamaran-style airship, with a “proprietary” engine that can allegedly fly silently at speeds of 45 knots, stop on a dime and hover thousands of feet above the forest canopy.

The maker is a Canadian company that makes blimps for outdoor marketing campaigns: R.A.T.S. Inc. (It stands for Remote Aerial Tripod Specialists, but the company’s logo also includes the glowing face of a rat.)

The other big piece of technology in the project (also proprietary) is the “high definition thermal imaging” camera, created by Infrared Cameras Incorporated. “To our knowledge no company has used a telephoto lens of this size with an uncooled 1024 x 768 camera for such a project other than possibly the U.S. Defense,” avers the breathless description on the Falcon Project’s defunct Kickstarter.

The fact that the Kickstarter page is defunct hints at the hurdle the project just can’t seem to clear: Money.

Meldrum and his prize.

The cost of the blimp is, according to Meldrum, between $220,000 and $260,000; the camera, another $60,000. Factor in a ground team, and odds and ends like a low-frequency “infrasound” system (in case the Bigfoot happens to communicate like whales) and the total price tag rises to upwards of $400,000 for the first year of operation.

When Meldrum was brought onboard, he says the project’s “owner and founder” William Barnes—who claims to have encountered Bigfoot in a pup tent in northern California while out dredging for gold—had private philanthropists lined up, but they seem to have gotten cold, normal-sized feet.

Given the shortage of foundations dedicated to finding unseen, potentially nonexistent apes, the Falcon Project has turned instead to Joe Sasquatch-hunter. “I expected a groundswell of support from the Bigfoot community,” Meldrum says.

But the Kickstarter campaign closed after 45 days with $11,865, at only 3% of its goal. Meldrum says a subsequent fundraiser in Portland, Oregon, this June barely broke even, when just a handful of people showed up. “That is not just a fluke, that’s an entire community turning its back,” says Meldrum.

It could be that the “Bigfoot community” has doubts about the technology (which Meldrum admits he has not seen in action) or are simply unwilling to put their money where their Bigfoot-believing mouths are. But Meldrum also cites “bad blood” from those who see Bigfoot not as an elusive animal, but something close to human.

“They saw this process as intrusive, invasive of their privacy, as molesting or harassing the population,” says Meldrum.

Despite its struggles, the Falcon Project is not yet dead. “We have ideas,” says Meldrum. They could charge for a livestream of the Bigfoot blimp-cam. They could charge to see Meldrum’s footprint collection in various Las Vegas casino lobbies. Or they could just sell T-shirts of the footprints. “They were hits down at Comic-Con,” says Meldrum. “I guess there was quite a cryptozoology presence down there.”

"What secrets lurk in ocean depths? Are there alien forms of intelligent life that occupy the vast volumes of water that constitute our oceans, seas, and lakes? The largest of our oceans, the Pacific, covers 64,000,000 square miles and reaches a depth of 36,198 feet, a depth that no ray of sunlight ever reaches. Could these depths hide alien submarine bases?

Underwater UFOs have been sighted on many occasions lifting out of their submerged depths and taking to the air. In an article entitled "UFOs - at 450 Fathoms," UFO Reporter Ed Hyde told of the sighting made by Dr. R. J. Villela, a Brazilian scientist, who saw a UFO smash through an estimated 40 feet of ice at the South Pole and soar into the sky at amazing speed.

It was author and researcher Dr. Ivan T. Sanderson who suggested that aliens could remain undetected by building their bases beneath the world's oceans. Dr. Sanderson found that by actual count, over 50 percent of the UFO sightings had occurred over, coming from, or plunging into or coming out of water. This includes oceans, seas, lakes, and reservoirs. Of the oceanic UFOs (some term them USOs or Unidentified Submersible Objects), one was tracked by the U.S. Navy near Puerto Rico in 1963. Of course many of these objects have been tracked over Puerto Rico since that time. On a training maneuver, a sonar operator detected a sub aqueous object traveling at over 150 knots! The technicians tracked this object for four days and it maneuvered down to the incredible depth of 27,000 feet. Submarines of 1963 could not dive further than a fraction over a mile into the ocean deeps. What kind of submersible could withstand the tremendous ocean pressures? And how could it overcome the tremendous resistance of water moving at such incredible speeds?

(Note: We now know that may use a process called supercavitation)

Many witnesses have reported huge cigar-shaped vehicles emerging from the oceanic hydrospheres of earth to take to the sky. In 1965, such an event was logged in the records of the Norwegian ship T.T. Jawesta on the 6th of July and in the log of an Argentinian ship, the Naviero off the coast of Brazil on July 20, 1967. The officers and crew could see a shining object in the sea no more than 50 feet away from the Starboard side. It was cigar-shaped and about 110 feet in length and emitted a powerful blue and white glow. It ran silently and without wake through the water. There was no periscope or conning tower or any protruding parts to this mysterious submarine. It paced the Naviero for 15 minutes, then suddenly dived and passed beneath the ship and vanished rapidly into the great depths.

For years witnesses have seen many types of UFOs cruising off the Palos Verdes Peninsula in Southern California. UFOs have actually been seen to come out of the water in the San Pedro Channel. In the early seventies, my friend Jim was on the boat returning from Santa Catalina Island to San Pedro Harbor when he spotted a low, flying disk cruise silently over the channel boat. The craft was so close he could make out every detail of its structure including the four hemispherical pods on its underside.

Strange blue-green lights have been seen in the water since 1989. In 1989, and again in 1990, witnesses have seen as many as 20 events an hour. One large light appeared to be as much as 100 feet in diameter. This large light spawned babies no larger than 10 to 12 feet in length. These lights were seen to move swiftly under the ocean's surface some 500 to 1,000 feet from the coastline in Abalone Cove.

The hypothesis that these may be luminescent fish is discounted by a local marine biologist. These lights were too large and too swift to be fish. One of the lights was reported to have emerged from the water.

In 1992 a sea kayaker viewed an amazing sight off the Palos Verdes Peninsula. He was four or five miles off the Peninsula when a waterspout suddenly formed some hundreds of yards ahead of his kayak. As he observed this spout, the forward motion of the funnel stopped, the curtain of light mist surrounding the waterspout disappeared and a rotating column of what seemed to be solid ice appeared. As the sun reflected off the rotating mass of ice crystals, it appeared to be a sight of extraordinary beauty. The height of the ice column was estimated at 100 to 150 feet. When the ice column collapsed back into the ocean, it created a whirlpool. After this amazing event, the kayaker paddled over to examine floating fragments of ice and found specimens of fish embedded in the frozen pieces.

The site of these phenomenal occurrences is near the old Marineland Park which closed in 1987. Snoopers believe that the Park is now a Naval Experimental Marine Biology Lab. Access to the Park is now restricted and many "no trespassing" signs are posted around fenced areas."

‘Dream Chaser’ Crash Lands in California!

Sierra Nevada Corporation’s Dream Chaser made its first free flight over the weekend. Unfortunately, the left side landing gear failed to deploy, damaging the prototype spacecraft.

The company released a video late Monday showing the flight, and though the video mentions the incident, it stops moments before touchdown. The unmanned lifting body spacecraft was released from a helicopter at 12,000 feet and made a glide flight back to Edwards Air Force Base in California

A test article of the lifting body Dream Chaser spaceship built by Sierra Nevada Corp., one of several companies receiving NASA funding to develop a commercial space taxi, made a crash landing on a runway at California's Edwards Air Force Base on Saturday (26th October 2013).

Sierra Nevada’s Mark Sirangelo told reporters in a teleconference this morning that the flight went well and was a success, other than the landing gear problem.

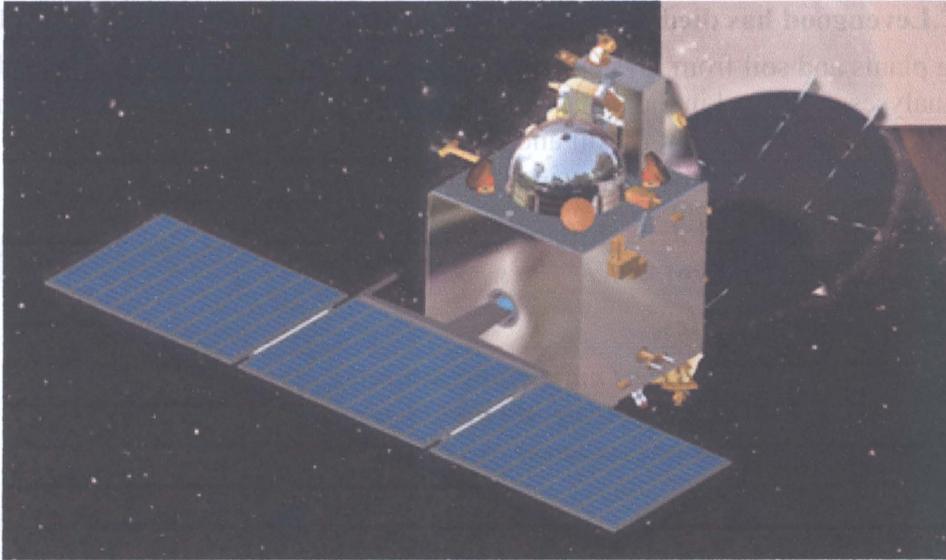

“It was a very good day, marred by a small glitch at the end of the day,” Sirangelo said. “But it did not take away from a pretty amazing aerospace achievement, in my view of it.”

The Dream Chaser is one of three designs competing for a NASA contract that would fill the gap left by the retirement of the space shuttle program to once again fly astronauts to the International Space Station and elsewhere in low earth orbit. The other two designs — from SpaceX and Boeing — are both traditional capsules.

INDIA PUTTING FINAL TOUCHES TO MARS-BOUND SPACE CRAFT

By Stephen Clarke: Spaceflight now. October 7 2013

India's first Mars probe is prepared to launch in late October on a trial run to the red planet to lay the technological foundation for future Indian deep space missions.

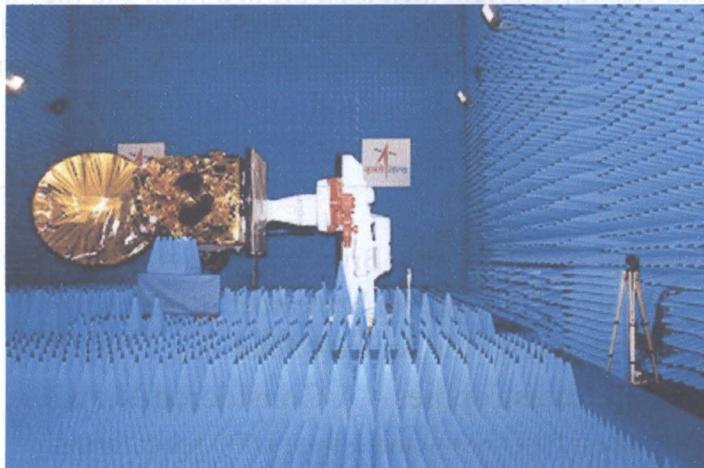

(Artists impression)

Set for lift off as soon as October 28, the Mars Orbiter Mission will demonstrate deep space navigation and communications, interplanetary travel, spacecraft autonomy, and the complex make-or-break rocket burn to place the spacecraft in orbit around Mars.

Only the United States, Russia and the European Space Agency have successfully dispatched robots to Mars before. The Indian Space Research Organization hopes to be the fourth space agency to accomplish the feat.

The Indian orbiter also carries a small camera to return medium resolution colour imagery of the Martian terrain, a thermal infrared spectrometer to measure the chemical composition of the surface, and instruments to assess the Mars atmosphere, including a methane detector.

The $73 million Mars Orbiter Mission has a launch window opening October 28th and extending through November 19th.

The Jet Propulsion Laboratory is providing communications and navigation support for the mission, which requires the use of NASA's Deep Space network, a set of three tracking stations in California, Spain and Australia. The arrival at Mars is scheduled for September 21st, 2014, one day before the arrival of NASA's MAVEN Mars Orbiter which is on track to launch from Florida on November 18th.

Biophysicist W.C.Levengood has died. (March 15, 1925 - September 28, 2013 Michigan USA)

He began studying plants and soil from mysterious crop formations in the early 1990s. His biophysical and biochemical analyses published in the plant biology journal Physiologia Plantarum confirmed changes in growth nodes and other plant & soil anomalies in crop formations discovered in the United States, Canada, England, Israel and other countries.

Doctor and Colonel Jesse Marcel Jr.'s Life on Earth Has Ended on August 25th 2013 (aged 76).(Filers Files #35-2013)

Thanks to Michael Reiche who writes,

"Jesse was a giant to many of us, a modest man whose father, Major Jesse Marcel, Sr., was the Roswell Army Air Field base Intelligence officer, the first to reach and examine the Roswell crash debris field.

Jesse never once backed down in his all-too-credible account of his father's showing him debris from the crash.

He always honored and defended his father's, credibility and memory." (With Thanks to Peter Robbins)

Jim Smith's daughter lives at Colstrip, Montana .

Jim (PRA) asked her about the lights they had seen and she said they where out at the Surge Pond and it was late evening when they spotted these three lights racing across the sky at real high speed then they would stop and go the other way and suddenly blink and they would be gone for a while and then suddenly they would be back.

One of the lights got real low and was super bright then took off in a flash and they never seen them again. They said they watched them for about ten of fifteen minutes. They was sure that they was not planes or helicopters as there was no sound. But this has been about two months ago this happened. (August 2013)..... They are now armed with camera's...Har!

The next PRA meeting will take place at the Royal British Legion, Allenton, Derby (DE24 9AF) at 8pm on Tuesday 26th November 2013.
