JUNE 1989

The MUFON Conference In Las Vegas on June 30, July 1 and 2 will be well represented by the UFOCCI. A group of us from Seattle will be attending. This year promises to be "explosive!!" Because of CIA spooks we may not identify ourselves as being from the UFOCCI however! If there were ever going to be undercover agents attending you can be sure this will be the place.

AILEEN'S SOAP BOX!

Dr. Scott Corder attended the Jorpan in 1988 in Seattle. He told us about the ongoing contact of "Donna" in Russell, Kansas with an entity by the name of "Peter". Peter was allegedly the Peter of the Apostles in the Bible. Whether that is true or not is not the question.

The question now is: because of Dr. Corder's involvement in this on-going case and because of the public stand he has taken on it he has had his medical license to practice rescinded. Allegedly this "might" harm his medical patients in some unforeseen way.

The Medical Board made an unannounced call the next day to his office after he had sent out letters to the Department of Defense's office stating there was going to be landings by UFOs in the Russell, Kansas area. Other prophecies were made in the same letter given by "Peter".

Upon insistence of the Medical Board Dr. Corder was ordered to have a psychiatric test at the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kansas. When Dr. Corder went to the clinic, knowing he would be vindicated, the psychiatrists there wanted him to sign papers that he would stay there for observation. Scott would not do so, which I think was a wise move on his part!

Dr. Corder has now hired a lawyer to fight the injustice of the Medical Board and to seek reinstatement of his license.

The doctors at the hospital where he works have only glowing reports of his capabilities, stating "he is an outstanding physician."

Ottawa, Kansas, where Corder lives is a town of 10,000 population. They have few doctors and need Dr. Corder to be active and servicing them. The patients are also protesting this outrage.

The reason I am getting on my soap box today is that this goes against the Constitution of the United States. We have the right to believe as we please and say what we please. With actions like this another of our basic freedoms are being withdrawn.

We should have learned a lesson in another case where an author that said too much was put in prison to keep him quiet. I remember that graphically because he is my good friend. Since he has been released from prison he has also been silenced and cannot speak in public.

Now another researcher has stepped forward and put his life on the line to (what he terms) save the human race. Together with another well known person they have written an indictment against the federal government for making treaties with an "alien nation" in exchange for technology the feds would let this alien nation abduct our people, perform experiments and mutilate our animals.

Unfortunately by the time we went to press one of the persons had already sent the indictment and has subsequently lost his job.

Another case comes to mind and that is a rancher in Wyoming who owned a huge ranch of 5,400 acres. After he was abducted, his cattle mutilated, his crop sabotaged, his sprinkler system damaged, he lost everything. He also is my very special friend who I have grieved over for the last 7 years.

What can we do for these dedicated researchers, abductees, doctors, friends, etc. What I am going to do is to continue to speak out when I have the opportunity about the atrocities that are happening to our Constitution and our people. By making more and more people aware there should be safety from persecution but as in Dr. Corder's case - it would not appear so.

Heaven help us all - because if it doesn't who is going to? By heaven I mean - the positive extraterrestrials each one of us has had contact with.

THE COSMIC PUZZLE: THE HIDDEN REALITY

By Scott Corder, M.D.

I don't know how many times now I have heard and read that the UFO mystery is a giant puzzle and that a lot of people have a piece of the puzzle. It seems that the problem then is putting the puzzle together correctly. There, however, is another major problem. Some of the pieces don't fit!

If one is looking for a picture of truth, as I believe that most investigators of this puzzle are, then it becomes more than just putting together the pieces. One must be sure that each piece is true, in its own right, before putting it on the table. But that, in and of itself, is a major undertaking considering that we are dealing with a phenomenon that is brief, elusive, defies the known laws of physics, and can even control time. If, as I believe, that at times one can not even believe his own eyes and ears in regards to truth, then how - Oh How - does one ever expect to come to grips with the true reality of all of this?

Of course all of this makes for a big problem if science is to help us out. Since science is based on the repeatability of observed phenomenon and if what we observe as something that appears to repeat itself may be a lie or "disinformation" then we may have a totally impossible mission. It is extremely easy to perpetuate a lie. Homosapiens do it very well to each other. Would it not be even easier for an advanced species to do even greater deception? Of course there is an assumption here in that there must exist an advanced living intelligence. I now feel that such is the case, that they are behind the UFO puzzle, and that is exactly why the picture is so difficult to figure out.

If one has taken the time to investigate and research this field, then it is not long before this assumption becomes very easy to swallow. It is not long before one figures out that there are inconsistencies and overt lies involved. If an advanced species is doing this then the next logical question (if we can use logic) is WHY? I believe that in some cases that question can be answered.

This is also the question that I feel Jacques Vallee tried to answer in his new book Dimensions. He argues very elegantly that the why is to "control human belief." I, for one, agree with him. However, right away we are faced with another why: to what purpose should they want to control our belief structure? Vallee does not seem to really address this extension of the question. However, this aspect of the question sticks out like a sore thumb, and yet I hear very few responding to it! If they can control so easily our physical reality, what need or reason to control us indirectly through our beliefs, our myths and our imaginations?

A possible solution to this riddle is what I propose for you to consider for more than just a second or for more than the time it takes for you to read this article. Simply put: The question is part of the answer! In other words, what you believe is truth is exactly what they are trying to influence! This appears to be extremely important to them, for they go to great lengths to achieve their desired results. And as Vallee notes, they have done this for centuries. I do not feel this way based solely upon deductions of their activities, but also upon communication with a group (or faction) of these beings through a contactee whose case I have personally investigated. This case produces a different framework from which can be constructed a different picture from what most seem to believe at this time.

This little-known contactee, a 37 year old housewife in central Kansas, in my opinion has been given more than just a piece of the cosmic puzzle, but a Key to its interconnecting structure. Since her story and "their" revelations to her are at odds with a lot of the current concepts of which I hear and read so much about in the New Age movement, from other contactees and from other investigators, I feel that it must be reported to you in order to give you another framework on which to build your cosmic belief. Another side of the coin exposed to help those of you, who like myself, are seeking the secrets of the Hidden Reality.

This lady's contact began in November 1980, with a close encounter of the second kind on an interstate highway in Kansas in the very early morning hours. She and her mother-in-law saw a huge twelve sided triangular shaped craft floating in a field just off the highway. There was altered time involved and a possible abduction. However, it was four years after that date before she had open conscious physical contact with the beings who were responsible for the encounter. Moreover, this contact was not with some ordinary "traveling-by" space brother or sister. Her contact claims to be the one and only Peter the Apostle! That's right, the very same who walked in the flesh about 2,000 years ago! It was not easy for them to get her to believe this, nor was it easy for them to get me to believe what she was telling me was going on. Now, for numerous reasons, I do. This contact has not stopped now, AND will not stop until their mission is done. We have tried and will continue to try (with their help) to get others to believe in this contact. It is important. Our experiences to date are recorded in a short book called The Four. It describes how I came to believe this and some of what is going to happen. We hope that it will help you make some sense out of this puzzle and advance you towards the hidden reality.

Peter has told her many things about this hidden reality and usually backs it up with scripture! He says that UFOs have been involved with mankind from the beginning. They are referred to numerous times in the Bible, as pointed out by Rev. Barry Downing 20 years ago, and Peter confirms this fact. In Rev. Downing's book The Bible and Flying Saucers, he describes the important biblical accounts supporting this revelation. But what is more important here for UFOlogy is the relevant framework of reference set up on this basis for evaluating the individual pieces of the puzzle. On this basis it is apparent that the Good and the evil (or Dark side) are in conflict over winning your own personal beliefs. The Good side, God's side, towards belief in Jesus and the one and only God, and the Dark side towards belief in anything but this (i.e., extraterrestrials without God involved, powers of the self, you are God, reincarnation, etc.) and/or the Incorrect beliefs in the nature and reality of God. The Dark side is very active nowadays and you must be aware of this fact.

I now firmly believe that most people who claim to have contact, DO have contact. But I want to warn those of you who do have some form of contact: Do not believe what you are told based solely on the merits of the message or on appearances. For 'even the elite can be fooled.' The Dark side can appear as an "Angel of Light," or as a little green man, or as a beautiful Semjase or Maya! They may start out by winning your belief by seduction (emotionally or physically) or by inflating your ego by honoring you as a "chosen" one. Beware! All extraterrestrials are not benign or even benevolent! Once they have your belief in them, you are open to any falsehood that they wish to perpetuate through you to others. Are they doing the same to us, you may ask? I believe not, for we have tested the spirits in this case. In any event, those of you who believe not in what we are saying have a difficult decision to make, because there is disinformation involved.

So, just how does one decide with which side one is dealing with at any given instant? If you are worried about this, and I hope you are, then I have only been able to come up with one way to help ensure that you are dealing with the Good side. (and Peter confirmed this) With every visit or contact you must "test" the spirits (or beings) as it says to do in the first three verses of Chapter 4 of John 1. The scripture says you must ask and the spirit must state, "that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh." Simple - yes - but most do not know to do this and those that do fail to do so. Such a small thing to ask your contact to do for you! If they refuse or try to avoid or even change the wording, then I urge you to ignore, or at least reconsider, them as a premeditated deception! Please, try this simple test! We do now at each and every contact. It just may open your eyes to some of the secrets and methods of the hidden reality.

I don't mean to imply that this is the only test or the only key to understanding in your searching. Unfortunately, the UFO puzzle is not just black and white, positive or negative, or good and evil. The process to understanding is made even more difficult because of the "greys." (Here I am using this as a generic term and not to denote any one group.) These are the other groups (and there are many) of beings which are contact humans as well. We are told that they are independents who do not have direct ties to either the Good or the Dark Angels of the Bible. However, the test can still be applied to see towards which side they may be inclined. In any event, they are part of God's creation and will answer to him someday in regards to their part in this game for our beliefs.

One should ask what are the rules and where are the referees in this game or conflict. There must be some or one of all of these groups would have broken the embargo against mankind and landed on the White House lawn with all of the correspondents ready with their microphones and camcorders. I believe that God is the Judge and the Good Angels referee and control such activity. They desire for us to believe based on faith and reason before they allow open contact. Such beliefs and good deeds will be rewarded someday. I believe that someday will occur.

The Hidden Reality will then no longer be a mystery to mankind. (At least not at the level that it is now.) Our concepts of the cosmos will be forever changed and the understanding of the phrase "Infinitely Inwards and Infinitely outwards" will be apparent. We will no longer be earth-bound physically or consciously. Death will no longer hold us at bay. It will not be a "New Age" like the movement has suggested, but a different reality. A reality where anything is possible, and our dreams will unfold before us.

Like everyone else, I don't have all of the answers. I don't even have all of the questions. But I do have a belief and have learned of a new or different framework from which to measure the pieces and fit them together. We even have a sounding board in Peter when we have a question or have made a mistake. Our contact, which is still very active, can give you a reason to reflect on what you have learned about the puzzle and a hope that someday the Hidden Reality will be fully exposed to all. I know that the science of man will not do it. It will come in the clouds at the hand of God, for only He knows the hour and the day. I am only sure that it will come, and that we should continue to seek the truth and the reality before they arrive. Of this I am certain.

REPORTS FROM FRANCE
COMPLIMENTS OF MICHEL GRANGER

UFO Above Toulouse In Haute-Garonne
Le Courrier 2 February 1989

A UFO was observed by a number of persons during the night of Monday (February 6) to Tuesday (February 7) in the country of Saint-Martory (Haute-Garonne).

When M. Andre' Rieu came home in his car with his wife and son about 11:30 p.m., he was abruptly blinded by a bright light. "The whole landscape was suddenly illuminated as in full day by a blue-green light of which the origin was invisible," he related.

This phenomenon was also perceived by many other inhabitants of the area several kilometers from M. Rieu.

The French police went to the site Tuesday morning but did not find any track or object.

The National Spatial Studies Center (CNES) of Toulouse, where an office of the SETRA (Department of Survey from Treatment of Atmospheric Return Phenomena) - formerly GEPAN - is specialized in the study of these phenomena, stated that this UFO had been observed all over the southwest and that it would be the re-entry of a satellite, rocket or a meteor.

Space science entering a 'second dawn'

With 35 space science missions planned for the next five years compared with 11 in the last decade, the United States is back in the space exploration business, according to England's Flight International magazine. Missions this year include Magellan, scheduled for launch this week, which will obtain global radar imagery of Venus and be boosted by the Boeing-built Inertial Upper Stage. The Cosmic Background Explorer, built by NASA's Goddard Space Center, will search for radiation from the first galaxies formed in the universe. Voyager 2 will pass within 8,000 miles of Neptune. Galileo will provide the first direct sampling of Jupiter's atmosphere. And the Hubble Space Telescope will be the first of four great observatories launched. Boeing Aerospace and Electronics provided the metering truss and focal-plane structure for the telescope.

Satellites distort space observations

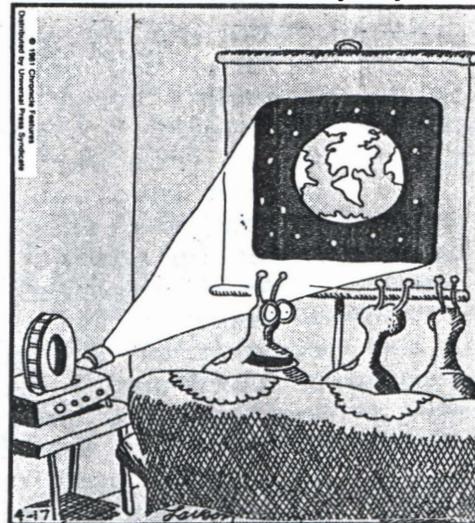

Some satellites have been blinded by radiation leaking from nuclear reactors that power Soviet satellites, according to the Washington Post. The radiation may threaten some of the biggest science projects planned for the near future, including the Gamma Ray Observatory and the Hubble Space Telescope. The problem is caused by Radar Ocean Reconnaissance Satellites used by the Soviets to observe U.S. naval operations, the Post said. The Soviet union has put up an estimated 35 spy satellites powered by nuclear reactors in the past two decades and the United States has launched one.

Soviets will press on with Mars programs

Despite pressures to cut space outlays and recent failure of two Mars missions, the Soviet Union is committed to a robust Mars exploration program, according to The New York Times. Soviet scientists told the Times that their country's economic cutbacks were causing some space program problems. However, they said there has been no change in plans for an unmanned landing on Mars in 1994 and a mission to bring back samples of Martian soil in 1998.

THE HELGE FILE - MEN IN BLACK IN SWEDEN?

By Hakan Blomqvist. Copyright © 1981
PUBLISHED IN AFU NEWSLETTER
P. O. Box 11027 11 Norrköping, Sweden

During my years as an active UFOlogist I have come across several UFO contact cases. In the beginning of the 70s I heard frequent rumors of a remarkable case involving the infamous men in black. Although being very sceptical I started collecting notes from various sources. This was not easy as several of the people involved were reluctant to reveal what they knew. Because of the sinister aspects of the case they had no wish to become mixed up again.

As the years passed some of the main witnesses became close friends of mine and so more and more I learned of the full details of the case. Today my Helge (x) file has grown to large proportions. Still, I probably would not have presented this case as yet save for an unusual coincidence. In 1979 a similar but totally unrelated MIB case emerged from an unexpected source. This case confirmed several of the data I had acquired earlier. I understand that there will be grave doubts regarding this information but I am honestly presenting the facts as I know them.

THE SOURCES

Most of the information has been obtained from three different second-hand sources. All of them were closely related to Helge during the original experiences. Personally I have only had a short telephone conversation with Helge in 1973. He then stated that he was not allowed to tell anything and that people would be shocked if they knew of these things.

The original contact experience was first presented by Ernst Linder, then chairman of "Ufologiska sällskapet" - a Stockholm-based lecture group now discontinued - at a meeting on Jan. 27, 1966. Linder was the first person who heard of the case and made the initial investigations (1). In literature the case was first mentioned in the Swedish magazine Sokaren (2). Condensed versions of the original contact has also appeared in "UFO-gatan" by Bjarne Hakansson (3) and "Tefatsfolket - vänner eller fiender" by Staffan Stigsjö (4).

Healed by UFO Entities

Helge is an ordinary Swedish worker, age now around 60, rock-blaster by profession. He is a down-to-earth man and an atheist. The only difference from the common is that he is very telepathic which has got him into trouble several times because he can see when a man is lying and he doesn't hesitate to say so.

In December 1965 Helge was severely troubled by a stone in his kidneys. On December 9, the day before his operation, he felt a sudden urge to take a long walk on a frozen lake in the vicinity of his home. At that time he lived with his wife in a small town not far from Gothenburg.

He took his dog along and started out on the lake. Suddenly the dog began to run in circles like he was mad. Helge had to put him on a leash. There was a whining sound in the air. As Helge looked up he observed an object about 5 m in diameter and 3 m in height. It was saucer shaped and translucent but not like glass. He could see figures moving inside. The object came closer to the ground in a spiraling movement. It stopped before touching the ice, and a dark tube was lowered from under the object. This tube was seemingly made of a soft material since it moved in the wind. He felt a breeze of hot air with a clear smell of hyacinth.

Helge first thought was this must be a Russian machine, but soon changed his mind. From the tube four entities floated down like in an invisible elevator and walked up to him. They were three men and one woman. Except for a translucent overall they were totally naked. One of the men seemed old while the others were younger. They were of normal height, had very large dark, somewhat slanted eyes and perfect teeth. Their skin had no blemishes and there was absolutely no hair on their bodies, not even genital hair.

Helge was especially fascinated by their ears which were large and pointed. The hole into the head was very large, like it is on a cat. He could almost see into their heads, he thought. The men seemed very strong, wrestler types with bull necks. As a whole they had a slight oriental look about them. The entities were covered by the clear plastic overalls which looked like they were held out from the body by air pressure.

Helge became very confused but not afraid. They started a conversation through signs and drawings in the snow. The entities were very fascinated by his hair. He had to remove his cap several times and they laughed and pointed. When he tried to touch their overalls they quickly moved back. They didn't want him to touch them. With a small black package they sprayed gas (?) on everything before they touched it, even the dog. The dog didn't like this as the gas had a strong smell of hyacinth. Helge even smelled of hyacinth several days afterwards which made his wife wonder if he had already bought flowers for the coming Christmas.

The sign conversation on the ice went on for a while and Helge tried to explain several things, like hunting and dancing. The girl played with the dog which Helge thought strange since it was normally very aggressive towards strangers. All the time it looked as if they walked on an unseen layer. They didn't touch the ground. When the girl patted the dog she also leaned her knee against this invisible layer. The entities had a broad black bracelet with a yellow button on their left wrists. They touched this occasionally which seemed to have some connection to their weightlessness.

The older man explained that he knew about the pygmies; he showed how they hunt with bow and arrow. He also made it clear that his people would come in great armadas in the future. After some conversation the older man went to "the ship" and fetched an object in the shape of a cylinder, or a microphone. He let this object glide along the back of Helge, who suddenly felt relieved from his kidney-pains which had troubled him for fifteen years. Helge felt that the object was warm and vibrated.

When the conversation had lasted for about one hour it grew darker and then Helge noticed that the vehicle was surrounded by a blue phosphorescent light. The whole craft sort of vibrated. Except for the dark cylinder beneath it was semi-transparent. It consisted of two shells of which the outer shell rotated. The inside seemed very spartanlike, no chairs but only three shining cylinders standing on the floor. Terminating the conversation the entities entered the craft which took off with enormous speed. Helge noticed that it changed color from blue to orange as it flew away.

When the doctors had Helge x-rayed on the following day they were very confused as the stone was gone. Subsequently all x-ray plates were checked by a doctor in Stockholm who confirmed that no stone was visible on the plates taken after the contact experience. This doctor has since moved to Switzerland and I have been unable to trace him.

The Second Contact

In August 1966, about ten months after the first experience, Helge felt a strong urge to go back to the lake where he had his initial contact. The urge was very strong, almost as if someone else drove the car.

As he arrives at the lake he finds the same craft hovering a few feet above the water-surface (it's now summer). Beside "the ship" a man is standing in the air as if weightless. There is a slight breeze causing ripples on the lake. Helge spots a small skiff and starts out through the reeds towards the craft. He recognizes the man as one from the initial meeting. This man starts to talk but the sounds he makes are not synchronized with his lip movements - they seem instead to come from the craft slightly afterwards.

Helge is informed that he will go to the Bahamas as their contact man and he is given a metal plate always to wear. He says it is impossible for him to go to the Bahamas since he doesn't speak English and is an uneducated man - beside he has a wife to care for at home. Obviously, however, Helge has no choice, he is ordered to go. Post-contact he digs a hole in the wood and buries the metal plate there.

He tells his wife what has happened and they decide to sell everything they have and even to kill their dog, which was very dear to them. In March 1967 they take off for the Bahamas. They are told to go to a certain place on Little Exuma. Helge makes one mistake, however, he forgets his plate. Nothing happens in the Bahamas and they are forced to return home.

They feel ashamed to resettle in their old home town; instead they make contact with a brother of Helge's living in Stockholm. For their remaining funds they buy a house trailer and settle down south of Stockholm where Helge finds work as rockblaster once more.

A peculiar episode happened on the plane from England to Nassau in the Bahamas. Helge noticed fourteen people all looking like Catholic priests. When the plane landed in Nassau they disappeared in a mysterious way. One of them was Father Rapas.

Father Rapas

Helge and his wife obtained an apartment south of Stockholm, through friends who were members of "Ilogiska sällskapet". He met several of the leading members of that group and one of them - a wealthy building contractor - offered to finance the trips to the Bahamas.

Helge decides to fetch the plate he has hidden in the lake. On his way up from Gothenburg he stops at a gas station. There, an old man comes up to him and asks if he is going towards Stockholm. Helge felt somewhat tired and thought it would be nice to have someone to talk to so he accepted the passenger.

The man is dressed in black cape, boots and a big black slouch hat. After a while he asked Helge if he doesn't recognize him. Helge denies this but suddenly it dawns on him that this is one of the "priests" that he saw on the plane for Nassau.

The man introduces himself as Father Rapas. He is working for the overlords - which he preferred to call them - who had contacted Helge on the previous occasions. Rapas suggests a coffee break at a motel.

They sit down at a table and Rapas takes off his slouch hat and puts it on the table, but orders nothing to drink. At this point Helge begins to feel very confused about the whole thing. Perhaps I'm going crazy and this man doesn't exist at all, he thinks. When a young boy passed their table Helge gives the big hat a push and it falls to the floor. The boy, thinking it is he who has done it, picks up the hat and apologizes. Rapas obviously is real, Helge thinks.

Helge is given instructions on how to proceed the next time he goes to the Bahamas. This time he must not forget his plate. The plate in question was 7 x 4.5 cm. in size and about 1 cm thick with a rough backside. It was made of a material like aluminium and was engraved with three rows of cryptic symbols, possibly a kind of identity card. (See drawing) The plate occasionally became so hot that Helge kept it wrapped up in asbestos. He also claimed it gave him rashes. (This reminds me of Albert Bender, who received a metal disc that became so hot he couldn't hold it (5) and also the Aarno Heino contacts).

As they had traveled a few more miles Rapas suggests that he take the wheel for a while. Helge wonders if this is wise, since Rapas seems to be very old; Helge suggests about 60 or 70 years of age. Well, if you double that some ten times you will be closer to the truth, is Rapas answer.

Anyway, they change seats and Rapas proves to be a good driver, perhaps a little too good! He drives like Helge's old Volvo amazon was a racing car. Helge tried to calm him by telling that the police may have check-points here and there. But Rapas says he can feel where they are. Helge falls asleep and when he wakes up Rapas is gone and the car is parked beside the road outside Sodertälje. On the drivers seat is a package of fruit.

The New Generation

Several Swedish UFOlogists were now becoming interested in the Helge case and lots of rumors circulated. A small group grew up around Helge, who returned to the Bahamas, this time carrying his plate. The building contractor financed this trip.

Money was to be mailed to Helge through a school teacher in Nyköping - Tryggve Glantz. In January 1968 a meeting is held in Nyköping. The gathered people are informed of a letter from Rapas, written through Helge and dated January 1, 1968. Rapas outlines the basics for an organization to be started by the Swedish group. This course of action has been confirmed by the overlords. The organization is to be called, "The New Generation".

The New Generation was intended to be a peace organization. I quote from the claimed letter from Rapas: "We detest you. That is why we believe in the youth, they are the only ones whose hands are not soiled with the blood of others... Your catchwords shall be: Freedom from violence - from hunger - we are all brothers and sisters... You who have supported him (Helge) shall not be forgotten, you shall reap a hundredfold, but if someone hurts him or his devoted wife, I say, they shall be revenged sevenfold". The group also received the "Rapas rules", 65 philosophical points. For example, point 15 says: "If you have helped a poor man with your last money and dressed him with your own clothes, given him your last food and he rises up and wants to know you down, toss him into the lake, he is worth nothing else". Point 17: "If there should be interplanetary people among you, which I believe is rather rare, don't let them grow to heaven but bring them down to earth again and demand more work of them."

Most members of the group felt uneasy about the whole thing. There were too many threats in the background. Something was not right, they thought. The building contractor had been told to pay thousands of crowns without knowing what he really supported. When Helge returns from his second Bahamas sejour the group breaks up and Helge feels betrayed and secludes himself.

The Bahamas Retreat

Helge's second trip to the Bahamas had fared better off than the first, however. This time he didn't forget his plate. It all happened around the New Year of 1967 - 68. Father Rapas had told Helge what to do when he came to the island Little Exuma. On New Year's Eve he went to the harbor and contacted an old negro called Joe, who owned a boat. There was also a girl by the name of Li. They started towards a small island, presumably called Wenenrgren Island, where they entered a mountain through an opening.

This was the base. Here Helge saw various kinds of entities: giants, hermaphrodites, and dwarfs. He was shown the evolution of Earth and its civilization in a three-dimensional picture. During this experience he collapsed three times and had to be revived by Rapas. Helge was also shown a collection of weapons from all ages. From this mountain center "The New Generation" organization would spring, according to Rapas. Here Helge was to enter some kind of school.

Although the Swedish group broke up, Tryggwe Glantz continued for a while to promote The New Generation. He was interviewed by the Swedish daily "Folket" and their article was published on June 1, 1968. Tryggwe claimed that they already had 600 members. The movement was referred to as a "world-wide peace movement in the spirit of Martin Luther King..originated by the West Indian peacemaker Rapaz". In the autumn of 1968 the organizations had plans for a great meeting where Harry Belafonte, Ralph Abernathy and Coretta King would appear. This meeting never took place. Rapas is referred to as a wealthy industrialist this time. During a trip around the world he saw so much misery that he decided to use his wealth for charity purposes, all claims according to the "Folket" article.

CIA Agent Killed by "The Brothers"

Since the building contractor now had withdrawn his economic support Helge had to rely on his contacts "from space". Obviously, this group had unlimited economic resources. One day a man from a car firm visited Helge and gave him a new car. He said it was paid for and was to be delivered to Helge.

Before the third trip to the Bahamas Helge contacted a friend who was to take care of the apartment, pay the rent and care for the flowers. The payment for this service would be sent from the Bahamas, to a special bank account. Helge paid in just five crowns on this account before he and his wife went.

On the very day that they went to the Bahamas someone paid 1,000 crowns on this account. Every week it increased by a few hundred crowns but the receipts never said who put the money there. No money ever arrived from the Bahamas.

When Helge and his wife returned they were very anxious as they thought they must owe their friend a lot of money. When their friend explained that there was always money on the account, they first thought he had given them himself but later realized that some of their UFO-connected contacts must have made payments.

On his further trips Helge only met one type of entity. They were thin, pointed features, deeply tanned with a somewhat oriental look, long tapering fingers and dark eyes. They all seemed very perfect, not a blemish on their skin. Helge never saw the people from the initial contacts in Sweden, the bull-necked ones with pointed ears. On the third trip Helge's wife saw the entities for the first time and she fell on her knees thinking they were the angels of God.

In the Bahamas Helge also met others of their earthly contacts. There was a Russian and one American negro, named Loftin, with whom he made good friends. One day Little Exuma was swarming with CIA agents. Loftin had informed the CIA of the base. Later Loftin was found dead with a bullet hole in his head. He had been killed for treason.

Since the CIA now knew of the Bahamas base it was moved to a place outside Mexico City. From then on Helge boarded the plane for Mexico City instead of Nassau. In this way the contacts are still going on as far as I have been informed.

They Have no Feelings

People who have been in touch with Helge through the years naturally ask him why he doesn't stop working for these entities. His answer is that he cannot, or he will go the same way as Loftin did. There is a way in but no way out.

In August 1976 a friend of mine talked to Helge on the phone. He then said: "What I have gotten into is negative, you become very isolated. I warn you from going deeper into this." During the first few years, in the 60s, Helge thought he owed them some help in return for their healing of him. Later he said: "You don't know what kind of a hell I'm into." In case he couldn't take it any more he had a pill that he carried around.

Helge got very little information from the aliens. If he asked something they would return the next day after consulting with their overlords. Still, Helge's Russian friend said that Helge seemed to know more about them than he had found out after working for them for twenty years. They seemed totally without feelings; death and torture didn't disturb them the least. In some ways, though, they seemed stupid, not even telepathic according to Helge. They claimed they came from another planet and were here to prevent a Third World War, but Helge thought differently.

One of my informants saw several photographs taken by Helge in the Bahamas. The entities couldn't be photographed, though, instead there was a lighted square where one of them had been. Helge remembers one episode when he sat on a bench, talking to one of them. Suddenly a stranger walks by and Helge felt very embarrassed as it appeared as though he was talking to himself. These people had the ability to disappear into thin air.

A peculiar feature was that they never slept or ate, but they did drink. Also, Helge never met any women among them. While in the Bahamas he was allowed to use their cars. He drove an old type, but seemingly brand-new, black Cadillac. The strange thing was that it couldn't be crashed. It had a sort of magical eye that steered it. When you learned the trick it was very easy to drive, Helge claimed.

Passport to Paranoia

What we have here are the typical and infamous men in black. They are identical to the ones described by other UFOlogists. Sometimes as I look through my file on this case I get a feeling of unreality, like reading a science fiction novel. But I have no reason to doubt my informants. I have deliberately withheld some events, names and places as they are good check-points in other cases of this kind or if more information of this particular case should turn up.

What puzzles me in this case is that there is no mentioning of lost time, hypnosis or the like. In most MIB-encounters there is some form of mind-tampering. What we do find here, though, are mythic elements, like the visit to the mountain retreat. Perhaps this was mentally induced?

This case has naturally resulted in much heated controversy and speculation. Where do they come from? What do they want? Another Swedish contactee who had a plate similar to Helge's claimed that this group were a form of Mafia. They sell themselves to the highest bidder. The only way to get away from them is to pay more. The ordinary earth Mafia pay them money. This devil theory was confirmed by a psychometric medium who held the plate mentioned. From this sitting she got such a shock that she lost consciousness for a while.

The UFO-mafia connection has been mentioned by other UFOlogists and contactees. Woodrow Derenberger, the American contactee, who was visited by the MIB referred to them as the Mafia (6). While we are on to paranoia theories I also like to mention Richard Shaver, who claimed that the largest group of cave dwellers were the "gangster groups" who are "in active and frequent contact with both criminals and corrupt politicians on the surface (7)".

Whoever these people are they are working on a global basis. They look almost exactly alike as reports from all over the world confirm. John Keel was deeply involved in several MIB cases during the 1960s. In the "Eighth Tower" he writes (8): "On a number of occasions I actually saw the phantom Cadillacs as advertised, complete with sinister-looking oriental-like passengers in black suits. On Long Island, following the directions given me in an anonymous phone call, I pursued one of these cars down a dead-end road where it seemingly vanished into thin air..."

If the intelligence organizations of the world are aware of these things, as is indicated by my Helge file, then they are probably trying to deal with it on their own level with maximum security and no publicity. As UFOlogists there is very little we can do except carefully document the claimed facts as they come our way.

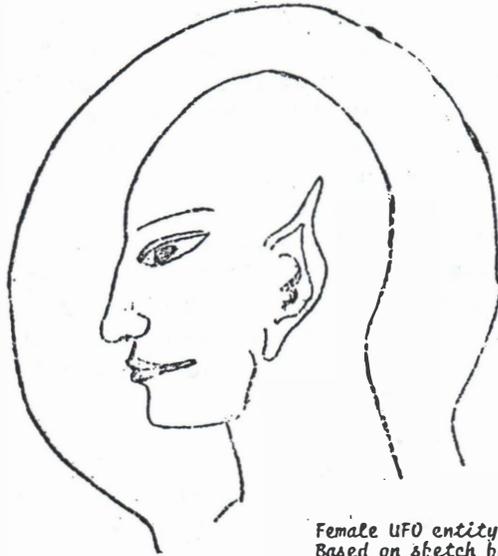

There is no reason to believe that these entities are extraterrestrial. They move among us without any apparatus and have obviously been here for a long time. There are MIB reports from as far back as the 19th Century. My personal speculation is that these entities somehow belong to this earth but are of a different evolution. In Theosophical literature there are frequent mentions of two other physical evolutions sharing this earth with us. They are possibly neither good nor evil but can be "used" by those who know how. Perhaps John Keel is right when he concludes: "We have not been viewing the masters, only the slaves." (9)

MORE FAIRIES AND THE UFO CONNECTION

By Joy Barish
Sharon, Massachusetts

In Poltergeist (Study In Destructive Haunting) by Colin Wilson, one reads, "In August (18th) 1977, Stephen Jenkins and his wife in a spot near Borley Rectory saw four "men" in black (shades of the MIBs) (black hoods and cloaked) carrying what appeared to be a black old fashioned coffin ornately trimmed with silver"!!

You might think - oh this is too much but in 1901 - 66 years before similar figures were seen around Edenberry, Ireland by a Mr. Gowran, a friend of Dermot McManus (author of the Middle Kingdom) in the Clonmillian Shee (fairy) area. A group of dark figures (like the 1977 case) standing in a circle about 10 feet in diameter. They had no capes or shawl like top hats (see Sketch A) like the first group but all in black standing around a coffin-like-box but in this case - on top of the box or coffin were a pair of old Irish bagpipes (drones). One wonders if they were silver? Anyway, the coincidence here 66 years apart is pretty amazing I think and too close to MIBS we read about re. UFOs to be set aside. In both cases 66 years apart in two different countries, both groups had on black capes or shawls hanging from their heads (See figure A)!

In the 1977 case the MIBs had skull like faces (See A). In the first case the "shawls were draped around the top hats of the men". (again see A) In the Irish case they hung down to the ground.

In "Strange" magazine, November 88, there is an article by Ken Meaux, "High Strangeness Weirddness Encounter". I read of a 10 year old girl who observed three strange figures gliding down the street of an unnamed town in a sort of "Charlie Chaplin" like unison.

The child ran for her father who alone heard a loud snapping noise which was quite distracting. He then went to call his brother who lived down the street and when he came out on his porch he observed nothing.

This reminds me a of a possible fairy sighting (human sized) I had in Ireland near Limerick in May 1984 on an ordinary highway. I saw a tall female figure all red dressed in a tutu. My husband, driving a small rental car, saw nothing. He says he saw a man crossing the street but I didn't see this at all. The figure I saw raised its arms, twirled and danced a bit and instantaneously dematerialized in the middle of the highway. I got amnesia immediately and could only for a bit recall it standing by the hedge row.

In the 1977 case experienced by Stephen J. and his wife near Borley Rectory - this occurred near a hedgerow. Stephen and his wife were in the act of turning left into the hedge.

I've read of the trolls in Sweden - tall thin men dressed in black. Trolls and other types were known to ask ridiculous nonsensical questions to humans with sometimes rather diabolical results if the human couldn't give the right answer. Again we think of the MIBs in Brad Steiger's books and John Keels asking nonsensical questions.

Now what the absolute identity is of these MIBs are no one really knows. A lot of speculation but no one really knows if they are actually connected with the UFOs (I would opt for this.) or CIA agents. I think both have been associated with high strangeness UFO cases. I had a penfriend once years ago - a young man in Long Island who told me of an intense observation of himself which took place on a Long Island train years ago with a man all in black just staring at him. He had appeared out of nowhere and when the young man turned to look at him again he was gone.

Dermot McManus who wrote this amazing Middle Kingdom. I have attempted in years past to get to the "Lis Ard" Mound in County May, re. fairies. The Lis Ard is pictured (near) his grandfather's big house (mansion to us) in this area about 30 - 40 miles from Galway. In a rainstorm there my husband and I absolutely could not find this exactly, in spite of more or less direct directions from the village where we had stopped for lunch.

I certainly never expected a year later to find a fairy on a highway near Limerick but it's all true or I wouldn't be putting it down in this article.

The Lis Ard incident had to do with a servant girl of his aunt who lived in his grandfather's mansion who had tried to get back to visit her family in 1935 and didn't quite make it due to the Lis Ard Mound.

Dermot McManus felt that the bagpipes were to commemorate passing of a great piper. The fairy host he called them - these tall thin men in black - but now, in a day when the word fairy evokes only giggles and maybe compassion for our sanity at best we find the same tall thin men in black.

In "The First Proceedings of the International UFO Congress" there was a case in May 1967 of a strange caller to a Mrs. Ralph Butler of Owatonna, Minnesota who identified himself as an Air Force Officer. He had on too new clothes (too slick she thought). We keep reading about this, don't we? He was 5'9" which is certainly tall and had a kind of olive complexion and pitted face. The latter characteristic especially shows a member of the fairy kingdom (pitted face).

In another case (page 285) of said book there was a 300 pound pasty faced "MIB" who called on a suburban New Jersey family after they had seen a UFO like Mrs. Butler above, who spoke in a singsong voice like a recording!

I have read many descriptions of fairies who sound like this. In Fairies at Work and Play by Geoffrey Hodsden, is a sound and sight he had of undines, a water type of fairy by the side of Dab Ghyll (Wales?) Thirlmere which sounded to him like singing in a highpitched, but full toned voice, which reached him as a series of broad vowel sounds generally on the ascending scale and ending incredibly high.

In a queer, very lucid dream I experienced years ago, I heard a terrible chanting and ducked down almost under a couch in my Mother's house in New Bedford, Massachusetts about 60 miles from Sharon. This terrible chanting seemed to come from across the street from a house of the neighbors which was identical to my parents house on Clinton St. It was a terrifying sound and more like chanting. It is a bit close to sing song, like a speeded up phonograph record. I am pretty sure that it forecast my mother's death a few years later. It is described for fairies and UFO entities.

Getting back to MIBs in "Mothman Prophecy" by John Keel on page 91, by a public relations officer he knew well, Don Estrelle who once told him of being followed by a strange slight figure in a black coat and black trousers. His face was dark and foreign looking.

News woman Mary Hyre was once approached by a woman she calls "Mrs. Bryant" (also in Mothman Prophecy), who told of normal sized - normal looking, but dark or heavily tanned men who came out of a flying machine coming back from work one night in West Virginia during the Mothman period of the 60s. She was terrified by something like a camera flash gun going off and a sort of "flying machine."

There are all sorts of boxes like the "coffin" mentioned at the beginning of this article from the black boxes regularly seen on UFOs (communications devices?) to a box seen by a 10 year old boy near Exeter, New Hampshire years ago in "Interplanetary Visitors", with silver chaff or something that looked like it hanging from the antenna in the woods.

A woman, Daphne Payne, in 1935 saw a box. It was whitish, floating in the corner of her inlaws farm yard where she was temporarily staying with her husband at that time in Missouri. (Fate, Nov. 1971) A week later a barguest or "bogey beast" as described in Katherine Briggs enormous Fairy Encyclopedia, appeared outside the back kitchen door all white and wooly with glowing eyes.

Now this is a different type of creature (called "'Devil" by the fundamentalist churches) but a box, so I included it here. They are probably all formless and can appear in any shape they wish which relates strongly to the UFO phenomena also.

In Middle Kingdom two women in the 1950s saw something like a kitchen clock on a gate in a rural area of Ireland where they had just seen a small man. "A fairy, let's get out of here!" one said.

I feel the UFO question (solution?) is still in a pretty primitive state. Most people haven't read "Omens of Awareness" or "UFOs an Initiated Account". I think these and similar books are ingested more by amateur investigators such as myself and the "pros" (which is more important!). I begged Budd Hopkins to read "Omens of Awareness" at a MUFON conference at Beverly Hills, MA years ago. He said he had heard of it but from his writings, appearances on TV I doubt that he's read it. When investigators do, hopefully, all this will fall into place.

UFOs themselves are probably the outer auras of a vast hierarchy of entities from other dimensions or angels and their vast armies of devas.

It's interesting that in "Fairies at Work and Play" lake spirits were seen forming something that looked like a large glass bowl. It even had radial divisions in it extremely thin and glittering.

In another incident Hodsen observed certain "lake spirits" forming a balloon like encasement of enormous and varying proportions at Wythurn in June 1922. A number of bright golden lights in the middle at various levels were these nature - lake spirits.

MIBs are a totally different category (non CIA or FBIs) of deva or fairy but they are part of the whole picture and can't be disregarded. As the tall blond entities bring joy, hope, light "they" question us nonsensically and send us on foolish errands, etc. - anything to bring down the light; prolong their own existence (avoid reincarnation) is Michael Topper's idea in "UFOs an Initiated Account," but how valid this latter idea is I don't know.

Certainly there's the imitation factor in the pure fairy cases first discussed by S. Jenkins and then Mr. Gowan who by the way had childhood companions with him near the "Clonmillan Shee" in Ireland in 1901. (Hill of the Fairies)

G. Hodsen observed a brownie in the twenties I think in England imitating his boots, night cap, carrying buckets of water as it apparently had seen Mr. Hodsen do. This is rather mundane compared to "celebrating a funeral" re the Irish and English cases spaced 66 years apart but it all fits together I'm sure.

Fairies have been seen in Ireland having fairs, playing at "hurling" as they have probably observed the Irish villager's sport. And wasn't it the poet "Blake" who saw a fairy funeral. The entities were as big as grasshoppers. I think in that case they were carrying a box.

We have to go beyond the MIBS again to a land that lies far beyond. It is described in Carlos Castaneda books, and realize that the solution is beyond fairies. It involves entering that "land" (astral and beyond) in our physical bodies.

Just be wary; it might be a fairy when you meet a MIB, hopefully, not carrying a "coffin."

I think one would prefer the ridiculous questions as the Swedish people experienced all the time with the trolls in the 17th and 18th Century in Sweden's mountainous areas. We can't pick our confrontation with them good or evil - have to keep studying, researching in this area and ignoring crashed bodies at Roswell -- this will get us nowhere.
