COMMENTS BY THE READERS

The November issue of Missing Link was excellent. Copies of sections I have passed along to friends and relatives.

Ben Harris, Leavenworth, Washington

Large Puerto Rico information in November issue really appreciated. Now I want to go to Puerto Rico.

Saralee Naslund, Kent, Washington

The cover of the November issue was the best yet! This magazine should be on newstands! It is very professionally done.

Jim Van Avery, Fall City, Washington

Thank you for your positive response to the November issue. We have Amaury Rivera Toro to thank for sharing his pictures and information with us.

NOTE: We want to thank everyone that has sent Christmas cards to our office. We wish you all the best for 1993.

Art by

Corey Wolfe

Corey Wolfe is a self taught artist. He attributes his talents to logic and intuition. His knowledge of light sources and how they interact with various forms has created the illusion of 3 dimensions.

Corey's otherworldly visions have been produced for companies such as Disney, Pepsi, RCA, Hanna-Barbera, Time Magazine, 20th Century Fox, Universal, NBC, and many more that space prohibits us from listing.

Corey's personal beliefs have integrated his subconscious to the superconscious. The use of specific symbols in his scenes, help to awaken our sleeping consciousness. Often when he is near completion of a project, deja vu will remind him that he is in the right place at the right time.

"Man is an eternal being that is able to experience many lifetimes, simultaneously. Life exists beyond this planet, and it is up to each individual to investigate that possibility."

Corey's subject matter is surreal in nature and reflects a dream world that he is able to share with his audience through his appreciation of detail, texture and form. His appreciation of the world and all that is has guided him into creating the fantastic scenes that appear on his blank canvasses. His works breathe of life, hope and other worlds that surely must exist somewhere in the multiverse.

There is absolutely no doubt that Corey Wolfe is an enlightened soul whose visionary art is being shown to us at this time for a higher purpose.

We want to thank him for the use of his piece entitled, "The Gateway", and look forward to his future works of art.

Beginning with this issue, The Missing Link will be published bi-monthly.

Dear Aileen:

Dear Aileen :

Re: Errors by Aliens

MUFON Field Investigator Preston Dennett wrote in your October issue that "to Err is Alien". That is, he pointed out how abductees are often returned to the wrong location, e.g., the wrong seat in a car or the wrong bed. He suggested that since humans are given amnesia so as to not know they were in fact abducted, the mis-location indicates the aliens are making a mistake, or that they don't know about our ability to recognize the mistake.

There is another, better explanation.

I personally believe that the amnesia is NOT due to the aliens wanting us to be unaware of the experience. Rather, the amnesia occurs either because a) such frightening events naturally create amnesia in humans, as is seen occasionally in very traumatic accidents, OR b) the aliens know the event will be very disturbing on recollection so they supply the amnesia for the comfort of the abductee, or both. Hence, the return to the wrong "location" is NOT an error. They just do not care (since few abductees rush right out as a result of the "error" to by hypnotized and lose the comforting benefit of the amnesia.) This also explains why a FEW abductees never have amnesia in the first place - they do not need it to cope.

Consider the following incomplete analogy: humans want to study the behavior of certain endangered wild animals such as a puma that has been treed. (Aliens want to study the behavior of endangered humans.) So the humans dart the animals to knock them out for their comfort. (The aliens abduct the humans while they are under the aliens' control AND with subsequent amnesia for their comfort.) The animals are moved by the humans while so knocked out to a place convenient to weigh them, take their temperature, examine their teeth, etc. (Aliens transport the abductees to UFOs for examination of genitals and other physical properties.) The humans tag the animal so it can be tracked for further study and later darting. (The aliens implant the humans for tracking and later abduction.) The humans then release the animal, usually not EXACTLY where it was before (i.e., not in the tree where it was shot with the dart). (The aliens make a "mistake" and return the abductee to not exactly the same place.)

Now, in that analogy, would it not be silly for us humans to worry that the animal, upon recovery, would say to itself, hey, this is not where I was before?

Sincerely, Dana M. Schmidt, NY State Section Director MUFON

Dear Aileen :

The November issue of the Missing Link (#122) was just fantastic! I want to commend you and your staff for putting together one of the most diverse, and concise magazines covering the topic of human experiences and UFOs.

I particularly liked the story of "Mission Rama". It made comment on things that I had heard, or knew from other sources concerning the "Light Beings" that are here. Is there an address where I can write for further information on their activities and what I can do to help the cause? I hope they speak English!

I see more and more stories from other countries concerning UFOs and their occupants. It seems to me that language is becoming an obstacle to understanding our fellow man. How I wish we could all speak and understand one another!

Anyway, keep up the good work! I know of a few persons that will be excited to have had the Missing Link in their stockings this year!

L. L. Wood, New York, New York

Editor's Reply: Perhaps the author, Edilver, can send us the address for those who wish to find out more concerning "Mission Rama".

Dear Aileen:

An update on the local "black helicopter" activity... they show up usually three times a day now (more than they did in Flagstaff). Even an avid sky-watcher said that it's much more in the last 3 months than in the last few years. Somethin's up here MAYBE??

Now, for a bit of head-scratching disgruntlement over Brent Raynes' article in ML #122.

He states that he thinks "there's an overuse/emphasis with hypnosis..." How in the world can frightened, traumatized folks let go? Many have stated, that their abductors have planted a memory block ON PURPOSE during their abduction experiences. We can't take a magic pill to bring all of the miniscule, but IMPORTANT details to light at any given moment. (Even though we may want to know so badly.) Hypnosis is a state of relaxation. A good hypnotist will not take advantage of a client, but assist in newfound insights, profound revelations and release of overwhelming confusion. There are unscrupulous hypnotherapists. I've met a few, who have used their talents for self-aggrandizement and even sexual advances. This is as sick as any medical professional misusing their skills. UFOCCI is an open-minded group of individuals, intent upon assisting their fellow men/women. If we were all scientists and "professional" researchers, would we be CUFOS or MUFON, perhaps? I joined UFOCCI to be supportive and gain knowledge. I didn't sell my soul in the sacred name of ufology. My loyalty remains with a huge variety of brethren on this planet, who are seeking answers. These answers may not be honestly found through our government's programs or the incessant chatter of media, but within the overwhelming millions of personal contact/abduction experiences of us all.

As for requesting the "qualifying training for people in investigative/counseling models," what kind of mass training? Would we have to travel to Seattle for a weekend, or attend a Jorpah every year? Would two years of College Psychology do? How about a prerequisites of Military service? Or is a logical-thinking, compassionate individual considered good material for an Associate Director? Would a college degree enhance other's trust? Are listening and consoling skills readily available through some form of statewide licensing. Were any of UFOCCI's Associate Directors chosen for their IQs or old SAT scores?

Another question arises over changing UFOCCI's name and removing the word "Contact." Good heavens, that's what this whole group is about! "Aliens" or entities from elsewhere, are contacting humans and we, in turn are an organization in heavy study and discussion over the matter. After organizing Jorpah, as well as spending a few years in intense ufology, I've found there's not a certain group of people who are drawn to UFOCCI. No more than the mixed crowds at MUFON Symposiums, New Age Centers, Tim Beckley's conferences, NASA-sponsored events or ANY gatherings of interested sky-watchers. Contacts are very much a part of life, worldwide, for a vast number of humans. Frequently that causes a more concentrated interest in space programs and unusual phenomena. (Hasn't that been so, even in Biblical times?)

When Brent writes that he thinks "a lot of folks are driven off because they just don't feel comfortable and fit in," I wish he'd have attended many of our meetings in the Midwest! Folks come up to many of the UFOCCI Associate Directors and thank them for helping. Support, caring, sharing and disseminating much available information is the reason for those leaders. All of the ADs that I'm acquainted with are always passing along new books, videos, and addresses of other various "experts." (I just hope that I've always remembered to thank those sweethearts, who are too numerous to mention, unless I use another few pages.)

We had a perfect solution for UFOCCI members at our meetings, which Aileen suggested long ago - if folks "soft-peddle their personal views and feelings," have a private meeting or forum for them. There's no perfect club or organization. From Girl Scouts and church groups, to the Ladies Garden Club, nothing's 100%. Most individuals in the abduction/contact scenario don't want to be scientific guinea pigs or media dupes. The brave folks who have been, deserve our applause and often our empathy. Their bravery has opened many doors, otherwise shut for lack of funds, special credentials or just because honesty is sometimes its only reward.

The bravest of my UFOCCI brethren, seem to be the Associates Directors. They are often belittled, berated, harassed and even threatened. (I'm proud to be serving with you all!) Don't change things too much - it would confuse the thousands of members who've counted on the continuity of truth and support in a dishonest and apathetic world.

Aileen, and many out-spoken members of UFOCCI have NOT been afraid to rock the boat. That boat is in a state of constant flux. It's confusing, but often refreshing, since you can "agree to disagree" in "an atmosphere of genuine sharing and caring." (Well put, Brent!)

The best part of all is Aileen's trust in letting her Associate Directors run their Centers in their own special way, with the exception of the policies of hypnosis guidelines. Those are delicate, but well-defined areas and worth tenacious adherence by ALL those involved in hypnosis of abductees and contactees.

Maybe it's some BAD GUYS somewhere causing disharmony on our planet. The family structures are changing, as are religions, governments and all social stratum. It's our personal choice if we wish to flow with change or stick with old, secure (?) methods. Perhaps the best idea is to incorporate BOTH. I can handle that. Sure am glad I can choose! God Bless.

Sincerely, Claudia Sanderson, UFOCCI Associate Director, Cottonwood, Arizona

The following letter is not exactly in our specific field but it could be related. Perhaps some of you may be researchers into "cats". If you are then you can write to this young man.

Dear Sir:

I am interested in Big-cats on the loose in Britain and abroad and I am particularly fascinated by cryptozoology - the scientific study of unknown species of animals. I have written a book called "Big-Cats Loose in Britain" which I am trying to publish. Could I appeal to you to please send any relevant information that you may possess on this subject to the address given. Do you have any useful addresses of authorities, organizations, and individuals who might be able to help me?

Have any of you had any sightings, livestock kills, (e.g. sheep, cattle, horses, poultry) or seen any clawmarks, pugmarks/pawprints, or heard any strange and unusual noises that could be assigned to a felid? If you could send me any records, reports, tapes, pictures, photographs, and descriptions of these largely unknown and mysterious felids (Big-cats and Wild-cats) in any area, I would be most grateful. All information will be treated in strictest confidence and will only be published with permission in my book. I shall refund all postage and photocopying costs, within reason!

These cats are shy, elusive and nocturnal and they do exist, of course. I am talking about such creatures as the "Exmoor Beasts" and the "Surrey Pumas". They include such types and breeds as Pumas, Black Panthers, (Melanistic Leopards), Lynxes, Leopard-cats, and Jungle-cats. I have seen a puma on Exmoor and a Bob-cat (Lynx) on the Mendip hills of Somerset and Avon. I believe there are connections between historic Black Dog/Ghost Hound accounts and sightings long ago of large black panther-type cats, so I am interested in any local black-dog or black-big-cat stories from the past you can tell me about.

Since August 1986, I have been researching, investigating, and collecting as much evidence as possible on these cats. I have thus amassed about 1,000 letters in 25 files describing hundreds of sightings by people who are familiar with native wildlife and/or who are skilled at making observations such as farmers, gamekeepers, foresters, and policeman. I have no doubt that the cats have been living in the fields, downs, woodlands, and moorlands of Great Britain for centuries. In some areas I have done fieldwork in various parts of Britain and this includes tracking the cats. Visiting the areas where there have actually been sightings, and to find out if they have any information on the Big-cats. I shall refund all postage and photocopying costs, within reason. If I can help you on this subject, do please contact me. I shall look forward to hearing from you. Thank you very much and Best Wishes. ABDUCTEES & VEGETARIANISM

By Lorne Goldfader

A recurring theme in the mystery of abductee transformations is the cessation of meat eating diets which happens very often after a major encounter. Little has been written on this phenomenon. In an attempt to discover a general meaning or purpose behind this change of habit, I am here paraphrasing, editing and emerging information from the accounts by conscious recall as well as hypnosis sessions of abductees which our institute has investigated. The transposing is quite accurate as taken from its raw form:

The VISITORS do not view the eating of meat as a morally or genetically civilized act. Emotional energies contained in the life form are transferred to the consuming organism which lower the atomic vibratory level, thus preventing or stunting evolutionary growth. It is also a matter of respect from higher to lower living creatures. "They" would not eat us and do not wish us to eat other bodies which can bleed or have offspring. Then there is the matter of artificial growth hormones, chemicals and poisons concentrated in the meat which are then passed into our bodies. These foreign materials may also interfere with our genetic evolution.

In some instances, it is a bad experience which causes an abductee to stop eating meat. Witnessing floating body parts in alien tanks and dissection on fellow humans on a craft by other self serving "Intruders" is enough to later jar the abductee's subconscious. The gruesome memory (in the form of post traumatic stress syndrome) can be triggered by something as simple as a package of supermarket chicken legs or as blatant as a torso hanging in a slaughterhouse.

It is ironic that we as a species are horrified by the sight of carefully mutilated animals found under anomalous circumstances and yet we tolerate the slicing of the very same animals on our dinner plate.

POWER GRIDS AND ABDUCTIONS

By Lorne Goldfader,

Director UFORIC, Vancouver, B.C.

Canada is not that much different than the USA in that it shares similar cultural values and beliefs which are shaped by consumerism and technology. We have almost identical abduction accounts which involve similar species actions and descriptions. In contrast, The Commonwealth of Independent States possesses a very different manifestation of phenomena.

Over the first four years of intense abduction research I have come across a most interesting piece of information. In almost every abduction case we have investigated involving families with either small children or pregnant mothers our investigators have discovered power grids (lego-like hydroelectric constructions) on or very near the property. When the statistics became clear in late 1990 endless speculation ensued such as E.M. windows using the grids to enter interdimensionally, power charging the craft, etc. This is not new information except that before it had been recorded only with sightings, whereas now we have established a link with abductions.

An article dated November the 14, 1992 from the Associated Press cites a study from Sweden which found that "children exposed to relatively weak magnetic fields from power lines near their homes develop leukemia at almost four times the expected rate". The study looked at 500,000 children and adults who lived near transmission lines. It is my theory that the controllers of the abduction phenomenon are doing a survey of genetic damage in the infants who live near these grids, and may even be correcting the harm done.

We are collecting cases from UFO researchers from all parts of the world which may shed light on this connection. Anyone with such correlative information may forward it to: Lorne Goldfader/UFORIC, Dept. 25, 1665 Robson St; Vancouver, BC V6G 3C2, Canada.

"AILEEN'S ROCK"

By Aileen

In the November issue of the Missing Link, Brent Raynes, Associate Director in Waynesboro, Tennessee relates that when Aileen visited Waynesboro in August and spoke, several of the persons in attendance could not relate to her rock story.

We have decided to run a picture of the "alien" rock and let you judge for yourself. Also an explanation of what happened so you will understand better why the ETs would leave such an artifact. The story is much more extensive but this is the basis of why the rock was left.

The UFOCCI was working with an abductee at that time. She lived north of Seattle and we lived in the southern portion of the city. Periodically she would come for hypnosis and the person with the "rock" would bring her or accompany her. One night the lady was scheduled to be at the UFOCCI at 7:00 p.m. They didn't arrive until around 9:00 p.m. They did not know where they had been or what had happened. While she was being regressed he sat in the outer room with Aileen and wept. He did not know what he was crying about but couldn't stop. We knew, but he would not commit to being regressed to find out.

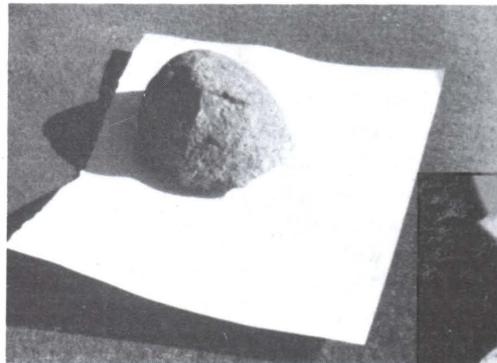

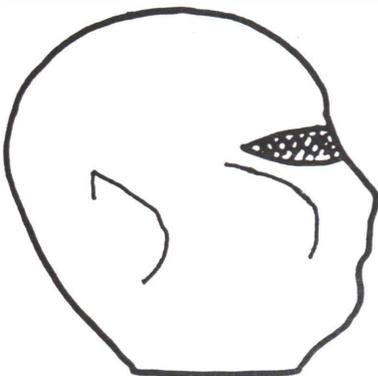

Meanwhile, in the hypnosis session we asked her what had happened on the way. She described him being lifted right through the roof of the car while she was left sitting in the car.

When you have been contacted and do not acknowledge, the visitors have a way of getting your attention. In this case he woke up on a Saturday morning; sat down in his easy chair to watch the ball game on television, looked out on his patio and there sitting on a decorative stump, looking right at him was the rock. He saw the face immediately and panicked.

This man was extremely fastidious and kept everything in an orderly fashion. He knew there was never a rock on the stump before. He grabbed a paper towel and a brown paper bag and put the rock in the bag as he was reluctant to touch it. He then went straight over to his friend's house that we were working with. All that day she had been endeavoring to draw pictures of her alien contact. He went straight to her piece of paper with the drawings on it, sat it down on top of her drawing she had worked so hard on and commenced to draw around the rock. She started yelling at him, "Are you crazy, or something? I have been working all day on this drawing trying to get it right! Now you have ruined it!" He felt very remorseful but couldn't understand his own actions.

The next time he came with the lady he brought the rock in the paper bag. Since that time I have had it. He never was regressed and his life deteriorated after that. I do not know what has happened to him today, nor where he is.

That is the story of the alien rock. Can you see the face? There are two faces, one on each side.

A NEW SHADE OF GREY

By Corey Wolfe

I finally have enough clues and intuitive insights to attempt a description of who the greys are and what they are doing here. My theory will deal with one particular race.

To understand my idea one must first understand the Devic Kingdom. The idea of it is as old as myth itself. It is an evolutionary cycle of diverse beings that co-exists and parallels our own. The realm they exist in is invisible to us. With knowledge we can first sense them, then see, then communicate with them. To quote G. Purucker: "The Devas are the un-self conscious sparks of Divinity, cycling down into matter in order to bring out from within themselves and to unfold or evolve self-consciousness of Divinity within. They take a definite and divine part in the Great Work, of being builders and evolvers." This quote is from a book from 1933.

Devas are the fairies, elves, gnomes, etc. of our mythology. They have an expansive hierarchy from undines to the Gods that oversee the building of planets. These beings are the ones that oversee FORM in all its diversities. The scent and color of flowers are examples of their work. The Scottish community Findhorn has written much on their communication with the Devas.

When a species comes into being, evolves into another type or faces extinction, it is these helpers who instigate the necessary changes. They are attuned to, and a part of nature's timetable.

In Raymond Fowler's book "The Watchers", the Greys tell Betty Andreasson, "We are the caretakers of nature and natural forms - The Watchers. We love mankind. We love the planet earth and have been caring for it and man since man's beginning. We watch the spirit in all things. We are the caretakers and are responsible. And this is why we have been taking the form from man. We have been collecting every species and every gender of plant for hundreds of years."

One of my abductee friends has been told by the great beings the Greys work for, that there are only around 100,000 human souls that are indigenous to the earth. These are the people who are being used most often for breeding stock for the new form man will take. We call them hybrids. They will be able to access more planes of reality than the current human form, and therefore will have greater access to the "Big Picture". If indeed man destroys himself, these new body forms will be available for his soul to inhabit (through the normal birth process I assume). This is a great evolutionary step upwards, but we are kicking and screaming all the way. I have many friends who once they understood Grey intentions, and dealt with their own fears, began to look forward to the encounters and felt it an honor to do their part.

International U.F.O. Center

Since the opening in August there have been over 2,000 people visit the Museum. Over 50% are from other countries. I am pleased at the response that I am getting from the Museum. One group from Canada said "We visited all the major attractions, Epcot, MGM Studios, Universal Studios and this was the highlight of our trip." A young newlywed couple on their honeymoon made four visits in as many days and said that they will be back on their first anniversary. They also said that this was the highlight of their honeymoon (hard to believe - grin).

The International UFO Center is sponsor of the International UFO Museum. We are not associated with any other organization, we recognize and support all who research and investigate the subject of UFOs.

I have faith that this is what I am supposed to do and I am going to give it the best effort I can to make it the best UFO Museum in the world. I have some wonderful people giving me support and are behind me 100%, and when you have that you can't miss.

IN THE UNIVERSE

YES, we are NOT alone!!!

HISTORY: In 1947, Kenneth Arnold saw nine disk-shaped objects while flying near Mt. Rainier in Washington State. When reporters asked him what the objects looked like, he dubbed the phrase:

"FLYING SAUCERS"

Two weeks later, a UFO crashed outside of Roswell, New Mexico. The U.S. Air Force announced that it was a flying saucer, but the next day declared it was a weather balloon. Many witnesses, who were involved in the recovery of the object, said it was an extraterrestrial craft and that the government recovered four deceased aliens from the wreckage.

THIS CRASH STARTED THE GREATEST COVER-UP IN THE HISTORY OF THE HUMAN RACE.

Since these two events in 1947, uncountable numbers of people have seen UFOs, including such well-known people as Presidents Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan, NASA astronauts and Beatle musician John Lennon. Come and see the photographs, videos, newspaper articles and books about UFO sightings around the world. The photographic collection includes Ed Walters' photos of UFOs over Gulf Breeze, Florida — the most active UFO site in the United States.

After you visit the FREE MUSEUM, browse through the museum's specialty shop. You will find UFO books, tapes, posters, T-shirts, cards and many other items available for purchase.

TRO LETTER #7

On High Surveillance Over Washington, D.C.
December 14, 1992

Dear Aileen:

I implore you to please stay at the leadership another year or two. If not as a favor to me, then to your loyal readers. Also, to train/prepare other(s) to eventually assume your role.

Thank you for once again putting what I sent into your print --altho the pertinence of the asteroid story was likely lost to most, without the contextual basis (the fact that it was a remnant of a much larger body which we destroyed -- accounting for its anomalous spinning and glowing). But I'm sure you will catch up with those explannns later.

As to your question surrounding the sudden quitting of many researchers, it is not an easy answer. While there has been several such individuals we've actively sought to discourage away from the field (not always successfully) most of them are leaving because of the inherent frustrvexations -- conditions I referred to in my letter #3 (10-10-91) under the heading of "difficulting twist-mix." Everyone is not as persevering as you've been, Aileen, and even you grow tired. Imagine the lesser ones!

But it's more than that. owing to the route we've taken these past 6 years under my helmship, what was experienced as a speeding-up of events has now leveled off. In my last two or three letters, I explained something of this, how we have decided to wait till the latter 90s for more fullified openization.

If I give you some added reasons why we've gone back to the original timetable, perhaps you'll better understand why we had to conduct in this manner. Allow me an analogy: I've done a little cooking while here (something rare to do as almost all of our food is pre-done/automated) and it's like when you put the burner on "high" until the water begins to boil, then turn it down to moderate -- retaining a verge-of-boil state -- because you wish to eat later than originally anticipated. But you couldn't be sure when you first set the gauge what your dinner plans would be, say you acted in such a way as to have full-option -- early or later.

Or another analogy: A politician is considering running for an office. He does a full run-up, including hiring some staff, soliciting funds, etc. But at the day of the filing deadline, he pulls up his engines, deciding to wait instead for a future electest. But he had to do it that way, simulating his candidacy until the last moment, in case the path was clear. His supporters and funders are disappointed, but he had to look at the big picture -- the overall success of his mission/agenda.

As to the other reasons for the decision-vote to delay quickified contact, I will provide 2 more. One, to give credits due, is the success of the Rio-Brazil environmental convention. We were notably impressed with the resolves and planactions set into course by the attendees. It's clearevident that some worrisom problem areas are becoming on'way to being resolved.

Second, and related, was our realization during the summer that the Clinton/Gore election was a lock-up deal, which would insure, among other positive resultants, that the ecovironmental crisis your world faces into will be effectively dealt with. As I've mentioned several times, this (fearful) consideration is what caused me to "turn up the heat," so as to be in a position, if need be, to establicate early -- to concertify against some of these looming ecoclysmic situablems.

Also, you'll be heartened, we've recently received two more atmo-ships to help with the ozone condition, and have been thus able to fight back some of the worst areas. But it is still, as you might say, "touch-and-go."

One of the other problem sources, the old Soviet Union's nuclear waste legacy, has now been publicated. (Altho the article I include does not tell the half-story.) Maybe something can be done on this, as we have had to assign almost half a convoy (6 cruiships, 40 pers'nel) on that constantacious alert-duty. Besides leakage, and possible damage from land and subaqueous quakes, there's the fact that there exists a few renegade gov'ments (Iran now has some advanced naval vehicles) and at least one "Captain Nemo" type person who, if they knew the location and vulnerability of such material, would set bombs and blackmail the Russians or the UN with it's detonation. Or steal it to the America coastline, and play for big dollars.

There have been many criminal attempts of this nature, on a somewhat smaller scale, which have been aborted by Interpol and Western Intelligence Divisions -- things you never hear about. And some have gotten past their efforts, or escaped their detection altogether, which we have ourselves handled. But you can thank us later.

Wishing You a (Happy) Holiday Season - Peace and Protection Tro

NUCLEAR TIME BOMBS

Not only is Chernobyl still a danger. So are many similar reactors, sunken submarines and radioactive waste dumps.

By JAMES O. JACKSON CHERNOBYL

FEW ENVIRONMENTAL NIGHTMARES strike a more frightening chord than Chernobyl. It is not merely the radioactive mess left by the 1986 meltdown. Six years later, 19 similar graphite-moderated nuclear time bombs are still ticking away, alarming relics of a badly designed, haplessly run nuclear-power program that none of the independent republics of the former Soviet Union can afford to shut down. The potential killers bring light, heat and power to parts of Russia, Ukraine and Lithuania, where their immediate decommissioning would create unacceptable economic disruption and even civil unrest.

The handling of Chernobyl is hardly reassuring. When workers finished the huge steel-and-concrete shell that entombs the intensely radioactive mass of the shattered No. 4 reactor in late 1986, Soviet officials declared the site safe for at least 30 years. Yet today the sarcophagus is cracked, crumbling and in peril of a disastrous collapse. The melted-down fuel is turning to unstable dust. Contaminated objects are being smuggled out of the poorly guarded 1,092-sq.-mi. exclusion zone. Birds fly into the sarcophagus through holes as big as a garage door; rats breed in the ruin. The structure is so unsteady that a strong windstorm could smash it, sending a plume of radioactive dust into the atmosphere. "Nothing is being done to clean it up," says Alex Sich, an American engineer who has studied the Chernobyl site.

Nor has anything been done about the threat of nuclear contamination in the oceans. Over the years four Soviet submarines, their reactors full of nuclear fuel, sank accidentally. The most dangerous, the world was reminded last week, may be the Komsomolets, which caught fire in April 1959 and went down in more than 4,500 ft of water 310 miles off the coast of Norway. The wreck is already leaking cesium-137, a carcinogenic isotope. So far the leakage is considered too small to affect marine life or human health.

But the Komsomolets also carried two nuclear torpedoes containing 28 lbs. of plutonium with a half-life of 24,000 years and toxicity so high that a speck can kill Russian experts warned that the plutonium could spill into the water and contaminate vast reaches of ocean as early as 1984.

At Chernobyl the concern is even more immediate. There is ever-present danger in the operation of reactor No. 3 too. Despite a government plan to shut down the entire plant, No. 3 was reactivated after officials pleaded that its energy was essential for the coming winter. Like its ruined twin, No. 3 is considered fundamentally unsafe by the International Atomic Energy Agency. It may be even more so now: many Russian operators have returned home, leaving a reactor run by Ukrainians

In 60-second shifts, soldiers clad in lead clear debris atop Chernobyl. Radiation damaged this black-and-white photo, and would destroy any color film

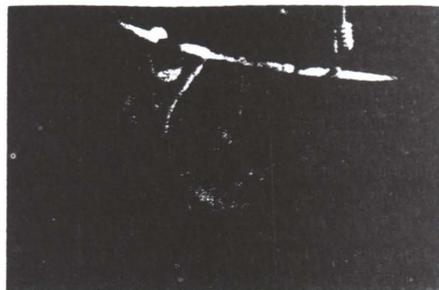

Ozone hole 12-10-92

 U.S. scientists announced that the hole in the protective layer of high-altitude ozone has closed over Antarctica following a 13-week period of depletion. Earlier this year, the fall in ozone concentrations resulted in the most serious damage to the shield against ultraviolet radiation on record. The hole extended for the first time as far north as the southern tip of South America.

who are ill-trained, badly paid and demoralized.

Little progress has been made on cleaning up the surrounding region. There is no equipment to decontaminate topsoil, and contaminated groundwater is backing up behind a concrete barrier near the reservoir that supplies water to the 2.6 million residents of Kiev. More than 700 peasants evacuated in 1986 have quietly moved back to their farm plots, where they consume contaminated animals and produce. "They would rather die here than live somewhere else," says Alexander Borovoi, a Russian nuclear physicist in charge of the sarcophagus. Some returned to find their homes pillaged of religious art. Although contaminated with cesium 137 and strontium 90, some of the icons have probably entered the world art market.

Hot spots abound in the buildings and equipment around Chernobyl. A disabled bulldozer sets off alarms on hand-held radiometers, showing 10 times the internationally accepted exposure level for nuclear-power workers. The big Mi-8 helicopters that were used to drop sand into the blazing reactor in 1986—collecting such heavy radiation that some pilots died—rest in a field along with hundreds of contaminated trucks and armored personnel carriers, many stripped of engines and electronic gear. The radiation is not enough to cause immediate illness, but looters are taking long-term risks. Health officials estimate that 10,000 deaths will result from fallout-induced cancers.

Chernobyl is only one of many examples of nuclear contamination and carelessness throughout the former Soviet Union. A devastating 1957 nuclear-waste explosion and subsequent dumping of contaminants near Chelyabinsk, 900 miles east of Moscow, is now thought to have released pollution totaling 1.2 billion curies, a unit measure of contamination. That compares with about 3 million curies from the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima. Says Murray Feshbach, co-author of Ecocide in the USSR: "The new evidence of widespread nuclear pollution is so incredible, it's hard to believe."

For more than 30 years the Soviets intentionally dumped enormous quantities of radioactive rubbish into the environment. Russian authorities have pinpointed a series of such sites along the country's Arctic coast, where currents can carry contaminants to Alaska and the north coast of Canada.

The worst of the poisoned sites is Novaya Zemlya, two Arctic islands used as a nuclear-weapons test range. Already contaminated by bomb fallout, the islands were turned into a nuclear garbage bin. The Russians admit they dropped as many as 17,000 barrels of radioactive waste into the surrounding seas since 1964. Sailors reportedly shot holes in some of the barrels when they failed to sink.

At least eight marine reactors, three from the nuclear icebreaker Lenin and the others from decommissioned submarines, have been scuttled in Novaya Zemlya's shallow bays. The dead reactors are encased in layers of steel and may be harmless for many years. But inside, their cores contain dangerous isotopes.

The West has been highly critical of the Soviet nuclear legacy but has done little to alleviate the danger. Foreigners come mainly to gather data on the effects—medical, industrial and political—of accidents, and then disappear. "Sometimes we feel like rabbits in a laboratory," says Viktor Ribachuk, Ukraine's deputy environment minister. Ukraine officials argue that they cannot do without nuclear power for the next five or six years, and many contend they will need it permanently.

So no one expects to see the end of these nuclear time bombs anytime soon. There are plans afoot to extend the life of some old reactors and to lift a post-Chernobyl moratorium on completing others. Dangerous reactors will be running into the 21st century. The crumbling sarcophagus over Chernobyl's devastated No. 4 may still be there too—if it has not collapsed by then. —With reporting by Bruce van Voorst/Washington

CONTAMINATION

- 1 Chernobyl: Reactor meltdown in 1986 released heavy isotopes of plutonium and uranium, contaminating a large area around it. There are 19 similar reactors still in operation.
- 2 Chelyabinsk: A tank containing waste from a nuclear-weapons plant exploded in 1957. Nearby Techa River is severely contaminated.
- 3 Barents Sea: Off Norway, a submarine sank with its reactor and nuclear-armed torpedoes on board.
- 4 Novaya Zemlya: Nuclear test and dump site. Up to 17,000 bbl. of solid radioactive waste was dropped into the waters offshore and into the Kara Sea between 1964 and 1990. Nearly 165,000 cubic meters of liquid waste was dumped into the Barents Sea between 1961 and 1990, and at least eight submarine reactors, some with fuel, and three reactors from an ice breaker were sunk off Novaya Zemlya.

5 Semipalatinsk: Nuclear testing area. More than 125 atmospheric explosions were set off before 1962, and some 300 underground tests have been carried out since.

6 Ob and Yenisei rivers: Contaminated by waste from nuclear-weapons plants.

7 Petropavlovsk, Sea of Okhotsk and Vladivostok: Radioactive waste has been dumped in these areas by the Pacific Fleet.

THE SEDONA CHRONICLES

The Blue Door

Around 10:00 or 10:30 p.m. on July 4, 1992, Independence Day, our celebration stopped us in our tracks! My husband and I had driven down to the Village of Oak Creek, past the crowds that were forming to see the fireworks. Since I don't care for crowds, we went past the area where the fireworks display was to take place.

A friendly policeman directed us down a fork in the road. He said there were a few turn-arounds and to make sure we came back or we'd be on a rough road. We followed his directions, staying to the right. We were looking for a turn-around where we could park our van, sit on folding chairs and watch the fireworks.

I spotted what appeared to be a small blue rectangular road sign in the distance, directly in front of us. It looked like one of those signs that may indicate a turn-around. The color blue appeared bright and reflective.

As we came closer, what I had thought was a sign got bigger and bigger. We finally realized it wasn't a road sign at all, but a big shimmering electric-blue rectangle that looked like a door, standing inside of a huge juniper bush about 15 or 20 feet away from the van. We backed up and noticed that the profile of the door appeared to be paper-thin. We moved the car again so we were looking directly at this door. To our amazement, the door, which was about 8 to 10 feet high and about 5 feet wide, quivered. It appeared as if someone or something had cut a hole in time and we were the only audience. No one else was down the road this far — no people, no houses, no cars — and we hadn't brought the camera.

My husband said, "Well, they're your friends, ask them to do something." I said, "Okay guys, it's the 4th of July, and you're here in the United States. Do something spectacular, now, to show me that you care and that you know I'm here." With that, the alien light jumped all over the mountain. Jump, jump, jump and then the light went out!

My husband said, "Hey, they're your friends; ask them to come back." I hesitated a few seconds. I knew in my heart what this phenomenon was. I said, "Okay guys, come back now!" They were back the second I closed my lips.

This was no ordinary episode. I had commanded them to show themselves, and they had. I had a witness to confirm that I had communicated with something. They wanted me to go through this door. I knew the door was beckoning me to walk through time. They didn't command me or force me, but asked me to walk through to the other side.

Can you imagine this opportunity? I had been offered an amazing journey, the ultimate reward for their Earthly friend.

My husband warned me that I might not ever come back. He also warned me that this warp could return me years later when many of my loved ones would be gone. He didn't want me to go. Perhaps he was right, I thought.

My God! — the realization shook me — this is it. Here and now! Yes or no! Go or not go! I hesitated too long. The alien light jumped all over the mountain again, but this time a huge saucer-shaped, blue-colored neon ellipse appeared near the top of the mountain. It started to shrink ever so slowly until a tiny blue ball whisked off into oblivion. Maybe when my stories are all told will I be able to go through the blue door with no regrets. 'Til we meet again, dear friends.

From Russia With Love

I have in my possession an extremely rare Russian video. This video concerns special visitors from another planet who visited Tbilisi, Georgia, which sits between the bottom of Russia and the northeastern side of Turkey by the Black Sea. The film reveals information regarding a variety of severe health problems experienced by the people in the area who were completely cured, as well as painless operations that were 100% successful, all treated by these visitors.

The inhabitants of Georgia have alien visitors on a daily basis. These visitors seem to have great affection for the people of Georgia. After almost six hours of studying this film carefully, I feel it is the most outstanding first-hand information about extraterrestrials ever to be filmed anywhere in the world.

The film, which was done entirely by non-professionals, opens with a placid scene near the Black Sea. Documentation by scientists verified the facts, and the film shows events as they actually happened. The following are highlights from over five hours of film.

- Hundreds of witnesses are gazing at the sky, watching a spaceship in the daytime. Then there is a shot of a mysterious ship flying over the city at night.
- An unbelievable event takes place in the apartment of an average family. The family is awakened when the beds and furniture suddenly burst into flame. Everything from upholstery to bedlinen is destroyed but, miraculously, no one is hurt. Firey footprints are seen on camera.
- A second family is shown, in which the mother's bed and the baby's crib have caught fire. It seems that a strange, laser-like beam awakens sleeping families. The visitors, who seem to be benevolent, don't know their own power or what a household door is, because they enter from the roof by cutting their way in with a beam of light.
- For some reason, they throw some odd stones that witnesses have seen materialize. The stones are on fire and - are very hot; they cool down normally.

- Jewelry, a portrait, a make-up compact and a lipstick used as a writing instrument on human witnesses, as well as other gifts, have been left behind by these visitors.
 - People have been "taught" by the extraterrestrials to write any questions on ordinary paper. The answers are returned in the morning, written on the same paper, in fluent Russian by a mysterious hand. All questions are answered but if the visitors don't like the question, they cross it out. An alien named Odoni Artart says he wants to take one of the children up to the ship.
 - They themselves have written, "We are extraterrestrials." They have given descriptions and instructions on building flying saucers, on their religious philosophy, their origin and their reason for being.
 - A young woman describes a huge man entering her bedroom. The man appeared human. He had a gloved hand. She felt his hand to make sure she wasn't dreaming.
 - Another young woman has heard the sound of water in her room. Her mother witnessed the same thing in the adjoining room. Neither she nor her mother could move. A paralysis came over them as someone entered their bedrooms. When they finally were able to get up after "it" had left, they found a small mysterious object that looks like a compact for face powder.
 - A man describes a small grey man with big ears being in his bedroom. He seems to be afraid of the creature. The visitor was about three feet tall, had a white face and black hair and was holding a strange object. The storyteller called on his friend to turn on the light and they noticed all the storyteller's papers had been moved to another location. At 6 a.m. this small man reappeared along with another, tall being (or could this be a shape-changer?).
 - A woman hears her neighbor running down the street screaming. She and her husband see two small, flickering lights that suddenly disappear. After she assures him that he is being followed by "friendly" aliens, he ceases to be upset.
 - A beautiful young girl of about 10 or 12 years of age is watching an entity and describes what is happening as the camera films her. It is obvious that the visitor communicates visually and mentally with the child. She also sketches the amiable visitor for the audience and asks the being, "Why have you come?" As she follows him toward the window, she says he told her something but she is afraid to tell. The child and the alien seem to have a pleasant rapport. They talk even as he floats out of the window....

- Another young girl of about 16 or 17 goes to bed and winds up in a trance that somehow develops in her the power to heal. These healing powers seem to emanate from an unseen "guide." The girl sees with her eyes closed. She is asked to use her powers to heal a heart patient. She is shy and reluctant but describes exactly how the alien moves her hands.

Note: In all these cases, a dowser is on hand to measure the unknown energy.

- A girl, also around her mid-teens, describes an entity that has a triangle and a design on his top. His eyes are three times larger than ours, she says. His name sounds like "Robert." She takes the viewer to a nearby zoo in an effort to prove that animals see and sense what she sees. The film shows a cage of four wolves, then a cage with a large tiger. The behavior of the animals clearly shows that something is in the cage. Even the jaguar is no exception. Each animal sees and sniffs this stranger who is a blur on the screen which shows only outlines of his energy, but it is obvious that something is definitely there.
- A woman describes how her son paints a visiting entity and he shows drawings by his mysterious friend for the camera. The entity sees the mother of the boy as being green. The alien enters the boy's body and draws what he sees. The mother gets added energy from the entity. She then describes the wonders of this benevolent entity. She says he gets his strength from the cosmos. Then she sketches the entity and asks it, "Who are you?" He responds, "I am You and You are Me." She sketches an eye in the cosmos. The entity enters her body as a body of light with a circular motion in the shape of an eye. This eye shows her where people need to be cured. When she sees this eye moving on the illness, she responds and cures from this guidance.
- A young boy describes what seems to be the abduction of his brother. Shortly before going on the ship his brother suddenly starts to limp and walk like a robot. Both brothers are finally taken on board the ship by a woman and two men who operate the ship. The inside of the ship has strange writing. The boys describe it in great detail. The aliens knew the boys were hungry and offered them silver-colored bread that "she" carried in her pants. She took pieces of ordinary paper and placed them on the boys' heads for some reason. She also took off their clothes which they didn't like, so they ran away. When the boys came back they had their clothing. They described hearing strange sounds and said that the visitors traveled quite a long distance. The boys begged to be returned home and were dropped off in a strange place after dark. The aliens told the boys that they felt we were at war with them and felt threatened.

- A mother and son talk about being asked to come aboard a ship. The same family shows how the walls of the house are being written on by a mysterious hand.
- An old woman shares how mysterious writing appears on the walls. Another woman reads mysterious answers to questions (in Russian). She even put out some fancy pastries which were apparently eaten by these mysterious aliens. They must have a sweet tooth.
- A small boy in a classroom describes a being who seems all black with long hair and big ears, and he makes a drawing of it. The being hopped or jumped, moving very quickly. Suddenly he stopped and disappeared.
- A little girl was pushed to the ground and held by a leg. Her girlfriend ran for help. This alien had a slit for a mouth. It was a three-fingered dwarf-like creature. Other children describe various three-fingered creatures, and a little boy shows how the creatures hop down the stairs.
- A classroom scene shows clearly how an unseen hand teaches the students. Mandulay, the alien male teacher, reteaches the children biology and biochemistry as witnesses look on. He tells how the chemical elements and other sciences are not correct and teaches about elements unknown on Earth prior to that time. Actual footage of this classroom work, as well as formulas corrected by this teacher, are shown on film. The principal was surprised and excited by the appearance of Mandulay, as were all the teachers and pupils. The principal also observed mysterious chemical formulas appearing on the blackboard, written by Mandulay's unseen hand. A mysterious saucer hovered over the school and these strange events have taken place ever since. Imagine correcting human mathematical and chemical errors before the students learn it incorrectly!

- The family of a diabetic girl witnesses her in a trance-like state. During this state, her family heard voices but didn't interfere. The girl describes Bonyatari, her wonderful visitor who awakened her while she slept, and tells of the pleasant journey aboard the ship. She says something was placed on her face by another alien named Anuda. The girl describes a respirator-type of device that the aliens used. She said that they had faces similar to humans except there were no noticeable lips. They asked, "Are you happy today?" as they swept her out of her body. While on board the ship, they offered her a sweet drink which she refused because she was diabetic. They assured her that she was now cured and told her that they would also cure others. The doctor who cured her was named Atari. She suddenly came to in her chair at home. Her family doctor did a blood test and verified that she was cured. Her mother showed objects from outer space, some charred objects and odd-shaped paper that were placed in her daughter's hands while she slept. The beings advised adding some mysterious stones to a glass of water and drinking the water to assist in the cure. The girl now shows no signs of disease.
- A man awakened in the woods with a terrible headache. His car was on the road, dead. He went to his car and seeing him, people thought he was drunk. A young man stopping to help also thought the man was drunk. The first man said his back hurt and would the young man take a look at it. The young man discovered mysterious writings on the first man's back. Eventually another man took him home. The first man then remembered that earlier, when driving down the road to his home, he had been taken on board a spaceship. One of the female beings he had encountered reappeared and told the man they would teach him to cure others and that it would take six years. She asked him to come with her. From then on she periodically appeared and he was taken on the spaceship several more times. He eventually joined a research group who retraced his steps. The dowers were able to monitor the energy at the place where he was abducted.

- A woman who fell asleep while writing in her diary awoke with a headache and discovered a mysterious watery star and a half moon drawn on her arm.

Friendly aliens were responsible for all of these events:

- A scar on a man's arm disappeared in 12 hours.
- The shaven stomach of a man shows a slight scar. He was permanently and painlessly cured of a heart condition.
- A boy's knee was injured and has now been operated on and healed.
- An operation by aliens on a man's back cured him of pain.
- An operation was performed on a man's heart, his brain, ears and throat. Only a slight burn mark is left.
- Another man diagnosed as having angina was operated on near the heart. After the operation there were some circular marks on his chest, perhaps showing the origin or location in the universe of the aliens performing the operation. Expert doctors and scientists are examining these patients.
- Prof. Bochereshoni, who was visited by aliens in a mental hospital, has now diagnosed and cured many mental patients. Some patients have shown remarkable cures. He is now documenting his findings.

The people who have been the recipients of these cures are divided into two groups: those with marks on their body, and those with no marks. Many experienced strange but rapid cures. Patients with incurable diseases have experienced total recovery.

The Georgians, with the assistance of the aliens, have established written formulas for curing many illnesses. As of now, 37% of all patients die because of human error. With alien help and technology, more people can be saved. It is obvious that alien technology is being welcomed by this country.

Why is it that the aliens have chosen this tiny country? Is it because the citizens of Georgia are not blocked and have surprisingly more freedom than others? Is it that this little country is more advanced in their overall evolution and are willing to learn from these cosmic teachers? Is it possible those of the great cosmos are teaching us the real meaning of love?

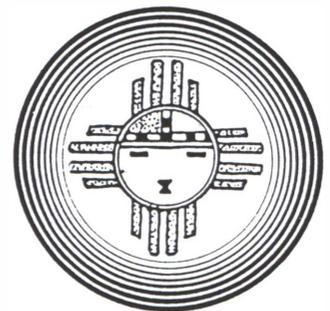

Look to the stars in 1993. We must open our hearts, and our minds must not be locked against knowledge from the rest of the universe. With knowledge comes wisdom. We are on the brink of immortality and we are not alone! Happy New Year!

LIFE IS A GOOD FOUR-LETTER WORD

*L is for LOVE
I is for INFINITE
F is for FULL OF IT
E is for EVER*

*Life has a beginning, it has an end
And in between you can begin
To grow and learn or coast and drift
Meet the challenge, help and lift
Your spirits up, and those around
Give a hand, take a hand, understand
Feel it...live it...give it all you've got
Don't waste it, fill it with laughter and with tears
And when you come to the end of your years
You can look back and proudly say,
This time around, I gave life its full play
I traveled along life's spiral road
I reached the top
And enjoyed the trip all the way.*

- Ronna Herman

The following is an excerpt transcribed from a lecture given by Mr. Luis Fernando Mostajo, a contactee from Bolivia when he is in Miami early in November.

The message of hope is not centered in contact with extraterrestrial beings, but with Man himself, who is the main player.

My first telepathic communication came like this: "Yes, I am Aeb, first Commander from the Apu Command... in this way I arrive to you."

It's this humanity's turn to live in a world that has been called to change. The need for contact is to bring some values which are necessary for the world. It is physical, mental and spiritual food useful to restate our lives in a more balanced way.

The preparation needed to have a physical encounter took me three years. During this period, there were many pre-arranged sightings.

Xendra - dimensional doors. Domes of concentrated luminous energy that accelerates the frequency of the molecular vibratory rate of our bodies in order to be dematerialized and transported. On January 12, 1980, in the Valley of Huayna Potosi, Bolivia, a lenticular-shaped ship projects a beam of light and forms a dome luminosity on the ground. This was my first Xendra experience. Time and space can be controlled at will. I felt a sensation of being startled, rather than fearful. I felt like losing weight. A tall, blonde humanoid met me inside. His appearance was human, his skin was tanned and his eyes were somewhat slanted. He had a somewhat prominent chin. All uneasiness was relieved by the serenity and love he projected. Great friendliness and wisdom.

Principles of Life were taught, principles of Common-Unity or Community.

"As above, so below". A Confederation protects and watches over Earth, much like the UN does in your world." Through isolated and group contacts, values are transferred, so that, when the day arrives - without violating our free will - we will be able to say that we are integrated.

* The real spiritual path lies in the understanding of the laws of nature. It is beyond all formalities.

"A far greater experience will be an encounter with the Great White Brotherhood afterwards; with the Elders, the guardians of the etheric archives of the world. This knowledge will be to set the basis of the new generations."

Xenon, a guide from the planet CERPICAN II in Canis Majoris, created a hologram to explain about the internal positive government of Earth. He explains to me that we possess seven bodies and seven major energy centers. He said that Earth also had seven major natural energy centers where the inner retreats are found. "When the elders of the ages of this world will speak, everyone is going to listen, since there is nothing that can resist their light." "The great master key that will allow you to access your first inner retreat is to Love God above all else and your brothers as yourself." This message I had heard before so many times, yet not understood in its entirety...

Those who have opened the heart to love will be able to access to any knowledge from the inner retreats.

"Yes, inside of the spiritual vanguard groups, schemes are beginning to be transcended; this foretells what is going to take place soon in a physical level."

We should look forward to the changing of vertical power structures into horizontal ones. Each person has a personal role of service to offer. All tasks are equally important. We need to govern our lives and assume responsibility. Let us act so that the prophecies won't be fulfilled...

Prophecies have been given for us to change our lives so that they do not happen.

The most important thing is the message, not the phenomena or the beings of light. The main player is the human being.

One of the instruments used for these contacts or this mission was the group. The human being is governed by numerical connotations. 1990 was a year that signaled transcending schemes and structures. $1 + 9 = 10 + 9 = 19$. And again $1 + 9 = 10$. 1 represents the One; 0 represents the all. The "tenth stroke of the bell" had been expected for several years within Mission Rama. It arrived in 1990 and signaled going beyond "our" group to share with all of humanity as one.

The schedule of contacts Rama continues, but at a different level. *The guides and masters do not sponsor any group in particular. We realized that we were working for a label. Our true freedom starts where we grant it to others, being in contact more than with persons, with hearts.

Lake Titicaca is a natural condenser of Solar Energy. Like a mirror; the highest in the world, it reflects sunlight. There exists a temple inside to capture the solar energy and send it to other parts of the world.

Knowledge was centered in Shangri-la, and, before the Chinese invasion, this irradiation was transferred to the Andean Mountain Range, above all, between Cuzco and Bolivia. The "Solar Retreat of the Lake" is an activator of our atomic structure.

In everything that is occult, there exists no mystery.

Until we are ready, certain mysteries will not be revealed, such as the conscious manipulation of our energies. It is us, that are the ones that have to do the effort.

In our evolution there was an insertion of a new genetics. Genes can transfer values and knowledge.

*In the Universe, stages are not jumped over, they are traversed. The final process of change has been prepared for 2,000 years. The human being will live in a fourth dimension.

In order for man not to export his aggressiveness to other places, the change must take place within.

The great energetic vertebral column (connected to the Andes) ends in Shasta.

Love is a generating energy of life and it's accessed to by LOVING. Knowledge will arrive directly to each person.

Bio-technologies will signal the beginning of a new universal science.

OUTA LIMITS UFO ENIGMA MUSEUM

6108 SOUTH MAIN
P.O. BOX 6047
ROSWELL, NEW MEXICO 88202-6047

Roswell's FIRST UFO Museum became a reality on April 4, 1992! It was named "UFO Enigma Museum," and has since been recognized as one of the world's premier museums on Extra Terrestrial Phenomenon and Unidentified Flying Objects.

UFO Enigma is seen as New Mexico's center of serious research and exhibits one must see! This can be attested by the many visits of the following national and world organizations: CNN, Sightings, Good Morning America, Magazines Omni and Mufon Journal, plus visitors showing interest and curiosity from our own states, Russia, Brazil, England, Canada and other countries.

UFO Enigma is located right where such a museum should be "next door to where the action took place!" That of allegedly boxing saucer debris for shipment by aircraft... and near the old Roswell Army Air Field hospital (Where alien bodies were allegedly taken to and prepared for shipment.) Much of the hospital has been done away with... but the old loading and unloading ramp is still in use! And P-1 Hanger, where the wreckage was taken to... is still intact!

This fantastic museum, with its "Blue Room," and 1991 Award Winning Display, is found at 6108 South Main Street, Roswell, New Mexico. Just north of RAAF's main gate location (renamed Walker Air Force Base in August of 1947) and near the railroad tracks. (See directions.)

W. W. "Mac" Brazel reported his FIND to the Sheriff of Chaves County, headquartered in Roswell. The telling is laid-out in ten-year periods. Making it easy to follow and understand. There are a large number of edited government documents, bonafide newspaper articles, and stories by hands-on individuals to be viewed!

A UFO souvenir shop is located in adjacent "Outa Limits Video." where books, video tapes, magazines, cups, copies of the original July 8, 1947 Roswell Daily Record newspaper and T-shirts may be purchased.

If you want to be a member a fee of $25.00 annually includes:

1. A year's subscription to our quarterly newsletter.
2. A 50% discount on admission to the museum.
3. A UFO Enigma Museum membership card.

NATIONAL UFO DEMONSTRATION

March on Washington, D.C.
July 5, 1993

END UFO SECRECY!

$$$ FUNDS ARE ESSENTIAL $$$

We of Operation Right to Know have made much initial progress so far. On April 28, 1992, we organized the first UFO demonstration in history in front of the White House. We have lobbied Congress. We are building a national organization through our bulletin, The Right to Know Forum. We have been written about in the press, including the MUFON Journal, UFO, and Omni.

All funds until now have come from the personal incomes of the organizers. If we are to turn a small ripple into a mighty wave, we must obtain adequate financing. If you agree with our program, we ask for your financial support. Make your checks payable to:

Operation Right to Know
P.O. Box 2911
Hyattsville, MD 20784

Donors of $15 or more will receive a year's subscription to The Right to Know Forum. We estimate $5,000 as the cost of organizing the Second National March on Washington in July 5, 1993, and local actions elsewhere. For those who would greatly facilitate this effort by making a large financial contribution, please contact Mike Jamieson, Napa, Calif. 707-257-2102.

WHAT IS IT?

By Matthew Thuney

As virtually all other fields of study, the study of Unidentified Flying Objects (UFOlogy) has undergone many changes over the past few decades. What started as simply a search for flying saucers now encompasses explorations into physics, psychology, sociology, philosophy, and the very nature of reality itself.

When the modern UFO era began in the 1940s, the entire matter seemed simple, if strange, enough. We were looking for mysterious spaceships of apparently alien origin. Metallic discs, soon dubbed "flying saucers," were being seen with alarming regularity, and the search for proof of their existence (presumably in the form of physical evidence) was on. Thousands of startling photos were taken. Burn spots appeared on lawns. Rumors of crashed discs abounded. The U.S. government was said to be in possession of pieces of wreckage, whole spacecraft, bodies of crew, even live aliens. A campaign of intimidation and disinformation was initiated by certain obscure, perhaps quasi-official, segments of the government. UFO witnesses and investigators were being manipulated and lied to, the public being wildly misled. Why? Would the knowledge that we are being visited by extraterrestrial civilizations lead to public panic and chaos, as was suggested?

But just when it seemed certain that we were dealing with a physical phenomenon whose parameters we could somehow measure (or at least capture on radar for heaven's sake!), the character of the UFO experience changed. Witnesses were no longer simply seeing the darned things, but being taken aboard them, examined, warned about the future of our planet, then dropped off in a state of anguish, anger, and awe. This was getting personal! But was it physical? Since folks from all walks of life all around the world shared similar experiences, the "abduction" phenomenon as it became known, could not simply be dismissed as a dream. But is it really real; that is, a real-life, concrete event, rather than a mysterious metaphysical manifestation? Are we witnessing a new form of everyday reality (a new channel on our existential TVs, so to speak), or participating in a whole new ballgame (some sort of "hype-r-reality")?

The mutation of the UFO experience has caused an increasing number of psychologists and philosophers to leap into the fray. One current theory that's all the rage postulates that the UFO phenomenon may be some kind of projection from humanity's "collective unconscious," or, as one researcher puts it, "Mind at Large." Perhaps certain personalities are prone to the experience, and under certain physical circumstances, can be thrown into a state of altered consciousness wherein they have access to this "Mind at Large" which informs the participant that we human beings are really screwing things up and really ought to take better care of ourselves and our planet before it's curtains for the human race.

Interesting theory. But I doubt it. Unless our collective mind is capable of leaving scars on our bodies and landing traces in our yards. You knew I had to get my two cents in, right? So here's my response to all this strangeness, my best guess as to what's happening.

I have no idea. Hardly worth the two cents, eh? Even with the Canadian exchange.

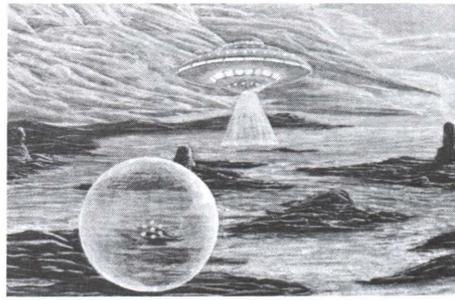

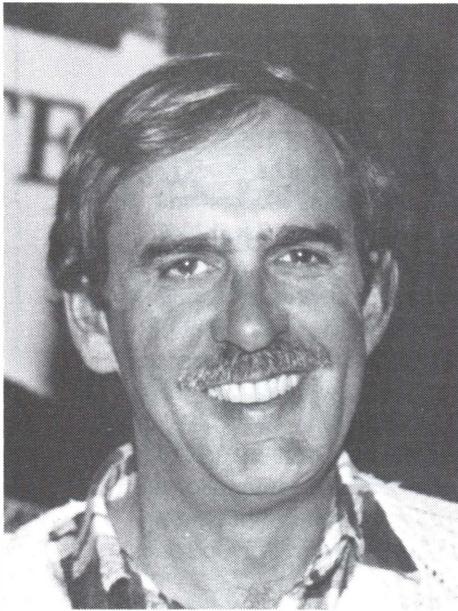

The problem is, we're not dealing with a single, unified phenomenon, but a whole set of diverse phenomena of unknown origin. It is doubtful that a single theory from a single scientific approach can accommodate the entire spectrum of experiences. From physical spacecraft piloted by living, breathing beings, to metaphysical manifestations of some interdimensional hyperreality, the UFO field now seems to be studying what I can best describe as a wide array of phenomena not indigenous to our reality but partaking in it.

I believe we are being issued an invitation of evolutionary importance. If and when, we learn to decipher this invitation, we will have grown immeasurably as a species. And we will be welcomed to the neighborhood.

UFOs, ETs AND YOU

American Medical Association would be keenly interested in that. The Aborigines she lived with told her that they are going to stop reproducing and die out, because they have seen that the coming Earth changes will leave them with no food. They think it better just to leave the planet. I devoted last month's column to coming Earth changes and this is just another illustration of something big which is about to happen.

The newspapers lately have been full of news about the turning on of two brand new $200,000,000 antennas, one in Arecibo, Puerto Rico, and one in the Mojave Desert in California. The U.S. is trying to discover if there is intelligent life "out there." From my point of view, it looks like there is a great deal of proof that the U.S. and other countries are already fully aware of at least 100 alien life forms and have probably been in constant communication with at least one race or species, maybe more, for some time now. I have covered much on this subject in the past year and a half. So here we have a $200,000,000 farce occurring at a time when the United States is probably on the very verge of financial bankruptcy. We are rapidly nearing the point of being unable to pay the interest on our own national debt ($400 billion in interest per year which is owed, by the way, to the "Federal Reserve." The U.S. Federal Reserve is a private enterprise which is largely owned by European banks and individuals).

UFOs Over New Zealand

A month ago I had an opportunity to view a video tape which was a real eye-opener. In my opinion the tape clearly shows UFOs shooting at each other high over New Zealand. NASA claims that the film footage (which was recorded by a college in Maryland from an open, live transmission from the space shuttle Discovery) is simply images of ice crystals floating around outside of the space shuttle. There are three pertinent segments of film footage taped by the Maryland college.

The third film segment on the tape is a real mind-blower. An object, brilliant, star-like and white, can be seen clearly moving slowly from the upper right onto the screen. In the middle upper right of the screen are two curious stationary objects, probably at least a mile or two apart. One of the stationary objects, like a guiding beacon of some sort, is clearly seen to be sending out strobe-like flashes in intervals of seven: seven flashes, a few seconds' pause, then seven more flashes. To the left of the flashing object, near the center of the screen, is another stationary object that has a distinct, regular, back-and-forth motion, sort of like a scanning radar dish. Both stationary objects seem to be of an oblong, cigar-type shape.

Then from the bottom far left of the screen a second glowing object moves in a straight line onto the screen. The first object, moments before, had taken a 60 degree turn and was moving, still slowly, in a direction that took it between the

Before I get into this month's column, I want to dearly thank all of you who, over the past sixteen months, have sent me photographs of unusual objects, video and audio cassette tapes on unusual subjects and letters of support. Most of the letters are so thoughtful and written from the heart that I will keep them in a permanent collection for as long as I can. Again — thanks. I guess I must be doing something right because I have not had a single word of criticism from readers in the year and a half I have been writing this column. In the beginning I had visions of hordes of enraged people clutching torches and clubs, chasing me through dark streets, screaming things like "fearmonger," "doomsayer," "fatalist" or "alarmist," because of something I had written. But it didn't happen.

I recently received an audio tape from a dear friend in Texas (thanks, Elizabeth). It is about a woman who lived for a while with Aborigines in Western Australia. Living-in-the-wild Aborigines that is, not big-city Aborigines. Outback Aborigines have an incredible ability to telecommunicate over vast distances with perfect accuracy — like human telephones. They do not use knives, needles or drugs to heal themselves. They can heal themselves of just about any malady with only herbs and thought and directed energy. And it doesn't cost a thing! I'm sure the two stationary objects. The second object, which was entering at the lower left, fires a long, shaftlike bolt of light at moving object number one — and misses. Number one speeds up, takes evasive action, makes a sharp turn and heads back in the direction it had come from, toward the right side of the screen. At that moment, a third bright object enters the screen at the top left and also fires at object number one. A long bolt of light streaks from object number three toward object number one. This time the beam apparently doesn't miss. But a split second before the beam hits fleeing object number one, the camera on the Discovery shuts off, or is shut off! The screen goes blank for a second, then all that is seen is a new, peaceful scene of stars and the Earth below. Ice crystals? I sorta doubt it.

Recent Sedona-area UFO Sightings

Last month I mentioned that I think Sedona is now the world's hot spot for UFO activity. A lot of the recent activity in the Sedona area has been occurring near Verde Valley School and in the nearby canyonlands. Two local people, a man and a woman, knew about the activity near Verde Valley School. Late one night in October, they decided to drive down Verde Valley School Road to see if they could spot a UFO. They were going down the sparsely populated dirt road and were joking about the fat chance they had of actually seeing one. They rounded a corner and there, a short distance away, was a very large UFO silently hovering several hundred feet above the desert floor. They were shocked. They pulled over to the side of the road and watched the object for more than ten minutes.

They described the object as being dark steel-gray in color (there was a full moon that night) and bulged in the middle. It appeared to be several hundred feet long. They said it was very alien-looking and was completely silent. There was a flashing yellow-gold light on the top and bottom of the ship's middle and there were five steadily burning, sparkly, yellow-gold lights evenly spaced along its underside. The couple drove on a bit farther in an effort to get a better look at the object, but when they finally reached a closer vantage point, the ship was no longer there.

About the same time as that incident, a man who lives near Verde Valley School said that he had seen a large red-orange ball of light with a long glowing tail fly around Cathedral Rock. This sighting was also late in the evening, about 11:30 p.m.

In late summer of this year, a man who was at the Sedona Airport watched as, in the distance, three "enormous" spheres of whitish light flew past Cathedral Rock. This sighting was around three o'clock in the afternoon on a clear day.

In yet another sighting in the general area near Verde Valley School Road, a Village of Oak Creek man reported seeing a military-type helicopter which was accompanied by three spheres of blazing white light, all slightly smaller than the helicopter. The balls of light, he said, were flying in formation behind the helicopter.

In Secret Canyon, in mid-August, a woman who was camping with her daughter watched a disc-shaped craft fly overhead, and as it did, it shot down beams of light into the canyon. That occurrence has been observed by a number of witnesses in the same area over the past five years.

On the night of August 9, 1992, a man who owns a car dealership was in Long Canyon looking toward Secret Canyon. He told me that he and another witness saw two tremendous flashes of light which came from an area near the mouth of Secret Canyon. He added that the next morning, military-type helicopters were flying in a search-like pattern around Secret Mountain and Secret Canyon.

Several weeks ago I, myself, had another sighting of an extremely odd object. After the episode I wondered, again, "Why me?" I wonder if I just happen to be looking in the right direction or am more observant than most people. It was 8 p.m. on October 15. I was in the area of Munds Mountain which is not far from Bell Rock. I looked up into the clear night sky and saw a flying — or rather floating — object, the sight of which literally electrified me. I was looking at an airliner-sized object which was making a slow banking turn to the east. It was only a few thousand feet above the valley floor. I watched it for two, maybe three minutes. It had a steadily burning red light at one end, and a triangular pattern of non-blinking white lights at the other end. At first it was totally soundless, even though it was no more than a half mile from where I stood. After it had passed in front of me I could hear a distinct roaring sound which may or may not have been jet engines. But I should have heard that sound at the beginning, because the object was so close and was flying so slowly. The thing was either a genuine UFO or some other Stealth-type of who-knows-what that the (our) government is flying, unbeknownst to us.

The Sedona mysteries continue on and on and on...

Fierce religious rioting claims hundreds more lives

BOB DROGIN

Los Angeles Times

NEW DELHI - Fierce Hindu-Muslim riots and pitched battles with police killed hundreds more people Tuesday across India as embattled politicians and moderate religious leaders desperately sought to defuse the bloody cycle of attacks and reprisals that have inflamed the Indian subcontinent.

The reported death toll in two days of street riots climbed above 450 with some 2,000 injured. The violence was sparked by the destruction of a long-disputed Muslim mosque Sunday by militant Hindu zealots in the dusty north Indian town of Ayodhya.

Deaths were reported in half of India's 22 states, as the world's largest democracy continued to splinter on raw religious fault lines.

Armed riot troops and army troops were widely deployed, in some cases with shoot-on-sight orders. Curfews were enforced in numerous Muslim areas for the second night to control the unrest.

The neighboring Muslim nations of Pakistan and Bangladesh were paralyzed by rock-throwing street protests in most major cities, the torching and bulldozing of scores of Hindu temples, and national protest strikes.

At least 20 people were reported killed in anti-Hindu riots in Pakistan, including five women and children who burned to death in a fire-bombed temple.

In a country where politics and religion are inextricably linked, Indian Prime Minister P. V. Narasimha Rao's government announced it would ban extremist religious groups and ordered the arrest of key Hindu nationalist leaders on charges of openly inciting the attack on the ancient mosque.

The government hopes the sharp crackdown will undermine the growing force of the Hindu Bharatiya Janata party.

At least eight right-wing Hindu leaders were arrested, including BJP party chief L. K. Advani. As he was led away from his home, he told reporters that India is moving toward fascism. "This is a move to silence the voice of dissent," Advani said. "It will be suicidal for India."

In a pre-dawn attack at Ayodhya, paramilitary troops fired tear gas grenades to drive away hundreds of fanatic Hindus who already had begun constructing a temple atop the mosque's ruins.

Tens of thousands of Hindu pilgrims and saffron-robed holy men began leaving the north Indian city by train, bus and foot. Television broadcasts showed hundreds perched precariously atop train roofs, together with their bundles of luggage and souvenir bricks and other debris from the demolished mosque.

Radical Hindus insist the 16th-century mosque was built over a Hindu temple that marked the birthplace of Rama, a fabled warrior-king mythologized in the Hindu epic the Ramayana.

idea that there may be other worlds like Earth, orbiting other stars like the sun.

"We have found a place where it is very possible that there will be planets within the next few million years," Edward J. Weiler, program scientist for the space telescope, said Wednesday at a NASA news conference. "This takes us closer to the final proof that there are other planets where there could be life."

C. Robert O'Dell, a Rice University astronomer, said that photos taken by the telescope of a small section of the Orion Nebula detected at least 15 stars surrounded by proto-planetary disks, or bands of dust of the type thought to form planets.

The disks, he said, resemble what the Earth and its solar system neighbors may have looked like when they were forming about the sun 4.6

(Please excuse the poor quality of type on this article, as it was received on our FAX machine.)

Potential new planets may be like Earth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Embryonic solar systems, churning with dust and the promise of new planets, have been spotted around distant stars by the Hubble space telescope, boosting the

Planets like ours may yet exist:

Space telescope catches first evidence of creation's material billion to 5 billion years ago. The number of disks within the 1 light-year field viewed by the Hubble suggests that planetary formation may not be rare.

"We now have direct evidence that material that can make planets exists around about half of the stars like our sun," O'Dell said. "It's much more common than we thought before."

The astronomers said there are billions upon billions of stars in the universe about which planetary disks could have formed.

Orion is known as an area of intense star formation and astronomers study it to gain clues about the evolution of stellar bodies in the universe. The constellation is about 1,500 light years from Earth — very close in astronomical terms — and is part of the Milky Way Galaxy, which includes the sun.

Stephen E. Strom, a University of Massachusetts astronomer who specializes in the study of star formation, said the Hubble photos confirm the long-held belief by many astronomers that a disk of dust from which planets can evolve exists around most stars as they form.

"This provides the first real visual demonstration that these inferences are correct," said Strom. "I regard this as dramatic proof."

The pictures, he said, "show enough material for the formation of planetary systems like that orbiting our sun. You've all the ingredients there to make a solar system."

Earlier studies, using an infrared detector on a satellite, had pinpointed four stars that appeared to be surrounded by protoplanetary disks. But Strom said the material detected in that work "was very thin and nebulous when compared to the thick disks that we see here."

The scientists said that the Hubble photos show disks at a very early stage in planetary formation and that it could take one to 10 million years for planets to actually form within the disks. What's actually seen are dust bands illuminated by hot, bright stars elsewhere in the Orion Nebula. Some of the disks form silhouettes against the bright Orion background.

O'Dell said each of the protoplanetary disks, also called proplyds, consists of gas and dust that are in the orbit of the forming star and are moving rapidly to be brought into the star's center.

Strom said the theory is that over time individual grains in the dust disks clump together. These clumps join others, forming boulders, which, in turn collide with other boulders, forming larger and larger bodies and taking more and more material from the disk. Eventually, the disk material forms into individual planets, each with its own orbit about the star.

O'Dell said the Hubble pictures confirmed at least 15 planetary disks in the small part of Orion photographed. He said there were 15 others that could be disks but which could not be confirmed.

Who better than Californians know about earthquakes? From time to time we will print tips on earthquake preparedness offered by the California Governor's Office of Emergency Services.

When you feel an earthquake, duck under a desk or sturdy table. Stay away from windows, bookcases, file cabinets, heavy mirrors, hanging plants and other heavy objects that could fall. Watch out for falling plaster or ceiling tiles.

Stay under cover until the shaking stops. Hold onto the desk or table. If it moves, move with it. Here are some additional tips for specific locations.

■ If you're in a HIGH-RISE BUILDING, and you are not near a desk or table, move against an interior wall, and protect your head with your arms. Do not use the elevators. Do not be surprised if the fire alarm or sprinkler systems come on.

■ If you're OUTDOORS, move to a clear area, away from trees, signs, buildings, or downed electrical wires and poles.

■ If you're on a SIDEWALK NEAR BUILDINGS, duck into a doorway to protect yourself from falling bricks, glass, plaster and other debris.

■ If you're DRIVING, pull over to the side of the road and stop. Avoid overpasses, power lines, and other hazards. Stay inside the vehicle until the shaking is over.

■ If you're in a CROWDED STORE OR OTHER PUBLIC PLACE, do not rush for exits. Move away from display shelves containing objects that could fall.

■ If you're in a WHEELCHAIR, stay in it. Move to cover, if possible, lock your wheels, and protect your head with your arms.

■ If you're in the KITCHEN, move away from the refrigerator, stove, and overhead cupboards. Take time now to anchor appliances and install security latches on cupboard doors to reduce hazards.

■ If you're in a STADIUM OR THEATER, stay in your seat and protect your head with your arms. Do NOT try to leave until the shaking is over. Then leave in a calm, orderly manner.

After an earthquake, be prepared for aftershocks, and plan where you will take cover when they occur.

THE MOST DISTANT OBJECT known in the solar system appears to be the newly discovered miniplanet designated 1992 QB₁. (See "A New Member of the Family," December 1992.) Astronomers confirmed its great distance — some 41 astronomical units from the Sun — with follow-up observations in late September. In these images taken 4 hours apart on September 27, you can see 1992 QB₁ moving against the starry background of Pisces.

NEW VISTAS

By L.L.Wood

Here we are at this time of the world, wondering what our purpose is. Many of us have had our version of reality rocked by sightings, or more personal encounters, with sentient beings from other star systems. Many of us are wondering 'why'?

It is my personal belief that these beings are here to take tissue samples, just as we do to the animal kingdom, and to awaken our higher intellects to the plight of our world. We are in a sorry state, folks. Just look at all of the ecological disasters happening now. Would you allow crude oil to be dumped in your living room? Would you allow irradiated substances to be stored in your basement to leak out and affect the health of you and your family? Would you cut down and burn all of the trees in your neighborhood? Of course not! So why do we let this go on day after day and not do something about it?

Our minds and hearts have to be raised into a loving and forgiving vibration in order for the mass consciousness to be raised sufficiently enough to heal the broken and battered Earth. Each one of us, for only $10 measly dollars, can save 2,500 square feet of tropical rain forest. That's only .02 cents a day. If all of the people reading the Missing Link would join in, we could save 20 acres, collectively!

I think these sentients are here to shake us up into seeing that the Earth is our home planet, and we had better start taking care of it NOW! This is the only planet we will ever have in our lifetimes, let's leave it a better place than we found it. The Earth itself is starting to writh in agony over what we have done to her. Look at the weather disasters this past year alone. How long do you think we can go on like this without any Karmic backlash?

We have to start to learn to raise our own vibration through an active, daily practice of meditation and prayer. It is not enough to merely "know about it", you have to do it! Get in touch with your higher self. Be responsible for all of those thoughts you put into the fourth dimension, you know the ones you think but never say? Those will be our reality in the aftertime. Thoughts have power. They become the reality for those thinking them. Before you let your mind run rampant, think about what it is forming in your mind. Would you say it to someones face?

Many people in this country do not know how to read. Not because they have not been taught, but because they don't practice it. The same is true for your mental state of being. Our next dimension will be a mental one. Learn to think on a positive level, and to practice these skills daily. Soon you will see what a difference this force can have in your life. Your health will improve, you will not be tired all of the time, there will be more love and understanding in your relationships with other human beings.

The biggest waste of time is the television. Too many of us are addicted to this mesmerizing show of light, sound and colors. I know people that can not even think for themselves, or form an opinion on something unless they see it on TV. How many mothers do you know of that use this form of media to babysit their children? I know of plenty. What are we teaching our children, and future generations? It is no wonder we are sliding on our academic achievements and are losing our ability to think for ourselves.

Your souls have been awakened for a higher purpose. Seek for the answers within yourself. Do the little things day by day. To raise your own vibrations will raise the collective consciousness. This all has a cumulative effect. We need to have all the help we can, from as many human minds as will participate. *For those of you willing to donate $10 for the Rain Forest, there is an ad in the back of this magazine with address information on it.

"Sticks and stones may break my bones... but words will never harm me!" Childish words? Maybe, but this is a policy of our own U.S. Government's NSA! UFO buffs are steadfast in their requests for the NSA (National Security Agency) to release the facts about two UFO incidents in New Mexico: WORDS! And now do some deep thinking about what it will take to force NSA to move. Extreme embarrassment equals: STICKS AND STONES! We all need to put pressure on NSA... through the media and Congressional members!

I'm not a UFO Buff! But my association with many who are...allows me to soak up a lot of facts, rumors, and this kicks my brain into action on sorting through subject matter. In an effort to determine what is real, what is reasonable, and the unreal! Although, in stating here I believe UFOs' do exist, my belief is primarily based on deathbed confessions by many who were UFO hands-on people! Not personal sightings or experiences. Now to the reason for this bit of UFO Hot Sauce.

The "push for truth" is covered completely by a growing UFO Enigma, located at 6108 South Main, Roswell, N.M. But in addition to the constant search for truth, there have always been persistent whispered rumors in UFO circles...strong beliefs that were not openly discussed due to a fear of NSA Agents (Military Intelligence), and their strong-arm tactics used to silence people. One of those sticking stories was my disclosure of the "Ten-Grand Babies!" How about NSA Spies...watching you...and watching me! A local person(s) who is ready and willing to make that telephone alert call to maybe...Fort Belvoir, Virginia?

Case in point: "Ranch Segundo Mac Brazel discovered debris from a crashed flying saucer near Corona, in early July of 1947! A tough talking redheaded Captain and a Black Sergeant appeared to run things at the Corona crash site; the San Augustin Plains... another July 1947 crash site; and at the Walker Air Force Base (then known as the Roswell Army Air Field) hospital. Do you believe those two Intelligence dudes pulled out without hiring someone to mind the store? Hell no!"

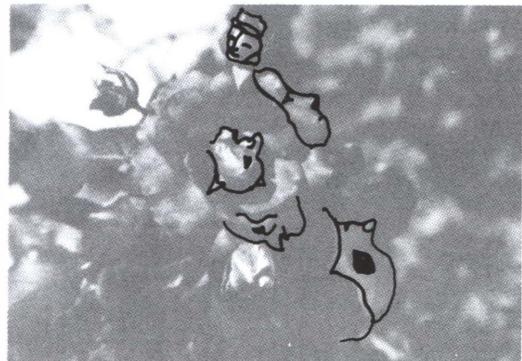

Long after the troops had picked up every piece of debris they could find at Corona, Mac Brazel's son showed up at a beer-joint in Corona. The topic of conversation was about the crash. And son Brazel made the comment that he had several pieces of the debris. His words had the Army knocking on his door the very next morning! Far less than twenty-four hours later! They marched away with the younger Brazel's goodies too! One of the individuals in that bar was an NSA Snitch! And you can bet your spurs there is an NSA Snitch(s) here in Roswell too!

Another little tidbit of information is a letter I sent to Editor Jerry McCormack of the Roswell Daily Record. In this letter I solicited a piece of the Corona crash debris! Somewhere among us, a person has such an item. And I stated in the letter, "no questions will be asked... no information given!" It is wanted for public display, and not a sale attempt!

And of course, Editor McCormack would not publish my letter of several months ago in his newspaper.

"Tell me, Jerry, was it too hot for you?"

Mary's Message to the World

*As Sent to
Her Messenger
Annie Kirkwood*

This book contains a series of "talks," as given by Mary, the Mother of Jesus, to a woman in Texas between 1987 and 1991. Mary predicts disruptive earth changes in this decade, but the real message is how to be more fully conscious of our presence and purpose here on earth, and how to prepare for re-entry into the spirit world after physical death. Her eloquent discussions reveal a most compassionate and universal Mother.

PC-Sky The Sky Simulator

PC-Sky accurately simulates the sky as seen from anywhere on earth. It features an innovative "inquire by pointing" mouse-driven interface, and is fast—even without a co-processor. PC-Sky is here to show you the way to the sky; to give you an idea of what you can expect to see, and where and when to look. There is no other program like it.

PC-Sky is like having a clear sky, binoculars, telescope, handbook, and time machine.

Clear Sky Features super-fast plotting of naked-eye stars, fast panning, variable observing conditions, extinction, meteors, and local horizon.

Binoculars Features all stars to 7.5 mag, super-fast panning, bright clusters and nebulae.

Telescope Features accurate depictions of double stars, long-period binaries (with orbit diagrams), variable stars (with representative light curves), planets (with phases, rings, visible moons), and over 200 selected fields containing galaxies, clusters, nebulae, and stars to 16 mag. View time-step animations of eclipses, conjunctions, planetary satellites and binary stars. Simulates telescope apertures from 6 to 24 inches.

Handbook Features object descriptions and observing notes. Computes altitudes, azimuths, rising, setting, and transit times. Cross references star designations.

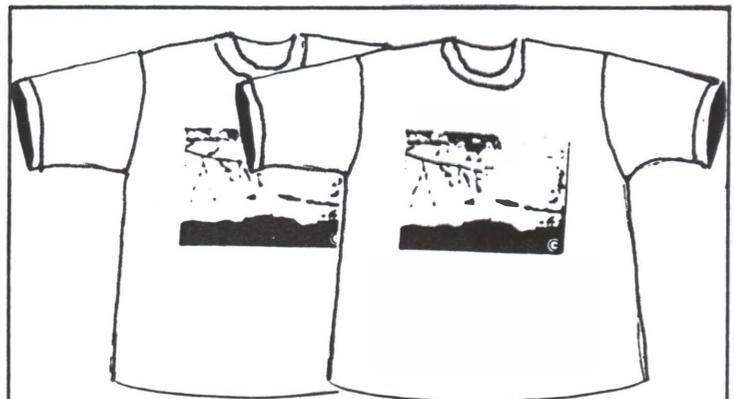

Time Machine Accurately depicts the sky for thousands of years into the past and future.

Requires PC-286/386/486, 640K, VGA, a 1.2 or 1.44 Mb floppy drive, and hard drive. Mouse recommended, but not required.

ALTER FOREVER YOUR SENSE OF SPACE AND TIME

Flowing time and motion brings life to the sky and solar system.

Through the power of gravitational simulation, break your bounds to the present. Seasonal motions, retrograde epicycles, comet and planet apparitions, eclipses, occultations, conjunctions... ephemeral events, all a pleasure to watch in the natural flow of time.

Go beyond the calculable to find orbital precession, resonance, and chaos. See where asteroids and comets are at any time; study the satellite and ring systems. Learn how Jupiter keeps things stirred up. Find lost comets, and witness future orbit-changing encounters. And of course enjoy a beautiful, starry sky, from space or Earth, with constellations and deep sky objects.

Blending visual and technical accuracy, Dance is for everyone.

Accompanied by an acclaimed manual and tutorial tours of the sky and solar system, Dance of the Planets has become the standard wherever there is abiding interest in astronomy.

New

The Observer's Companion

An on-line calculating almanac to find past and future eclipses, conjunctions, occultations, risings, settings, meteor showers, lunar circumstances, and much more. A welcomed companion to the powerful Dance simulation capabilities.

Limited Time Offer

The Observer's Companion is being introduced at no extra cost when ordered with Dance of the Planets (a $30 value).

New

Stars8.0 Extension

Enhance Dance with additional stars to 8th magnitude for a total of 45,000. Includes click-on-stars feature to bring up information boxes and enhanced star chart hardcopy. No other software has stars faster or as realistic as Dance with Stars8.0 Extension. A $35 option when ordered with Dance of the Planets.

New

Windows-Ready

Dance of the Planets operates smoothly as a DOS application in Windows 3.0/3.1, and is configured for uncompromised performance. Just click on the handsome Dance icon.
