ARIZONA CHAPTER

Volume 4 / Issue 7

The Truth is Out There . . .

MEETING DATE: Monday, July 17, 1995 ♦ MEETING TIME: 7:30 p.m. SHARP
LOCATION: 8227 E. Orange Blossom, Scottsdale, AZ (Clubhouse)
PROGRAM: Video: "UFOs - The Secret Evidence" by Michael Heseman

DIRECTOR'S MESSAGE

It's been a busy month for MUFON here in Arizona. Reports are still coming in concerning sightings in the Gila Bend area.

We held our Section Directors meeting down there a few weeks ago, and I had taken the video we had of a sighting in the area, and in the course of the meeting we had the chance to show it to a local resident of Gila Bend who told us they had seen the same lights and had thought it was some sort of military flare. We'll see what happens next.

June Scherrer has just been appointed Section Director for Pima County. I wish her the best of luck and hope she can get the Tucson MUFON members "up and running."

Please mark your calendars for August 18-20, which is UFO Awareness Week. We will be having another Arizona first -- a display at Christown Mall, 19th Avenue and Bethany Home Road. Please see details elsewhere in this Newsletter -- we will need volunteers to help get the word out to the public, and this is your chance to be involved. Earlene Ford has done an outstanding job in setting up this event for us.

As announced at the last meeting, we held a sky-watch the Saturday after the meeting in the vicinity of the White Tank Mountains west of Phoenix. Even though some of the members got lost on the way out there, a good time was had by all. Once the sun went down it was very pleasant. Several shooting stars and six or seven satellites were spotted by our "official spotter" and several planets were viewed through telescopes and binoculars.

I was also surprised to receive a call from Mike Hayes, Section Director for Mojave County in the Kingman, Arizona area. Mike has sent in his first sighting report and hopes to get the local group going up there. He responded to an article in the newspaper in Kingman concerning a meteor and has received a flood of calls on it and other UFO sightings.

I was very impressed with the investigation performed by Gerda Gallob in Sedona concerning the missing trucker article from last month's Newsletter. She did a splendid job of interviewing the Sheriff, and various witnesses, visiting the actual site where the truck ended up (no easy feat!), taking photos and creating detailed maps. I was so impressed that I turned the report over to Richard Motzer to use in his Field Investigator training classes as an example of how a report should be done. Thanks, Gerda!

After a lively discussion, we hope to have an example of a MUFON-AZ t-shirt at the upcoming meeting. The alleged Paradise Valley UFO crash in 1947 is featured.

Keep your eyes to the sky ...

Tom Taylor
State Director

FIELD INVESTIGATION TRAINING

Due to Richard Motzer's vacation, there will be no Field Investigator Training the month of July. Classes will resume in August.

NATIONAL UFO AWARENESS WEEK MUFON-AZ DISPLAY

As you know, UFO Awareness Week has been declared in late August. Through the efforts of Earlene Ford, MUFON-AZ will be sponsoring a three-day event at Christown Mall, 19th Ave. & Bethany Home Road, on August 18, 19 and 20. We plan to have a TV and VCR set up to show a few videos. We will also have handouts concerning MUFON and we will have volunteers on hand to familiarize the general public with UFOs.

If you have any newspaper articles or anything you feel we could use at the show, please bring them to the meeting so we have time to get them into our display. Put your name and phone no. on the back of any items you would like returned. We passed around a sign-up sheet at the June meeting and 14 people signed up to help. Those of you who have signed up can write down your preferred time to attend on the new sign-up sheet which will be passed around at this meeting OR call Tom (967-6265) if you can't make it to the meeting and he'll see if your preferred time is still available on the new sheet. We would like to have at two to three people at the booth at all times to answer questions.

Ray Maurer is arranging for a couple of abductees to be there at various times also, to share their experiences.

I hope you will all volunteer to be at the booth for two hours. If you're not able to do so, at least come by and say hello!

FIELD INVESTIGATOR GRADUATES

At the May 7th Yuma MUFON meeting certificates of achievement were presented to Joe Nurek and Kevin Bownn for successfully completing the Field Investigator Training. Congratulations to both of you!

MEDIA WATCH by Tom Taylor

In the interest of keeping the UFO topic before the public, the following is a list of programs on the subject recently aired via television, radio and newspaper in recent weeks. We will attempt to list programs ahead of time whenever possible; unfortunately, we are often not notified of programs until it is too late to publish them in the Newsletter in time for members to view, hear or read them. In the case of TV and radio programs, ask at MUFON meetings to see if anyone is aware of someone who may have taped them to share.

Always be sure to check current TV listings before viewing!

The MUFON International Conference was published on the Art Bell program on Friday, July 7th. Since his program is heard in 180 cities all the way from Alaska to South America, this is great P.R. for MUFON!

The local radio station KTAR here in Phoenix carried an announcement concerning the MUFON Conference as well, and a few listeners heard only PART of the broadcast where the 1947 Roswell UFO crash was mentioned and called me because they thought the crash had just happened and wanted more information!

If you haven't seen it yet, be sure to see "Apollo 13." It's a terrific film on the ill-fated Apollo mission in 1967. I can barely remember listening to the reports on the radio at the time -- classmates were all gathered around the radio while on lunch break at North High School when word was received of a safe splashdown.

Another interesting film just released is the sci-fi thriller "Species."

Please note the new time for UFO-AZ. It's now on at 9:00 a.m. on Monday and Tuesday each week (still Channel 22). Sunday nights at 10:00 p.m. it's also on KTUC radio in Tucson right after Art Bell's "Dreamland."

DREAMLAND - KFYI Radio, 910 AM, Sunday evenings, 7:00 p.m. - Art Bell hosts this interesting radio program.

UFO AZ/UFO TALKS - Channel 22, Dimension Cable, Monday and Tuesday at 9:00 a.m. Ted, Peggy and Jim co-host this continuing series featuring interesting guests and topics related to all aspects of the UFO experience. Related radio program in the Tucson area on KTUC, 1400 AM, 7-8 p.m. Sundays (check with them to verify day and time in case of scheduling changes).

Sightings - Saturdays at 10:30 p.m., Channel 15.

X Files - Fridays at 8:00 p.m., Channel 10.

Unsolved Mysteries - Fridays at 7:00 p.m., Channel 12.

UFO SIGHTING NEAR GILA BEND, ARIZONA

On May 26, 1995, I received a phone call from Gary Malouff who stated that he wanted to give a report to someone about a UFO sighting. He had obtained my phone number from the Yuma Police Department. He stated that he would only be in town a few days, so an interview was scheduled for the next day.

The interview was held at Greg's home at 550 Ninth Avenue. Greg's work makes it necessary for him to live for six months in Yuma and the other six months in Vado, New Mexico. He is with the lettuce produce. At the time of the sighting, Greg was driving from Vado to Yuma for the long Memorial Day weekend. Greg has given permission to have his true name used. He appeared to be a religious man who does not drink, smoke, or use any type of drugs.

Greg was enroute to Yuma from Casa Grande, Arizona, at approximately 10:30 p.m. He was near Mile Marker #138, approximately 10 to 18 miles from Gila Bend, when he noticed a bright light out of his left-side window. At first he figured it was a military flare, but then he decided it could not be because of its actions. Then he thought it was flickering through trees, as it looked like more than one light. He then realized that the area in which he was had no vegetation or mountains -- only low-lying vegetation and power lines. He had slowed his pickup down from 68 mph to about 50 and kept observing. He then saw that the lights were not stationary.

The light(s) were erratic. AT times there would be only one; then two or three. There was not set pattern to what they were doing. He said there were a total of under 20 lights, and the number "14" sticks in his head, but he doesn't know why. At some times the lights would be in rows, resembling log cabins sitting on a mountain; then they would move in from the sides to converge into one light. Then there would be nothing -- then the lights would emerge again. Some of the lights resembled dots, others were square shaped, and possibly two or three of them were a little larger. The lights were all amber. Greg said they reminded him of the flame from a cigarette lighter. The lights seemed to be the size of aspirins.

Greg finally pulled over to the side of the road and stopped. There had been a semi truck behind him for many miles, and it sped past him when he pulled over. There were no other vehicles on the road and no oncoming traffic. He said that it made it all the "spookier," as it was such a dark and clear night. He said that the sight was spectacular and exciting. He also said that some of the lights had more intensity than others, and he felt that they had their own source of light within them. He also stated that he had the feeling that "they" knew he was watching them.

When Greg had pulled over, he rolled the vehicle window down and was not able to notice any sounds or smells. He had no loss of time, and there were no vehicular or radio malfunctions. He did make the comment that he felt very relaxed when it was over. Greg watched the lights for approximately eight minutes, and then all of them literally disappeared. There were no trails or vapors. He said they "all went out" at the same time.

When the lights disappeared, Greg went to the truck stop at Gila Bend in an attempt to locate the driver of the semi that had been behind him. Greg found him and had coffee with him; they talked over the lights, and both agreed they had seen precisely the same things. The truck driver was described as an older man who had been driving semis nearly all his life; he stated he'd never seen anything like that. He said the reason he had not stopped was that he was afraid of being abducted.

Unsuccessful attempts were made to phone the Colorado MUFON State Director and the Colorado Director of Investigations.

Greg said that after Greg returned to Yuma, he felt he had to report the sighting to someone. He stated that he was very glad that I was able to talk to him so soon, as he had to go back out of town in a couple of days and also had been trying to block the sighting out of his mind and had already forgotten some of the details. We had a long conversation after the interview, and it appeared to me that Greg has been traumatized due to the sighting. He had bad dreams the night after the sighting -- trouble sleeping -- and was afraid to drive at night now.

Because of the nature of his work, Greg is frequently in El Paso, Texas. Vado, New Mexico is not very far from El Paso. I told him about the El Paso MUFON Chapter and that I knew they had a support group with individuals who would be willing to help him if he felt the need. I contacted El Paso and obtained several phone numbers for him, which seemed to relieve him somewhat. I was also able to furnish him with the date of their next support group meeting.

Checks were made to local and federal agencies and military installations with negative results. Positive verification was made by the MCAS Weather Station that it was a clear, dark night on the night of Greg's sighting.

YUCCA, AZ SIGHTING

Two witnesses, David Nelson and his friend Betty Kavadas, began seeing a light in February of this year as they drove from Kingsman to Yucca on Interstate 40. Several weeks earlier smaller lights had appeared inside and around their home in Yucca. The "outside" larger light would follow their car, at times maneuvering by abruptly changing course and direction. The object was primarily diamond-shaped, white with colored lights around its perimeter, and appeared to be in front of a solid, larger object. The (light) object was described as being at least the size of an "18-wheeler."

The "indoor" lights appeared to be of baseball size and darted around the inside of their home. Another light appeared beside their chandelier bulb. One witness told the light to "leave the house," whereupon it increased in intensity but did not leave.

The witnesses' dog became very excited on the appearance of the lights. One witness, Betty, and the dog were injured. Source and cause of injuries is unknown.

Shadows were seen passing in front of the witnesses' LED-lit stereo in the bedroom at night. Objects were occasionally moved from their original location, and both witnesses reported "lost time" on one occasion.

Both witnesses appeared to be stable individuals though emotionally upset. Neither showed signs of alcohol abuse. They stated they do not use drugs. They don't attend church regularly, though they did visit the pastor of a Yucca church for help following the incident. The pastor gave them the impression he thought it was the work of "demonic forces."

BOOK REVIEW "UNBROKEN PROMISES"

This is a story of the "Gulf Breeze 6" which happened in July/August 1990. The "6" were members of the Army Intelligence Unit stationed in Augsburg, Germany. All six (5 men and 1 woman) are intelligent, deeply religious people with a long-standing interest in the paranormal.

One day they decided to experiment with an Ouija Board, just to see if it worked. And it did! The first of the contacts was with a spirit called Safire who would be their contact for most of the time. She was followed by a witty Tibetan monk and a good-humored Timothy (St. Paul's disciple). Then followed evangelists Matthew, Luke, Mark and John, as well as St. Paul and St. Peter. Even the Virgin Mary "spoke" to them twice.

When each new entity manifested itself it was asked: "Are you of God?" This was to avoid any malevolent forces. During a series of seances, much information was received.

On Aliens: There were good guys, respecters of "free will" and belonging to the Alliance. There were also "others" who abduct and are trying to dominate humans.

Other information included the oncoming climate change on Earth, continuing wars, warnings about the "New World Order," and the advent of the Antichrist, disguised as a peacemaker. There were also prophecies.

All contacts made extensive references to Holy Scriptures, mainly the Epistles and Revelation, urging the "6" to study the Bible.

After awhile the "6" were told that they would have to leave Germany because of an oncoming war in Europe. They were to return to the USA and be ready to become "Soldiers of Christ." When they decided to go AWOL, they were warned by the spirits that the military was aware of their plan but they should still proceed.

So the "6" went AWOL, boarded a plane in Munich for Atlanta, GA on 6 July 1990. On the plane they were followed by an agent who lost them in Atlanta. Shortly thereafter they were all reunited in Gulf Breeze, Florida, and were arrested on 14 July 1990 by the military security. After interrogation they were offered to either rejoin the military or receive an honorary discharge. After this they hung together for awhile, waiting for further instructions, and then separated.

When I received this book from the author, I began to read it and could not stop. Not only is the story itself extraordinary, but the language is simple and direct. One can feel the puzzlement of the author facing all these unexpected developments and sincere amazement. I believe every single word and have no doubt that all events happened as described. I believe the honesty of the author's story.

And yet ... I could not help feeling that something is not right. being a character who likes to decorticate things, I re-read the book and came to a frightening conclusion: The "6" were victims of some psychotronic experiment -- not by Saints or aliens, but by some of our own "hush-hush" super secret agencies. Let's consider the facts:

1. As in any contact or channeling, there is no way to check the identity of the contactor.

2. All six were religious young people with an interest in the paranormal. The receptivity and the inclination to accept were already there. What was needed was an acceptable religious background, to make it easier.

3. It is somewhat odd that Saints needed the Ouija Board to communicate. The Virgin Mary is in the habit of appearing in person (i.e. Guadalupe, Lourdes, Fatima, Medjugorje, Cairo, etc.).

4. References to the Holy Scriptures could be accomplished by anyone well enough versed in the Bible to find the appropriate citations.

5. The stories about upcoming Earth changes and assorted calamities were already trumpeted by many doom-sayers, tabloids included. Warnings about a New World Order or Antichrist have also been heard. There is some similarity with Cooper's pronouncements. Prophecies are of the general order, not requiring a crystal ball. One interesting detail: the Oklahoma City bombing was not mentioned.

6. If the Military was aware that the "6" were going AWOL, why weren't they arrested before boarding the plane in Munich?

7. Is it not strange that military deserters, instead of being sent to the clinker for a couple of years, or being shot, get an offer to rejoin the military or to be honorably discharged? Were they deserters or not?

All of this leads to my conclusion that they were victims of an experiment. Once it was over -- adios! They did their part. And after that, no divine mission. Now, just think about it: if something like this could be done to six people, it could be done to 60,600 or 6,000! Frightening perspective.

After all this, something positive remains: the author found in Florida a lovely young lady, married her, and they have two beautiful children. Maybe the Saints guided him after all.

Yes, psychotronic games are indeed played. Next month I will tell of a Bulgarian psych-game on a much larger scale -- this if our editor is not yet fed up with my scribbles (no way! Carry on! - Ed.)

[The following is a multi-part "book report" by Dimitri "Jim" Ossipov. It will be presented in installments in this Newsletter -- so don't miss an issue!]

AFTER THE FLOOD (Continued)

There was a rivalry between the two half-brothers Enlil and Enki, which continued for generations until two clans openly fought. This was due to the complicated order of succession and seniority, depending how one was born, with no regard to an order of birth.

At first Anunnaki clans fought by themselves, but later they began to involve their human subjects, arming them and using them as pawns. Of course, humans were armed with swords and spears only. The use of deadly rays and other nuclear gadgets were the privilege of the Anunnakis.

Pyramid wars were a good example. The first one began when in Egypt, Seth killed Osiris and chopped him into hamburger, just to dominate the whole of Egypt. War broke out. Seth was defeated by Osiris' son Horus who ran to Asia to become an Asian divinity.

The second Pyramid war was a result between Enki's and Enlil's rivalry. The main proponents were Enlil's son Ninurta and Enki's son Marduk. This time humans were deeply involved in both camps. The war ended when Enki's clan, entrenched in the Great Pyramid, surrendered. Marduk was sent away into exile, but he was a persistent character. He came back, chased his younger brother Thoth from Egypt, occupied Babylon, and brought Canaanite city-states to his side. All-out war had erupted again with human participation. Marduk forced Enlil to recognize his primacy, but war continued. As a last resort, Enlil and Ninurta used nuclear devices on rebel Canaanite cities -- Sodom and Gomorrah included, and general destruction followed. Winds carried a radioactive cloud over Sumer, and its great civilization was ended. By the year 2,000 BC the "gods" left for good to seek better pastures. Only Yahweh lingered for some time, to lead the Hebrews into the Promised Land. Another era began.

Colorado Buffalo Mutilations

The death and mutilation of two full-grown male buffalo inside a locked corral near Kiowa has veterinarians, pathologists, and law-enforcement personnel baffled.

At least one of the massive animals was subjected to "extreme shock" at or near the moment of death, according to a report on tissue samples examined by the Colorado Veterinary Services laboratory in Broomfield. What that shock was could only be surmised, but it could be related to the presence of "the mutilators", whoever or whatever they were. This was one of the more bizarre items covered by a summary report of strange and unusual animal deaths in 1994 released by Linda Moulton Howe, well-known animal mutilation researcher, author, and award-winner for the TV documentary, "A Strange Harvest."

In a 77-page report of case studies, funded by a research grant from The Bigelow Foundation in Las Vegas, Ms. Howe and Dr. John Altschuler of Denver summarized strange animal deaths and mutilations from Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, and Kansas. Also included were copies of reports from veterinarian pathologists, giving solid scientific evidence of mutilations being carried out by means of extremely high heat and of plants near the animal corpses showing marked biochemical and biophysical changes, as if from "an intense energy."

The first mutilated buffalo was discovered October 19th in a locked metal corral at the Denver Buffalo Co., near Kiowa. The dead animal was found lying on its side in the pen. Owner Doug Stewart insisted that the buffalo, one of a herd of twenty-one, had been alive the night before when he had a veterinarian check the animals. The buffalo's penis and testicles had been removed in a large, oval hide-deep excision, and most of the penile tissue had been extracted from inside the abdomen. The buffalo's tongue was excised from deep within the throat, rectal tissue had been cored out, and half of the left ear was missing. These are excisions that have become a classic pattern in cattle mutilation incidents throughout the U.S. A microscopic examination of tissue samples by Dr. John Altschuler stated that the hide had been exposed to "elevated burning temperatures." The Colorado Veterinary Lab Report stated that there was no infectious disease present and that the cause of death was unknown.

A postmortem done at the Comanche Veterinary Hospital in Kiowa by Dr. D.W. Smith, showed bruises were found over the ribs and that both the lungs and kidneys were clotted with a "mess" of dark black blood, although no wounds were found. Dr. Smith also noted that when the animal was first discovered, there was a "pile of hair near the neck and back" lying on the ground.

Then, on November 7th, again at the Colorado Buffalo Co., owner Stewart discovered a second dead and mutilated buffalo in the locked corral. Findings regarding the pooling of blood in the internal organs led the CVS lab to conclude that the animal had suffered an extreme "shock-like event" at or near the moment of death. The owner said that the animal had been healthy until it was found.

In another mutilation, this time of a one-year-old steer, which took place February 24 near Las Vegas, Nevada, the classic excisions were present, but also something quite unusual. Veterinarian Garth

Lamb found that a 1.5 by 1.25-inch plug of bone from the steer's skull had been removed leaving a smooth hole, not the rough surface that a bone saw would produce. Interviewed by Ms. Howe, Dr. Lamb said X-rays showed the piece of bone was sheared off so smoothly that he didn't believe any knife could have made the cut.

"I've never seen anything like that ever," said Dr. Lamb, who has been a practicing Veterinarian for 22 years.

In an incident near Chacon, NM, a mutilated 4-year-old cow was found on September 26. This animal was analyzed by Dr. Terry Jantzen, a New Mexico Veterinarian who has done more than 500 necropsies on cattle. One important and puzzling finding was bleeding in the chest muscles and a 3-inch ring of bleeding muscle around the neck, which Dr. Jantzen felt was related to something clasped around the 1500-lb. cow's neck.

On October 24th, a rancher in La Veta, Colorado, found one of his pregnant cows down in a creek, a quarter of a mile from the ranch house. The cow was alive, but her back was broken and her hind legs were paralyzed. The rancher wondered if the cow had fallen from a considerable height up in the air to do such damage. Over the following two days, two more dead cows from his pasture were found with their teats, rectums and vaginas removed in precise oval cuts. Nearby residents reported seeing an unusually bright beam of light sweeping the pasture around 2 a.m., from a craft that was "like a helicopter," but made no sound.

In a case near Gamett, Kansas, on June 24, a heifer was found mutilated in a circle of flattened grass, near what appeared to be a crop circle in a nearby wheat field. Dr. W.C. Levensgood, a Michigan biophysicist, examined the plants and found that cellular changes suggested exposure to microwave frequencies. Similar changes were found in grass samples from a Chacon, NM, mutilation site, where farm people earlier had reported seeing an object moving in the night sky that "looked like a house with lighted windows." There was an additional report, by hunters, of an elk found with the classic mutilations.

Questioned by Ms. Howe, Dr. Levensgood said, "I guess the thing that has surprised me the most was that I was able to see the same differences in the grass (from Chacon) that I am seeing right here (in the circles in Kansas)." He went on to add, "...whatever the energy is that causes the rings and circles at mutilation sites, it is producing a profound change in the respiration cells of those affected plants."

Dr. Levensgood put forward a tentative theory that both microwave frequencies and air ionization were involved.

"In very strong ionizing radiation, the impacts of the electrons can cause microwave energy. And if microwave energy becomes very strong, it in turn heats the material up, it might cause ionization. We are talking about extremely energetic microwaves," said Dr. Levensgood.

Thanks to the Bigelow Foundation grant, Ms. Howe and Dr. Altschuler are attempting to establish an expanding network of veterinarians, pathologists, and law enforcement professionals to investigate animal mutilations. The two were invited to present their research information to the Colorado County Sheriffs Association annual meeting in Denver on January 19, 1995.

Howe said that after the presentation, one Sheriff told her, "I have been dealing with this animal mutilation problem for years. We never have any evidence, no tracks, no bullets, nothing physical to go on but the dead animals that get cut up the same way year after year. We've never been able to arrest anyone. And I'm sure glad you are looking into some scientific evidence, because I've always known predators weren't the answer to some of what I've seen."

For the sake of examining mutilated animals within 24 to 36 hours, before tissues begin to decompose, people are urged to contact the authors of the report by telephone as quickly as possible: John Altschuler, M.D., (303) 740-7771 or Linda Moulton Howe (215) 491-9840.

Colorado MUFON News, Summer 1995

It was reported by Linda Howe and George Wingfield on Art Bell's July 9th "Dreamland" program that at the MUFON Conference that just ended in Seattle, Five still photos from the London Roswell autopsy film were shown.

Several interesting points include the fact that the coiled-type phone cord seen in the film was known to be used by the military at that time. Six fingers and six toes were clearly visible on both (there were more than one) bodies autopsied. It appeared that the person who performed the autopsy had done this before, since he knew to lift the dark membrane covering the large eyes. The brain was dark in color, while a human brain is light in color. The bodies were 5-1/2 ft. in height and did not appear to be "greys," which are so often described by present-day abductees. It was stated this autopsy was performed on bodies retrieved in a crash which purportedly occurred in June, not July, 1947, and was one of several crashes!

Congressman Schiff may have been shown this film in the past few weeks. Stay tuned.

Flying saucers real? Many believe so

UFOs, E.T.s exist,
50% in survey say

By Thomas Hargrove
and Guido H. Stempel III
Scripps Howard

Half of America's adults believe that flying saucers could be real and that the federal government is covering up what it knows about extraterrestrial beings.

And, no, they are not kidding.

Neither is the General Accounting Office, which at the request of a member of Congress is scheduled this month to release a report on whether the Air Force has withheld documents about an allegation that a UFO crashed in Roswell, N.M., in 1947.

A national survey of 1,006 adults conducted by Scripps Howard News Service and Ohio University said that the growing mistrust in government, plus television and films of space aliens have combined in a remarkable way.

Many Americans say it is possible that Uncle Sam does not want the world to know that Martians, or Vulcans, or E.T. really may exist.

"This really is nothing new," said UFO enthusiast Larry Bryant, a retired Pentagon spokesman in the Army's Office of Public Affairs.

He said that for more than 20 years, the Gallup Poll consistently has indicated that about half of Americans say they believe that unidentified flying objects are "something real" rather than just in people's imagination.

"Hollywood's popularizing of mysteries has certainly played a role in raising consciousness about what the government knows about the UFO reality," Bryant said.

"The notion that the federal government has clandestine knowledge about alien beings was a central theme in such films as Close Encounters of the Third Kind, E.T. — the Extra Terrestrial and Starman.

It also is a common theme on the television series The X-Files.

Participants in the Scripps Howard-Ohio University survey were told, "Some Americans feel that flying saucers are real and that the federal government is hiding the truth about them from us. Do you think this is very likely, somewhat likely or unlikely."

Of those polled, 43 percent said they believe that this is unlikely, 41 percent said they believe that a UFO cover-up is very likely; 27 percent said somewhat likely; and 7 percent are uncertain.

The poll said that belief in such a government cover-up conspiracy varies considerably according to age. A slight majority of people who grew up in the television era say they believe in it, while a majority of their parents' generation said they do not.

The poll said that well-educated people are less likely to believe in UFOs than are adults with a high-school education. But there are people from every educational and economic group who said they believe in a cover-up.

But scientists and professional sky watchers remain skeptical.

"We do have several projects related to the search for extraterrestrial intelligence," said James Cornell, spokesman for the Harvard-Smithsonian Center for Astrophysics in Cambridge, Mass.

"But in all our years of searching the skies, we have never picked up any indication of extraterrestrial vehicles," Cornell said.

"And, believe me, any astronomer would love to be able to report that he saw a flying saucer land in his back yard."

A group called Operation Right To Know is preparing a petition to the United Nations calling for "disclosure of all officially maintained UFO secrets" worldwide.

"All we are really doing is asking journalists and scientists to simply investigate the matter on their own," said Mike Jamieson of Napa, Calif., one of the group's founders. "These events are all too often pegged as something that is not credible."

His group is particularly interested in disclosure of Air Force documents involving the New Mexico case.

The group won support from Rep. Steve Schiff, R-N.M., who has asked the GAO to make a study of "records-management procedures dealing with weather balloons, unknown aircraft and similar crash incidents."

The Air Force for years has said that the device that crashed at Roswell was a weather balloon.

Last year, the Pentagon released a report in response to the GAO investigation that said the crash was actually part of a secret intelligence-gathering program called Project Mogul. That report also reviewed the history of UFO government conspiracy theories.

"My question about the Air Force report is whether it provides a complete accounting of all records dealing with the Roswell incident," Schiff said.

This survey was conducted June 12-26 by telephone to all 50 states and the District of Columbia. It was conducted at the E.W. Scripps School of Journalism at Ohio University in a study jointly sponsored by the school and Scripps Howard News Service. The survey had a margin of error of 4 percentage points.

Missing trucker attracts UFO group

The mysterious disappearance of a Kansas truck driver almost one month ago near Payson has family members grieving, law enforcement authorities scratching their heads and a UFO organization claiming aliens might have been responsible.

On the morning of Sunday, May 28, Devin Williams, 28, a long-distance driver for Flint Hills Transportation in Emporia, Kan., drove his refrigerated truck loaded with salad mix and strawberries off Interstate 40 onto the Beeline Highway.

About 50 miles later he turned onto a remote Forest Service road, FR95, and drove into the Buck Springs area.

Several miles down the narrow, winding dirt road, the 18-wheeler became stuck and Williams left the vehicle.

The incident is a mystery to many. They want to know why Williams — a respected, married man with three children — would drive his truck into a dense wilderness area and vanish without a trace.

Coconino County Sheriff's Detective Bruce Cornish has been investigating the disappearance since the day it was reported and he says he has no idea why Williams would take the truck into the area or what has since happened to him.

"It's such a remote area. It certainly isn't a shortcut to Kansas City (Williams' destination)," Cornish said. "And we have no recent leads on his whereabouts."

Kyle Burris, a fellow employee of Williams' at Flint Hills Transportation, said he, too, is baffled.

"I went out to Arizona in early June and brought the truck back," Burris said. "Why he would have driven into a rugged area like that, I don't know."

"This is not at all like him. It is out of character. He's worked here about four years and everyone knows and likes him. His wife and kids are taking this real hard. Everyone is worried and no one can figure out what happened."

Tom Wilson, owner of Flint Hills Transportation, said he had complete confidence in Williams, who he says was one of his better truck drivers.

"I don't know what to think. Devin is a good man. He passed all his random drug tests that federal law requires us to give. Detective Cornish tells me there were no drugs found in the truck. I don't believe that had anything to do with it."

Campers in the area told authorities they talked to Williams at about noon on Sunday and asked him why he drove the truck into the rugged area. They said he pointed to the truck and said, "I didn't do it, they did it." Then he walked back to the truck.

During the course of Cornish's investigation — which is still ongoing — the Flagstaff detective interviewed witnesses who told him they saw Williams on Monday, May 29 a short distance from the stranded truck and that he was barefooted, seemingly disoriented and "talking to a tree." That was the last time Williams was seen, Cornish said.

The highly unusual disappearance has attracted the attention of a Texas-based research organization known as MUFON — Mutual UFO Network.

Tucson Insurance agent Charlie Green, a long-time member of MUFON, said the case has him fascinated because of what Williams told the campers who first confronted him.

"The driver said, 'I didn't do it, THEY did it,'" said Green. "That kind of makes you wonder who 'THEY' is, doesn't it?"

Cornish said he was recently contacted by a female who identified herself as a "UFO scientist" who wanted more details about Williams' disappearance.

"She asked if I wanted this case listed in her organization's log. I told her I had no reason to believe this had anything to do with UFOs. But, some people really believe it does."

Wilson said he also has been contacted by UFO organization representatives but couldn't recall who the callers were.

"They asked me about Devin and then told me about a man out in Arizona who was abducted into a spaceship and later got away. They made a movie about it," Wilson said.

The movie the caller was apparently referring to was "Fire in the Sky," a drama that depicted the alleged abduction of Snowflake logger Travis Walton by aliens.

Burris said when he visited Arizona to retrieve the 18-wheeler he found it unusual that Williams had left his personal citizen's band radio, valued at approximately $300, in the cab.

"That was his own — not the company's. And he also left his favorite hat — a Marlboro hat — he always kept it with him."

While the questions are many and the clues are few, detectives, family and friends will continue looking for answers to Williams' disappearance.
