OBAMA ADMITS SPACE ALIENS CONTROL USA: WAS HE JOKING?

President Barack Obama talks with Jimmy Kimmel during a taping of “Jimmy Kimmel Live” in Los Angeles, California on March 12, 2015. Photo: Getty Images/Michael Salla

On last night’s Jimmy Kimmel Live, President Barack Obama made a strange UFO admission. He said space aliens control the USA, and they are responsible for government secrecy about UFOs. According to the LA Times and New York Magazine, Obama’s admission was nothing more than a joke made in a late night comedy show highlighting his dry sense of humor. But was it? A recent disclosure about UFO secrecy by John Podesta, Obama’s former White House Counselor for Climate Change and Energy Policy, suggests that Obama was serious about a situation he had no control over.

Here is what Obama said in response to Kimmel according to the LA Times:

[Kimmel] wanted to know whether Obama had tried to get to the bottom of the “UFO files” about the mysterious desert region known as Area 51. “The aliens won’t let it happen,” Obama joked. “You’d reveal all their secrets. They exercise strict control over us.”

But President Clinton once said he’d checked on the matter and found nothing, Kimmel protested. “That’s what we’re instructed to say,” Obama responded.

Obama's comments come only one month after Podesta claimed that his biggest failure for 2014 was: "Once again not securing the #disclosure of the UFO files."

Podesta apparently received an informal briefing by UFO disclosure advocate Dr Steven Greer in Jan 2009 on alternative energy sources used by visiting extraterrestrial visitors. If true, it appears that when Podesta was appointed to be Obama's senior adviser on energy policy in 2014, he attempted to pry loose classified information on the energy and propulsion systems of UFO craft.

Podesta's frank admission of failure was interpreted as evidence that there exist powerful government and/or corporate forces enforcing UFO secrecy. Obama's comments raises another possibility. Space aliens themselves, at least some of them, play a key role in maintaining UFO secrecy. The possibility that space aliens may be on Earth and are influencing the public policy of major nations such as the USA is not so strange given what other major world leaders have had to say on the topic.

For example, According to Paul Hellyer, a former Canadian Defense Minister, the U.S. has reached agreements with extraterrestrials that secretly live on U.S. military facilities at Nellis Air Force Base. Hellyer claims to have confirmed his UFO alien information with senior military officials in the U.S. Air Force. Hellyer's claims were cited in a story by the Fars News Agency that the U.S. is controlled by Tall White aliens. The story was covered by the Washington Post and other major media. Obama's strange alien control claim may have been done partly in jest on a late night comedy show. Yet that does not dismiss the possibility that underneath his dry humor was a disturbing truth. U.S. Presidents are powerless to tell the truth about UFOs and alien life – unless they do so in a way that maintains plausible deniability, like appearing on Jimmy Kimmel Live.

On Friday, December 7, the current Russian Prime Minister and former President, Dmitry Medvedev, (photo:below) made some startling off-air comments to reporters while his microphone was still switched on.

He was asked whether the President is given any secret files on extraterrestrials while in office. In his responses, Medvedev not only confided that extraterrestrials are visiting the Earth, but that some are actually living among us. He went even further to say that the Hollywood comedy, Men in Black, depicting a secret government agency monitoring extraterrestrials on Earth, has a factual basis to it.

While the comments appear to be playful responses to a reporter's off-beat question, they raise questions over exactly how much truth was being revealed by Medvedev. Given that Medvedev's responses were said off-air, without him realizing that his microphone was still recording, they at face value give credence to claims that extraterrestrials are not only visiting our world, but are even living among us.

He was then asked by one reporter if "the president is handed secret files on aliens when he receives the briefcase needed to activate Russia's nuclear arsenal, Medvedev responded: Along with the briefcase with nuclear codes, the president of the country is given a special 'top secret' folder. This folder in its entirety contains information on Aliens who visited our planet....Along with this you are given a report of the absolutely secret special service that exercises control over the Aliens on the territory of our country...More detailed information on this topic you can get from a well know movie called Men In Black....I will not tell you how many of them are among us because it may cause panic."

UFO Spotted Over Bude Beach, Cornwall

A UFO has been spotted in a photograph in the skies above Cornwall on the 17th February 2015.

The strange object has left UFO enthusiasts guessing at what it might be?

The image gained more interest after it was revealed that RAF fighter jets had escorted a Russian bomber plane away from skies off the Cornish coast.

However, the object shown (arrowed) below does not resemble the 'Bear' Bomber reported off the Cornish coast and the dates do not match.

BUDE, Cornwall 1.20pm 17th February 2015

(See below) A Russian 'Bear Bomber'

The Tupolev Tu-95/Tu-142 (NATO name 'Bear') is basically a 'left over' from the cold war and was in service with the Soviet Strategic Air Forces in 1957.

The 'Bear' has often been used as a nuisance reconnaissance aircraft ever since that period and although capable of carrying an 'A-Bomb', its speed of 500mph would make it an easy target for modern day interceptors. Russia has far speedier bombers these days and all have been superseded in any case, by ICBM's.

The object photographed over Bude beach remains a mystery and bears no resemblance to any intruding aircraft.

Hundreds of glowing Objects seen over California Thursday March 12th 2015

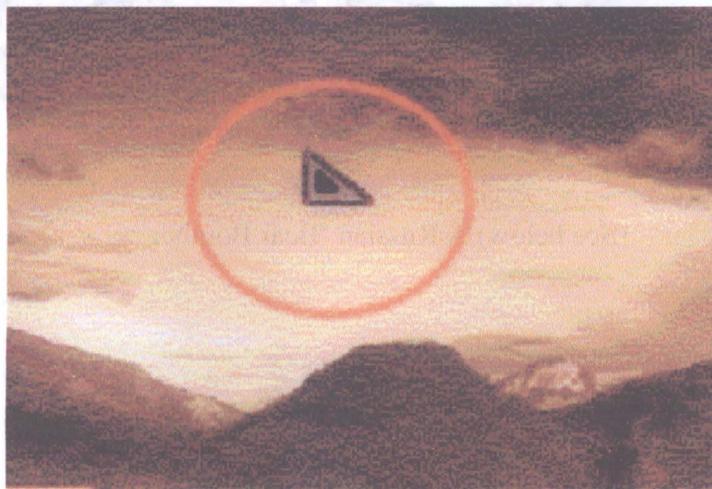

Posted: March 11th 2015: Hundreds of white 'somethings' were floating in the sky over California.

Since they are just not drifting on the wind and some are moving in different directions distinct from the others, they are intelligently controlled. Galactic drones or probes? (Unconfirmed report)

MONTANA TRIANGLE

(Filers Files #05-2015)

Gallatin Gateway – I stepped outside to take my dog to the bathroom and saw a plane with blinking navigation and collision lights about 30 deg above the horizon. A triangular shaped object with no navigation/collision lights flew overhead being followed by an obvious airplane on January 13, 2015. I assumed the plane was coming in to land at BZN. I noticed what I thought was a satellite that was big enough to be the ISS, but moving much slower. I saw two lights—almost vertical—and about an inch in size at arm's length that changed direction to the west. There were three lights in a triangle shape with a plane following behind. They both curved slowly around to the southwest. This object had only white non blinking lights. I have a MS in the quantitative sciences. NOTE: The above image is a rendering. ## BELGIAN 'FLYING TRIANGLE' MYSTERY CONTINUES

The Editor has renewed contact with Patrick Ferryn a former Director of SOBEPS (Belgium)

An early meeting with Patrick Ferryn (right) in 1993

I was pleased to meet you in the early '90's during a trip to the Stonehenge area and a visit to Busty Taylor. At the time I worked for SOBEPS, a Belgian UFO research association I co-founded in 1971, that was dissolved in 2007.

Our present group (called COBEPS) is now working hard on a new re-evaluation of the very first sightings that occurred on Nov. 29, 1989, but also during the time predating this exceptional day when the so-called UFO Belgian wave started. (Some hundreds sightings that came after; they could be the result of an intoxication due to the media - at least that's the hard skeptics hypothesis but one thing is for sure: some 170 observations collected just for the sole Nov. 29 around the small city of Eupen cannot be the result of a socio-psychological effect).

Quite recently we were fortunate to exhume a prominent, unreleased and unexpected case that occurred during the month of March 1989. The witnesses don't recall the date but are adamant on this: the sighting happened a few hours after an evening BBC program on crop-circles. When the investigation is complete, I will send you a full report. Patrick Ferryn.

General Wilfred de Brouwer's comments on the UFO Mystery

"The Belgian Air Force has arrived to the conclusion that a certain number of anomalous phenomena have been produced within Belgian airspace. The numerous testimonies of ground observations compiled in this [SOBEPS] book, reinforced by the reports of the night of March 30-31 [1990], have led us to face the hypothesis that a certain number of unauthorized aerial activities have taken place. Until now, not a single trace of aggressiveness has been signaled; military or civilian air traffic has not been perturbed nor threatened. We can therefore advance that the presumed activities do not constitute a direct menace. The day will come undoubtedly when the phenomenon will be observed with technological means of detection and collection that won't leave a single doubt about its origin. This should lift a part of the veil that has covered the mystery for a long time. A mystery that continues to the present, that exists, it is real, and that in itself is an important conclusion." Major-General Wilfred de Brouwer, Deputy Chief, Royal Belgian Air Force, "Postface" in SOBEPS' Vague d'OVNI sur la Belgique – Un Dossier Exceptionnel, Brussels: SOBEPS, 1991.

It was during this period that the co-operation between the Belgian Air Force and the SOBEPS group was so good, the group were informing the Belgian Air Force as to the location of the Flying Triangles that were flying over the country. This resulted in two F16 fighters sitting at the end of the runway, waiting to scramble to the location detailed by the SOBEPS group!

Current Reports from the 'Filers Files'.

Plainfield – I work as a night security officer at a warehouse located a mile west of the Indianapolis International Airport on Reeves Road with another security officer and we have noticed many V-shaped circular lights in the sky. On the night of February 1st 2015 (around 10:30 pm) there was an array of distinctive bright red lights traveling over the airport heading west over Plainfield. I tried to get photos but the light pollution was too bright. I counted 34 red lights traveling back to back and moving very slow but in a straight line. I reported what I saw to a friend in Cincinnati who received a similar report from another witness in Indianapolis.

On February 8th at 1:15 am the security guard at the gate called me on his radio that was very unusual. When I reached the gatehouse, there was a black Chevrolet Impala parked at the gate and two tall people standing by the gatehouse door dressed in black attire with, which were slacks, heavy bomber jackets and leather gloves.

They wore beret-like hats with sunglasses, even though it was dark. There was no insignia or lettering on the vehicle, though it had Ohio license plates. One of the men asked me if I had witnessed anything unusual in the sky above the airport. I mentioned what we had seen on February 1st and that there had been a lot of different lights seen the past year or so.

He said he wasn't interested in the other sightings, just what was seen over the airport. Then he wanted to know if I told anyone else. I asked who they were. They both smiled, apologized for taking up my time and left. I have no idea who these guys were.

THE PRA EXTENDS ITS SKY COVERAGE OVER DERBY!

Thanks to 'Paul' and another colleague in central Derby, we now have three 'sky camera's' covering the sky over Derby!

With the addition of two recently added cameras, all with a higher definition quality, we can sit back and wait for the new 'eyes in the skies' to spot anything that moves over the city.

The picture below shows how small and simple the cameras appear to be, but this is entirely due to the present day advanced technology of small automatic cameras.

Readers will no doubt be familiar with the television film of various birds and small animals now running around and filming their immediate environment.

One of the latest 'sky cameras' in situ.

The Socorro Incident:

Extract from 'Coast to Coast' (USA) February 23 2015

In the latter half, of the show Ray Stanford, who has been investigating the Socorro UFO landing for over 50 years, shared not only the details he presented in his seminal 1970s book Socorro 'Saucer' in a Pentagon Pantry, but further evidence in the case.

The incident took place in April 1964, when Lonnie Zamora, a New Mexico policeman, heard a loud roar and saw a descending object in the sky in flames. In his patrol car, he tracked the craft to where it had landed in a ravine on the outskirts of Socorro, and saw two small beings beside it.

The beings were the size of children, and dressed in something like white coveralls, Zamora reported. Several other witnesses described seeing an object in the sky, and landing traces and soil were subsequently tested.

Stanford made numerous trips to Socorro, to examine the scene and interview Zamora and other witnesses. He found Zamora to be highly credible in his accounts, and famed ufologist J. Allen Hynek also came to town to investigate. Directly after the incident other patrolmen arrived on the scene, including one who took photos-- he was asked to turn over the images to the government, and some of the photos reportedly showed the effects of radiation, Stanford detailed. Zamora made a drawing of the red insignia he saw on the side of the craft, yet the military ended up changing the look of the drawing to deliberately obfuscate the public, in order to determine if future sightings might be copycat hoaxes, Stanford explained. He further revealed that he has acquired an actual photo of the craft, which he's hoping to use for publication in an updated book on the Socorro incident.

Unknown Flying Objects are seen over Bristow, Oklahoma

Bristow, Oklahoma - Daytime sighting of 6-8 Bright white orbs flying in a straight line over Bristow, OK. Monday, Feb. 9, 2015, at about 7:58 am, I was driving my 12 yr. old daughter and 5 yr. old grandson to school when I noticed that you could still see the moon very well, I glanced at the moon and then back at the road and immediately realized I'd seen something under the moon so I glanced back at the moon and saw a long line of white dots moving at a steady pace in the same direction I was travelling.

I instantly assumed they were white birds and again looked away. Then it occurred to me that they were in a perfectly straight line and evenly spaced away from each other, so I looked up again and said "what the hell is that?" At that point my kids looked at it too and the 12 yr. old said "that's not birds!" At that point, I pulled the car to the side of the road and watched the objects.

What I saw was a perfectly straight line of 6-8 very bright white lights all traveling north at a steady speed that wasn't slow but wasn't really fast either. (they were flying, not drifting on the air currents like balloons would). Each light was evenly spaced down the line and did not appear to be attached to anything or each other. They appeared to be separate units and were traveling as though they were following each other not flying side by side.

One Light Out of Line The second to the last light was slightly out of line, it was a little higher than the others in the line. Each one had the same light intensity and were brighter than the moon was. They appeared to emit light, not have lights on the outside. I also noticed that they appeared to flash at the exact same time, but it wasn't a normal flash and is very hard to describe.

It was almost like a strobe light flashing slowly but the light wasn't going off and on, it looked like there was a grey thing that travelled down each light starting from the top and travelling down the front then appearing at the top again and traveling down the front repeatedly and the grey thing blocked out the light as it travelled down the orb. (It reminds me of a light in a lighthouse that has a sheet of metal the rotates around the light, momentarily blocking it out so that it appears to flash) It was like that, and you could tell the light itself wasn't flashing.

(I initially thought it was birds like I said, flapping their wings and that's why it appeared to have that flashing appearance) But it became apparent that it wasn't birds when I noticed the spacing between them was too perfect, they were in a perfectly straight line (except the second to the last one), they flashed in perfect sync with each other and they were flying so high in the sky that I don't even think birds fly that high).

Objects Fly Away I continued to watch the lights until they were no longer visible. They were actually traveling northwest, so as they continued across the sky they were no longer flying parallel to my car they were flying away from me as well and the first few lights could no longer be seen and eventually they all flew too far away to see anymore.

There was no sound, they travelled at a steady speed, they flew at a pretty high altitude but were very easy to see and maintained the same altitude throughout the sighting, they appeared to be pretty large and very bright! They were very noticeable even in the daylight. I was able to see them from the side and from behind when they flew away, but they looked the same all the way around just a ball of bright white light, no structure could be seen.

A similar sighting was observed on 11/25/14 in Oklahoma City, OK. according to their report.

The Mystery of the Huge Craters being found in Russia

From the 'Siberian Times'

'Dozens of new craters suspected in northern Russia'

By Anna Leisowska 25 Feb 2015

Famous Yamal hole in 30 kilometres from Bovanenkovo, spotted in 2014 by helicopter pilots.

Pictures: Marya Zulinova, Yamal regional government's press service

Respected Moscow scientist Professor Vasily Bogoyavlensky has called for 'urgent' investigation of the new phenomenon amid safety fears.

Until now, only three large craters were known about in northern Russia with several scientific sources speculating last year that heating from above the surface due to unusually warm climatic conditions, and from below, due to geological fault lines, led to a huge release of gas hydrates, so causing the formation of these craters in Arctic regions.

Two of the newly-discovered large craters - also known as funnels to scientists - have turned into lakes, revealed Professor Bogoyavlensky, deputy director of the Moscow-based Oil and Gas Research Institute, part of the Russian Academy of Sciences.

Examination using satellite images has helped Russian experts understand that the craters are more widespread than was first realised, with one large hole surrounded by as many as 20 mini-craters, The Siberian Times can reveal.

'We know now of seven craters in the Arctic area,' he said. 'Five are directly on the Yamal peninsula, one in Yamal Autonomous district, and one is on the north of the Krasnoyarsk region, near the Taimyr peninsula.'

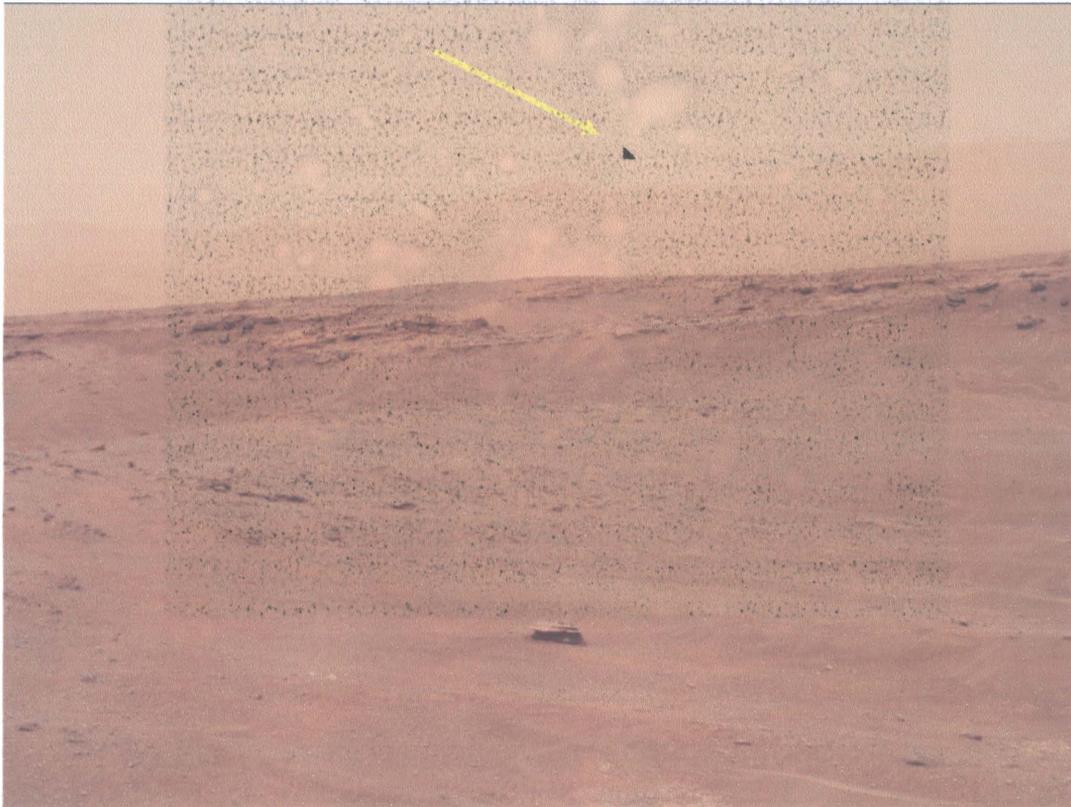

'We have exact locations for only four of them. The other three were spotted by reindeer herders. But I am sure that there are more craters on Yamal, we just need to search for them.'

'I would compare this with mushrooms: when you find one mushroom, be sure there are few more around. I suppose there could be 20 to 30 craters more.'

He is anxious to investigate the craters further because of serious concerns for safety in these regions.

The 'Hubble' proves Einstein WAS right about relativity

Shapes of distant galaxies in this image from the Hubble Space Telescope are warped by the mass of a galaxy cluster closer to Earth—a distortion predicted by general relativity.

Albert Einstein's theory of relativity has finally been confirmed in images of a far-off star exploding. Pictures from the Hubble Space Telescope show light from the supernova being distorted by a cluster of huge galaxies, proving an effect predicted by the theoretical physicist 100 years ago.

The images show four points of light, known as an 'Einstein Cross', originating from the exploding star five billion light years away.

The points were created as light passed through a region where space and time are distorted because of the sheer size of the galaxy cluster. The images finally prove Einstein's theory that massive objects bend space-time to create gravity.

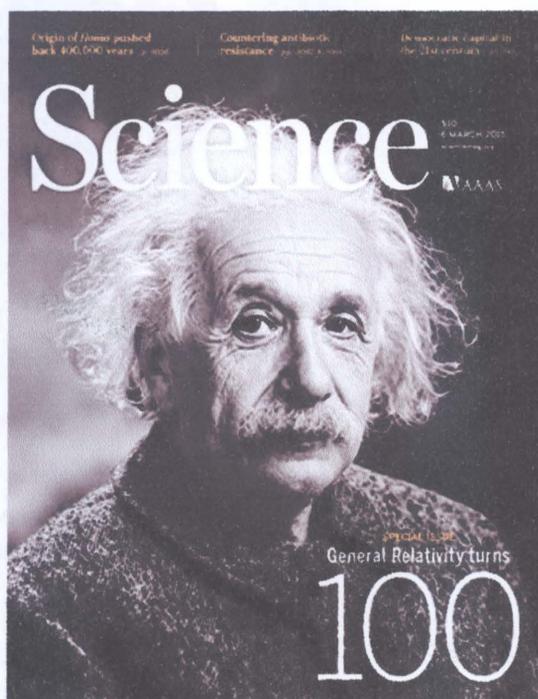

Dr. Patrick Kelly, an astronomer from the University of California, Berkley, said his discovery of the images while scanning the stars "was a complete surprise".

The study, backed by NASA and the European Space Agency, is published in the journal 'Science'. (6 March 2015)

This 2 December will mark the 100th anniversary of the publication—in four short pages—of Einstein's general theory of relativity, to this day physicists' fundamental theory of gravity.

Governing the universe on the largest scales, general relativity stands with quantum mechanics, which reigns on the smallest scales, as a foundation stone of modern physics.

But whereas quantum theory was the achievement of many—de Broglie, Bohr, Heisenberg, Schrödinger, Born, Dirac—general relativity leapt fully formed from Einstein's mind.

Don't Make Light of the Ceres Mystery!

It's not often that NASA's own scientists are left scratching their heads. However when it comes to the dwarf planet Ceres, there's a lot to be confused about.

Ceres is the largest known object in the asteroid belt. Found between the orbits of Mars and Jupiter, astronomers have been keen to study the planet due to a belief that it could contain huge quantities of water.

NASA's Dawn spacecraft has just captured some new close-up shots of the tiny planet showing what appear to be two bright lights on the surface.

Andreas Nathues, lead investigator for the (NASA) framing camera team said, "The brightest spot continues to be too small to resolve with our camera, but despite its size it is brighter than anything else on Ceres. This is truly unexpected and still a mystery to us."

It has been speculated that the lights might be reflections from ice, or maybe evidence of volcanic activity. UFO hunters think it means Ceres is the Death Star.

Long range photos had revealed a single light, however it now appears that up close they are two very distinct lights, reflecting 40 per cent of the light that's sent their way.

What's astonishing is that these 'closer' images were actually taken 29,000 miles away.

Dawn is using a revolutionary ion propulsion system to reach the planet where on 6 March the spacecraft will move into orbit.

Once in orbit it's hoped that the spacecraft will be able to take much higher-resolution photos and in turn, solve the mystery that's currently puzzling scientists and astronomers.

Physical conditions

Ceres is a dwarf planet in the asteroid belt, constituting about one third of the mass of the whole asteroid belt and being the sixth-largest body in the inner Solar System by mass and volume. It has a round shape, and a surface gravitational acceleration about 2.8% that of Earth.

It has a surface area Approximately 1.9% of Earth's dry land, slightly larger than the total land area of Argentina. Observations indicate that it contains large amounts of water ice, about one-tenth of the total water in Earth's oceans.

Its colonization also could become a step on the way to the colonization of the objects in the outer Solar System, such as the moons of Jupiter. Because of its small escape velocity combined with large amounts of water ice, it also could serve as a source of water, fuel, and oxygen for ships going through and beyond the asteroid belt.

The establishment of a permanent colony on Ceres might precede colonization of the Moon or Mars because the far deeper gravity wells of those bodies add dramatically to the cost and risk of colonization.

Alvaston, DERBY: Last night (30th Jan 2015) at about 9.30pm, I saw 2 lights travelling side by side. I thought it was a plane, as I could hear one, but I realised they were too close together and too big to be a plane. As I watched, they both suddenly switched off, leaving a clear sky to look at. The plane I could hear was in the sky above my head and quite high.

As to what the lights were, I have no idea. They were heading north-west. Report from C.Harris.

Inwood: The witness, her daughter and step brother were driving to a grocery store at about 7pm on February 3rd 2015, when they noticed a large triangular object flying overhead.

The object was dark, with a light at each apex of the triangle and several smaller lights were visible. The object continued to circle the area and was flying low and slow and emitting a low humming sound for 30 minutes.

The witnesses mother heard what sounded like military jets that may have come from the nearby Air National Guard airfield at Martinsburg WV.

The witnesses were certain that what they had seen was not a conventional aircraft.
