John Foster says he was devastated by his encounters and abductions by UFOs (unidentified flying objects). He is photographed here through a screen that is used to enlarge the video images for the audience at the UFO open house at Camp Long yesterday.

UFO experiences hit common chord

Support groups can lend an ear

by Carol M. Ostrom
Times staff reporter

Imagine this: You're an average, middle-aged engineer and builder, a father, husband and resident of a traditional-values town in Nebraska. Over a short period of time, you come to realize you've spent the last five decades of your life being intermittently abducted and studied by aliens.

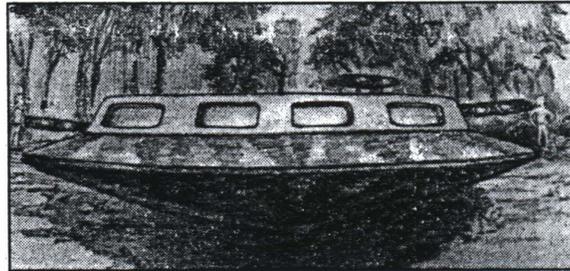

Quick — what do you say to your wife? And if you're the wife, what do you reply?

John Foster doesn't remember what he said exactly. His wife remembers a little more. "I laid in bed and said, 'Oh yeah?'" she recalls.

Foster does remember the fear he experienced when the memories began to pound a crack in the mental wall he believes aliens erected to prevent him from remembering.

Slowly, he says, he remembered thousands of encounters, and even the size and shapes of the ships or enclosures into which he was taken. He remembered an examining table, an alien with a wig ("To make you more at ease," she told him) and conversations with extraterrestrials who called themselves the "monitors of the Earth."

The emerging memories shattered him. "I was completely devastated," he remembers. "I had to change my concept of what reality was."

Foster's drawing of the UFO in which he says he was a passenger.

Coming out isn't easy for those who have spent years in the UFO closet, and Foster, now 53, says he's deeply grateful for the support he finally found in groups such as Seattle's UFO Contact Center International.

At an open house yesterday at West Seattle's Camp Long, the UFO Contact Center's director and founder, Aileen Bringle, said her group acts primarily to help people "examine and assimilate their traumatic abduction experiences."

That might include hypnosis or group support, said Bringle, who started the group after what she believes was an other-world encounter in 1953, when she awoke from a nap in a car being driven by her husband to find the nighttime Oregon landscape fully illuminated by bright green lights.

Now there are 17 centers around the U.S., and the local group holds two meetings every month — one open to the public. (For more information, call 946-2248.)

Wearing a silver mylar top and UFO earrings, Bringle isn't shy about her work. She explained that she has become a hypnotist, working with those who have had "abduction experiences" to help them recall — the first step to assimilating.

"They get depressed. It's a whole change of life, a change in the way you see everything," she said.

After John Foster began remembering his experiences, he looked for others who had had similar encounters, he remembers. "I couldn't find anybody. I almost went crazy," he says.

"For over a year, I thought I was the only one in the universe who had this knowledge."

His wife, Annie, believed him but couldn't really offer much, she says. "Even as much as I care about John, I couldn't really understand. I could support and empathize, but I couldn't really understand it," she says.

Finally, he found a group similar to Seattle's UFO Center in Nebraska, which brought him together with a number of others who believed they'd had encounters with aliens. It was an incredible relief, he recalled, to be able to share and compare his experiences with others.

Yesterday, Foster talked to a group of about a dozen who gathered at Camp Long and showed the skillful pencil drawings he made of his experiences, including renderings of spaceships and long-limbed aliens.

His thousands of visits with these aliens, he said, included ceremonial events similar to initiations, and a "time travel" visit to a huge project to come, a swath of learning and healing centers, orphanages and nursing homes from the Mississippi River to Jackson Hole, Wyo. He will have a role in that project, he believes.

Foster has finally gotten comfortable talking about the encounters, he said. The first time he discussed them, about three years ago, he remembers feeling traumatized. Right afterward, he had a heart attack, which he said the aliens predicted.

These days, Annie Foster said, their lives are settling down. "At first, our lives were obsessed. It creates quite a strain in a family," she said. "As time goes on, it's getting better. It doesn't consume our lives — we can actually do other things."

He's not sure what the UFO encounters mean, but John Foster's sure what he'd say to others: If you've had an experience, he says, "Get help as soon as possible, because it's really devastating."

Dear Aileen,

After some-several meetings of the repras of the various participants in the plan being conducted on this world (which is, simplanation, to introduce your race to its larger family) we have concluded to establishate in a more marked manner.

While there are still many who are not readyceptive to our pres-ence, we wish to upspeed our factuality to those who are. It is, however, our designed intention to allow some continuance of the speculation and uncertainty that has been a char'istic of our gradual-ation thus far. While some have wondered as to this methique, it is many-ways advisable overstead forcing a radchangerous realityzation on the population. It has been my experience (and I am several times older than the oldest among you) that our 50 year plan, with its unfolding progresstages, is psych'ally better for the people as they come to terms with the newception.

There is also the matter of the stability of your stockmarkets, banks, gov'ments, socialtutions, andcetra. These are highly valuable assets and, mostpart, will continue as such; their wellbeing is high among our propercern. We sofore calculplan an inchrement toward the eventualbe, which we envision as a friendly massceptance.

As a means to this end, we have decided to contacticate a portion of those who are of the open mind to us, proving our verifacity with such things as the pre-telling of dates for "sightings" activity. This will elicit the requisite credibility among the subject-focused, and allow the next level of communication to commence with earnest. Also, it is our planalysis, this foretelling "on the record" should lead to a ripple of attention in your mediastablishment, further broadbasing belief.

The first set of these dates is hereby set as August 8, September 1 and September 9 of this calendar. Look to the skies and accept in your hearts that the Peoples are as one. Do not be dissuaded by the stories that you hear of abuses by some portions of the arriveteam. Abuses there have been some, but more of misunderstandings. Much of what looks to be abusive is merely an emergency genetics program which is being conducted to save not only another species, but is as well insuring the continuation of your geneterial -- as a contingency to cataclysm. You none of you realize how close and how often (and how still brinking) you as a race of husapiens have come to disaster: nuclear war, ecovironmental ruin (forsample, if the ozone layer gets much worse, you have sterility) that meteor we had to deflect a few years ago, and otherings not-to-mention.

Aileen, I suggest that you make some authorization of this letter (notarize, etc.) and give it to someone of trust in the radio business, or such, then make certain to issue it before the said time.

There are reasons for the wordism I am herein of usage, some to do with what we can compromisingly stupe to while maintaining effectism. Alsowhich, besides being sslow to us, it has become hackneyed and dessicated by modern times misuse (commercial purveyment, politicism, etc.) and nearly bereft of natural impact. Also-add, in the times to come, you will easily know of whom you receive comq, for reason alone of the languistic style. This will protect you from joaxers.

Until I reach you again
Peace and protection

ABOUT TRO'S LETTER

By Phyllis Duran

A plan to introduce our race to its larger family in a more marked manner was presented in his/her(?) letter received by The UFO Contact Center International. It was signed "peace and protection" by "Tro", and postmarked in St. Petersburg, Florida on June 5. The small group of UFOCCI Board Members who looked the letter over after Aileen received it agreed on the high probability of its veracity. A number of factors were considered in discussion of the letter, but the word design used by Tro was key to the overall agreement on the letter.

More than showing Tro's keen understanding of our language, linguistics is a recurring theme in a large number of contactee cases, both directly or indirectly in the contacts. Billy Meier was told by Semjase that we had lost meanings in our language and with them knowledge for evolvement; Dick Miller was told that language brings one to the door of another dimension; the Mitchell sisters were told that language had been confused to inhibit the flow of certain information; Adamski was told that as we develop new methods, new language will be developed as well. Language is crucial to consciousness by patterning perception, comprehension, and development. A net of consciousness is created literally through language.

Probably the most crucial factor in "massceptance" sought in Tro's letter is racial identity. We have managed to topple "Stability of your stockmarkets, banks, gov'ments, socialtutions, andcetra" all by ourselves without any help from "out there". The S&L bail-out now followed by an all-out bank crisis could be the straw that breaks the back of that stability, especially considering that the Republican administration teeters on prolonged cover-up. The only question regarding economic stability at this point is how long before the dust settles. So that's really a moot point, although it is reassuring that Tro considered this element of well being. Right about now definition of the problem with banks as little guys from far, far away, maybe Mars, would serve Bush well. Alas, the problems with "stockmarkets, banks, gov'ments, socialtutions, andcetra" are much closer to home and getting closer.

"An emergency genetics program which is being conducted to save not only another species, but is as well ensuring the continuation of your geneterial" moves close to the issues massceptance is likely to raise, implicit to the purpose of the program, "to introduce your race to its larger family". This is juicy stuff, lying at the heart of who we are and why, the identity and beingness that can move universes.

Not very long ago, efforts to ban the public teaching of Darwinian evolution as opposed to the spontaneous creation of Genesis were carried to the highest court of the most powerful country on the planet. The argument still rages, and we still don't know where we came from, when, or how. There is presently a case before the high court to determine first amendment rights where an individual burned a cross in his yard to discourage a mixed-race couple from moving into his neighborhood. This couple of mixed race likely shared the same language and cultural and national backgrounds. They likely shared perceptions, beliefs, and desires. Yet the common ground of human relationship was subjugated to the colors of their bodies and handled by torching wood in a yard then battled to a high court.

Tro wrote about another species; our race and its larger family, and geneterial. The probability of this letter being exactly what it claims to be is so high in my estimation, that I am going to assume at this point that it is precisely that. As such, then each word and statement was chosen for precision to mean exactly what it says. The first clue to any mystery is always on the first page. In this case, it is in the first sentence: "to introduce your race to its larger family". It rings of the Galactic Confederation, who has conducted many projects for many different purposes with many names, of which The Confederation, Confederation of Planets, Solar Cross and Ashtar are just a few. In the 1950s this Confederation claimed to be original colonizers on earth and to have initiated renewed genetic upstepping in the mid-1800s, in the generation of our grandparents, and great-grandparents. It shadows the dismay of The Watchers with Betty Andreasson Luca that they did not understand the protest of humans at the use of genetic material, which was, after all, its purpose.

If this proves to be the case, my heart goes out to those who have not accepted their neighbors as equal in the life of the One Creation, found in awareness of spirit. That will be the only calling card of friend or foe in a community of species and races of a larger family.

DEAR AILEEN

Dear Aileen:

During a hypnosis regression, an abductee went into the "void" and started to channel from her higher self. This is an answer to one of a number of questions we asked the abductee during this state. She wishes to remain anonymous but gave permission to send it to you for possible publication in the Missing Link. The enclosed is a verbatim copy of questions and response.

I'm really concentrating on the Boise Community Ed talks and am sure I'll find someone there for another Center. The talks will be on a positive approach to the alien situation - there is too much negativity out there regarding it.

Love, peace and light, Jeannie Reimer, Associate Director, Ontario, Oregon.

Q. That brings up a point I've been interested in. Are the alien reptilians The Reptilian race. I have had two viewpoints on them, and my first viewpoint is changing to the viewpoint now that they are not to be feared; like some of the rumors that are going around that they are here to overtake the earth. Could you give us some enlightenment on that?

A. It is that as you are vibrating, your vibrations go out like a radio beacon. Your vibrations are like a pattern that will call forth to you what has been made ready or what you have prepared yourself for. It keeps you in a pattern of life or on your pattern. And the same with the Reptilians - there are lows and many, many different ones that are on different pattern levels. There are higher pattern levels of the same species and lower pattern levels of the species. Those who put out a pattern level to call in the lower ones, so to speak (though we don't like the word higher or lower, we are trying to use this to convey knowledge because it is very difficult with language to convey knowledge without putting everyone in their "class" so to speak). Those that put out the lower order frequency get back what the lower order frequency would expect and therefore this is what they get.

Those who put out a higher order pattern frequency, even of the same species will get (we hate to use the word deserve - it is a harsh word, it sounds like punishment) but they will get that which they have programmed themselves for. The lizard people as you call them, many of them are masters, many of them are what one would call a high god. Many of them are absolutely divine. They can change their pattern, they can change their body structure, and often they will come to you in a body they have been in before as a test to you to see whether you are repulsed, to see where you are at. As they come as a grotesque form, it does not mean they are evil; they pick up the brain waves you put out to see where you are at that they would teach you, and if you respond in love always, then you have passed every test that can be put to you. And by responding, you actually change some of the lower frequency entities of the same order, so by responding in love to the higher frequency lizards you change the lower frequency ones, because you cannot beam it at one frequency without affecting either higher or lower frequency levels. Therefore, you are healing a whole unit of entities or helping to heal a whole unit of entities. That is often why people say "Why are there snakes?" If you can love a snake, love its looks, understand it and adore it, you affect people of your own species even though you have not had any connection in their attitude toward snakes. It works on both sides. By you loving something ugly it affects those on your level to love something ugly, and it affects the one or the ones you are loving that their level will have more love too. So it is a continuous circle. All are changed by love on all levels.

Dear Aileen:

Please forward this letter to the person who wrote requesting others to write on page 7 of May 1991 Missing Link.

I enjoyed the part on dreams in this issue and the article on TauCeti in the previous issue.

I found out from UFO Newscipping Service of cases in Michigan, October 1990 activity (this was one of those times when I had a night encounter).

Has anyone seen symbols like these?

Thank you, Lisa S _____

Dear Aileen:

Here is the two dollars for the magazine. I enjoyed it. It's worth two dollars.

I noticed that you also share a sentiment toward mankind and the earth.

I think in my opinion people who have met aliens or that have had an experience are in some way different than others as myself. I feel that they know I'm here but that they don't want to exchange. But as far as the other people I feel they were chosen.

I've had two or three experiences. One scared me terribly but if they are there it really doesn't bother me, yet I can't really claim for a fact that I really know what it means to truly say there is such a thing as extraterrestrials. It's not as if I think about it all the time.

I used to stare at the cosmos feeling that home was somewhere else.

TIMES: Stories of old times that were bold and lives in the present. Did we not know what happened? Could we not be tomorrow and the present of past situations. Can we know when it was that to reach the stars was only a question; not an answer. That to find life's dreams is but to start a reality?...Paul B _____

Dear Aileen:

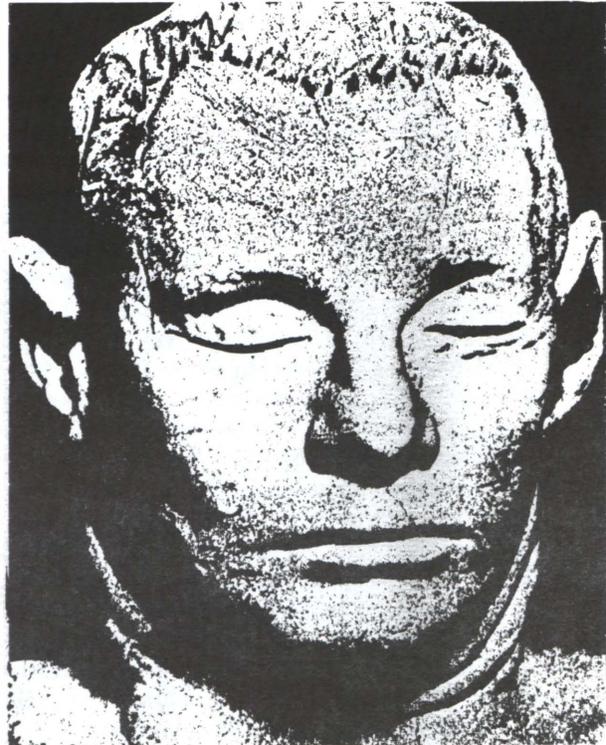

We of DELMARVA UFO CONTACT CENTER INTERNATIONAL believe the November 20, 1990 issue of Weekly World News is accurate as far as the story about the space alien is concerned. However, it is our opinion that the picture was faked by a professional make-up artist even though that is how this particular space alien appears realistically. Do not be afraid. This is a good space alien. Please contact us first, if you think you have seen this space alien. NO PRANKSTERS PLEASE!! UFOs are serious business with us and we are experienced UFO investigators. Improper handling of this matter could bring much harm to you and your family beyond our control. Your cooperation is very much appreciated by the DELMARVA UFO CONTACT CENTER. Thank you!

The enclosed picture was sent to us after reading the article about the Tau Ceti connection. Particularly interesting is the fact that the person that sent this to us never knew where her "father" was from. For years she has researched and has never found the answer. She only has this picture of her father. His background was very mysterious - no living relatives. When she saw "Hank's" picture she started to weep. She felt that there was a relationship to her father. For your consideration she has sent his picture to be placed side by side with Hanks'. If anyone recognizes this person let us know and we will pass it on.

COSMIC THOUGHTS

By Bob Anthony

There are those who believe that with the expansion of life and experience, birth is given to knowledge and awareness. On the same wavelength as this thought, it becomes easy to envision how the third dimension burst into existence, when our expanding awareness surpassed the limitations of our second dimensional reality.

The "Big Bang" theory, in all its glory, does a lot to inspire the idea of what it might have been like when the universe was formed. The one crucial thing it neglects to reveal is what has been going on since then. There have been entire galaxies born; live long flourishing lives, then dies into that dormant state where life, some say, does not exist. The beings that lived there long since forgotten. Of course there are those whose memories we still carry with us.

Then there are those in existence today. Their numbers have been counted by a great many who care to count them. These figures vary from world to world, but the one thing to be sure of is the number is always staggering. For a great many people on Earth these places are simply unreachable (sometimes even a myth). There are a few of course, who do not think so. For all intensive purposes here, we are going to deal with the latter. There are galaxies in the universe whose worlds are united. Dynasties of wealth and peace. The knowledge they have attained, a hard earned victory. Sharing all they have with those they encounter on their explorations in hopes of making the union stronger. There are times when the sharing is not desired, in which case the cultures are left to do as they will. Now for our purposes here, we must narrow our focus down once again.

The history of the Milky Way galaxy was in full swing when the first observations of time were being noted by the primitives on Earth. The Milky Way galaxy is not a united galaxy, with its systems on a wide range of experience levels. From those who only believe in their own existence, to worlds who have many diplomatic relations with other worlds, to beings who are not indigenous to this galaxy.

Earth - Third planet in orbit around a medium yellow star which many of the natives refer to as The Sun. It is the only planet in the system currently capable of naturally supporting indigenous life forms. Earth stage of development, just past the "Denial Stage". Most inhabitants understand there is life in the cosmos, but know very little about the identities of just who is out there. Earth is currently being visited by those who represent over one quarter of the galaxies indigenous population and at least two groups who originally started out in the Andromeda galaxy. All have a variety of reasons for making contact with the intelligent life forms on the planet, and are unwilling to risk harm to the delicate balance of the planet. Earth is a veritable garden in space. It is a small planet containing large amounts of water, plant, and animal life forms. Located in a sparsely populated region of the galaxy. It is a prime location for replenishing supplies.

It's a shame so many of the natives don't realize the prized potential of their planet, and what it means to the galaxy. It is hoped that those who do understand will continue to share their light with those who do not. When the flame of one candle lights another it is easier to see the beauty all around.

'Mystery Circle' Found in Tunnel

Sets of concentric rings, similar to those found last summer in British wheat fields, have been discovered in a Japanese subway tunnel.

Subway officials are keeping the site a secret to prevent throngs of curious people from converging on the subway.

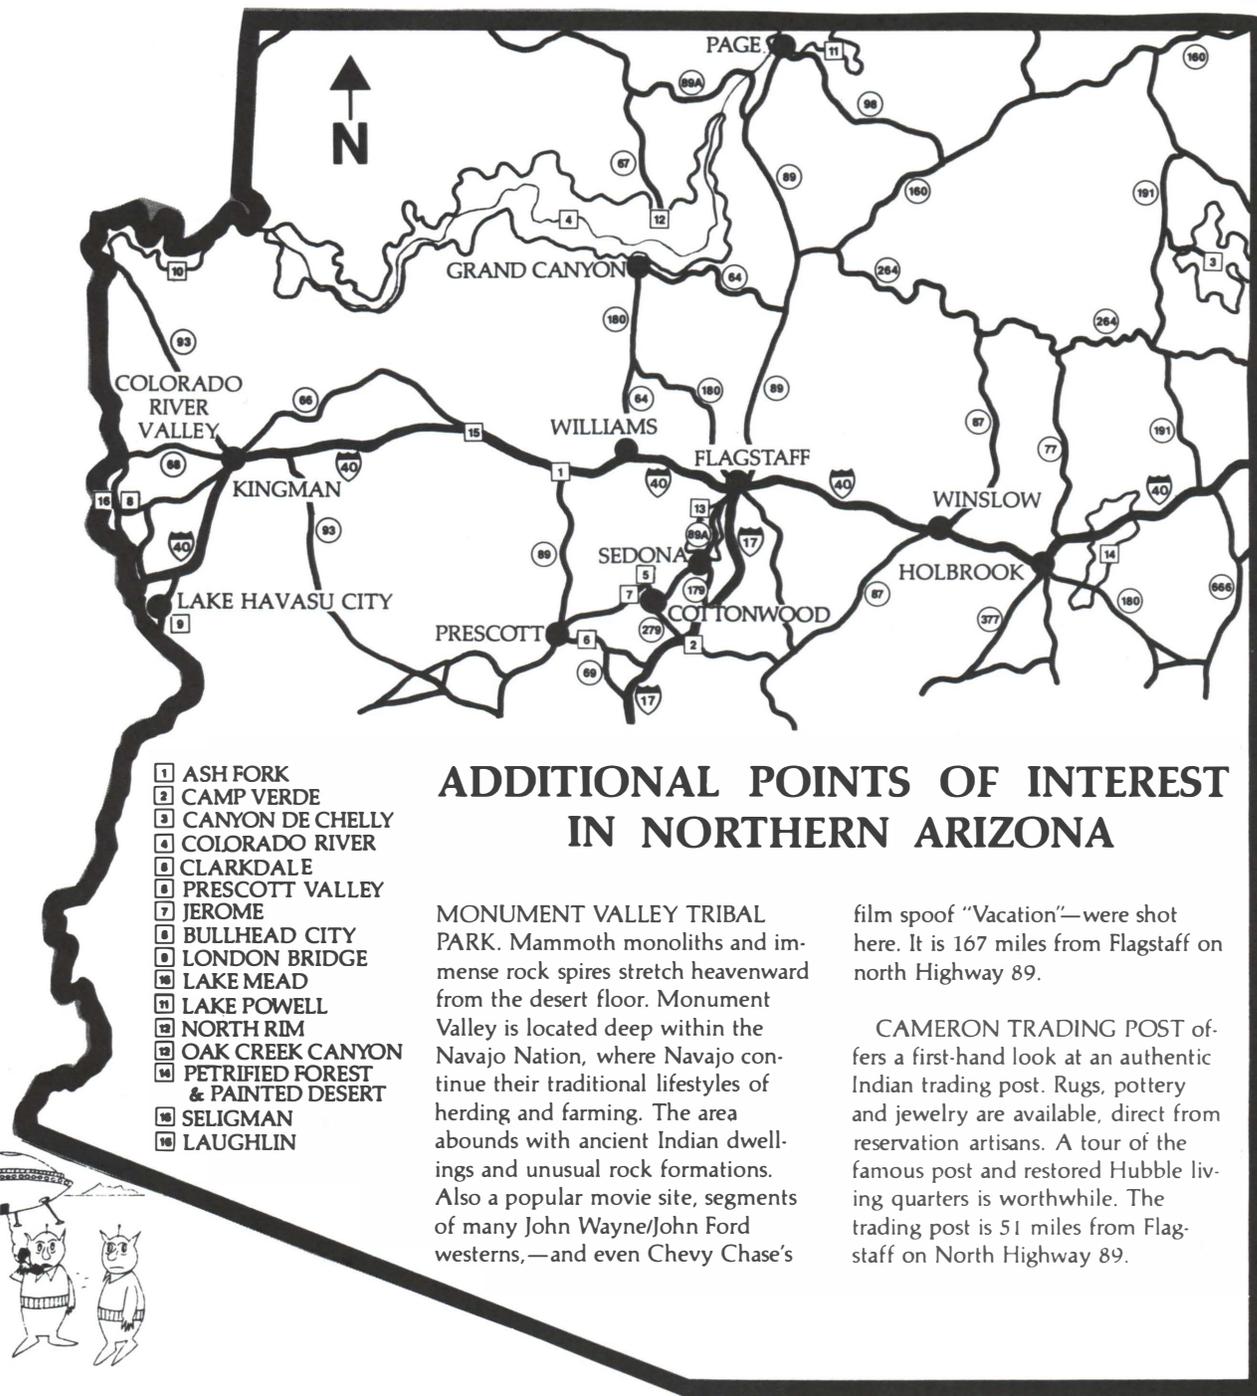

Many sets of concentric rings were found drawn in dust that accumulated on the ground and walls inside the tube. The metro version of the mystery circles are much smaller—up to 8 centimeters in diameter—than the British ones, the largest of which measures scores of meters.

"Plasma generated in the air is probably the cause in both cases," said Yoshihiko Otsuki, professor of physics at Waseda University, who found the subway rings. He is a renowned researcher of fireball phenomena often called "will-o'-the-wisp." Otsuki searched for the circles in the tunnel, saying subway tunnels create conditions similar to a plasma generator he uses for experiments.

Whirlpool caused electrical current in small pond, causing 2 swimmers to jump out of the water. This was witnessed by all participants at the 1983 Jorpah.

POINTS OF INTEREST

ADDITIONAL POINTS OF INTEREST IN NORTHERN ARIZONA

MONUMENT VALLEY TRIBAL PARK. Mammoth monoliths and immense rock spires stretch heavenward from the desert floor. Monument Valley is located deep within the Navajo Nation, where Navajo continue their traditional lifestyles of herding and farming. The area abounds with ancient Indian dwellings and unusual rock formations. Also a popular movie site, segments of many John Wayne/John Ford westerns,—and even Chevy Chase's film spoof "Vacation"—were shot here. It is 167 miles from Flagstaff on north Highway 89.

CAMERON TRADING POST offers a first-hand look at an authentic Indian trading post. Rugs, pottery and jewelry are available, direct from reservation artisans. A tour of the famous post and restored Hubble living quarters is worthwhile. The trading post is 51 miles from Flagstaff on North Highway 89.

THE NEAR DEATH EXPERIENCER AND THE UFO ABDUCTEE

By Vincent Luciani

I am from a segment of the population known as near death experiencers (NDEr)--those who once momentarily died and enjoyed a mystical encounter in the process.

My turn came in 1985 when I collapsed at my New Jersey home during a protracted illness, and awoke in the local hospital about an hour later where I hung around for a few days on life-support and monitoring devices.

The emergency ward had wall-to-wall consoles filled with flashing lights and displays, loads of toots and whistles. I mention this because when I finally regained consciousness, all this hi-tech stuff was the first thing I saw. At that instant, not a soul was in sight.

So what do you think entered Vincent's mind? Where am I? Or, what happened? Or, did I ~~kick~~ the bucket? No, not me. My very first reaction was, "Geez! I've been taken on board a UFO!" Typical, huh? And then a nurse came into view, totally destroying my fantasy when I realized I was in the hospital. Maybe it proves that some UFOers are born, not made; that maybe deep in the most distant reaches of my/our mind(s) something is trying to get out. I hope so.

In my vision, at the instant of collapse, I met with a spiritual figure with whom I reviewed my entire life in mere earth-equivalent seconds. (The total vision time was equivalent to about 15 earth minutes; yet, I am convinced it all transpired in the fractional second between when I suddenly keeled over backward and when I hit the floor.)

We discussed much between us, my Guide and I, and then I asked to be returned to life. (Most NDErs are told to go back.)

For reasons not pertinent to the moment, I shall only briefly mention that three years later, in 1988, I divorced from not only a marriage (already marginal) but also, from my entire life to date. And so I left New Jersey for good (which isn't hard to do if you are a kid from the hills of Pennsylvania). I set out to travel, and have been travelling ever since.

My UFO interests took a decided turn upward this March when the Gulf Breeze book almost literally fell into my hands while I was browsing in a South Carolina library. Soon, the UFO dreams were back but not those I used to have when as a kid I would wake up glowing from having flown to wonderfully strange places in wonderfully strange machines. Back then, I thought everybody had such dreams.

(Even spookier to my childhood, and as an aside which I'd rather you didn't tell anyone about, had to do with my being the son of Italian immigrants. We lived poor. Mom had only one knife in the house with which she cut everything, I mean everything--slice the homemade bread, the weekly chicken's neck, butter the toast, chop garlic cloves.. and there it was, for I was a disgrace as an Italian kid because I hated garlic, still am not keen on it. It made me throw up when Mom would hide a chunk of garlic in the salad or spaghetti. Walking into a closed house on a winter day when garlic was cooking made me run directly to the bathroom to throw up. Sigh. Worst of all, for three days after she chopped garlic, the toast was contaminated with garlic taste. Now, isn't this substantial evidence I must have been the child of an alien father? Or the milkman?)

Anyway, from South Carolina I headed out to Buena Vista, Colorado, where I met UFOer, Elly Fithian who gave me the name of UFOer Mildred Biesele in Salt Lake City, my next stop.

In Salt Lake, a few weeks later, Mildred referred me to Kaye Studstrup who was hosting a UFO gathering at her home that weekend, and would I like to give my NDE talk? You bet.

Over 30 keenly-oriented UFOers showed up in her living room, Saturday. Activities started off with each one giving their latest experiences and feelings on what was new with them, UFO-wise.

As one after another expressed themselves I began to feel the room fill with powerful energies. I simply had never been with people like this; I wasn't prepared for my own reactions. Actually, I began to feel weakened, and if I were to look for an answer I'd say it had something to do with the presence of kindred spirits. I don't yet know, for sure.

I recovered sufficiently to give my talk, however, which included my views that there is much in common between some abductees and some survivors. Also, I added my conviction that UFO research continues to be flawed by its omission or skimpy recognition of God's influence in all this.

Regarding the former, eminent UFO-oriented psychologist Dr. Leo Sprinkle had sent me a paper he'd written which, as I read, placed my sensors on red alert. Why? Well, as I later told him, were he to change all his references of "abductees" to "near-death survivors," I'd say he was talking about me.

On the latter, I will say that until fate brought me back into the UFO arenas I wasn't asking for any more new fields to plow. But now that I've been hurled into it all, I am asking: Will you UFOers please consider that aliens, from whichever universe, may be from the same God as are we? And that we might do well to reorient our involvements to factor the God Presence into the UFO equation? Or am I reinventing the wheel, is there already intensive discussion going on of which I simply am not aware?

After the Gulf Breeze chatter, I quit reading UFO books because they all seem to have the same hang-ups. As I told the G.B. author in a letter, and as I suggest to all would-be UFO book authors, if you want maximum credibility then publicly assign your advance and royalties to charity or to a non-profit UFO organization. And speak more of God.

While I am yet dreaming of impossible drams, I wish to quickly run through other UFO thoughts, any one of which could fill a lengthy article:

(1) Contact and voluntary boarding is my need; to help with the upcoming transition.

(2) Millions of us are likely to soon cross over. Not all, just millions and millions. But it doesn't have to be.

(3) Atlantis. Two years after my NDE I would still need be careful to avoid use of personal pronouns I, we, our, in talking Atlantis.

(4) Polaris. Dreams, again. Something a smaller star-sun in back of the big one, and 15 planets of which the 5th is life supportive. Does anyone share this awareness?

(5) Edgar Cayce, who often spoke of Atlantis, would admonish, "Mind is the builder." He knew. (UFOers who do not know of Cayce would do well to learn.)

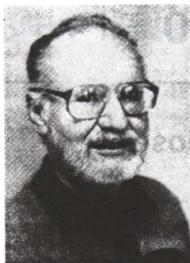

I like to make the point in my talks that we create our own realities, that perhaps we each have our own universe exclusively ours which is what some say the minds really is...our own universe.

Mind, when we ultimately do solve the UFO and the NDE equations, may turn out to be more a constant than a variable. We simple folk do not yet have the smarts or the dedication by which to figure it out. Someone once said, the mind is like a parachute - it functions best when kept open.

In covering 75,000 miles these past three years, you can believe I have enjoyed some scary situations from which the only comfort came from those 2,000-year old words, "Seek ye within..."

Do you know?

UFOS OVER HAWAII

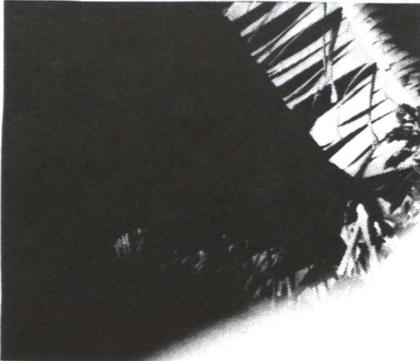

Fig. 10. Taken Dec. 16, 1990, this image did not appear on the negative.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Last month we published Part I of "UFOS Over Hawaii." This month we conclude the fascinating story of Angela (not her real name), who began to take pictures of UFOs, many of them invisible to her naked eye, in December 1989. Angela resides in Kaneohe, Hawaii, with her husband and their 10-year-old daughter. Until this time in her life, Angela knew nothing about photography. She uses a simple 35mm Fuji camera with ASA 1000 color film. Many of her shots are very colorful, so the few we have selected to print do not do them justice.

Angela has taken many photos like the one in Fig. 10. She calls them "energy forms" and this one went across the tree. "I do not see these," she says. "They are a surprise upon development." The last one she took was in August and there have not been any since. Photos taken in August, November and until December 16 yielded only pictures of white round lights, of which she has quite a few — "nothing sensational," adds Angela.

The column of light

On November 24th at 7:30 pm, Angela was outside watching UFOs land all over the mountain tops. She says, "They are bright multi-colored lights that slowly descend. My husband and daughter have witnessed [these] many times. That night I never saw so many — at least 30 by 11 pm." But after watching one lower at 7 pm, Angela was shocked to see a column of bright light come off the mountain top. Then it was gone and there was the UFO hanging in mid-air.

"It rose up and flew to another object, then headed in the direction of the moon, then over my house. I had no film and it happened so fast I doubt if I could have caught it. That was a first and certainly in all of this probably the most amazing thing of all to see. My husband had just left with [my daughter], so they missed it." Angela notes that it seems like a lot of things happen shortly after her family leaves, which is too bad because she likes to have them witness them with her. "What I wouldn't have given to get a picture of that column of white light with the object on top! That image was vivid in my mind for several days afterward."

Fig. 12. The flyover passing the house just seconds later.

On December 16, 1990, at 7:30 pm, Angela got the urge to go outside and look around. She noticed a very large and bright light over the Koolaus (mountains). She got her camera and took a few pictures. "I was looking around when directly overhead a 'star' started across the sky. I shouted to my family, 'Flyover! Flyover!' It was pretty high up, but somehow me and my little camera got some incredible shots."

Proof of etheric windows?

Fig. 14 shows a most interesting shot of an invisible but similar, small object. "Note how it is straight on the left side," says Angela. "That is how it is on the negative." She suspects the object may be emerging from something, possibly an etheric window or a dimensional doorway, or possibly another ship. The explanation is open to speculation.

Not pictured is an object that was invisible and small, in front of the tree beside Angela's house. She was standing right next to it. "No wonder I felt so much energy that night!" she adds. On the same roll of film she had nine pictures of UFOs — one new "flyover" and four of what she calls "spacial monitors." Her batting average this time was excellent considering she only gets one or two shots per roll. Most people would be ecstatic to get one picture!

On December 30, Angela's daughter, whom two psychics and a channeler said was a "star child" (and they didn't even know what that meant) had an interesting experience.

"I've always felt any picture I got was given to me because I can shoot and shoot and just get one or two per roll."

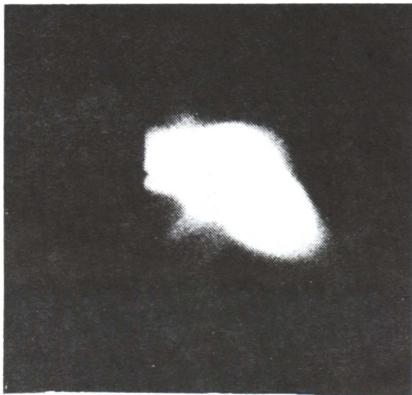

Fig. 14. Is object exiting through a dimensional doorway? Taken Dec. 16, 1990.

"She was at my in-laws', walking across the yard at about 9:30 pm," says Angela. "She said she felt something tap her on the head, then a jumpy feeling... vibrations, perhaps?... went from her crown to her feet, causing her feet to jiggle. She looked down at her feet and said there were three rings of white light in a circle around her." Angela's daughter took off running and the circles followed around her until she entered a room of the house. Just before going inside she looked up and noticed a bright light in the sky that "really twinkled" at her. Then it vanished. "She called me and was a little upset. For the next two days she went through all my books trying to find a picture similar to her own feeling."

Closer to God

While interviewing Angela for this article, she said to me, "Ann, I wish to state that as God is my witness everything I have told you is the truth. The pictures can speak for themselves." The past year has been amazing and wonderful for Angela and has left her deeply humbled by it all. She is now studying for her doctorate in metaphysics out of the University of Metaphysics in Los Angeles and she is teaching herself crystal healing.

"I became closer to God and my spiritual self because of 'my' UFOs," she says. "I had no interest in metaphysics, crystals or deep spirituality before this. Now I am a student of this and life. I owe it to 'them.' I am truly blessed."

It is important to bring attention to the fact that Angela had some trouble retrieving photos she lended out. She never got them back and learned a hard lesson as a result. It is extremely crucial to people with evidence such as photos or artifacts not to let these things out of your possession. I know it is an awful thing to say, but you cannot trust anyone these days. Quite frankly, it's hard at times to know who you can believe with all the talk of government disinformation propaganda and greedy persons who are out just to make a buck at the expense of those of us who are sincere and only want to know the truth.

Angela gives a lot of credit to the photo lab in Hawaii that has worked with her so personally. "They have always been most helpful and given me prompt service with my photos," she says. When she told them she was going to mention them in the article they naturally did not want their name mentioned or associated with UFOs. "The people sure have had some strange looks from my pictures this past year," says Angela. "They're really great, and a couple of doubters were completely converted!" One of the photo lab employees, in fact, had a sighting of her own last summer and got some pictures and her family saw it, too.

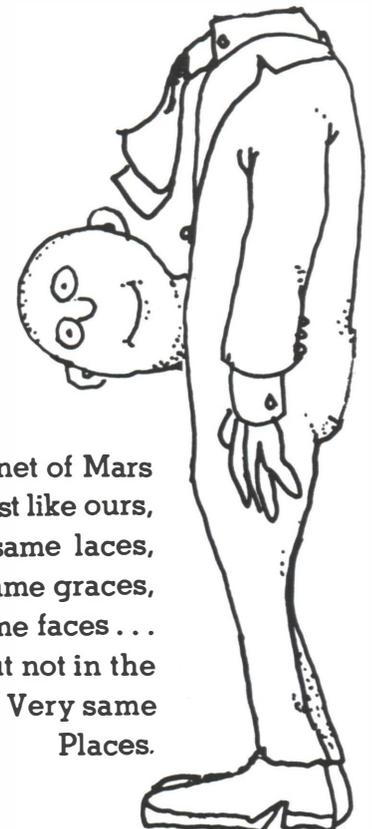

Angela feels compelled to write a book, which would include her photos.

The book, she says, is supposed to be about preparing society for the upcoming arrival of our space brothers and sisters, to warn of cataclysmic events concerning Earth changes, increasing people's spirituality, finding God, working with crystals, and how to survive in the future. The thing that will make Angela's book so different, of course, is the amount of photos she can display. She is also interested in including other people's experiences in the book. To correspond with Angela, please write to The Star Beacon. We will forward mail to her for you.

THE PLANET OF MARS

On the planet of Mars
They have clothes just like ours,
And they have the same shoes and same laces,
And they have the same charms and same graces,
And they have the same heads and same faces . . .
But not in the Places.

THE SCIENCE PAGE

Recently we attended the "First World UFO Congress" in Tucson. It was a wonderful conference full of enlightening experiences. Afterwards a most deleterious article appeared in the "Tucson Weekly", May 22, 1991. We were appalled when we read the article. Some UFOCCI directors wanted to file a "Class Action Suit" against the paper for slander. The article was written by a person belonging to the Tucson Skeptics organization. Because of that article we thought you might enjoy the following counterattack launched by Harv Howard, Associate Director, Manchaca, Texas against "The Skeptical Inquirer", Albuquerque, NM, Editor, Kendrick Frazier.

Dear Mr. Frazier:

I was browsing in the library this afternoon and chanced across your publication CSICOP Journal (Vol. 15, No. 3, Spring 1991). I found it to be very interesting and quite well done in its layout. I decided to offer some comments and information about what I read in the brief time I had available.

I regret to inform you that I am a UFO "time-loss" experiencer. So my point of view may bias my remarks just a little!

I believe one of your book reviewers made an unkind comment about cold fusion. As I recall, he lumped it together with the bag of beliefs -- and that's all they can be at this point -- about cold fusion are not necessarily those of CSICOP, they are indicative of the monstrous problem most open-minded people find with your organization: close-mindedness.

In recently reading through the December 1990 issue of Creativity, an in-house publication of IBM Corporation, I found the following quote:

"Cold fusion work continues. Technology Forecasts and Technology Surveys reports that, in spite of allegations that there is nothing to the observations, a number of labs continue to be intrigued by the unexplained parts of the phenomenon. They report that 50 U.S. labs and 100 labs in other countries are running tests, 60 groups in 10 countries have reported results, some of the groups have claimed observation of more than one of the three generally accepted requirements for nuclear fusion, and some tests have produced as much as 600 times more heat than would be accounted for by the input of electrical power. Technology Forecasts and Technology Surveys, Vol. 22, No. 9, p. 11."

I assume that some scientists and labs working in that area are not ready to throw in the towel. I suggest your people heed this approach unless they have done research themselves indicating otherwise. And even that would not make the process impossible.

And at some other point in the journal somebody was beating Whitley Strieber over the head with something he published in his novel Majestic. Since my experiences have been similar to Strieber's, I respect the man for speaking out about his experiences in two earlier books, but I have no intention of reading the novel. (I don't have time to read fiction when the real world is chuck full of mysteries and interesting phenomena.)

I don't recall exactly what Strieber did wrong in taking from the book An Account of a Meeting with Denizens of Another World, 1871. But it is trivial compared to the greater crime perpetrated by the author of that work. What I do remember is my outrage last summer when reading through a New Scientist magazine. I found a letter from the author chortling in public about how he had pulled a fast one on readers (buyers) of that book. His logic for the right to write the hoax seemed a bit absurd if not far-fetched. He seemed to be saying, since I don't believe in any of this stuff, but a lot of people do, it is okay for me to fashion a work of fiction which they will assume to be honest and true, and which will motivate them to buy the book.

Now that fellow probably believes he is a reputable writer. But in point of fact, he is a true fraud. The fact that he confessed the fraud several years after the fact takes nothing away from his crime. The fact that he is taking Strieber to task for using some of it is humorous.

If your organization is truly that which it claims, it would chastise that fellow severely because he created fiction and published it as a honest and true record. Isn't that what CISCOP is about, throwing the spotlight on such activities? Especially those people who intentionally sham the public? And while his work wasn't scientific, was he not attempting to input false information into the realm of science?

But the impression I got from his gloating confession letter and the fact that tone is carried over into your pages is indicative to me of his true nature and that of many of your members: they are arrogant know-it-alls out to put down anyone not buying into their mindsets and dogmas. They have made up their minds beforehand that such things cannot exist and therefore, nothing in that vein would be taken seriously for a second.

Throughout the journal, on page after page I found similar material to what I've pointed out. (Some other know-it-all was knocking ELF radiations for example--is he an expert?) Frankly, I had expected better. And this brings me to the main point for writing. I see your views reflecting the exact same attitude you detest out there in pseudoscienceland. Except many of them accept without question. You people reject without question.

I had fully expected that those people claiming to be scientists would follow the true dictates of the order, be above reproach, and be far from emotional. Unfortunately, none of those attributes is true from what I've seen in this one issue.

Don't assume that I profess to have all, most, or some of the answers to the UFO phenomena. I certainly do not. I know what seems to be going on, but that may be just an illusion being created. I am sorry to say that I am confident, however, that there are forces in this country with an agenda for discrediting UFO and psi work by any means possible. Above all else, that leads me to conclude that aspects of the government know a lot more about the phenomena than they let on, and a lot of scientific people in this country are making fools of themselves by parroting the government's position. (But maybe the pay is good.)

Alienated

To the Editor,

I would like to give a note of appreciation to Jordan Gruener for providing an excellent demonstration of the intellectual and ethical bankruptcy of both anti-ufology and sleaze journalism. His article (Tucson Weekly, May 22) certainly demonstrates the arguments against UFO reality are very weak. The notion that scientists do not consider UFOs worthy of study is pure fiction. It is concocted and repeated over and over again by adlebrained academics, babbling biochemists and nincompoo newsmen. These individuals form a small but vocal minority full of false platitudes, illogical reasoning, misinformation, disinformation and usually egotistical notions about their own knowledge and importance.

The vehement debunkers whose emotional antipathy toward the UFO subject is well known, such as Philip Klass and James McGaha, do not have a cogent anti-UFO argument among them.

Mr. Gruener made the conscious decision to select certain items and to focus on the more bizarre elements while totally ignoring the more mainstream speakers. These people represented several professional disciplines from a worldwide community of bona-fide researchers: Jun-Ichi Yaoi, a documentary producer for Nippon TV; three distinguished visitors from the Soviet Union—Dr. Marina Popovich, test pilot, member of the Soviet Cosmonaut corps and wife of Soviet Air Force Lt. Gen. Pavel Popovich, Dr. Viktor Kasprikin, exobiologist and member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, and Valery Uvaarov, a journalist from Leningrad; Linda Moulton Howe, Emmy-winning broadcast journalist and documentary filmmaker; and others.

Gruener's article makes a pretense of objective reporting; however, it is rife with personal opinions that pander to the cult of a priori attitudes and debunking. He expresses his opinions in an unfair, unbalanced and mean-spirited manner. In sum, he has lifted yellow journalism to the level of an art form.

Gruener and his protagonist McGaha presume to take the high moral ground by railing against "child molesters" (viz. Wendelle Stevens). This is a totally irrelevant item in regard to the primary subject matter of the article. Since Gruener/McGaha have brought up the matter of moral rectitude, however, it more than a little bit ironic to note that Prometheus Books, the de facto publishing arm of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal (with which both Klass and McGaha are affiliated) currently publishes such titles as The Breathless Orgasm, which describes the practice of strangulation during masturbation, Tranvestities, Whips and Kisses by Mistress Jacqueline, The X-Rated Videotape Guide and Raw Talent, the biography of Jerry Butler, the most popular male star in the adult film industry (Studs R Us?) People who fly in glass cockpits shouldn't throw stones.

Gruener prominently quotes McGaha as saying "these are people clearly out of touch with reality." This is merely a statement of personal opinion by an unqualified individual who is trying to pass off his opinions as if they were fact. Determination of whether an individual is in touch with reality is not done in off-the-cuff remarks with only USAF and not M.D. or Ph.D. in their names.

Some debunkers may be well-intentioned, but they are almost always ignorant of the significant scientific data indicating UFO reality. For example, Project Blue Book Special Report #14 and the studies done by the official French group GEPAN.

Gruener's article is vitriolic, vituperative invective. In sum, it must be judged as a puerile, jejune attempt at reportage.

The following translation was done by a member of PRO (now defunct), Renee' L. Duering of Daly City, California.

Wolfes in Schlegelstonehouse (a) mountain village, in olden days were responsible shepherders whose sheep were well taken care of (groomed) and carefully protected from aggressors by their robbing enemies, which twelve thousand years ago appeared the first man on earth, who had used a spaceship, light as his source of energy propelled his long journey here between starlike space, looking for the star which (is) inhabitable, (the) - (earth) planet which turns around in a circle and where the new race of understanding (and) humanity could reproduce itself and enjoy a lifelong happiness and peace without fear of aggression of other intelligent creatures of the in between starlike space, Senior.

Meaning:

Once upon a time, responsible shepherders, whose herds were well taken care of and protected against robbers, saw 12,000 years ago, the first man, who used a spaceship which used light as its energy source for this long journey between the stars in search for earth, which is a fine place to live on; the planet which turns around in a circle and where the new race of understanding people could reproduce itself; be happy during a lifetime and live in peace, without the fear to be attacked by other intelligent creatures from in between starlike spaces.

(In other words, this name was to perpetuate the history of where the family name originated from. In this way the history would be passed on, never to be forgotten. Now I wonder how you pronounce it??)

Friendly Aliens Altered My Body and Changed My Life

"I had a close encounter with friendly aliens — and it changed my body in numerous ways!" declared respected university professor John Salter Jr.

"My immunity is heightened. Cuts and scratches now clot immediately and heal rapidly. My head hair, fingernails and toenails are growing two to three times the normal rate. Some of my age spots have disappeared. And the wrinkles in my face have faded.

"Also, hair has developed all over my arms, legs, stomach and chest which were almost hairless. And for the first time in my life, my beard is so thick and dark, I have 5 o'clock shadow."

Dr. Salter, 55, and his 23-year-old son John 3rd say they were abducted by aliens while driving in a pickup truck on central Wisconsin's Highway 14 on March 20, 1988. But surprisingly, they didn't realize anything unusual had happened until they checked their watches and discovered they had lost track of an hour and 20 minutes.

"It was twilight, about 6:25 p.m., when we came to a stretch of four-lane highway. The next thing we knew, it was 7:45 p.m. and neither John nor I could account for the missing time," said Dr. Salter, chairman of American Indian studies at the University of North Dakota.

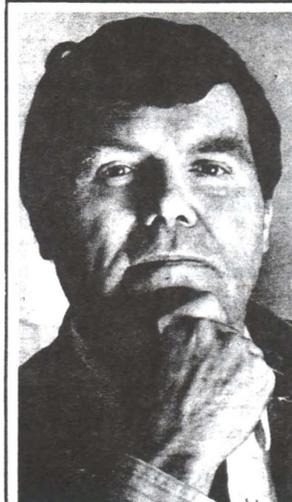

"The next day, we were driving when we saw a bright light coming toward us. It was about two-thirds the width of a double highway and glowing with an extraordinary silver color.

"We could make out its saucerlike form and it had a slight dome. Then, with incredible speed, it was gone. My son and I immediately realized this was a friendly appearance for us and it explained the missing time the previous night."

But the Salters did not remember any details of their abduction until months later — when they started having these flashbacks: "We were forced off the highway by an unseen force," recalled Dr. Salter. "Then we were standing not far from the passenger side of the pickup. It was almost dark.

"I saw two or three small humanoid figures climbing up the back bumper, looking at the gear in the back of my truck. The beings were 4 to 4½ feet tall, with thin bodies and thin limbs, but comparatively large heads and large slanted eyes.

"There were also six or seven of these small people near us and a taller humanoid figure, almost six feet tall. They all communicated with us telepathically and the tall humanoid guided us through the woods to their spacecraft, which was hidden in a secluded clearing.

"My next memory is that of a brightly lit room in the UFO. An implant was placed in my right nostril and beyond. An injection was made in my neck at the thyroid area. Another injection was made in my central chest near the thymus gland.

"Our tall friend guided us back to the pickup and we then parted company on a friendly basis. Then the brightly lit UFO took off and we drove back to the highway where we regained our memory."

In addition to Dr. Salter's other physical changes, he says he now has psychic abilities, plus two reminders of his visit with the aliens.

"Occasionally, a red welt appears on the right side of my neck. And a brown spot surfaces on my chest."

Dr. Salter's son hasn't experienced the same physical changes as his dad, but says, "This was the most extraordinary event of my life."

Adds Dr. Bernard O'Kelly, a dean at the University of North Dakota: "People dismiss experiences related to UFOs as being impossible. But Dr. Salter has solid credentials and I'm keeping an open mind."

Artificial blood: a milestone

Genetically engineered pigs able to produce human hemoglobin

by Philip J. Hilts
New York Times

Using genetic-engineering techniques, biologists have created pigs that produce human hemoglobin, the essential oxygen-carrying component of blood.

Experts said the achievement was a milestone in the effort to find a substitute for blood that could be used in all types of transfusions and might offer advantages over the donated blood now used.

A blood substitute could be stored for months instead of weeks, would be free of any risk of human infection, and could be transfused into anyone without the need for blood typing and matching.

Officials of a small biotechnology company, DNX Inc. of Princeton, N.J., said they had developed three pigs that produce human hemoglobin, which is the substance in the red blood cells that transports oxygen throughout the body.

When the pigs were day-old embryos, the scientists injected into them sets of two genes that make human hemoglobin, and now about 15 percent of their hemoglobin is human.

It is one of a very few times scientists have put human genes into large animals and had them function successfully.

The company's officials will outline the work today at a scientific meeting in Anaheim, Calif., and will describe what they regard as equally important: the discovery of a method of purifying the human hemoglobin produced.

Pigs produce hemoglobin

The extracted hemoglobin has not been tried in humans, and the technique might not succeed. But DNX has given research data to the Food and Drug Administration and plans to apply this year for approval of human trials.

The company said it would take at least five years to complete research and testing of pig-produced hemoglobin, and there are also serious questions to be overcome about the safety of using hemoglobin extracted from animals for human transfusion.

But experts in the field nevertheless praised the achievement.

"I think this is an exciting development," said Dr. Robert Winslow, chief of the blood-research division of the Army's Letterman Institute of Research in San Francisco.

"Military doctors believe a solution to this problem of making a blood substitute that can carry oxygen would have saved the lives of 10,000 soldiers in Vietnam. Soldiers bleed to death on the battlefield where you can't get blood to them, and before you can get them back to where they can be transfused."

Dr. Timothy Estep, vice president for research at Baxter Health Care Corp., which has been working on extracting hemoglobin from human blood, said the DNX work was "an interesting milestone" in the development of hemoglobin through genetic engineering.

He added: "It is one useful step among many that need to be taken to make a blood substitute. We believe that some product like this will be approved in the mid-1990s; things are moving fast."

SPACE BROTHER WARNS

by Marie Sherer

"Pride Cometh Before a Fall."

Not for the churches
Do I hold fear.
It's the light worker
Now dwelling here.

Once they've held
In their human hand
A little power
Over their fellowman.

Who call themselves
The enlightened few
Yet sit on a pedestal
For all to view.

Temptation arises
For their self-gain
To acquire riches
Or to bask in fame.

Though I do not wish
To criticize
It's their false ego
Where danger lies

This sincere warning
Comes from the heart
For all are needed
To play a part.

What is so sad
And will be judged
If the "Chosen Work"
Is dragged thru mud.

In raising the earth
From power and greed
Filled with light
It's greatest need.

I sincerely pray
And hope they find
Their lost humility
While there's time.

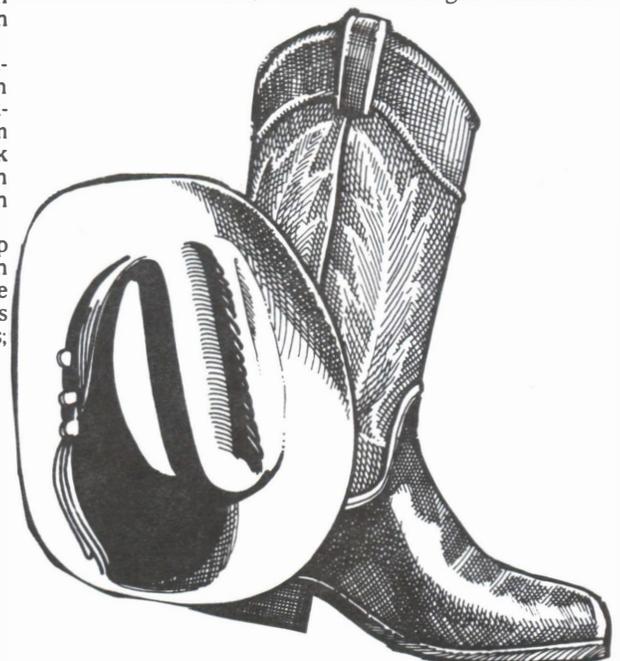

Now ask yourself
Be truly sincere
Has my vision clouded
Of why I am here?

Not all of course
Some are sincere
Who work in silence
Year after year.

If deep within
This voice does warn
Don't fail the mission
Whence you were born.

Now all were warned
When given light
To use it wrongly
Sad be their plight.

Now ask of the Father
To be set free
From pride and avarice
Then a Light Worker be.

WHAT'S GOING ON?

By George Van Tassel

You may consider this short narration factual, or fictional; just as you wish. It is based on hearsay from an ex-Navy man, and several "projections" into the places described, by yours truly.

Near a far northern Air Force base, which I am not naming out of respect for government security, is a large cavern in a mountain side. The mountain is surrounded by barbed wire and an armed guard. Inside this tremendous cavern is a large amount of machinery. Some of it is the creation of another advanced civilization on the Earth. Others of these machines are the product of this present American people.

Secrecy shrouds every movement in this area. People working inside the cavern have the finest of equipment, lighting, heating, and ventilation. The very latest electronic and magnetic appliances are gathered there.

The cavern is segregated into areas, each having large signs warning the people not to go from their own area to any other, under threat of rigid penalties.

Parts are wrapped and covered to prevent the people from seeing any assembly they are not working on. Is this where some of our "missing" scientists are now working?

In one super secret closed-in area is a "flying saucer". It sets upon a retractable center stand much like a lamp base. The entrance to the "saucer" is up a ladder in this center stand tube. On the base is stenciled in red paint "Tesla Sphere - P-A".

Did Nicola Tesla really die, or is he still alive in this cavern?

One assembly in the cavern looked like the rotor of the power plant of the Venusian scoutship I went aboard in August, 1953.

Everyone in the cavern is living in a state of terrific tension and suspicion of everyone else. Several had a high psychic "pickup".

In another room sits a humanoid under Marine guard. He has an exceptionally large head and large golden eyes. He is very telepathic, and is not happy in his confinement. At intervals he is fed and permitted some exercise, always under armed guard.

In the opposite hemisphere is an almost equal condition. In the South Polar Region is another entrance to the underground. Surrounding it is vegetation, a mild climate, and warm water lakes. An expedition of United States military and scientific men are established nearby.

A positive polarity fog enshrouds the area. This fog causes people to apparently disappear at a short distance.

Underground is an unknown race of people. They are all that is left of a great race that occupied our surface at one time. They have been called by some the "Rainbow" people.

It is not generally known that most of Shaver's "Deros" are now living on the surface in human bodies, preparing "fire and brimstone" for the inhabitants, in the form of nuclear devices.

The "Deros" are subjects of their master "Demos", often referred to as the Demon, or Satan.

* * * * *

For those of you too young to know, the Deros and Teros were subjects of Shavers "Amazing Stories" which were printed as science fiction.

WHAT ARE THEY TELLING US ABOUT OURSELVES?

By Elena Ruiz de Castilla

Hundreds of books have been written and still there seems to be no real certainty as to who and what they really are, and why they are here. As a contactee, I am no closer to the answers than I was before ever having had the experience, however, I have discovered a new facet of the experience which many will choose to deny, because to do so is more comfortable.

Sure those aliens whom we can label as positive or good guys want to help us preserve our planet, but what are they doing on an individual level? Could it be that some of us are reaching out to them because we need something we cannot get from other human beings: Perhaps in the case of sexual liaisons and hybrid babies, they are showing us our fear of intimacy and also fears regarding parenthood, fears of responsibility or of bringing a child into a world that is on the verge of destruction.

Perhaps the experience should be interpreted symbolically and not literally, as one would interpret a dream. This does not mean that the experience is not real. It's just their way of making us face ourselves. For example; let's evaluate the medical examination.

In the medical examination one faces the fear of bodily mutilation, and a sense of having no control over one's life. This is exactly what may occur under a one world government. Could it be then that they are warning us in a symbolic way?

In my own situation, a love relationship with an alien forced me to face up to the barren reality of an unhappy marriage. From the moment when my husband asked me for a divorce (due to sexual infidelities committed on the astral plane with the above mentioned alien) Yusov has not returned. Only time will tell if my ET friend had my best interests at heart. I think this experience will help me to grow. In many ways I miss Yusov, but somehow I feel that he has accomplished what he was sent to do in my life, although at times I think that he does not come to me because he is being punished, that we both tried too hard to conquer the barriers separating our dimensions.

As you evaluate the different aspects of your own contact experience, the fear, the fascination, etc., stop a moment and ask yourself if there might be some highly personal message, some inner reality to be dealt with on the pathway of your own personal evolution into a higher being.

STRANGE VOICES

Is somebody trying to tell us something? How do you explain strange voices that seem to come from nowhere?

On Dec. 23, 1990, while housesitting in Delta, I was having a phone conversation with my friend Jackie Blue in Paonia. It was 10:00 at night and I had just come from an interview with a contactee who happened to be passing through town. During our phone conversation a weird tone came over the connection and then a strange, distant voice started talking. The voice was monotone, like a computer talking, and it spoke so rapidly we couldn't understand what was being said.

Jackie and I listened and my skin prickled. "Ann, do you hear that?" "Yes. What is it?" We started asking it questions, like "Who are you? Where are you from? What do you want?" Every time we asked a question the voice hesitated and seemed to answer us. Only it jabbered so much we could only catch phrases or words. It appeared not to be speaking our language.

The possibility of its being a ham radio operator or CB causing interference had crossed my mind. Plus in the past I have experienced someone else's telephone conversation coming over a remote phone. Yet this voice was strange. There were no inflections whatsoever and the words were so garbled. Also, there was no responding voice, nor did this voice hesitate long enough to allow a responding voice.

At one point Jackie called to her husband Michael to listen to the voice. As soon as she called out, "Mike!" I heard the voice repeat: "Mike." Her husband listened and heard the voice, then gave the phone back to Jackie. Then she asked the voice if it was over her house in Paonia. "No," came the reply, followed by a flood of jabbering. Then she asked, "Are you over Ann's?" and the voice said yes! It was then that I made the suggestion that the voice fly down to Why, Ariz., where my special one was spending his Christmas. Shortly afterwards Jackie and I ended our phone conversation.

Within that very week I heard from my special one in Arizona. He told me about a strange voice that had come over his tape player. He had been copying some of his musical tapes when a garbled voice interrupted. He stopped the taping and rewound to replay his tape — only when he played it again the voice was gone.

Just recently he was successful at recording the garbled voice when it came through his machine again. Although I am still waiting to hear these results for myself, I suspect this is not an ordinary phenomenon. How many other people have had this experience? Is somebody trying to tell us something? If so, I'd sure like to hear what they've got to say.

SIGHTING AND AN "EXTRATERRESTRIAL CONSULTATION"

I have read your magazine Contactos Extraterrestres with great interest, and I have been very surprised at its contents, for which I sincerely congratulate you.

I have not resisted the temptation to send you the account of two surprising events, strictly true ones, which I present for your consideration to see if it is possible to make them known publicly through your magazine. I think that my reliability will be demonstrated if I tell you that I am a professional man (doctor) 45 years of age and 22 years practicing my profession.

FIRST CASE: In April of last year when I was coming through the state of Nayarit on the way back to Guadalajara with my wife and four children [Nayarit is northwest of Guadalajara; this route could indicate that they were returning from the Pacific resort city of Mazatlán — trans.], at about six in the afternoon, and when we passed in the vicinity of Ceboruco Volcano [10 km. (6 miles) NW of Ahuacatlán, at 21°8'N, 104°30'W — trans.], one of my children (a son) exclaimed, "Daddy, look what's on that hill!" I looked there and stopped the car. It was an enormous disc, dull orange in color, which emitted a certain iridescence. We saw it for about two minutes, after which it rose gently over the hill and moved away toward the south in a dizzying manner, losing itself on the horizon in a few seconds. In addition to my family and me, there were other witnesses: several drivers who stopped to see the spectacle.

As there are people reluctant to accept the presence of UFOs, I have related this event only to my friends. I am now informing you of it for the purpose of receiving an answer that may tell me if it might have something to do with the case I will next relate.

SECOND CASE: I am a general practitioner in the city of Guadalajara. Well, then, on October 28, 1976 [a Thursday — trans.], I attended to my patients as usual. At 12 noon I was ready to finish, when the last patient came in, who attracted my attention very much. It was a person about 50 years old, of very white skin, almost totally bald, grayish-blue eyes, a penetrating look, and of a genial nature.

I did not hear him when he entered the waiting room, but I saw him paging through a magazine when I opened the door to say good-bye to another patient. When I looked at him he got up and I could see he was very short, about 1.50 m. [4'-11" — trans.]. With a high-pitched voice he told me, "I want you to give me a checkup"; I told him I would. I proceeded with the checkup and was baffled by his perfect health; his vital signs and his reflexes were surprisingly normal. He was hairless except for his face, where he had a very fine fuzz; on the rest of his body his skin was as smooth and delicate as that of a robust baby of six months. Upon noting this to him, he told me, "I have always led a very healthy life, without any excesses, and have cultivated mental control for a long time. I have not gone to the doctor for a long time."

I almost fainted when I learned his age: 85 years! He noticed my perplexity and told me, "I am not from here, and don't ask me where I am from, because I can't tell you. My name is Llop Zarniet. [In Spanish, the "ll," a letter of its own, is pronounced like "y," which is the more usual rendering of that sound. — trans.] There are more planets in this solar system that have not yet been discovered; several such as I are distributed throughout the world trying to enter into contact with conscientious [or reliable] people who are disposed to help us make known our presence without causing any fear. We want to help improve the general conditions of development on Earth and avoid the evils that can lead you to chaos.

"Listen carefully to the message I am going to give you, pay attention: God exists as a creative being; matter does not exist in itself; there is a single universal current from which everything else emanates, from the microcosmos to the macrocosmos. This current is ELECTRICITY, whose universal symbol is this:

[Editorial Comment, presumably by Ariel Rosales, editor of Contactos Extraterrestres:]

We greatly appreciate your kind words. With respect to the two cases in which you found yourself involved, we consider them very interesting, which is why we are publishing them, but it is very difficult to establish a possible relationship between them. We also think that in spite of having been a witness to both cases, you should not let yourself be psychologically influenced, and should formulate conclusions or possible connections only by considering proof. The fact that a gentleman may have presented himself before you claiming to be 85 years old and an extraterrestrial cannot be sufficient proof. For proof, medical examinations made with other specialists and with full awareness that what you were going to try to prove was his possible extraterrestrial nature, would have been indispensable.

If you get more information on the two cases, we would appreciate your sending it to us. [There was no follow-up — at least not to January 1985. — trans.]

Levitation

You say you've seen this picture already? You say photos of itsy bitsy magnets floating above high-temperature superconductors (or the reverse) are clichés? You say you're tired of seeing the same old thing?

Well, this picture is different. It shows the first reported demonstration of Meissner effect levitation—in which the superconductor repels a magnetic field—involving a thin-film structure. The experiment took place at Hughes Research Laboratory in Malibu, Calif. The thin film consisted of an ultra-pure, highly aligned crystalline layer of yttrium-barium-copper oxide deposited on a strontium nitrate substrate. A wispy 0.6 micrometer thick, the thin film acted as a superconductor at a temperature of 77 degrees Kelvin—the boiling point of liquid nitrogen.

Scientists at Hughes Research Laboratory believe that the quality of the superconducting thin film shows it can enhance the development of low-loss microwave electronic components that are able to operate at the easy-to-achieve liquid-nitrogen temperature.

Electronic applications such as these will probably arrive long before the more dramatic ones originally proclaimed in the first flush of excitement after the discovery of this new breed of materials, applications that included, for example, superconducting power lines.

HOW WACHSPRESS

The boyish, Brooklyn accent on the phone told a tale of frustration and rejection. How Wachspress, who now lives in San Francisco, said he had been trying for years to get NASA to take a serious look at his invention, the free-flying magnetic levitator, but had only gotten a bureaucratic runaround.

The device, issued U.S. Patent No. 4,874,346 on Oct. 17, 1989, could revolutionize space travel, Wachspress said with utter conviction. With it, payloads of nearly any size could be lifted into space using the Earth's magnetic field to provide the boost.

This year, NASA has finally agreed to evaluate Wachspress' technology and witness a demonstration. He showed me a letter from Donald T. Palac of NASA's Mission Assessment and Applications Branch, which specifies the conditions.

The free-flying magnetic levitator is simply an electromagnet wound in such a way that an extremely strong tripole magnetic field is created. The tripole is necessary to make the device move linearly and controllably in the Earth's dipole field, Wachspress said. The shape of the windings is also crucial. The device looks like two megaphones placed mouth to mouth, and the windings are laid toroidally—from the wide end down toward the narrow end and back.

This winding method creates a much stronger pole in the center and weaker poles at the outside. The differential accounts for the linear motion of the device, Wachspress said.

Wachspress said he initially thought he would need superconducting magnets to get the necessary current density, which is on the order of 200,000 amps/sq. cm., but some new method which he would not disclose will make that unnecessary.

"This could be a multibillion dollar business in 10 years, replacing or augmenting aircraft, replacing the National Aero-Space Plane, and plunging space transportation costs by orders of magnitude," Wachspress said.

Now that NASA has "put it into the realm of the plausible," Wachspress feels he is on his way. □

INTERNATIONAL NETWORK FOR EXTRATERRESTRIAL CONTACT

1.

We cordially agree, that the global crisis, especially the ecological problems, can only be solved through a change of paradigms, a change of thinking from our technocratic, social darwinist exploitative society towards a harmonic symbiosis of man and nature and a technique in harmony with the natural laws.

We believe, that only one event has an impact deeply enough to change the course of humanity towards a "new thinking", a quantum leap of consciousness: The open contact with an alien civilization who already mastered our momentary crisis of evolution and learned to develop a technology in accordance with nature. "When we make contact it will be the biggest breakthrough in the history of mankind. These advanced civilizations could help us conquer problems like disease, pollution, food and energy shortages, and natural disasters". Dr. Ictiaque Rasool from NASAs "Project SETI" declared in 1976.

"I feel that we need to have a top level, coordinated program to scientifically collect and analyze data from all over the world concerning any type of encounter, and to determine how best to interface with these visitors in a friendly fashion ... acceptance by them would have tremendous possibilities of advancing our world in all areas." Astronaut Gordon Cooper said in a letter United Nations, November 9th, 1978.

When we observe the UFO phenomenon it is obvious - that it is indeed representing a culture which already mastered the conflict of dualism and is living in oneness with creation. Their nearly soundless and clean way of operation, demonstrated by their spacecraft all around the world, is an invitation for us to study a new, clean and soft technology.

Because we believe that the open contact with alien civilizations is the "conditio sine qua non" for human survival and reaching the next step in humans' evolution, we will dedicate all our potential to realize it, to create the necessary conditions for an open contact.

3.

These are:

- a. Systematic investigation of the UFO phenomenon, because we think that it is indeed indicating an alien presence on Earth. Elimination of elements ridiculing the UFO subject, especially widespread hoaxes. (- Project UFO- RAIN)
- b. International exchange of information and results of UFO research through international research contacts, exchange, symposiums and international conferences.
- c. Investigation of so-called contact cases and scientific evaluation of information given to us by the contactees about life, technology, history, religion and social structure of extraterrestrial civilizations visiting the Earth as well as their modus operandi. (Project UFO-CROWN)
- d. Worldwide uncensored publikation of the results of the investigation, research and exchange mentioned in a-c through
  - an international magazine (Magazine 2000)
  - books
  - films
  - lectures
  - conferences (- ETCON Educational Programme)
- e. On the base of the results of the investigation and research mentioned in a-c attempts to establish a communication with extraterrestrial intelligences (- Project UFO CICERO)
- f. Preparation of the mass consciousness for the contact with extraterrestrial intelligences to prevent a panic; creation of a common base for communication, especially through the tool of a worldwide ETCON Educational Programme as mentioned in d.
- g. Financing of the worldwide projects mentioned in a-f through FURAP (Fund for UFO Research and Promotion.)

4.

For the purpose of coordination of and participation in the worldwide efforts of ETCON Int., the INTERNATIONAL NETWORK FOR EXTRATERRESTRIAL CONTACT offers an annual membership ($ 100,-).

This includes:

- Free bimonthly newsletters (if available, combined with MAGAZINE 2000)
- 10% discount on all products of the ETCON Educational Programme (Books, videos and other publications)
- 20% discount on all ETCON events, local or international.

5.

Furthermore, all ETCON representatives, publishing ETCON information and material from ETCON files, archives and research oblige to pay 10% of their fees or royalties to FURAP All Profit (netto) from annual membership fees automatically goes into FURAP Fund, too.

6.

The ECTON-funds will be used for

- a. creation and expansion of a worldwide informational network
- b. publications
- c. research
- d. public events (symposiums, conferences etc.)

The FURAP-funds will be used especially for international projects serving the goals mentioned in 3 d-f, especially the PROJECT TUCC (Terrestrial UFO Contact Center), which is planned in Tblissi/Georgia, USSR.

Although coordinating international UFO research projects, ETCON is by its means not "another UFO research organization". We go one step further. ECTON Int. evaluates the results of UFO research and uses it for the benefit of human evolution, preparing the only possible next step in the evolution of mankind, the open contact with an extraterrestrial civilization ...

BODY MARKS & MIBS

During the month of April I was experiencing unusual phenomena appearing first on my right thigh, then during the Month of May 1991, all over my legs, thighs, stomach and waist. The effect was this: first I would experience an unusual tingly, or electrical prickly sensation, undulating underneath my skin, followed by symbols and/or hieroglyphics appearing deeply etched into my skin, which completely disappeared from sight each time after one hour. The first symbol I have reproduced below. It had exact dimensions 40 mm by 40 mm by 20 mm by 10 mm. This diagram appeared on my thigh April 29, 1991 at 7:15 p.m.. Vancouver, B.C. time.

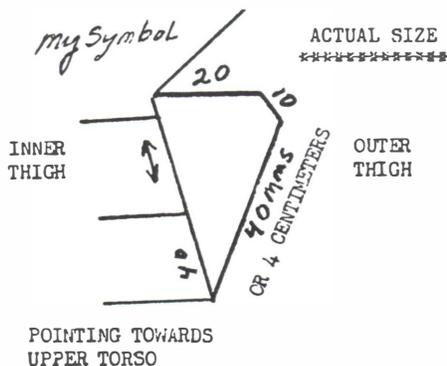

After the characters disappeared, I went outside to go to the grocery store. Just outside my place, I was startled to see two individuals walking very quickly past my home, on the street, with the oddest appearance. As an objective UFO researcher, it was bad enough that I was having strange marks on my body to deal with, but this was too much. Both males appeared to be in their mid to late twenties, wearing identical pinstripe suits and pants. The clothing looked as if it just came out of the factory and had never been worn. The shoes looked black, new, shiny and unused. They both had hats on, Chicago style. As a matter of fact, they would have easily been mistaken for two of Al Capone's gangsters, except that they were approximately 6 1/2 to 7 feet tall, and the one on the right had an extended and protruding forehead, which was unmistakable to me as being of alien construction. To others, he most likely appeared a little oddly misshapen - no more. Remember, they were moving quickly, well dressed, with head covering. One of them, the individual with normal features, looked at me very surprised as if I caught him off guard. In that instant, I became extremely drowsy, and I actually heard two voices, very clearly and simultaneously in my mind say this: "Do not move, do not approach us, you are not supposed to see this. We are trying to stop activity you do not understand. Do not interfere. Let us pass. The activity you are experiencing is direct contact by others, which we do not want."

I could not bring myself to approach them. When I gazed into his eyes, I saw absolute lack of all human feeling and emotion. I felt that he and the other one were biological constructs. They walked stiff legged, without knees bending. Their faces were very pale white, and they looked anorexic. I have never in my life seen such alien looking people. Their walk was purposeful, deliberate, and yet robotic.

On May 19, 1991, I received a call from a man who said that he had been experiencing unusual phenomena all his life. When I met him May the 21, he was wearing a golden pendant around his neck (see photocopy below). He told me he could heal the sick, and that the pendant was a "golden harp", from where "all wisdom, knowledge, light and harmony originated." The pendant symbol was the same as my cornered triangle, except that the 4 lines or strings were inside, whereas mine were outside, meaning I was in disharmony. He told me that he felt that he was not fully human and had been metamorphosized. He is in his 60s, and has agreed to contact me again. He told me that he was from Sweden, and has baffled scientists at Stanford University, as well as hospital staff. He had permanent etchings on his forehead identical in nature to my phenomenon.

I realize that Budd Hopkins, Raymond Fowler, and other well known UFO researchers are very reluctant to discuss openly their own UFO related personal interactions, as they wish to remain in the eyes of the public as objective, sensible, and impartial investigators. However, in order to uncover the truth, we must all be willing to tell it like it is, and it is in the best interest of everyone that we do so. Therefore, I am publishing my full name and address, so that others may share similar experiences to me.

POSITIVE ENERGY GRIDS

By Aileen

Dr. Kostrykin Petrovich whom we met at the Tucson "First World UFO Congress" provided a new insight into the circle phenomena.

For those of you that were not in attendance it is interesting to note that Dr. Petrovich made the statement UFOs travel on grid lines of positive energy. This grid line forms a dodecahedron around the earth. That is one of the reasons why they make 90 degree turns so precisely. The UFO are following the grid system. The system has fallen into decay because of the abundance of negative energy affecting our planet. The ETs are aware of this and have been doing what they can to repair the system.

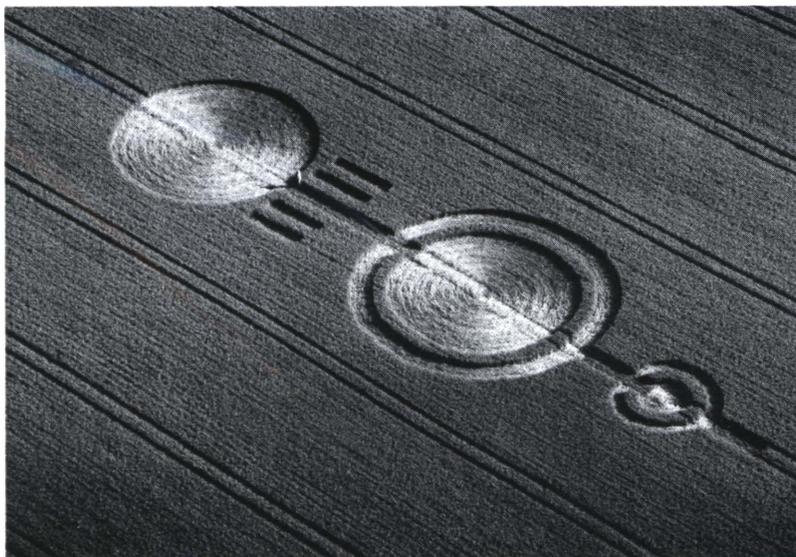

Several books have been written on the circle phenomena in England, the United States and Canada. Every scientist and pseudoscientist think they have the answer, or at least a hypothesis. There are many different theories as to the cause - all the way from wind to worms!

In the latest Ghost Trackers Newsletter, Volume 10, Number 2, June 1991 Issue, page 10, an answer and validation of Dr. Petrovich's report was given. In an article titled, "The Fake Quake: A Psychic View" (New Madrid, Missouri, December 3, 1990) by Maurice Schwalm, the author wrote about Dr. Iben Browning's miss on his prediction of the New Madrid Quake that was purportedly to take place on December 3, 1990. In the past Dr. Browning had accurately predicted (not by psychic means) earthquakes when the sun was at perihelion and the moon at perigee. Because of the sun spots there was a greater seismic pull on the earth's crust which result in a fracturing of the earth's brittle crust during these times. So accurate was he mathematically that he predicted Mt. St. Helens erupting, the San Francisco earthquake, and the Mexico City earthquake of September 1985. Why then did not the New Madrid earthquake take place?

The UFOCCI has a large network collecting information from all the UFOCCI centers. During this time three large space ships were seen hovering from the southern tip of the New Madrid fault line to the north. The ships were there for weeks and in fact the one on the southern end was still there at last report. It has been seen putting out smaller ships.

It is along this approximate fault line that the "crop circles" have been found, especially in Missouri. Dr. Petrovich said that the ships emit the energy to bring the system back into balance again. That explains why some of the circles are counterclockwise and some are clockwise in configuration. Some of the areas need positive and some need negative energy to bring the earth into balance.

Only by collecting information from all over the world can we begin to make sense out of what is taking place. If we had not attended the Tucson conference we would never have been aware of a possible reason for the circles and unusual formations that have been seen. Thank goodness Dr. Browning was not correct in his prediction. As it were, all the motels and hotels were full in Kansas City, Missouri because people moved out of their homes in the event of a massive earthquake taking place.
