Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor: This is a letter of complaint in that I still did not receive the Spring issue of the Journal although everybody else in the Toronto area received his copy. Could you look into this matter? Also, can you give me William Hamilton's address as I am fascinated by his article on Mount Shasta and the lady by the name of Bonnie... Les Cherni, Toronto, Ont. Canada.

* PLEASE, dear irate Reader, IF everyone else you know HAS received their Journal, don't wait! Yell then! This letter was received on May 30, 81. It has been several months since the regular mail out! PS - Your letter has gone to Bill H...

*PPS - Maybe your copy could yet arrive (it could have gone by way of dogsled, via Nova Scotia over the Artic Route???)

Dear, Dear Joan and Pat: I suggest you include a couple of aspirins with the NAJ when you mail them out! So much new and exciting information - "coming at you" all at once...I took a frightening trip last Feb. 22nd -- high up on a mountain into an Indian Reservation to go to "the caves where Bigfoot hides." According to my Indian guide, he and two of his relatives had actually seen Bigfoot. The Tribal Chiefs were angry because the boy took me into their NO-NO Land at all. I will not be given permission to return. However, I am determined to return - by another route and with a couple of men; it is most unwise to tackle a hike of uncertain distance - alone. According to my theory, that specific cave - if we can find it - will prove to be a Bigfoot PORTAL. Indians, in their primitive way, know exactly what Capt. Bruce Cathie (NAJ p.22) is talking about. If I survive, and I intend to, I will have a very interesting write-up to send to you in a few months... Virginia Louise -POB 613, Julian, CA 92036...

Dear Sirs: I have been waiting for so long to write to you about your magazine, but I have been so busy working in the Post Office night and day. One day I came across to your magazine when I was sorting the mail out. What happen was that, when I started to read, as I was just having a glimpse of it, I got so interested like I don't know how to describe it! It made me very happy... Mr. I. A. Kahn, Stoke Newington, London, England.

* NOW I know why the mag never makes it through until LATER!

Thank you, Mr. Kahn, YOU just made ME happy!

Dear Joan: Many thanks for the Egyptian Prints which are beautiful. Since receiving the NAJ I have been able to buy many books which you have advertised, which I would not have run across otherwise... Once again, Thank you for a wonderful magazine. Hilda Murphy, MooseJaw, Sask, Canada...

* To those of you who ordered the Egyptian Prints and did not get them because they were sold out -- take heart! The search goes on for more of them. As for the books we advertise ----- the selection is unique and sometimes quite rare...

Dear Joan: Just got the latest issue and was most impressed by the article by Colin Bloy on the ley system. Especially the bit about the relationship between ley lines and water... To strike a different note, I was equally interested in the excerpt about the UFO attack in Malaysia. This is exactly like certain of my visions and one memorable dream... I do not believe that all UFOS are "gods", etc... What I'd like to know is this: WHO were the people who lived on the Isle of Arran, off the coast of Scotland? Before the Vikings and the Celts?... Apart from the known fact that Welsh people can converse and understand the Bretons in Brittany, there is also a tribe in the mountains of northern India who can understand and be understood by anyone speaking Gaelic, Erse or, I believe the Welsh Gaelic... All these are forms of the old Celtic tribal languages. Is there Atlantean in the Celtic origin? Joan Howard - Box 134, Station S, Toronto, Canada.

* Dear Joan: We have the most interesting and well read readers in the world! I'm sure a few will take the time to write you.

Dear Joan: We have had several visitors as a result of the article you printed about the strange crystal that I found on the desert. They all saw the same things that I saw in the crystal... I believe that there are more of these fabulous crystals in this area. It's only a matter of finding them. Mrs. Cosette Willoughby - POB 317, Fairacres, NM 88033.

Dear Joan: I've been doing more research on Atlantis and Lemuria and - here's MY map. Isn't it wild? (NOTE: It was almost EXATLY as the one we printed drawn by Al Rogers) I wrote parts of a fantasy novel about Atlantis during college and graduate school between 1970-78... Note that the eastern part of Lemuria is almost identical to the map...also... the river going north from the capital is identical!... Jon Douglas Singer, M.A. New Haven, Ct.

* Jon - Only wish we had the space to print all that you sent to us. But, your work is fantastic, artistic and beautiful! Strange? Not to us New Atlanteans!

FROM THE DAYS OF OLD - TO THE DAYS YET TO COME - A MESSAGE FOR MAN

Walk upright, in the Sun, and face the Future! The old dirt beneath your feet is bloodied with the sorrows of the past - and - past it will be. The rivers of rot that furrow this great planet shall soon run pure and free from the debris of over-chemicalization. Shall soon sparkle with life and vitality, to quench the thirst of New Man. All shall be clear and uncontaminated, the soil, the air, the water.

Thus it was told to Man - in the Old Days. Foretelling and forewarning. Speaking of the coming days in the history of one of the Creator's many worlds. Did Man heed and listen? Only a few, scattered here and there Knew. And they did convince some few others who in turn could go and convince a few more. A very few more.

So it fell unto their lot to bring forth and to preserve the Knowledge - the accumulated Knowledge of First Man, the Knowledge of Healing the Soul and the Body, the Knowledge of lifting Man from the surface of the Earth into the Heavens, the Knowledge of Technology that could literally move mountains, replace seas and grow food in such abundance that no one child had to go to bed hungry.

They placed great stores of Knowledge in many hidden places throughout the Land that Was, for they Knew that it would be in a place that was going to Be - in Future Time. They Knew ahead of Time where such lands were located. And so they worked, in silence, in stealth, and with the understanding that if they failed - future generations would also fail.

The pall of the darkling sky came down around them, found them at their labors, covered them with darkness so deep that one could not see the other. Nor could they see their beloved land beneath their feet. They felt the swell of the cold waters rising to their hearts and they grew afraid. Their beings filled with sorrow and pain at what was going to be lost. Would they be in Time? Could they finish their tasks? Their 'Hidden Knowledge' - would it ever be found? Or would anyone in FutureTime ever Care enough to even look? Would the great Truths and Glory of a once-proud land be seen again?

The Great Morning came! Land DID appear out of the mud and the slime of the Lost Ages! New and pristine land came forth - and so did the New Man to dwell upon it! And with it all came the promise of the Creator, the covenant of Life! To see and feel to sense and touch to KNOW Life in it's most full sense. To know pleasure and joy, the cry of a new born child, eager to join with them in their celebration of Life!

AND- came also the responsibility to always love and appreciate this Gift, to cherish it and to take care of it. Never to let it become dirtied and adulterated. This was part of the Promise. It was also part of the Promise that if Man did NOT live up to his end of the promise - the Creator would take away what he had Given:

Man forgot..... The Creator did not..... And so the same fore-warnings and foretellings began again. The Cycle had returned..... And again there were those few who Knew, and were charged with the same missions as those Ancients of the Old Days.

And thus it shall ever be.

But -- what of the Knowledge that was stored? Was it ever found? Did someone, somewhere, somehow, retrieve the Sacred Tablets? The Scrolls of Destiny? Was there Time? Where were they found? Where were they put? What happened to the Secret of Secrets? The All? The Knowing?

They remained where they had ALWAYS been - in the heart of Man. In his Mind. In his Being. The Knowledge was gained through LIVING... And... Surviving. And... Living Again! The greatest 'temple' on Earth was NOT the Pyramids (Great or otherwise) - it was and IS... Man ... Himself... Who carries within him the seeds of Life and Death. THIS is the 'secret'. What about the 'lost' records? The 'secret' caves and golden plates? They are There - in the MIND of Man... It is the 'Search' for them, the eternal Seeking that brings forth the 'secret' - that it was WITHIN all the Time.....

JUST SHOUT - AND IT'LL RAIN ---ON CHINESE MYSTERY LAKES! - Peking - Whenever residents in part of China's southern Yunnan province need rain ---- they simply yell for it. The LOUDER they yell, the MORE rain falls. And the LONGER they yell, the LONGER the rain lasts....The Liberation Daily reported that the local Communist Party boss shrugged off these reports but when he recently visited the lakes and shouted in a loud voice " a down-pour followed in less than a minute". Local experts theorized the air around the lake was so wet that the slightest vibration such as a high - pitched voice could precipitate showers. SOURCE: STAR - Ind, Ind. 2/24/81.

THIS ELEPHANT CAN TALK" - When zoo manager Boris Kosinsky first heard that the zoo's 8 year old Indian elephant, Batyr, could talk, he dismissed it as "complete nonsense". And when keeper Ravel Astakhov insisted he was speaking the truth, the manager snalled "You must be drunk" -- But ----- Ravel was adamant and the manager visited the animal house himself. "To my astonishment, I really did hear that elephant say, in Russian, 'Batyr good boy. Go away.'"... SOURCE:SUNDAY EXPRESS, LONDON -2/22/81.

"GREEN THING" SPARKS RUMORS! New Kensington, Pa.

Along the railroad tracks by Constitution Blve. and North Street, a young woman saw a group of people pointing to a dark opening in a sewer drain. "How come everyone keeps gathering"- "There's a monster down ther," said Bill Menhart, 13. Menhart knows. He said he was one of the four boys who saw a green thing hiding by the sewer drain last Saturday night. One of the four, an 11 year old boy, told police he grabbed the short creature from behind - but is gquealed and escaped. "It looked like a baby dinosaur, a lizard, about two feet," Menhart said. "It has a big tail." Since the teenage boys made their report to police, rumors about a green man or strange creature arising from the sewers have speak through Arnold and New Kensington like fire in a haystack. Police have been besieged by phone calls from worried parents who heard reports that their children have carried home from school. Taking the reports more seriously is Bob Goerman who researched unexplained phenomena... The 11 year old boy who supposedly collared the beast from behind with a full nelson has given police a drawing (reprinted here) of what he encountered.. The creature was described as about 3 foot tall - two arms and a tail, and hunched over on two legs... SOURCE: VALLEY NEWS DISPATCH, NEW KENSINGTON, PA.3/5/81.

MOSQUITOES BLAMED - AS CATTLE DIE - Brazoria, Texas. Thick swarms of mosquitoes attacked a herd of cattle on Stephen Perry's farm one afternoon -- and sucked the life blood from his animals, "just like the Bible, you know, with the locusts and all," he said. "It's the worst thing that ever happened to this coastal country," Perry said Friday. "They came in about 4 o' clock one evening and the cattle were dead the next morning." There are some disbelievers... but vet L.G. Gayle says swarming mosquitoes are capable of killing livestock... Gayle's autopsies on four cows and one calf showed that as much as half of the seven to nine gallons of blood in the animal's bodies was missing. There was no external or internal hemorrhaging to account for the severe anemia..."It (the blood) had to go somewhere. We found no infectious agents, and we found no toxic elements." ... Perry lost about 40 cows, 3 horses and several calves since the swarm hit on Aug. 19, and then "we kind of lost count." "We've had mosquitors before but we've never had a siege like this. You could just reach out and get yourself a handful"..SOURCE: Milwaukee, WI Journal -9/20/80.

HERE COME THE APE MEN! China has revived an incredible plan to breed apemen for slave labor. Scientists believe they can cross humans with chimpanzees to create "human apes".... They claim a laboratory chimp became pregnant after being insinuated with a man's sperm. In the upheaval of China's Cultural Revolution, the lab was smashed and the chimp died..... But the scientist in charge, Qi Ynog-Xing, believes the experiment almost worked. He is convinced his ape-men could talk and understand simple ideas. They would be used to drive carts, herd animals and protect forests. They could also be sacrificed in explorations of the seabeds, outer space, and the center of the earth. WHEN THE PLANETOIDS HIT -

The tons of superbombs were detonated with such a force that the Earth in that area between Florida and Mexico was literally blown out of this world. The vast cavity that such an explosion created, quickly filled in with sea water, and the sea, rushing in with such force, washed away yet so much more earth from the blasted area -- Today - this area is known as the Gulf of Mexico. The repercussions of such a terrible explosion started off several earthquakes - and the earth opened ----- all the way to the North, and this is how the Mississippi River was born. The shocks were felt in the area of the Great Triangle, and the delicate mechanisms of the giant Ray machines were adversely affected.

The result was that the force field of the Atlanteans was weakened, and the giant meteors or planetoids, began to hit the earth with even increasing frequency. This in turn resulted in an increase of earthquake activity ----- and it wasn't long before the Atlanteans began to realize that it seemed likely the the End of an Age, as predicted by the Holy Wise Men of ages past, was at last going to become a horrible reality.

It was then that the leaders of the Saturnian spacecraft went into action and delivered their momentous message over the public Teleradio communications system: "Greetings brothers, we come in peace and we are your hope of salvation in the face of the coming destruction, which is now fast approaching, and indeed, is only but a few days away now, at the most." "We will begin the evacuation of Atlantis in a few hours, since we want to save as many of you as possible, and deliver you up to a better place to live on different planets where living conditions will be the most suitable for you." "Go and pack your most precious belongings, and then --- stand by in readiness as we will start sending down our shuttle-craft for you -- and the evacuation will continue until we feel satisfied that all those worthy of God's mercy are esconced safely in our star ship.... We now hover at a distance of forty miles above your most sacred and ancient land."

The huge space fleet of the Saturnians consisted of 170 ships, and each one was 35 mils in length, and 15 miles in diameter and they gradually tapered to a point at both ends of the ship. These vast craft were used for evacuation purposes, and also on extended tours of galaxies. Now - these huge ships carried about one thousand shuttle craft in each ship. The hangar doors of the giant craft slid silently open to discharge the smaller craft --- Thus did the Exodus of Atlantis begin.

The scientists manning the Ray Mechs in the Triangle area put their machines on automatic control, as the awesome responsibility of protecting Atlantis from the seemingly endless shower of meteors was now finished. As the day drew to a close, a dozen of the shuttle craft were seen in the sky, and they swiftly came in for a smooth landing to pick up these Ray operators in the Triangle. The Saturnian chief pilot of the saucer squadron descended and smilingly greeted the scientists - "Before we leave the doomed Atlantis forever, I would like to invoke a prayer and blessing upon this place that has been made sacred by the heroic efforts of you all." The chief looked resplendent in his uniform of a golden silk-like material -- and he raised his hands high, and looking straight ahead, he said. "...By all the powers that be ... I know invoke the Violet Flame from the center of this Planet, and I also call upon the golden light from the Sun and Saturn, to join with the White Light of the Creator, in order to make this Triangle a Holy Place forever." "This space of The Triangle shall be a Holy Place for all time to come, and it shall serve as a Gateway to the Infinite. It will stand forever as a reminder to mankind concerning the glory of Atlantis." "As I have spoken, so shall it be! Eloï Ra Oza Om!" Then everyone entered the saucers -- to disappear up among the clouds. The exodus from Atlantis went on for three days and nights...

The ray mech machines of the Triangle area were now operating solely on automatic control, as there was not a living being left in the entire area. Now the fall of meteors increased in intensity and the earth shook continually. One of the planetoids hit Atlantis about where the big rift is today and the other big one fell right into the center of the Great Triangle. The ray mech were still operating and now their mechanisms went berserk - due to the effects of the violent earthquakes and the series of tidal waves that soon sand the sacred area to the bottom of the ocean... ..

The ray machines had been built to last in spite of whatever conditions, and they still functioned, although they were now at the bottom of the sea buried under mud, rock and volcanic ash. But -- the machines performed erratically, in a way that no one had ever intended. Great changes oc - curred in the immediate environment of the mech, thermally, electrically, and chemically, and for about two hundred years, no living thing would come near the place. Gradually, over the centuries, this area managed to adapt itself but there was always an aura of strangeness about the place that has remained unchanged down to the present time....

Many thousands of fleeing Atlanteans took refuge in the endless maze of caverns that exist beneath the surface of the American continent, and it is known that these caverns continue on -- even under the ocean beds. It is very possible that the people in the caverns succeeded in tunneling through to where the ray mech lay buried under the sea, and once the did reach that spot - they set up some form of ray mech operation that could possibly have resulted in what we know today as - THE BURMUDA TRIANGLE!

NOTE: We sincerely thank Al Rogers for sharing his 'Far Memory' with us. I also appreciate the many letters and phone calls concereng the re-awakening of other 'Far Memories', the feeling of having 'been' there, or in re-living Atlantean Times. These articles have served a purpose - they 'trigger' memories, memories that should not be forgotton. To 'remember' is but to re-learn a lesson. Do you feel sad and lonely when you walk out on a beach and see an endless expanse of water - wondering what lies underneath the waves? I do. Fish do not speak - but hearts do. Chinese Find Blonde Mummy

PEKING (UPI) — She has blonde hair, big eyes and a shapely body.

She lived 6,470 years ago but was so well preserved by the dry air of the Xinjiang Desert in northwest China that her flesh is still somewhat soft, Chinese scientists say.

The scientists affectionately call her "the young lady of Loulan" but she is possibly the oldest mummified remains of a human being found in the world to date, according to official press reports.

Carbon-dating techniques used by Chinese scientists reportedly verified her antiquity. The authoritative People's Daily newspaper said, "If the 5,000-year-old mummies of Egypt were acclaimed as the world's oldest, then the Loulan woman should count as even older."

She was unearthed last year at Loulan, an ancient, forgotten city buried by sandstorms at a spot about 40 miles from the dried up lake-bed of Lop Nur, the present-day atomic testing site, Xinjiang archeologist Wang Luli told reporters.

The remains, determined to be that of a young woman, were found lying supine in an ancient tomb filled with sand.

"The shape of her body was extremely beautiful, and she was tall," the reports said. "She has blonde, long hair that flowed to her shoulders. On her comely face was a pair of big eyes, you could still count her long eyelashes.

"Beneath her high nose were her tiny, thin lips."

She was wearing a small hat, leather boots and wrapped up in blankets and animal skins. "Her flesh still has elasticity," the reports said.

Scientists view her discovery as of great importance, to the study of China's minorities and the lost civilization of ancient Loulan.

336 pp.

No drugs, hypnosis, suggestion or persuasion of any kind were used. In greater or lesser detail, recall of a past life came up in every single case!

These 41 cases of aware alert adults are published in the astonishing book Have You Lived Before This Life? by L. Ron Hubbard.

This book not only tells you what these people recalled and how it affected their lives—it shows you actual counselling sessions using the techniques through which thousands of people are today recalling past lives.

This book shatters the mysteries of life and death with surprising answers to questions like these:

- What is the difference between past life recall and belief in reincarnation?
- What causes "out of body" experiences and what do they mean?
- If you've lived before, why can't you just look back and remember where and who you've been and what you've done?

Have you lived before this life? Only you can say for sure, but reading this book just might jog your memory!

Russians say they may have found Atlantis

By BRYAN BRUMLEY
Associated Press

MOSCOW — Soviet oceanographers say they may have discovered the lost continent of Atlantis on the seabed several hundred miles west of Portugal.

Andrei Monin, director of research aboard the Soviet vessel Academician Kurchatov, said scientists based their hypothesis on "mysterious structures" seen in 460 photographs taken of sunken Ampere Mountain, 450 miles west of the Straits of Gibraltar, between Portugal and Madeira Island.

"In a number of pictures of the northeastern part of the summit, (researchers) discerned rectangular structures. On one of the photos, we can see rectangular plates (one yard) wide rising from bottom," the Tass news agency quoted Monin as writing in the Soviet magazine Earth and Universe.

"THE POSITION OF plates, individual blocks, as well the regular shape of the plates photographed . . . may testify to their artificial origin," Monin said.

Describing the stonework, he said, "Its surface is divided with equal seams." He said the photographs show "a stone wall (18 inches) wide, made out of blocks.

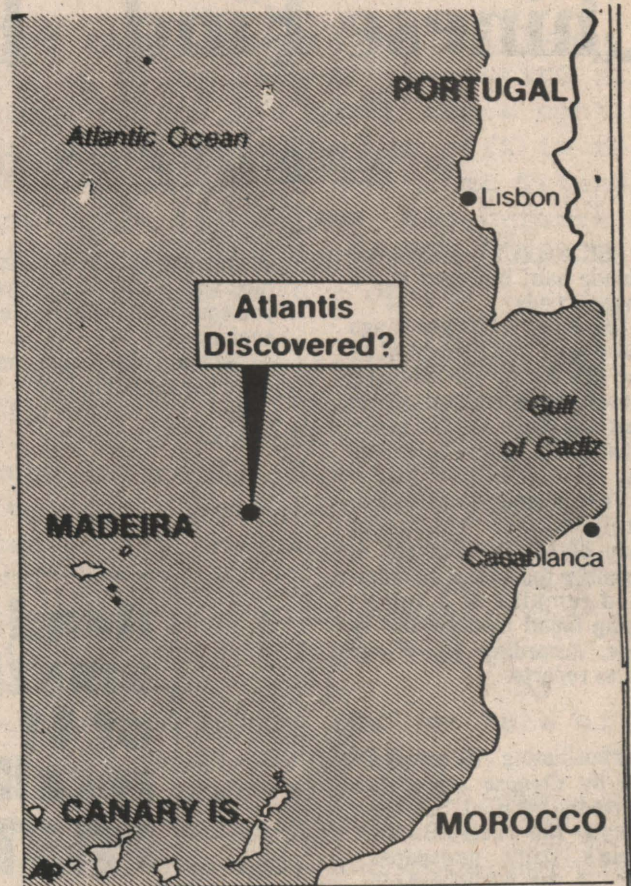

"On other photos, one can see a plate having a regular form and joining rectangular blocks. All the plates and walls can be clearly seen on the photos," Monin said.

Two years ago, Soviet scientists said a diving bell lowered from the vessel Academician Kurchatov took eight photographs of Ampere that showed "vestiges of walls and stairways" similar to those described by Monin.

The Soviet researchers cautiously theorized then that the ruins might be of Atlantis, the sunken continent referred to by the ancient Greek philosopher Plato. Plato's works described a highly developed civilization.

"ARCHAEOLOGISTS, after studying the pictures, expressed the theory that they were the remains of ancient stonework," Tass said.

Monin said his research ship made its most recent voyage to follow up similar evidence of Atlantis discovered in 1976 by the Soviet vessel Moscow University.

THE LEGEND OF THE TUARTUMS OF -"THE VALLEY OF THE SUN"

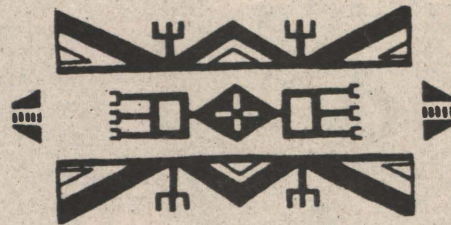

by

Dayogachee

PART TWO

When the Jian-du-pids returned with more supplies and gold, the bright copper shields did flash the warning. Bitter war resulted, though, of course, the tiny Tura-Tums could do no more than tear down the new diversion dams at night, steal back their grain ---- and torment the giants - by piling thorn bushes and dumping cactus in their blankets. Retaliation followed, as the darkness follows dusk, and soon the Tuar-Tums knew they must hide.

They fled into the vast caverns which they had made ready beneath the Valley floor. They made their homes there, using stored food and grew their crops in tiny plots in out of the way places on the surface. In what is now -- Papago Park - between Van Buren and McDowell Road, you will find "Hole In The Rock".

Close-up of the entrance to the Under-valley of the little "Tuar-tums." Opening above was used for their guards and lookouts.

The entrance to the Undervalley (partially destroyed milleniums ago). A ladder led to the top opening which was used as a lookout to warn the inhabitants of the coming of giant invaders. Trails lead to the lower opening of the Hole in the Rock Mountain in Papago Park.

A window on the Eastern face of the Butte opens onto a wide downward slope under the Western face. From this opening, Westward, a huge tunnel sloped down to the safety of the catacombs of the Undervalley (below the City of Phoenix). At the very top is a small opening. The Old Woman explained that the central watchkeeper climbed a long wooden ladder from the main tunnel which led into the caverns and stood his watch looking out this vent. The ladder was made from small stripling Juniper trees lashed together with leather thongs. What we see now as "Hole In The Rock" was the main entrance to the UnderValley.

One terrible dawn, after a particularly annoying Tuar-Tum attack, in the blinding glare of the rising sun, the Jian-du-pids rushed the entrance to the Undervalley. Great feet rose and crashed down as the Invaders stamped angrily on the tunnel roof and all around the area, collapsing many of the caverns and utterly destroying its people, and everything they could destroy of the Undervalley. Bay-ze-lea, their great Camel, lay down a little way to the North, watching, and Dap-Gong, their hunting dog, snapped and snarled fiercely at the wrecked entrance, peering through the tiny hole that led now only to a smashed slope of earth, debris and dusty rubble.

From behind a mesquite bush some distance away, little Dar-lac peered in fear at the terrible devastation. He was perhaps the smallest of the Tuar-Tum men, brown, wrinkled, and frail, but surely their holiest holyman. "OH, Father Sun," he cried out in beseeching anguish, "Your children will all be smashed. No more will the Tuar-Tum live to sing to you in mid-winter joy as your warmth returns, bringing with it planting time. Help us, Oh Father, or we will all perish! We have done all we have the strength to do - Help us, Oh, Father Sun!"

With that, trembling, Dar-lac retreated underground in utter despair. He did not see that the dawn this day grew more brilliant than ever before - the Father Sun flung out an orange ball of flame which almost touched the earth. It destroyed the giant ship in its cradle, leaving only molten rock to mark the place where the golden hoard of the Jian-du-pids lay buried. Dar-lac did not see the holocaust rush straight toward the rampaging, terrified invaders and sear them all to smoking skeletons - melting them down like butter, striking them lifeless and shapeless in an instant. Then "The Little Finger of the Sun", having flicked away the threat to his children, returned to the heavens. I looked up from the crackling, dancing flames of the campfire into the sad eyes of the Old Woman. "You see? The Anglos make a park for gold and picnics and cage up strange animals in a zoo. They name it all for the Papago tribe, right on the spot where all this happened. Do they not call the mountain to the North the Camel's Back? Is there not still a hole in the rock where the door was? Are there not the grotesque melted faces of Evilkin and his henchmen in the stone of the Buttes? Do you not see the Dog still turning to snap at his tail in the searing flames?" ... I have found no corroboration for the Old Woman's story. All I can find are the molten faces in the stone... the Camel's Back... the dog... the hole in the rock... Four Peaks, and the Superstitions... And I wonder! The Superstition Mountains might, I suppose, look like a charred ship, and when I think of the hundreds who have searched the mountain's innermost recesses for the fabled hoard of glittering gold... I wonder.

The Old Woman said they just haven't dug deep enough to reach the 'belley' or what we would call the 'hold' of the ship. Why do so many climbers fall from CamelBack Mountain and the Papago Buttes? Why have so many people gone into the Superstition Mountains -- never to be seen again? Is it a forbidden soil, or sacred ground? Do the Tuar-tum medicine men cast an evil spell on those that tresspass, causing the intruders to slip and to fall? ...The Old Woman swore the Tuar-Tums still live in the UnderValley. "Do not climb the Buttes," she said. "Do not peer too deeply into the holes. If you find the secret opening, you will be caught and taken down. No one has ever returned!"

A Schedule of Events Affecting the State of California

NOTE: THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION HAS BEEN CHanneled BY A MAN WHO HAS BEEN WORKING WITH A GROUP CALLED THE SOLAR CROSS. IT IS BEING SENT NOT TO FRIGHTEN PEOPLE BUT TO GIVE THEM THE OPPORTUNITY TO CHECK THEIR INNER KNOWING AGAINST THIS INFORMATION... We wish to emphasize the importance of approaching this information with the intent of ascertaining its potential accuracy --- as the sequence of events unfold --- and with respect to one's own inner source of guidance. The emphasis must be on alertness, on a willingness to heed without fear the warning signals that will be given in advance of such occurrences, to all prepared to follow the instructions of the Angelic Host, and the countless unseen helpers here to assist mankind in this critical period..... We, here at NAJ, thank those who so kindly sent this data to us, and we present it in that light.

SEPTEMBER 29, 1980 - "Greetings in the Light of our Radiant one. I am Soltec. I have dictated this communication to be sure of its accuracy in content and receipt. The 'Event Cycle of Change' has been influenced and I bring the following updates and revisions of these changes to your attention.

EVENT # 1 - An earthquake of magnitude 4.5 to 5.5 will occur in Southern California. It will affect the Imperial Valley region of the San Andreas Fault.

Use this map for reference to the earthquake prediction

Towns and areas to be affected will be Indio, Palm Springs and the Salton Sea area. Our evaluation and data suggests a high probability for this event on your dates of Oct. 8, 9th, or 11, or later in the month should the variables influence the timing. (This event occurred Oct. 31, '80 4 A.M.)

EVENT # 2 - Within 24 hours of Event # 1, this rovement of the southern end of the San Andreas Fault, and pressure release, will allow an 'accelerated creep', along the entire length of this Fault.....

EVENT # 3 - Within a 2 week period or by late Oct. or early Nov. 1980, the affected and weakened Elsinore Fault will develop a fissure allowing the waters of Lake Elsinore to start slowly draining into heated underground rock formations and chambers. I suggest you monitor the Elsinore area news media closely for a report concerning a drop in the water level of the lake. A building steam pressure will start exerting a further strain on an already weakened Fault system in Southern California....

EVENT # 4 - Meanwhile, the accelerated creep of the San Andreas Fault, particularly in Northern California, and on or before Feb. of 1981, see earth tremors and minor quakes to...(lost).....

EVENT # 5 - From Feb. through August or Nov. of '81, the weakened Southern end of the San Andreas Fault can move suddenly. This movement will occur when the steam pressure of the draining and heated waters of Lake Elsinore finds a way to suddenly vent itself..... This is quite variable, as we have no way of predicting the rate of steam pressure buildup before a critical pressure is reached. We will monitor on a continuous basis..... When this event occurs, a shock wave produced by the explosive decompression, will activate an underwater portion of the San Andreas Fault in the Gulf of Baha. Another underwater fissure will open, in the bottom of this Gulf, allowing these waters to drain into underground rock formations of molten lava. An immediate pressure increase will occur resulting in an underwater explosion which will trigger a massive earthquake in this region. This quake will over-stress and activate the southern portions of the San Andreas, the Imperial, the Superstition, the Sand Hills and the Algoldones Faults.....

EVENT #6 - Immediately, shallow water tidal waves will be formed in the Gulf of Baha which will wash away the sand dunes which presently separate the waters of this Gulf area from the southern end of the Imperial. Because of the quake activity, fissures and land separation cracks, which have been opened, will also allow these waters to easily start entering the Imperial Valley. Massive inundation will occur and spread northward as far as the Banning Pass.....

EVENT # 7 - Within TWO DAYS of this massive event and with the pressure, now, of billions of tons of water on top of the affected area - the Southern end of the San Andreas and other associated Faults will slip and separate in an unprecedented way. The major cracking of the land will send a ripple shock wave northward along the San Andreas - and activate the major network of Faults in the area of the Los Angeles basin. All of these Faults will become active and major devastation will occur in that region. Within a matter of hours, the Los Angeles Basin will cease to exist and the waters of the Pacific will be reaching North and East through the mountain passes into the desert area.....

EVENT # 8 - At this time the Garlock, Big Pines and Santa Ynez Faults will join and become one. This event will provide a cracking effect, cracking and separating the land mass, North, East and South.....

EVENT # 9 - These waters will also reach eastward into the Owens Valley and along with the quakes will cause the volcanic fields in this area to erupt. These volcanic explosions will activate the Major Fault System along the eastern border of California.....

EVENT # 10 - The area known as Kern County will start submerging within 36 hours and the waters of the Pacific will enter the southern end of the San Joaquin Valley. Severe flooding will also spread along the eastern slopes of the Sierra Nevada Mountains and into the states of Nevada and Arizona.....

EVENT # 11 - At this time, the broken 'hinge' described in Event # 8, will release all the built-up pressure stored in the Northern reaches of the San Andreas. A shock wave with a magnitude of between 10 and 12 will race northwards along the Andreas and activate all the related Northern Californian Fault System. This will occur when the Garlock, Big Pines, and Santa Ynez Faults combine and crack the North/South land sections. The San Francisco and Bay Area regions will then experience major devastation as will all populated areas on, near, or adjacent to these Faults.....

EVENT # 12 - Again, the waters of the Pacific will enter and flow inward following waterways and new fissures. These waters will flood eastwards entering the Sacramento and Northern end of the San Joaquin, thus completing the flooding of all that valley. Extensive flooding will also spread to the North through the valleys of the coastal range of mountains and the Napa Valley. EVENTS # 5,6,7, and 8 can occur anytime from February through August or November of 1981. EVENTS # 9,10,11, and 12 can occur within days and up to two weeks following the previous series.....

EVENT # 13 - The 'broken hinge' of the Garlock, Big Pines and Santa Ynez faults combined, will over a period of 12 months allow the fractured and splintered remnants of the Continental Tectonic Plate to tilt downwards. This will allow the Pacific Plate to slip over these detached sections thus forcing them down and under the Pacific Plate. They will tilt seawards and thus gradually disappear under the waters of the Pacific. This will complete the sequence of events affecting the land masses of California. All of the preceeding information is based upon our studies and knowledge of the structure and dynamics of the Major Fault System of the State of California and their inter-links to each other and to adjacent Fault Systems. TWO MAJOR VARIABLES EXIST WHICH CAN ALTER THE TIMING BUT NOT THE SEQUENCE OF THESE EVENTS. THEY ARE:

(1) - A dramatic increase or DEcrease of negative thought force radiating from the thinking or violent actions of humanity on Planet Earth. (2) - Continued underground testing of atomic devices at the test site in the State of Nevada. Additional testing of these devices and the seismic shocks they produce can trigger the sequence of events at a faster pace. The pressure loading along the San Andreas Fault, at this time, is near a critical value.....

NOTE: We here at NAJ would like to thank THE CHURCH OF COSMIC ORIGIN, INC. POB 257, June Lake, California 93529 for the above material. And thanks to Christopher Sassano..... In an effort to provide our readers with some clue as to when they might stay clear of the western United States in general, and the state of California in particular, we have asked an astrologer specializing in earthquakes to comment...." After wrestling with the positions of transiting Mars, and paying due heed to the wandering nodes of the Moon, and agonizing over the precise locations of menacing solar and lunar eclipses -- as well as a host of other variables that wrench the mind -- his conclusions are clear: Periods of extremely likely seismic activity in 1981 are the week of the full Moon in June; the week of the full Moon in September, and the first week in November. Although Soltec spoke mainly of California, these high-risk periods are global in scope and are likely to see quake clusters occur." We thank Allen Grise for the above comments.

Indiana hopes "pyramid power" lures tourists

BEDFORD, Ind. (UPI) — With a federal grant and geographic good luck, Merle Edington's dream is beginning to take shape — a pyramid that will tower 10 stories high above the farm land and forests of southern Indiana.

And if that's not enough of an attraction to draw Edington's hoped-for 2 million tourists a year — he's also going to throw in an 800-foot-long replica of the Great Wall of China.

Edington, president of the Bedford Chamber of Commerce, hit upon the pyramid scheme as a way to get tourists to the world's largest building stone quarries.

EDINGTON'S version of Cheops on the Nile isn't going to cost Bedford a pharaoh's ransom.

"The land has been donated, the stone has been donated, most of the labor is being donated," Edington said.

Another age has provided for free the material that will compose the triangular structure — Indiana limestone that formed the blocks used by architects to build, among other things, the Empire State Building.

EDINGTON SAYS he thought quarry operators might like to donate cut limestone that was just lying around, some of it piled 50 and 75 feet high; to build a tribute to an industry that was muscled out of construction by prestressed concrete and glass curtainwalls.

Instead of suggesting he had rocks in his head, the quarries complied.

Even Washington is helping out.

A slowdown in the Reagan administration's efforts to abolish the Economic Development Administration provided some of the cash needed to keep up with construction costs elevated by inflation.

LAST WEEK the administration processed 64 pending requests for $23 million in grants and $71 million in loan guarantees. Among those requests was $200,000 for the pyramid project, which had earlier been granted $500,000.

What is still needed is cash for equipment, light bulbs, hardware and sewage disposal facilities.

Workmen already have laid 77,000 cubic feet of stone for the foundation of the pyramid.

It was when they were excavating the pyramid foundations that Edington decided to add the replica of the Great Wall of China.

NEW EVIDENCE THAT ANCIENT LAND
SANK INTO THE INDIAN OCEAN --
OVER 6000 years ago!
by Dr. Ronald P. Anjard
Consultant: New Atlantean Board

There has been much speculation about the lost continent of Atlantis. Many have theorized that there was also a huge continent in what is now the Pacific Ocean. This lost continent has been called Mu, Lemuria and Pan. By theory, this huge continent extended from the mysterious Easter Island - in the South - to the Hawaiian Islands in the North - and as far West as the Phillipines or parts of Australia. Many books have described ancient findings -- temples, canals, roads, scattered through the Pacific Islands. These sites are still major mysteries - unsolved by archeologists and scientists.

There is another lost continent referred to by a few. It's called Mu - and to them was the true cradle of Man as we know him. When this continent sunk, according to theory, Man migrated to other parts of the world - especially nearby India. For Mu has been described as being a huge continent in what we now know of as the Indian Ocean.

One of the theories for early migrations relates to the origins of the Egyptian peoples. When Mu started sinking, peoples migrated to India as well as to Egypt. Here they settled in what was known as Lower Egypt. Upper Egypt, again quoting the theorists, was settled by refugees from Atlantis. The Lower Egyptians were darker skinned. It took a long time for the two Egypts to become unified. The later Pharaohs wore symbols on their head-dresses to designate the unity of these two cultures.

Over many years I've conducted extensive research as to ancient peoples - ancient science, philosophy and of world-wide legends. I have authored internationally a variety of articles dealing with unusual topics such as early visitations of the Americas by the Egyptians, Libyans and others - about 1000 BC and by the Hindus about 9000 years ago. As a result many people have shared their findings with me. Ms. Enid Irwin sent me a copy of her unusual stone found in Northern Indiana. It has been interpreted to have the outline of the lost continent of Lemuria. Its interpretation has been published in the New Atlantean Journal.

Virtually nothing has been published about Mu. In fact, it's rarely discussed. But recently I received material directly from an authority on ancient peoples and sciences in India. In a book written entirely in Indian, there were two amazing, ancient Maps which to my knowledge have not been published in any article or book in the U.S.A.

This is therefore virtually new insight. These Maps show a portion of the Indian Ocean, Madascar and India between 4400 and 3100 BC. There were basic land changes in process 6000 years ago. There appears to be several sections of Land sinking east of Madagascar and also south of India. It's possible that years earlier the section in between was in a sinking state and these represent the last remnants. Note that Ceylon did not exist in 4400 BC. Ceylon rose out of the land that was sinking. At the far eastern section of the sinking land masses adjacent to Madagascar is Lanka City. This was moved by 3100 BC to the southern tip of the sinking land section of India. Note the similarity of its name to the Island once known as Ceylon and now as Sri Lanka. And, lastly, the island on the West side of India, identified as D, sank 3032 BC.

Therefore we now have definite information that as early as 3000 BC sections of a large land mass in the Indian Ocean were sinking. Further - this land had been sinking for a long time. This supports the old legend that there had been a land mass in the Indian Ocean. Data is still yet unavailable as to the original size of this land. Possibly it was a continent. Possible this is MU. But, regardless of the speculations, this new important data from an Indian authority clearly shows that there had definitely been a large land mass and that it sunk. No one knows how large this land mass initially was and when it first started sinking. We thank G. S. Sampath Iyengar, who is an Indian ancient Historian, Astronomer, and author, for this important contribution. NOTE: THE FANTASTIC MAPS ARE ON THE NEXT TWO PAGES... ..

Disaster Forecast for 1981

CHANGES

710 Reid Street
De Pere, Wisconsin 54115

You had better not depend on your government to issue a warning of imminent disaster. This nation's leaders must maintain a sense of calm within the populace at all costs... even if that cost is your life.

The U.S. Geological Survey has just repudiated the predictions made by two of their own seismologists that three violent earthquakes will rack Peru this year.

Actually, the scientists did not try to publicize their findings, but as one said, "We think that the seismic stress in this area is building up. It would be irresponsible for us to keep our data in the closet and just watch the sequence of events unfold. After reportedly meeting with the President of Peru last year, Drs. Brian Brady and William Spence caused such a stir in the Peruvian press that outgoing airline flights were booked solid and relief agencies began stocking up on body bags. In desperation the Peruvian Government demanded that a clarification be issued that would in effect be a retraction of the original prediction.

The quake forecasts are extraordinary for their preciseness. Three earthquakes are expected off the coast of Peru on or about June 28, August 10, and September 16. The tremors would all be classified as "great quakes", with the final one registering in excess of 9.0 on the Richter Scale. (A magnitude 9 earthquake has not been recorded on earth this century.) On May 31, 1970, Peru's last major earthquake occurred, registering 7.7 on the Richter Scale. The quake was responsible for the deaths of 70,000 persons, injuries to another 50,000 and the destruction or serious damage of 186,000 buildings.

The scene of the forecast earthquakes is between two slow-moving plates which make up the earth's outer surface. The South American plate and the Nazca plate meet just off the coast of Peru, the former consisting of the South American land mass and the latter the Pacific Ocean. Seismologists have been watching the area for years because of the lack of serious earthquake activity. Everyone acknowledges that this quiet must end sometime.

There have been two "great" earthquakes in this zone of magnitude 9.0 in the past -- one in 1868, and one in 1877.

The prediction is based on what Dr. Brady calls the theory of "inclusion collapse." The theory, related to the seismic gap theory, is based on deeply buried rock formations with many cracks. The rocks eventually lose their ability to withstand the pressures of the surrounding earth as gaps occur in the rocks. The earthquake is then caused by the sudden collapse of bedrock. Spence reports that the Peruvian gap is currently 60 feet and growing at the rate of 6" a year.

Perhaps the government of Peru can persuade most of its people to forget about the predicted quakes, but you can bet that geophysicists around the world are going to be sitting on the edge of their seats this summer.

SACRED CAVES AND LOST CITIES OF THE ANCIENTS
by Pat O'Connell, President, New Atlanteans

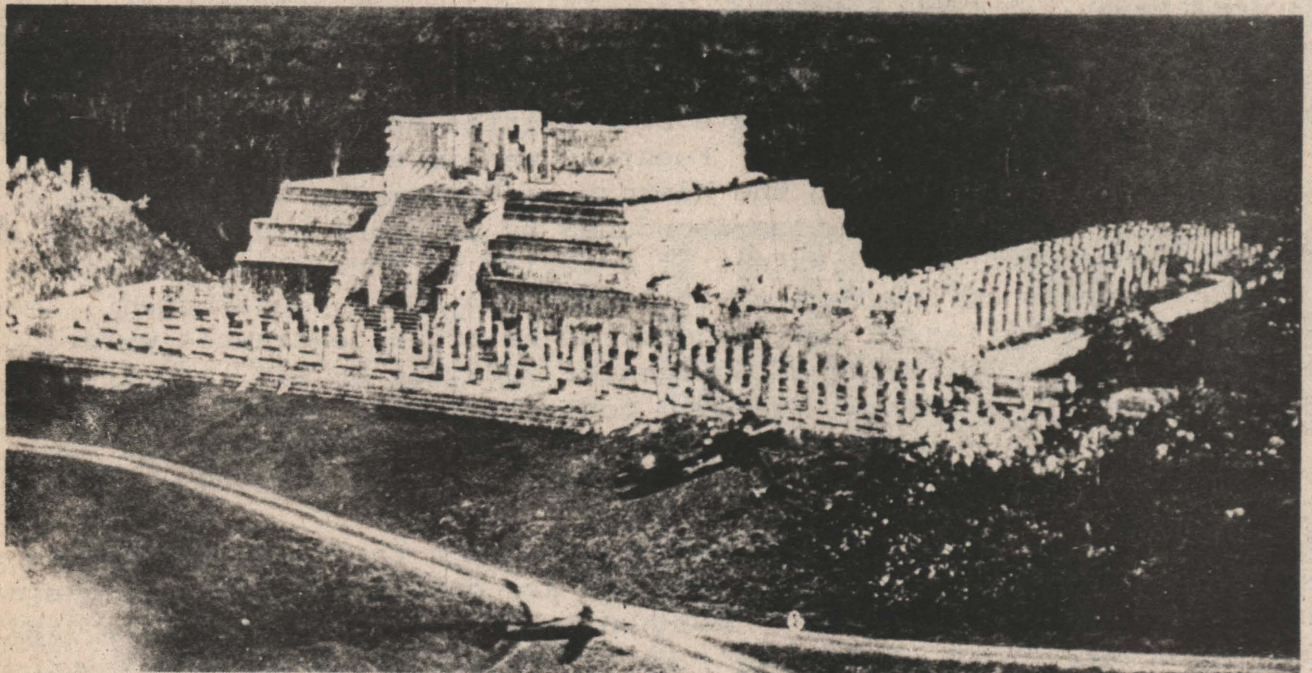

About every 40 years - the last being in 1942, according to Harold T. Wilkins (Mysteries of Ancient South America) there are rumors of descendents of lost Mayan or Aztec tribes surfacing in the province of Chiappas, Mexico and in western Guatamala, surfacing for a brief time. They contact only other Indians and then disappear into the jungle as soon as they barter for any provisions they might need. Figures 1 and 2 depict the area mentioned by an American traveler, J. Lloyd Stephens in his 1839 and 1840 accounts in the London and New York press, respectively. Wilkins asserts that Stephens interviewed a Spanish priest in Chajul, Guatemala, concerning a mysterious 'lost' city that "... lies on a mesa, and from it, at certain hours of the day, or at dawn, comes the sound of an eerie vibrant drumming. The sound is heard from afar, even the Pacific!" (see Figure 3) Tradition has it that the sound comes from a great stone vault of a great temple in the city in which was once worshipped "The Ruler of the Universe", according to Wilkins.

Other stories of 'lost' cities continue to be told: one that may relate to this same city mentioned above, concerns the dwarfish "white" Lancondones - an Indian tribe which is reportedly descended from the survivors of Atlantis! Wilkins states that they are said to be the hereditary guardians of a lost Mayan city in which there is a temple containing: "... on gold plates, the hieroglyphical history of the race and the world."

The tunnels of Central America have been written about and speculated upon for about the last 300 years! Fuentes, who lived about 1689 AD, and wrote a manuscript concerning the history of Guatemala, wrote of the mysterious and large ancient cities abandoned by an unknown and long vanished race. He documented the extent of a series of tunnel systems, marvelled at the hardness of the cement with which they were constructed. Among the towns he identified in which suspected or actual entrances were located, included the following in Guatemala: PUCHUTA, TECPAN, and if Wilkins is correct, one tunnel allegedly connects CUZCO, PERU, with the underground cavern in which Inca Tupac Amaru, his followers and the remnants of his army, fled to escape the Spanish.

THE SACRED CAVE OF THE SIERRA DO MACHADO Although the majority of such subterranean caverns remain concealed, a few are discovered, such as the sacred burial cave of the SIERRA DO MACHADO in Brazil (Figures 3 & 4: Credit: Marcel F. Homet, "Sons of the Sun", Neville Spearman, 1963).

The "Sun Crypt" of the Sierra Do Machado, as Homet relates, "... Entirely smooth, concealed behind an almost perpendicular stone wall over 600 ft. high, with nothing to offer any footing to a climber." About 30 ft. above the ground a passage had been cut: it is horizontal, about 90 ft. long and almost 4 ft. high and 12-15 ft. deep. At the end of the passageway, which is absolutely parallel and smooth, the stone having been perfectly cut and worked 1000's of years ago (according to Homet) is a burial vault which is over 60 feet long and 5 feet wide and 3 feet deep. In this cavern were many red ochre drawings, depicting alligators, turtles, suns, archaic letters, and the Indo-Iranian symbol of the Sun - figure 4. Homet concluded that because of the "Celtic" patterns of the pictures and inscriptions on the cave walls and the ancient age of the tunnel, that there was a connection with the ancient Atlanteans and their descendents. J. Carmen Garcia holds an oversized bunch of collard greens in a 1978 photo.

UPI

'The experimentation centers on energizing the seeds. The energy source? The energization is imparted by the human mind.'

Giant Vegetable Secret Safe

VALLE DE SANTIAGO, Mexico (UPI) — The case of J. Carmen Garcia's giant vegetables gets more curious and more curious.

Garcia, the marvel of the marketplace in his village in a produce-rich valley in Guanajuato state 280 miles northwest of Mexico City, perennially brings in 50-pound cabbages and 10-pound onions and 5-foot-long collard greens.

So how does he do it?

He says a man — claiming extra-terrestrial underground-dwelling humanoids who live on giant vegetables held him in a subterranean prison — gave him a scrap of paper containing a formula of symbols. Garcia said he gained inspiration for his own growing talents from contemplating the formula.

Whatever one thought of the extra-terrestrial connection, the existence of the vegetables is undeniable. Garcia produces them year in and year out. Photographs exist. And Bill Robinson, a San Diego Police Department information officer, keeps a 10-pound Garica onion in his freezer in San Diego.

In February, United Press International transmitted an illustrated dispatch about Garcia based on an article in San Diego Home and Garden Magazine by Robinson. Robinson had stumbled upon the giant vegetables, Garcia and his associate, Oscar Arredondo, while on a Mexican vacation.

After the UPI dispatch, Robinson received over 1,000 letters from would-be greenthumbs around the world, requesting more information, including two from U. S. Department of Agriculture plant pathologists in Florida and California.

Awed by the sudden interest, Robinson felt duty-bound to return to Mexico to seek more information from Garcia. UPI tagged along as interpreter.

Garcia was less than overjoyed to see Robinson again, and it wasn't because the visit interrupted irrigation chores on his 3-acre parcel.

"Last week on one day I had people here from New Zealand, Venezuela, France, the Dominican Republic, Canada, Germany and the United States," Garcia said. "I tell them 'Stay here six months and I'll teach you the method.' Finally they go away, but others come."

CHIPPEWA FALLS, WI. - According to modern physics, heavy gauge stainless steel cannot be bent by a person who never touches the metal - but merely thinks "bend". WRONG. This Wisconsin daily newspaper publisher and our senior editor went to Minneapolis to test psychic Greta Woodrew, a 50 year old mother of four who, like her husband, runs a successful business. Mrs. Woodrew demonstrated the powers she says are assisted by beings from many light years away. We brought her two exceptionally heavy stainless steel spoons which nested perfectly, one on the other. Holly Meier, by nature a salty, skeptical editor for 35 years - held the spoons in his hand. Mrs. Woodrew never touched them. She concentrated and said "bend". Meier opened his hand. One of the spoons had been bent sharply. Looking at another spoon, she caused it to bend upwards at the shank while it lay before us on a table. Later, she caused a fork to twist and it's tines to bend. We were told that the editor in chief of Macmillan, saw the Westport, NY woman twist metal. Next week Macmillan will publish her book, "On a Slide of Light".

Her powers, she says, are assisted by the ETIs - extraterrestrial intelligences from a planet called Ogatta, and are intended only to attract other's attention to a message for mankind. The ETI's predict that by the year 2000 worldwide natural disasters will kill between one quarter and 40 percent of the earth's population - nearly 2 billion people. Yet, later in the day she told an audience of corporate presidents that "more than 20 advanced civilizations are ready to help Planet Earth."...

Mrs. Woodrew says she has been tested by Dr. Andrija Puharich, whom she describes as one of the world's foremost authorities on paranormal phenomenon. She also said she does not accept money for her lectures and will turn over the proceeds of the book to the Space Technology and Research Foundation... ..NOTE: Dr. Puharich is the mentor that Uri Geller sought when he found himself with the 'bends' of paranormal happenings. They became great friends and Dr. Puharich was the first to write a book about the "Geller Effect" - which is STILL in effect, I must add! Uri continues to mystify and to educate worldwide, triggering the mind of Man...

THE PHAESTOS DISK:
AN ARTIFACT -- OF ATLANTIS?
BY THE CHAPEL OF AQUARIA....

The Phaestos Disk was discovered in 1909 by Dr. L. Pernier in the ruined repository of the Palace at Phaestos on Crete. Dr. Pernier was an associate of Sir Arthur Evans, the author of Scripta Minoa and the Palace Of Minos At Knossos, the classic works on ancient Minoan civilization.

The Phaestos Disk is unique. Nothing else like it has ever been found on Crete or anywhere else in the world. Most of the configurations of LINEAR A AND LINEAR B, the written language of the ancient Minoans, crudely resemble the concise and neatly refined figures on the Phaestos Disk. The Phaestos Disk figures therefore were used as the basis of an alphabet by people who had been reduced to almost complete destitution and semi-barbarism by some all-engulfing cosmic catastrophe. This great world catastrophe could only have been the sinking of Atlantis.

Many attempts have been made to translate the Phaestos Disk as a language. All these translations have failed since the Phaestos Disk speaks only the language of Atlantean Astrology! Encoded with many devices, the Disk was used in the Atlantean world as a test-examination for Astrology students. Well --- then --- let us see if we are going to get our diploma! The shadowy, winding Minotaur-labyrinth-passages of the Phaestos Disk now lie before us! Travel back in Time with us then, if you will, into the greater Ancient yesterdays of Man. Atlantis Lives Again!

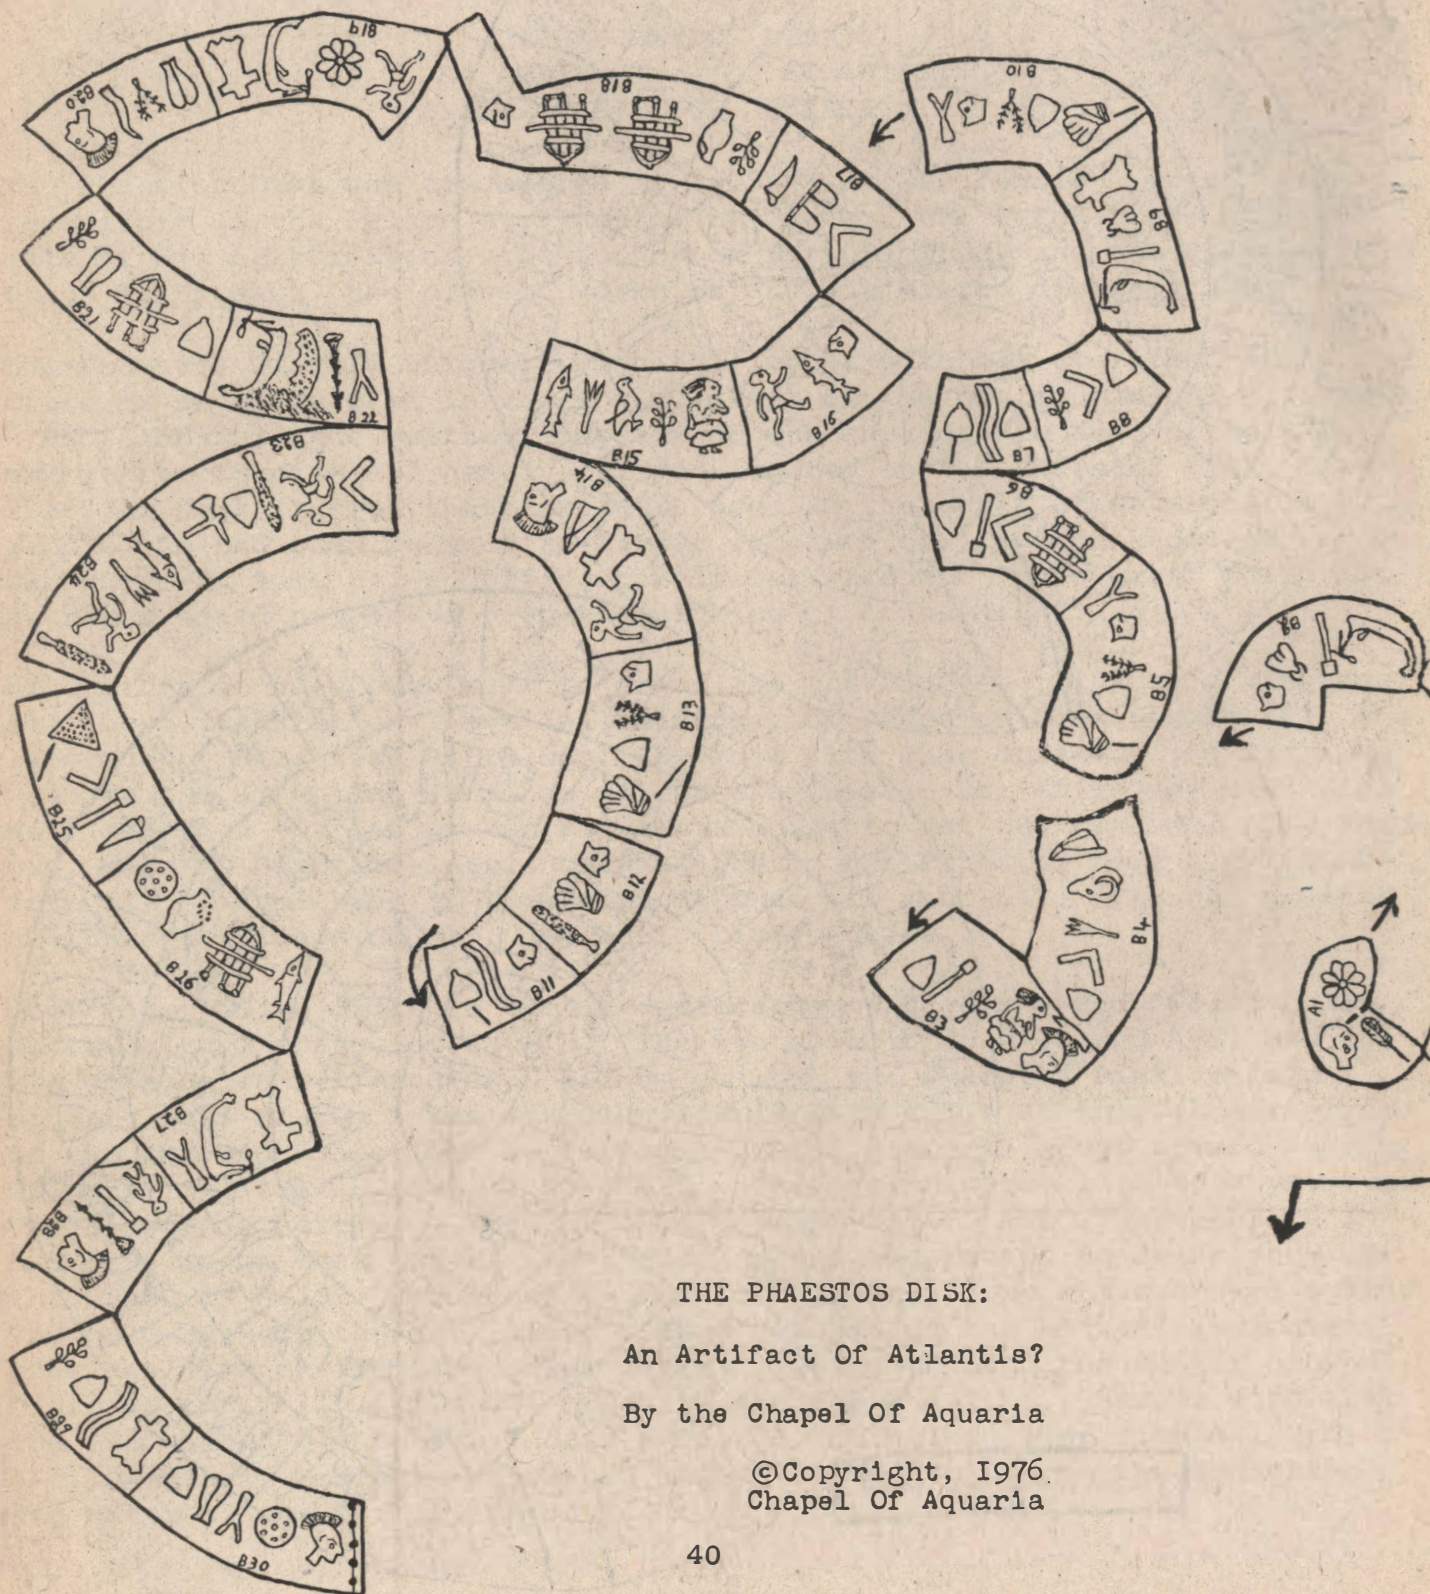

There are twelve cells on the circumference of Face A - and twelve cells on the circumference of Face B. The two shields in A-30 and A-31 and the two breasts in B-29 and B-30 inform us that the Phaestos Disk cells unwind in sets of two. The singular Bow in A-19 tells us to nock our arrow of thought and "shoot" at A-31. At A-20 the Bow cell moves upward --- flipping cells A-18 to A-11 DOWNWARD. The marked water in A-29 says: "... The flow ends here". -- Where do we go from here? Ah! The wet face in A-9 says to us that our Mohawk Indian friend has paused to drink some of the water in A-29! Refreshed by that little drink, we start upward again. The halo-mark on the A-1 priest's head (waters of the Spirit) indicates that A-1 lies on the same level as A-9. Going through the center of the Disk, we naturally place B-1 opposite and above A-1..... And we find that the now haloed B-3 Mohawk Indian unravels to fall in line with A-1 and A-9. Seemingly ordinary water had indeed flowed to become the enlightening water of the Spirit and Soul!

Chapel Of Aquaria

Moving ahead, our eyes almost intuitively rivet on the marked B-26 heavenly Aquarius pitcher that must have poured out all that spiritual water! No more wet signpost-clues are needed. Note the hinge on B-18. The four chakra-quarters-pattern of the Phaestos Disk chakra now becomes evident.

As each figure moves out in orderly sequence to the other 3 chakra-quarters, cells A-31 to A-20 kick over to the left to make room for the end of the fourth chakra-quarter. Many cells contain more than 4 figures. This gives us a fold-over pattern on the chakra.... It tells us nothing since this ploy-mechanism is too nakedly and baldly obvious to even the most alert amateur cryptographer. Elenentary, My dead Watson, quite elementary! And - the sloppy, butterfingery marks on the Disk are NOT the result of clumsy, unfortunate accidents. The deciphering of the Phaestos Disk lies in the correct placing of the Marked Figures and the number-totals of the 45 Disk Figures. There are, for instance, 4 women. A cardinal-points position is therefore indicated. The Disk displays a total of 241 Figures. The Disk Chakra has room for 241 Figures. $208 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 1 = 241$. The long-lost astrobiological science of Old Atlantis is NOW at last within our grasp!

"WHAT IS THE TAROT?"

by Rev. Marilyn Tremble

During our present quest for enlightenment and inner growth the Tarot is one of many Ancient systems which is being investigated by those who wish to understand, and thereby improve, their lives. The title of this system, the word Tarot, is really an anagram of "rota" an old Latin word - which means wheel or cycle. It is generally accepted that in this particular case it is meant to refer to the wheel or cycle of life since traditionally the Tarot is believed to be a complete blueprint and operating manual of man and the Universe.

This set of 78 illustrated cards appear to be naturally divided into two distinct types of cards which are traditionally called "The Major Arcana Keys", and the "Minor Arcana Keys". (Arcana means secret and is also a Latin word!). The Major Arcana, major secret unlockers, are a series of twenty two numbered and titled cards which are each said to represent one of the finite operating principles of the Universe. The Minor Arcana Keys, minor secret unlockers, are fifty-six in number and are further divided into four distinct suits which are titled Wands, Cups, Swords, and pentacles and correspond to the suits in a modern deck of playing cards. Each of these suits contains fourteen cards, four trumps and ten numbered and together depict the lesser aspects of mans reaction to and interaction with the world around him.

Although there is no concrete proof as to where the Tarot originated - history does speak of it's use even in very ancient times as both a divinator and meditative tool. Legend tells us that such groups as the ancient Egyptian's used it, much as we would a computer or other scientific instrument, to figure operations of a mathematical nature as well as predict future trends and occurrences. Among the suggested and better documented sources for the Tarot are the following groups: The ancient Egyptians (Thoth), and an obscure sect of Judaism called the Esene's. A group of Kebra'ia scholars called Kabbalist's, and a group of ancient and anonymous Masters who assembled in Morocco after the destruction of the great Library in Alexandria. Those I have listed above are only a few of many postulated sources, but they are those which appear to be the most plausible at this time!

In spite of the great disagreement on where the Tarot originated most do agree on it's intended purpose. In fact there is little doubt that this ancient set of illustrations was very carefully designed by some very wise person or persons to be used as an instructional tool.

It is well known, and even psychiatrist's admit, that the Tarot's elaborate symbolism is rooted deep in the archtypes of the subconscious mind - because of this it is also known that the Tarot subconsciously affects everyone who looks at it, whether they realize and acknowledge it or not. Those who have studied the Tarot extensively believe that it was originally used exclusively for the purpose of teaching those who aspired to Life's great mysteries and the Universal knowledge which they contain. It is evident that whoever designed the Tarot did so in such a way that the knowledge it contained would only be imparted to each individual as they became evolved enough to use it wisely. It appears to produce a timed release of knowledge geared to the needs of each individual student -- this is an unbelievably advanced teaching concept which even our advanced technology has yet to reproduce!

Tradition tells us that perhaps this system was even too advanced it it's own time for apparently, the Tarot, it's students, and the knowledge it represented became objects of fear and envy. It appears that a lack of understanding resulted in a misguided but rather powerful attempt to wipe out both the Tarot and it's users! This period of intense persecution led to subtle but necessary changes in the symbolism and usage of the Tarot. First, by altering some details and removing others completely the Tarot's symbolic meaning was made less evident to the untrained eye and the it was released to the general public as a game of chance and crude fortune-telling device. These actions had a dual purpose; they allowed serious students to continue their studies without fear of punishment and, most important, also insured that the Tarot and it's knowledge would survive. Even if it's Authors and present followers did not!

The studies of the Tarot that have been done to date show very clearly that it's author or authors wanted it to transcend all barriers such as time, language, and distance, easily and completely. The fact that the Tarot appears to accurately depict every esoteric and exoteric system known to man can not be written off as a mere coincidence! For example, such things as sub-atomic structure, which our modern physicist's are only now diagramming and studying, has been proven to be accurately encoded into the Tarot. Also many complex chemical formulas and processes, such as those which occur within the human body, are precisely represented in certain sections of the Tarot. It is a recognized fact that continued meditation and study of the Tarot produces marked changes in the lives of those using it and although much research is still needed, the facts already established clearly support all the traditional claims which are attributed to the Tarot.

Whether or not the Tarot is truly a blueprint of our Universe has not been proved but even a brief perusal of the subject is sure to get your attention and pose some very curious questions! Only future research is capable of solving these questions and unraveling all of the Tarot's secrets beyond a doubt; but clearly none can deny that it is an extremely interesting subject worthy of our further exploration... ..

The conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn in Libra continues this summer with Pluto also in Libra. These three planets have recently turned direct in apparent motion indicating a pick up in business and financial matters. Toward the middle of July a lunar eclipse squaring these planets could cause earthquakes, unusual weather phenomena, danger to politicians and business executives and air disasters. Toward the end of July and during all of August Mars squares these three planets continuing the danger. In September Venus conjoins these three planets favoring all financial and sexual matters.

ARIES — July could bring considerable danger to you. Accidents of all kinds possible, especially while traveling. The danger continues in August with accidents possible in the home also. The danger lessens in September and a romantic interlude is possible.

TAURUS — Get rich quick schemes could make you poor quick in July. August brings danger while traveling. September is a good month for you to use your artistic skills to re-decorate your home.

GEMINI — Haste makes waste in July. If you try to get more than what's coming to you in August you could get into serious trouble. In September you could benefit from studying philosophical and spiritual subjects.

CANCER — Take no chances in July. Be extra alert since if anything can go wrong it will. In August you may be feeling your oats but others will not take kindly to aggressive behavior. Financial matters are favored in September.

LEO — You could meet some unusual people in July who could help you with your spiritual studies. If you try to be King of the Mountain in August be sure you have what it takes or someone else could take what you have. September brings you good health and lots of energy.

VIRGO — Unselfish hard work should be your keynote in July. Be willing to accept new ideas in August. Flexibility could save you from a lot of unpleasantness. In September try not to be impatient. Examine your innermost thoughts.

LIBRA — July is your big month. If you are able to practice patience and self discipline you will be able to hit it big. Exercise special care in August and direct your energies constructively in order to continue your success. September is an excellent month to make friends and influence people.

SCORPIO — Important changes could bring your advancement and personal growth in July. Occult and metaphysical studies are favored in August. In September you will be tied up in career or job related activities.

SAGITTARIUS — Difficulties with relationships indicated for you during July. If your marriage is already in trouble it could dissolve but if it is strong it should be able to withstand the storm. Your libido will be unusually active in August. You could get into trouble as a result. Higher studies of all kinds are favored for you in September.

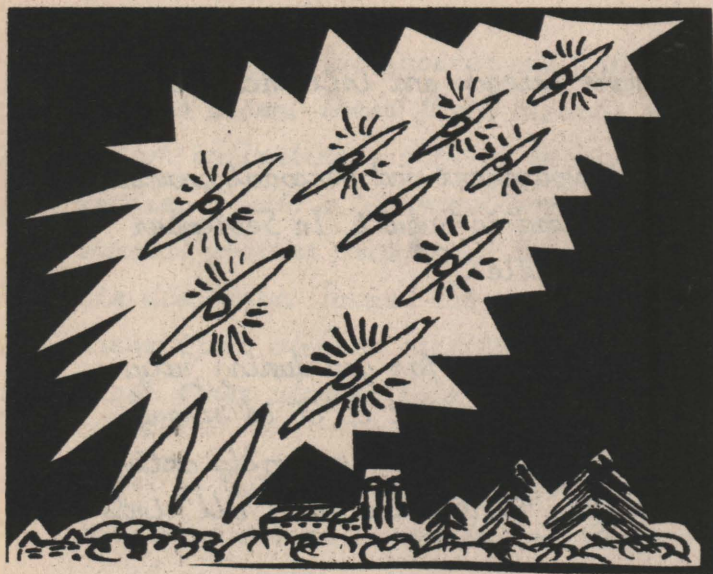

CAPRICORN — July is a very dangerous month for you. Be especially careful in your home since there is considerable danger of accidents. Danger continues in August so remain alert. Occult studies favored in September.

AQUARIUS — An unusual romantic experience is possible for you in July. Accidents possible at work, especially where machinery and electronic equipment is concerned in August. Difficulties possible in September in interfacing with your spouse or business partner.

PISCES — If you are able to think and act in a positive way in July you will be able to bring about favorable changes in your home and family life. Children could bring you considerable pleasure in August and a romantic interlude is possible. During September you should work unselfishly to help others, especially those who are less fortunate than you are.

Chinese have their own Bigfoot - and he's a redhead

By William D. Montalbano

Knight-Ridder Newspapers

PEKING — Bigfoot is a 9-foot-tall redhead.

He strides eight feet with each step of clodhopping, five-toed feet that measure 19 inches.

He scares some people and intrigues a great many more. Is he a lost link between man and the apes?

The alleged Chinese cousin of America's supposed Bigfoot lives in a heavily forested, lightly populated region of the Hubei province in central China.

The Chinese call him "ye ren" — wild man. And, being Chinese, they have a five-year plan to track him down.

Results of the first summer expedition, now being published in Peking, are intriguing but inconclusive. More than 250 local folk in northwestern Hubei have sighted "ye ren" at different places and different times. However, no one has produced him for an outsider yet, or for a camera. Scientists say they are hoping winter snows will aid their search through rugged, isolated terrain.

Investigators say witnesses draw a common portrait: "Ye ren" is very tall. He has red hair or fur, no tail, and walks upright.

About 8,000 feet up the side of Jiongdao Mountain in Hubei, scientists discovered more than 200 footprints. The Chinese press says they are the largest footprints found anywhere in the world. The tracks show that "ye ren" walks as humans do, with no sliding motion, they say.

Hair samples recovered from trees and brambles are fine, red and resemble human hair in their cellular structure, the scientists say.

The droppings of "ye ren" are coarse, and analysis shows "ye ren" lives off local vegetation. Droppings often are found in a triangle with two footprints, scientists add, suggesting that "ye ren" defecates as humans do.

From analysis of footprints, hair and droppings, the scientists have ruled out the possibility that what they are tracking is a bear or an ape, both of which are animals found in the same mountain area.

Although "ye ren" so far has eluded scientific scrutiny, he has left his mark on Chinese history.

A statesman-poet named Qu Yuan, who lived in the third century B.C. in the area where the present search is being mounted, referred in his verses to "mountain ogres."

A seventh century historian described a tribe of "hairy men" in the same region, and an 18th century poet spoke of a creature "monkeylike yet not a monkey" in adjoining Shaanxi province.

The witnesses also are persuasive, according to Liu Minzhuang, a biology lecturer in Shanghai who has been researching "ye ren" for more than 20 years and who led last summer's expedition.

One old peasant told of being with Nationalist Chinese soldiers who tracked eight "ye ren" through thick forests for 10 days in 1947. One creature was killed and dismembered by the soldiers, the peasant said, but any record of the incident was lost in the chaos of the Nationalist-Communist civil war.

In a recent sighting, a woodcutter and his niece, calling to one another on a mountainside in thick fog, drew two curious "ye ren." Researchers later found many footprints at the site of the fogbound encounter.

In one of the best-documented sightings, six forestry workers came upon a tailless creature with reddish fur at 1 a.m. on May 14, 1976.

They were driving on a highway near Shennongjia Mountain — the scene of the most frequent sightings — when the creature suddenly appeared in the truck headlights.

Five of the workers got out to investigate and were able to approach within a few feet before the creature stalked away. They all said it was like no animal they had seen before.

Analysis of the witnesses' accounts has persuaded researchers that "ye ren" has become nocturnal in recent years as a means of self-preservation — the better to steer clear of humans.

Although the Hubei Bigfoot has awakened the official interest of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, it is not the only bit of missing-link curiosity in China today.

In Shanghai, researchers are puzzling over the preserved hands and feet of a curious creature killed by peasants in coastal Zhejiang province in 1957.

The specimens, hidden and forgotten after provoking great local excitement, recently have come to light. They are said to have belonged to a creature about 5 feet tall and covered in silky black hair. The creature was said to be neither monkey nor man but, as a Shanghai newspaper reported, an "unknown animal with a human shape."

And finally, for Loch Ness Monster fans, China has one of those, too, although the Academy of Science has evinced no interest in it.

The monster is reported to live in the 1,000-foot-deep crater lake of a dormant volcano on the border of China and North Korea.

Acid rain frightens scientists

March 2, 1980

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — People don't see it, or feel it, or smell it, but when it rains or snows east of the Mississippi, sulfuric acid falls on their heads.

And into the water they drink, and wash in, and swim in, and fish in, and onto the food they eat.

Sulfuric acid is highly corrosive. It sails in from the west, riding the wind, born as sulphur oxides in the belching smokestacks of power plants in the great industrial river valleys. It lands on earth as "acid rain."

Nitric acid falls too. It's also corrosive, and is used to make bombs. It's born as nitrogen oxides in automobile exhaust pipes, mostly.

Particularly threatened, researchers say, is Pennsylvania, a state rich in forest, field and stream. Tests show it is being soaked by the most acidic rain anywhere in the country, possibly in the world.

Take the shower that fell on the town of Kane, located along the state's northern tier, on Sept. 19, 1978. It had a pH reading of 2.32, according to the Pennsylvania Forestry Association. That's like being doused with vinegar.

"What we see is frightening a lot of scientists," says Dr. George Hendrey, a researcher at the Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island, N.Y., which serves as a research arm for 10 large Eastern universities. "It's a lot worse than we thought."

Currently, the U.S. Department of Energy is monitoring acid rain in Pennsylvania, Virginia, New York, Delaware, Ohio and Illinois as part of an atmospheric power production pollution study.

The Carter administration has asked Congress for a 10-year, $100-million federal acid rain assessment program.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency has set up four labs to study the airborne waste, and states affected have begun running their own tests.

"There's an intense interest on our part to find out more about it," says Norman Glass, director of the EPA's terrestrial research division in Corvallis, Ore. "We want to know if there is a cause for alarm, and if so, how much?"

In New York state, 90 lakes in the Adirondacks already are dead, killed, scientists say, by acid rain. The trout, bass and pickerel are gone. The frogs no longer croak. They're dead, too. Potential losses to the area's recreational economy are estimated at $15 million a year.

Ralph Abele, executive director of the state Fish Commission in Pennsylvania, watched those lakes die. Now, he's worried about his own lakes and streams, saying they're "faced with their greatest threat to survival in history."

"Pennsylvania is in the eye of the storm," he wrote in the January issue of "Pennsylvania Angler," the state's official fishing and boating magazine. "Our rainfall now is probably the most acidic in the world with a pH average of less than 4.0, or about 100 times normal acidity."

Robert Cook is worried, too. He owns the R.C. Cook Co., an automobile paint and supply firm near Harrisburg. He claims acid rain ruins about 200 of his paint jobs a year.

Cook starts rainy days with a strip of litmus paper, testing for acidity. He says he's found that rain and snow in the Harrisburg area is consistently acidic — the pH ranging from a reading of 3 (nearly 1,000 times higher than normal) to a reading of 5 (10 times the normal).

Animals Have Strange Detecting Powers

In the Modern Humans Comprehension Course # 1, it is pointed out that animals tune into a very wide variety of vibratory ranges with their "Feel" or hearing senses. In Course # 2, explanation is given as to the exact reason man alone had his natural automatic sensing abilities cut off. To aid in regaining the natural senses it is often necessary to de-program ones self - and gain more understanding as to how nature really does work. To elaborate a little on the "Feel Sense" data, here are further observations.

Animals use their resonance radar systems with an accuracy that astonishes a science that fails to understand nature's simple secrets. Species, from mosquitoes and the birds, to squirrels and deer --- have supersensitive detection equipment. The birds, for example, can use their beaks to pick up food and to home resonance rays from a great distance. Using egg shells and feathers it sheds at a distant point or nesting area, a bird can follow the "guide rays" home with perfect accuracy. The mosquitoes' antennae is not only incredibly sensitive, but selects the exact vibrations desired. A combination of "Hair and raised tail" radar on a squirrel or hunting dog can locate buried nuts or bones by simple two station 'radar' resonance. Since it has been found that older molecules are heavy and cling near the earth, theories about guidance by smell are applying to fewer and fewer situations.

To go a step further in apprehending how nature's systems work, it is necessary to understand how SHAPE and FORM are used in equipping various life forms with their Super Detection and Protection Systems. Recognizing that the newly born - and the species with few mechanical defense systems could be very vulnerable, they must invariably be protected by other means. To understand how SHAPES and FORMS are used, we can gather together various symbols of primitive man (uncontaminated man) and carry them over to their usage in Nature.

First - there are the SIGNALING SHAPES which aid and bolster the SENDING of vibrations... Illustration A. Secondly - there are major, efficient vibration SUPPRESSANT shapes... Illustration B. Third - the minor vibration SUPPRESSANT shapes which act only locally... Illustration C.

The first group of shaped can be recognized in ancient communication forms and communication centers and design, and in the sending apparatus of life forms. The second group of designs are incorporated into the body covering designs of most insect and animal life on earth. Such designs cut down on the efficiency of distnat predators 'Feel' sensor projections. The bearer is thereby given a 'shield' or certain amount of 'invisibility' to the questing vibrations seeking it out.

The third suppressant shapes are used by Nature in Special Situations... The Spider, for example, will set its minor S web in a food vibration route. The incoming insect will not get its food guiding signals cut off ----- UNTIL it is too late, and it strikes the web. Without it's M.S. web, the Spider itself could be detected, and with a stronger web, the insect would change course -- before it got there.

If you think about these and other Com. #1 'Keys' you can easily understand why many life forms act as they do. You can see that the feathers on the bird are major vibe suppressants (above the down only) and why birds will hide their vulnerable beaks beneath their protective feathers when reasting -- and even why ancient man used the unusual building designs he used. Using the natural animal feel sense, there are strong currents of connective radiations flowing between a 'parent' and a tiny piece of the parent. Plants, for instance, radiate strongly to their seeds until the seeds begin to grow on their own. Blood or saliva mixed with healing compounds have been found by a number of 'unorthodox' healers. To actually transfer the compounds' vibration rate to a distant donor's blood or saliva. With comprehension of ourselves and nature can come incredible amounts of potential and ability. That's what Comprehension Courses are all about!
