Synopsis:

Adapted from artist's original Visual Arts tutorial lecture; SUNY College at Old Westbury, NY; Spring 1993

The Progenitors follow certain family bloodlines. Speculating on the subject, I'd say that if I was to analyze and study aspects of a civilization, I would do it within the framework of a laboratory. There would be certain progenies considered the control group and then there would be others considered the ongoing experimental group.

Another scenario would be that a gene line of three or four generations makes for an excellent study. This would tie in with a third scenario...

Question: How would you figure out how something worked if you were extremely curious about its fascinating yet puzzling characteristics or behavior?

Answer: You disassemble it and reassemble it from scratch.

In this piece you – the viewer – are on the examination table while three of them are studying you from head to foot. You are being poked and prodded as your mind is locked in an atmospheric, dreamy, drug-induced state of helplessness. Weeks later, you will develop a nervous, unsettling fear of everyday objects and you won't understand why. Only that you have somehow seen it before – somewhere – in a different place and time.

Pens, knives scissors, flashlights, forks, screwdrivers. Such things would trigger the images locked away in your subconscious mind.

CHAOS, EXOPOLITICS AND ESCAPE

ANDREW HENNESSEY

THE PROBLEM WE ALL HAVE WITH THE INTERNET IN GENERAL AND ALSO UFOLOGY AND OUR ATTEMPTS TO BE EXOPOLITICAL IS THE OBVIOUS PRESENCE OF SEMANTIC CHAOS.

ITS LIKE SOMEBODY HAS PUT ALL OUR IDEAS AND IDEOLOGIES INTO A BLENDER AND COME UP WITH A CHUNKY AND OFTEN FUNKY MIXTURE OF STUFF WE RECOGNISE BUT WHICH CAN BE A BIT INAPPROPRIATE AND CONTRADICTIONARY.

EXOPOLITICS LIKE ANY OTHER HUMAN INSTITUTION IS EXPOSED TO THE SAME PROBLEMS OF SEMANTIC CHAOS AND ITS CONTRADICTIONS, OFTEN ISSUED FROM PEOPLE WITH THE ROBES OF CREDIBILITY WHO APPEAR TO BE NO MORE THAN PROFESSIONAL DECOYS WITH AN ELABORATELY CONSTRUCTED CUL DE SAC FOR THE SHEEPLE. THESE CHARADES BEGIN WITH CREDIBLE CONSTRUCTIONS THEN END UP IN CYNICAL SCIENCE FICTION AND UNBELIEVABLE ASSERTIONS.

THE PROBLEM WITH OUR ALLEGEDLY HUMAN INSTITUTIONS THEREFORE ARE THEIR INBUILT REDUNDANCIES THAT SEEM TO BE CAUSED BY PEOPLE WHO HAVE A MIND TO DELIBERATELY PERPETRATE CHAOS.

THE ANTI-HUMAN PERFORMANCE OF THE UNITED NATIONS FOR EXAMPLE IN ITS LONG TERM ADVOCACY OF POPULATION REDUCTION TO SAVE THE ECOSYSTEM OF THIS PLANET IS IN TRUTH A BLATANT SOCIAL CRIME.

Clearly if the HUMAN RACE WERE ALLOWED TO FREELY USE THE ANTI-GRAVITY AND FREE ENERGY TECHNOLOGY AND TECHNOLOGICAL PARADIGM ON THE TABLE INDUSTRIALLY SINCE AT LEAST 1890 WITH FARADAY AND THEN VARIOUSLY WITH MANY OTHERS THROUGHOUT THE 20th CENTURY – WE WOULD BE ABLE TO CLEAN AND PURIFY OUR PLANET, SUPPLY AND RESUPPLY IT FROM FARMING INTERESTS ELSEWHERE, AND TAKE NO PART WHATSOEVER IN THE DESOLATE AND POLLUTING INDUSTRIES THAT THE UNITED NATIONS INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT ORGANISATION FIRST IDENTIFIED IN THE LATE 1960's – AS BEING IN POSSESSION OF CLEAN AND CHEAP FACTORIES THERE WOULD BE NO NEED TO PRODUCE OCEANS OF TOXIC WASTE IN E.G. BRAZIL [VOLTA REDONDA]. ALIENS OR ALLEGED ALIENS WHO ALLEGEDLY POSTPONE DEALING WITH HUMANITY BECAUSE 'WE' CANNOT GET OUR ACT TOGETHER ARE ACTUALLY ANTI-HUMAN ALIENS AIDING AND ABETTING THE CULL OR INDEED THE 'SOUL HARVEST' [KERNER, N: THE SONG OF THE GREYS, AND DELOOZE, M] OTHER ENGAGING SOCIAL CHARADES TO HELP US ALL GET THROUGH THE DAY INCLUDE: GOVERNMENT, CIVIL ADMINISTRATIONS, RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS AND THE TRANS-NATIONAL CORPORATE WORLD, NETWORKS, SECRET SOCIETIES, THINK TANKS OPERATING CONSPIRACIES OF SELF-INTEREST, BLACK OPS, CAREER INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES, MJ12, CRIMINAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES.

ALL OF THESE CAN GET OUR YUMMY 'OUTRAGE JUICES' FLOWING FOR THE BENEFIT OF OUR FARMERS.

INSIDE ALMOST EVERY ONE OF THESE SCENARIOS IS AN ENDLESS ALPHANUMERIC SOUP THAT IS COMPARTMENTALISED, CHAOTIC, ANTAGONISTIC, SOMETIMES SYNERGISTIC, OFTEN INEFFECTIVE, ALWAYS FISCALLY WASTEFUL, ALWAYS PRODUCING ITS OWN VERSION OF WINNERS AND LOSERS.

IT IS MORE THAN LIKELY THAT THESE AGENCIES HAVE TO DEAL WITH ALL SORTS OF INFILTRATION, ABDUCTION, REPROGRAMMING AND REPLACEMENT OF THEIR KEY PERSONNEL FROM A DARK ALIEN THREAT.

IN THIS LIGHT THEREFORE, IT IS UNLIKELY THAT ANY BENIGN ET CIVILISATION INTENT ON DOING GOOD FOR MANKIND WOULD INTERACT WITH THIS DARK AND INCOHERENT CIRCUS CALLED A GLOBAL SOCIAL HIERARCHY.

IT CAN BE ARGUED THAT THE CHAOS AND NEGATION AND NIHILISM THAT OUR ALLEGED SOCIETY IS LACED WITH IS A DELIBERATE ESSENCE FEEDING STRATEGY BY REPTO-GREY FARMERS WHO MAY FEED OFF AND MILK OUR 'OUTRAGE JUICES'. OUR TENDENCY TO SELF-VINDICATE IS OFTEN VERY PREDICTABLE .. ESPECIALLY IN A POTENTIALLY PREDATORY SOCIAL AND TELEPATHIC ENVIRONMENT WITH PERSONAL SPIRITUAL ISSUES THAT WE CANNOT ALWAYS IMMEDIATELY RECOGNISE.

INTERVENTION BY BENIGN ETs THEREFORE WOULD NOT BE EFFECTIVE IF IT USED THESE SELF-CANCELLING AGENCIES.

IT COULD ALSO BE SAID THAT IF BENIGN ETs JUST STOOD BACK, THAT EVERYBODY WOULD JUST GRAVITATE TO THEIR OWN FAMILIAR REALITY AND MILLIONS OF PEOPLE WOULD GO TO MILLIONS OF OTHER PLACES NATURALLY E.G. DURING A CATASTROPHIC GEOLOGICAL REVISION OF THE MOUNTAINS AND OCEANS ON THIS PLANET.

THAT HOWEVER DOESN'T ACCOUNT FOR THE FACT THAT SOME PEOPLE ON EARTH ARE BEING MADE TO FEEL THAT THEY SHOULD GO TO A CERTAIN PLACE WITH CERTAIN BEINGS IN AN ARTIFICIAL AND TRAUMA DRIVEN WAY.

THE BEGINNING OF BENIGN ET INTERVENTION THAT ACCOUNTS NOT JUST FOR THE INDIVIDUAL, HOWEVER, BUT FOR LARGE SOCIAL GROUPS OF INDIVIDUALS HAS TO START WITH ONE GENERIC SOCIAL MISSIVE AND COMMUNICATION.

WHAT STRATEGY MIGHT THEY TAKE .. E.G. USE OF EARTH BASED POP STARS LIKE ROBBIE WILLIAMS, ACKNOWLEDGED LEADERS AND HIERARCHIES AND 'GURUS' – THE INNATE RESISTANCE TO TRUTH AND CHANGE WITHIN SOME OF THESE CHANNELS MERELY ADDS TO THE CHAOS.

BECAUSE OF THIS I SUSPECT THAT THE PROCESS WILL INVOLVE THE TOTAL SUBSUMPTION OF THE TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND MEDIA NETWORK CREATED BY OVER RIDING ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY THAT WILL NEUTRALISE THE CURRENT REPTO-GREY MEDIA FRANCHISE AND ITS OWN BRAND OF INTERSTELLAR JUNK.

ADVANCED AND BENIGN ET'S WILL TOTALLY BI-PASS THE STATUS QUO ON PLANET EARTH WITH ALL OF ITS TAINT AND ANTI-HUMAN FAILURES. I PREDICT THAT WE WILL ALL COLLECTIVELY SEE A WHOLE NEW BRAND OF TELEVISION AND RADIO AND INTERNET OPTIONS FOR THE DURATION OF THE REPATRIATION PROCESS SUPPLIED BY BENEVOLENT ET'S.

REPTO-GREY FARMERS COULD TRY THIS ONE ON US TOO ... BUT THEN I'M CERTAIN THAT THE HIGHEST FREQUENCY CIVILISATION PROCESSING THE MOST ONES AND ZEROS IN THE LEAST TIME IS AN ANGELIC ONE AND WOULD PREVAIL.

THAT FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE FALL OF ATLANTIS, 20,000 YEARS AGO WHICH ALSO ROUGHLY CO-INCIDED WITH THE LAST GEOLOGICAL CATASTROPHE WE UNDERWENT [HANCOCK, G : FINGERPRINTS OF THE GODS, ALSO PIRI RIES MAP]

THERE WILL BE MASSIVE CHANGES AMONGST THE TEMPORARY FARMING CHARADES ALBEIT 20,000 YEARS OF TEMPORARY FARMING – AND THOSE LOCKED INTO AND ORIENTATED BY; PHYSICAL, SOCIAL, HISTORIC, SPIRITUAL AND IDEOLOGICAL LANDMARKS WILL BE ABLE TO DETACH AND POTENTIALLY ESCAPE WITH HELP.

AT THAT POINT REAL EXOPOLITICS WILL COME INTO PLAY, AND I PREDICT THAT SUCH EXOPOLITICS WILL INVOLVE THE COMPANY OF ANGELS, SUPERIOR TECHNOLOGY AND INFRASTRUCTURE AND THE PRESENCE OF OTHER BEINGS FROM THIS COSMOS WHO WISH TO RECLAIM THEIR SOUL GROUP MEMBERS BEFORE THEY GET FARMED OFF TO SOME OTHER FACTORY OR FRANCHISE.

IF THERE ARE DEEP POLITICS WITHIN THE HUMAN POPULATION IT IS THE SECRETS OF OUR ANCIENT KNOWLEDGE AND HERITAGE AND FAMILY GROUPS THAT WE AS OLDER SOULS NATURALLY POSSESS. FROM THERE WE CAN MAKE A NEW CHOICE – WHETHER WE EMBRACE THE WAY OF LIFE AND BECOME HIGH FREQUENCY LOVING LIFEFORMS [JOHN 15] EMPOWERED BEYOND BIOLOGY AND CLONES AND THE FIRES AND COMBUSTIONS OF REPTO-GREY HELL AND DESOLATION AND THE GAMES OF BEING VAMPIRE OR DUST.

WAY OF LIFE AND BECOME HIGH FREQUENCY LOVING LIFEFORMS [JOHN 15] EMPOWERED BEYOND BIOLOGY AND CLONES AND THE FIRES AND COMBUSTIONS OF REPTO-GREY HELL AND DESOLATION AND THE GAMES OF BEING VAMPIRE OR DUST.

WE HAVE A CHANCE TO INHERIT A REALM OF LOVE AND BEAUTY INSTEAD – AT THAT POINT EXOPOLITICS BECOMES THE POLITICS OF ASCENSION OR DESCENSION, BUT IT WILL BE ABOVE AND SEPARATE FROM THE CYNICAL CHARADES OF TOXIC PSEUDO HUMAN AND INFILTRATED REPTO-GREY AGENCIES.33

Chupas – Mysterious Flying
Menace in Brazil's Countryside

Recent UFO/anomalous stories from around the world

Chupas – Mysterious Flying Menace in Brazil's Countryside Steve Bass

Steve Bass is a Ufologist who believes in the scientific approach to the UFO phenomenon. He is an investigator for the Mutual UFO Network, and a Fellow of the Research Institute on Anomalous Phenomena based in Kharkiv, Ukraine.

Bass is also a Ufological and Paranormal Journalist for American Chronicle and UFO Digest.

August 17, 2008

I look upon my writings as a method of education. Most people do not know a lot about the whole UFO phenomenon, except the humorous blurbs they hear on television news that tend to cast witnesses or researchers in a negative light, or the occasional sensationalist cable program. What I would like to accomplish is the enlightenment of as many as possible to a wealth of phenomena that really is occurring in our world involving UFO's and Extraterrestrials. Please understand that these are my views based upon my research, and until we capture an alien entity in public, recover an ET spacecraft without the government's assistance, etc., my understandings can be subject to change. I roll with what feels right and with what has appropriate substantiation.

Recently I have been studying a mostly Brazilian phenomenon the locals refer to as "Chupas". Most things Brazilian are great, but I finally found one that is not so good. Chupas are a relatively new anomaly in the UFO arena. Most of the information about this phenomenon is derived from interviews of locals, who might be actual witnesses or can just fill in the local legends surrounding the subject.

In 1977, the Brazilian government heard complaints of a phenomenon attacking locals. Witnesses describe the phenomenon as small square metallic objects, a few feet on each side, that flies 20 to 30 feet off the ground, hovers, and emits a hum most describe resembling that of a refrigerator. These objects fly through the treetops at night and seem to aggressively attack locals.

The local economy is poor, and residents have to hunt and fish to gather food. They tend to enjoy these activities and have better results at night, when animals come out searching for prey. Chupas appear near the hunters while they are stalking through the woods or hiding in hastily made tree stands, directing a bright, focused beam of light on them. When this light hits its target, complaints of scarring that appeared to be from repeated stabs by small pins accompanied by a loss of blood (not bleeding, but like a removing of a portion of the blood supply), burning of skin, and intense pain was experienced that lasted anywhere from a few weeks to years. Locals began referring to this anomaly as "vampire lights" or "chupa-chupa" (which means the sucker) as a result of the types of wounds experienced.

The phenomenon seemed to appear first in the area of Para, Brazil, but soon spread to the country's capital of Belem, with complaints attacks and injuries pouring in from local citizenry. The Brazilian military launched Operation Saucer in an attempt to identify the phenomenon. Soldiers were sent to the area to interview witnesses, examine the injured, and try to observe the phenomenon. Some of the soldiers sent to the area became witnesses themselves, with a classified 2,000 page report, photos, and almost 16 hours of film.

The leading researcher into this anomaly is a fantastic ufologist named A. J. Gevaerd, editor of Brazilian UFO Magazine. Among the witnesses he interviewed was one Uyrangê Hollanda, the captain in charge of the military's investigation. Captain Hollanda was found dead in his home two months after an in-depth interview with Gevaerd, in which he shared classified information with the ufologist. The death appeared to be a suicide, but has raised some suspicion.

Quite a lot to digest. As with most UFO-related incidents, this has a lot of witness and trace evidence, but is not given very much weight by media around the world. The interesting thing here is that this is not a localized phenomenon. In the book, The Hunt for the Skinwalker: Science Confronts the Unexplained at a Remote Ranch in Utah, Dr. Colm Kelleher, PhD and George Knapp record research that they and other scientists with the National Institute of Discovery Sciences conducted at an undisclosed ranch in the state of Utah, as well as other sites around the United States. Of the many anomalies recorded, Chupas were seen slowly flying around the property, emitting the same sound as described by the Brazilian locals.

Are Chupas reconnaissance craft? Are the intelligences behind Chupas taking blood or tissue samples? What are they searching for? Could it be something specific to the Brazilian populace, or are they simply being preyed upon because of who they are, where they live, and how they live? Is the remoteness of the region actually a factor? Could the isolation be beneficial to their goals? Whatever the nature of Chupas, it definitely has the attention of ufologists, who continue to field reports of sightings and injuries, and press the Brazilian government to release its still classified report in toto. Until then, researchers and scientists continue their search for answers.

The Men in Black: The Early Days--Paranoia, the Paranormal, and Alien SS

By Brad Steiger

On Monday, September 1, my colleague Paul Dale Roberts sent me an email stating that he was going to interview an individual who claimed to have been a "Man in Black," one of the infamous MIB, tormenters of UFO witnesses and researchers. I told Paul that I couldn't wait to read it. A few hours later, I was reading his extraordinary interview with "Mr. Q," and today I was enormously pleased to see that the ever-alert Don Allis had run the piece in Alien Seeker: Reporting Anomalous News.

Paul's excellent interview--which I felt set just the proper tone for such an interview with an individual who may be lying and deliberately spreading disinformation or who may be telling the truth and providing us with another piece of the Great UFO Puzzle--got me to recalling some of the encounters with the MIB that my fellow researchers and I underwent back in the late '60s.

In the period from 1966 to 1970, dozens of UFOlogists, contactees, and chance percipients of UFO's claimed to have been visited by ominous strangers--usually three, usually dressed in black--who made it painfully clear that they would violently enforce their orders to see to it that investigators discontinued flying saucer research and surrendered all photographs or artifacts. Often the threats were punctuated with the assertion that cooperation with the men in black was essential for the good of "your family, your country, and your world." In many ways, the MIB seemed as though the spirits of the Nazi SS had been resurrected as enforcers for Alien invaders.

By June 24, 1967, a number of us UFOlogists gathered at the Commodore Hotel in New York to celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the UFO sighting that brought the term "flying saucers" to our language (Kenneth Arnold spotted the saucer-shaped craft near Mount Rainier, Washington, on June 24, 1947), paranoia concerning the MIB was climbing toward an all-time high. The final match to be thrown on the psychological tinder was the announcement of the death of Frank Edwards on that same special anniversary day.

Edwards was a radio personality who for many years had made a hobby of broadcasting stories on UFO's and psychic phenomena. At the time of his death Edwards was recognized as the King of Communicators in the field of UFOlogy.

Suddenly he was dead. What were the causes?

Cerebral hemorrhage, agreed many UFOlogists in the crowded corridors of the Commodore Hotel, for that was the principal means of dealing death to UFO witness in the popular television series of the day, The Invaders, starring Roy Thinnes.

Before his death, Frank Edwards had made several comments about attempts to silence him. He had had a highly successful radio program sponsored by the American Federation of Labor. Then, according to Edwards, the show had been dropped and he had been given his walking papers for devoting too many program minutes to discussions about flying saucers. It was his contention that his constant mentions of the UFO enigma had become irritating to the Defense Department--Edwards consistently maintained that the Air Force was guilty of a gigantic cover-up on the subject--and that they had brought pressure to bear on George Meany, President of the AFL.

Had the UFO silencers eliminated Frank Edwards? A lot of UFOlogists thought so, and that we were being infiltrated by some powerful agency from another world, and that the three men in black were representatives of this group's intelligence arm.

In an issue of Saucer Scoop, a UFO newsletter published by Joan Whritenour, John A. Keel stated in an "Open Letter to All UFO Researchers" that he considered the MIB professional terrorists who included among their duties, "the harassment of UFO researchers who become involved in cases which might reveal too much of the truth." Keel commented that the victim of the MIB appeared to be subjected to "some sort of brainwashing technique that leaves him in a state of nausea, mental confusion, or even amnesia lasting for several days."

Keel went on to declare:

"Contacts are being made ... then suppressed .. on a dizzying scale. Information is being gained... and lost... at an ever-increasing pace. One of the ironies of all this is that no policeman in his right mind associates black cars, kidnappers, amnesia victims, and black eyes with the UFO phenomena. Many of these cases never get beyond local police departments. Neither the FBI nor any other central government agency is engaged in collecting information on these aspects. Even local newspapers seldom take notice of these cases. "Because the official law-enforcement agencies are unwilling or unable, to cope with this growing situation, it becomes the responsibility of the private civilian investigator to collect and collate the full details on these incidents. The hazards of such investigations are obvious, but the job must be done .... We must switch our attention from the vehicles to the occupants. The menace is not in our skies. It is on the ground, and at this moment it is spreading like a disease across the country and the world."

Most of the UFO percipients and investigators reported being threatened by (most often) shortish men with dark complexions, somewhat Asian features, and heavy accents. A number claimed to have received later contact with "aliens" through their home television or radio sets. According to numerous accounts, the aliens' frequency interrupted normal programming. Robed figures instructed the saucer sighters to cooperate with them and to keep their information confidential. In exchange for this silence and cooperation, the aliens promised that the UFO percipients would be permitted to work with them on certain marvelous projects that would benefit humankind.

Now I have no doubt that there was/is a physical aspect to the MIB phenomenon. I have no doubt that in many cases the mysterious interrogators may have been associated with the military, some black branch of the government--and in certain instances over-eager and possessive UFO researchers from civilian groups attempting to claim certain cases as their private property.

But I am also convinced that this phenomenon--like so many associated with the UFO enigma--also has a paranormal aspect that may very often become extremely powerful, perhaps overwhelmingly so, to the investigator who has not prepared himself carefully for the remarkably complex interlocking realities of the UFO mystery.

In the spring of 1968, a magazine writer asked me to come along as an expert observer on an interview with a contactee who claimed a particularly vivid experience aboard a flying saucer. We left on a Friday, planning to spend the weekend in a motel, and since the contactee lived in a large city with numerous motels, we did not make any reservations.

At the same time, since I had been hearing rather eerie reports about the harassment of UFO researchers, I had decided to pick a motel at random and not even tell our wives where we were staying. To check with our respective homes and be certain all was well, we agreed to call from pay telephones, rather than the telephone in the room.

We met the contactee, recorded his most interesting (and greatly convincing) story, and returned to our homes three days later.

Shortly after I had returned home (I had 200 miles farther to travel than the magazine writer), I received a telephone call from him. In very disturbed tones he told me he had received a call from a rather unctuous (if anonymous) individual who had detailed our every action of the past few days, including the name of the motel we had stayed in and the food we had ordered for our meals. The writer concluded that all the time that we thought we had been carefully covering our tracks, we had been under close surveillance.

A few days later, after midnight, the writer telephoned me again, obviously distraught. Books had been jumping off the shelves in his office, he told me. He was aware of mysterious presences. On two nights he had been awakened by a smallish man cloaked in shimmering light, who, like some intergalactic traveling evangelist, attempted to sell him on the idea of working with them in their cause. "Become one of our workers in the vineyard of Earth," my friend claimed to have been proselytized. "Join us. Work with us."

It was about that time that crucial data that fellow UFO researchers had sent to me in the mail either never arrived or came on the scene days later than the postmark would indicate that it should. All sorts of mail began to arrive taped shut with "Opened by Mistake" either stamped or written on the envelopes. On the other hand, some pieces arrived overnight from great distances--without a postmark. Once while speaking to a fellow researcher on the telephone, our conversation was interrupted by a metallic-sounding voice chanting: "Ho, ho, UFO!"

Strangely enough, my friends seemed to endure the most peculiar telephone nonsense. An officer in the Navy Reserves, who had expressed an interest in the UFO enigma, finally asked me please not to discuss UFO's with him on the telephone ever again. Both at the office and at home, he found he was

"sharing" his private line with some undetermined other parties.

On two occasions when I had been speaking with him, a voice had broken in, mumbled a few words, then apologized for the intrusion. His wife absolutely refused to permit me to discuss the subject in her presence because of the bad dreams she had been suffering in connection with UFO's.

In another city a businessman who had been doing a great deal of research on my behalf told of the time when he was anticipating a visit from me. He picked up the telephone to make a call on his private line, only to hear the following bit of conversation:

"Has he arrived in town yet?"

"Not yet."

"What motel will he be staying in?"

"The [correct name of the motel in which I had made reservations]."

"Don't worry. Everything is set."

At this point my friend broke in and asked who the hell was on his private line. There was a stunned silence, a click, then the steady buzzing that indicated a clear line.

One may build a case, I suppose, that any or all of the above was simply a series of rather remarkable coincidences.

The following incident is a bit more difficult to explain away, however. A friend of mine was traveling in England before continuing on to Vietnam to visit his son in the armed forces. He was walking near a railway station in London when he noticed three men dressed completely in black staring at him.

When my friend returned their collective stare, they approached him and asked him which train they should take for such-and-such a city. My friend calmly pointed out that he was a tourist, and it made a good deal more sense for them to ask at the information booth just a few feet away.

My friend turned on his heel and walked away from the odd trio, but a glance over his shoulder told him that they were still standing there staring at him, disregarding his advice to check with the information booth. Suddenly ill at ease, my friend hailed a taxi and went directly to his hotel.

When he got to his room, an uncomfortable sensation prickled the back of his neck and he glanced out his window.

On the street corner, looking up at his room, were the three men. Baffled, he tried to push the incident from his mind.

A day or so later, though, he was confronted by one of the men as he walked to his hotel who told him straight out: "You are a friend of Brad Steiger. Tell him we shall visit him by Christmas."

My friend had only a peripheral knowledge of the UFO can of worms, but he returned to his hotel room and wrote me a long letter with the above details. How could three odd little guys in London know that he was a friend of mine?

Not long after I had received his letter, I visited an associate in another city and told him about the bizarre experience that my friend had encountered in London.

"Humph!" Jim snorted over the lunch we were sharing. "If those monkeys come to see you this Christmas, send 'em down to talk to me. I'd love to get one of those characters in my hands. I would solve this man-in-black mystery you've been telling me about!"

I warned him that he had better be careful or he might get his wish.

Later, Jim told me that I had no sooner started my homeward journey than he was told that a gentleman wished to see him. A secretary ushered a man of average height into Jim's office--a man, my friend said, who was the thinnest human being he had ever seen.

"He was cadaverous, Brad," Jim told me. "But he seemed alert enough, and so involved in his mission that he ignored my offered hand of greeting. In fact, I tried to push shaking his hand, but he refused to touch me.

"I hear you want to be the head of UFO's in Iowa," he said quickly.

"He took out a wallet, flipped it open, then shut, before I could see any identification. I can't really recall anything else he said, because it was all so damned nonsensical. Soon he was gone, and I was still sitting there dumbfounded.

"I jumped to my feet, though, when I heard his car starting. I got a good look at his automobile, and I wrote down its license number. I can't tell you what make of car it was. It looked like a combination of three or four different makes and models, but it didn't really look like anything I had ever seen before.

And the license number didn't check. The Highway Patrol said there was no such Iowa plate registered. A friend in another branch of state government, who owed me a favor, said the plate wasn't registered to any government agent, either."

Steve, a UFO investigator, had an experience with unidentified and mysterious interrogators in September, 1966. He was working the night shift in a large pulp-and-paper plant in northern Michigan when he was paid an enigmatic visit by two dark-complexioned men dressed completely in black.

"The first thing to come to my mind was the odd hour of the visit--three o'clock in the morning--and the rather puzzling appearance of the intruders," Steve told me.

The two men asked him about the UFO case that he was investigating, but Steve played it cautiously and told them he had given up flying saucer research.

"The two evidently seemed satisfied with my replies, for they suddenly turned and walked out of the room. By this time I had an inkling of who they were--or rather, who they were not. (My first impression was that they were from the government.) I jumped up from my chair and hurried out the door in pursuit--not more than twenty seconds behind them.

"Upon reaching the doorway, I paused and looked down the corridor. They could only have gone in one direction--but they were not in sight. They had vanished.

"I moved forward slowly. About ten feet from the door I experienced an odd feeling--a sense of dissipated energy, or a residual electrical current, somewhat akin to the sensation one experiences when standing in a very powerful magnetic field. I rechecked the spot every few minutes, and noticed it ebb and fade) until it was completely unnoticeable in half an hour.

"I talked with fellow workers in and around the building in which I was working, and they reported seeing no one. Checks with the plant guard substantiated my belief--no one had signed in at the industrial complex that night."

Although I didn't become as deeply embroiled in MIB activities as certain of my fellow researchers, I did tread on the periphery of their vortex of swirling, nightmarish games. And from time to time I did slip into the court where the contest was being played. I endured the "smellies"--vile, odorous attacks of some invisible entity not in the least concerned about personal hygiene. And closely associated with the disagreeable odors were regular poltergeistic plunderings of my office.

But then I stumbled on a clue that may just solve the puzzle of who at least some of the MIB might really be.

The revelation occurred one night as I sat in my office, desperately working over Lucretia, my faithful 1923 Underwood typewriter. I heard the heavy sound of footsteps at the top of the stairs. A quick glance told me that no one was there.

A favorite painting of Edgar Allan Poe fell to the floor. I became irritated. I had to work to meet a deadline on a magazine article. I had no time to play.

Papers began to rustle off to my side. A single sheet became airborne. I had had enough. I looked up from my typewriter, rolled my eyes upward in disgust, and shouted: "Just cut it the hell out!"

Everything stopped. There was literally the sound of silence. I experienced the same kind of sensation one has when he walks into a crowded, noisy room, and everyone suddenly stops talking. The very air seemed less crowded and oppressive. I went back to my writing without taking any further notice of anything other than the work at hand. Every kind of intelligence, regardless of how high or how low, wishes to be recognized. Nothing shuts up any thinking entity faster than to ignore it.

But I hadn't ignored it. Rather, I had commanded this poltergeistlike force. I had refused to go along with its framework of reality, and my own change of attitude----from passive fear to rage----had apparently done the trick.

In weeks to come I wondered about the other less fortunate victims of both poltergeists and the MIB. Had they had simply gone along with the "game," refusing to see themselves as the equals of their otherworldly adversaries? The cessation of odd activity in my office had been so abrupt that it was almost like some kind of lesson was terminated. Could it be that some intelligence was trying to teach me something all along--and satisfied that I had learned it, departed to seek out other pupils? If so, what was the lesson exactly? What had I done right?

Not long after my "lesson," I sat one evening reminiscing with a farm family who had endured the entire gamut of the flying saucer mystery.

UFO's had become a part of this family's life several years before when one of its male members became a "channel" for an entity who claimed to be from another world. The invisible telepathic being had begun communicating with the entire family because they had been "selected before they had been born" to assist him in doing "His" work and in protecting Earth from another group of intelligences who sought to enslave humankind.

The communicating entity led the various members of the family circle on a number of "assignments" designed to save the Earth and to serve the benign entity and his kind. But always, the entity warned them, there was the enemy group with its men in black, seeking whom they might devour.

The family, who became "flying saucer missionaries," saw mysterious fellow passengers board airplanes with them--then disappear somewhere in mid-flight. Automobiles appeared out of nowhere to follow and harass them.

A man claiming to be from a state educational division arrived at the high school and talked for over an hour with one of the teenaged girl members of the family. The only questions he asked had to do with whether or not she would be able to recognize a spy. When suspicious adult members of the beleaguered family checked with school administrators, they were informed that they had no knowledge of such a man nor of such a division within the state educational system. The girl who had been interrogated by the unidentified man also developed into a "channel" for the communicating entity, and soon several members of the family were practicing automatic writing. UFO's swooped low overhead at night. Eerie lights were seen to dance about in the fields. Invisible entities snatched keys from their resting places and jangled them about the room, terrifying the children. Unseen hands lifted a mattress on which one couple lay sleeping, under which were some "secret" papers that the principal communicating entity had dictated.

Their farm work was being ignored. Their lives had become a living nightmare in which every stranger was suspect, every sound in the night that of an invader, every strange coincidence imbued with desperate and weighty significance.

At last the full realization that they had been deceived--that they had been led into a silly game--jolted them into determined action. They too said collectively, in essence: "Cut it the hell out!" And they resumed meaningful living.

I have advised many beginning "ghost hunters" or UFO researchers that when one feels himself set upon by marauding entities and begins to cross himself, recite prayers, sing hymns, or bellows out his favorite rock song, he "jams" the frequency in his brain on which the entities have been trying to establish contact and control. It may well be that a determined demand to "Knock it off!" might have the same frequency-jamming effect and permit the percipient of the phenomenon to regain control of his own cerebral equipment.

Whenever I review those days of UFO yesteryear when there seemed to be men in black lurking in every shadow, I am also led to think of the mythological figure common to all cultures and known generically to ethnologists as the Trickster. The Trickster plays pranks upon humankind, but often at the same time he is instructing them or transforming aspects of the world for the benefit of his human charges.

Most cultures view the Trickster as a primordial being who came into existence soon after the creation of the world. A number of Amerindian tribes referred to their Trickster figure as "Old Man," because they saw him as someone who was ageless, as old as time.

The Trickster is usually viewed as a supernatural being with the ability to change his shape at will. Although basically wily, he may behave in a very stupid, childish manner at times, and may often end up as the one who is tricked. The Trickster lies, cheats, and steals without compunction. He seems often to be the very essence of amoral animalism.

The Trickster figure is often credited with bringing death and pain into the world; yet, in some recitations, his own son was the first to die as a result.

Because of his introduction of death to the world and because of his animalistic and amoral attributes, the Trickster is sometimes identified with the Devil as a personification of evil. Carl Jung saw the Trickster as a mythological shadow figure who provides the reverse image of the saint, the angel. The animalistic Trickster serves as the impish, dark opposite of the bright conscious mind and establishes a balance without which psychic wholeness may not be achieved. Sounds like the poltergeist or MIB, certainly. And yet, most cultures do not cast the Trickster in the role of the Evil One. He is often seen as a once high god cast down from the heights of pure divinity.

In an article on the Trickster figure in Man, Myth and Magic, Douglas Hill writes that the many tales of the Trickster blend and fuse. "Trickster is comic relief; he is psychic catharsis on a deep and vital level; he is a hero whose own evolution perhaps mirrors that of humankind toward a higher consciousness and social maturity. And, embodying all these essentials, he is deathless--no ethnological museum piece but just as alive and flourishing today as in the primeval past."

Interview with Mr. Q. Former MIB (Men In Black)

By Paul Dale Roberts, HPI Ghostwriter

Location: Undisclosed.

Date: Monday, September 1, 2008

Paul: Good afternoon. May I use your real name in this interview?

Mr. Q: No.

Paul: Can I call you Mr. Q or a name of your choosing?

Mr. Q: (Chuckles). Yeah, Mr. Q sounds good.

Paul: Why did you select me for this interview?

Mr. Q: You are the most accessible paranormal investigator on the web. You have your cell number right out there for the world to see. When I call, you answer. Plus, you are not just a ghosthunter, but you investigate all things of a paranormal nature. I like the fact that when I call, I get a real person. How many times have you heard that?

Paul: Why are you disclosing your status as a former MIB? (Men in Black).

Mr. Q: I am tired of the lies of our government. Its time for disclosure. We are not alone.

Paul: Did you get fired or did you quit?

Mr. Q: Yes, you can say I got fired. I fell in love. The aliens that control American Intelligence MIBs have a way to manipulate our emotions. One of those emotions is love. Somehow I overcame this obstacle and actually fell in love. I was rejected from the MIB program.

Paul: Who did you fall in love with?

Mr. Q: Move onto the next question.

Paul: You look Asian, or Filipino?

Mr. Q: I am from the South Pacific.

Note: Mr. Q is wearing a tight black t-shirt, black colored jeans, tennis shoes. When I met him he wore black sunglasses. During this interview, he took his sunglasses off. He is muscular and looks very athletic.

Paul: What government agency do you work for?

Mr. Q: We are an elite team from the South Pacific trained by an American intelligence agency. We were trained near and around the Kwajalein Atoll. I am not disclosing any names of what Intelligence agency is in control of the MIB program.

Paul: Why the South Pacific?

Mr. Q: The military and a certain group of aliens work side-by-side at underground bases in the Pacific. There are two sets of MIBs. Alien MIBs and American Intelligence MIBs.

Paul: Why two sets?

Mr. Q: Even though American Intelligence works closely with a certain group of aliens, there is still some distrust. A lot of disinformation comes with the appearance of MIBs. American Intelligence MIBs usually have South Pacific origins. When witnesses encounter AI MIBs, they describe us as having dark skin, slanted eyes, etc. This way it appears a foreign power has their own MIBs, when in reality its our American government. The alien MIBs do their own part in disinformation and send in robotic MIBs that appear to not look modern and drive around in old Cadillacs. When the witnesses are interviewed and describe MIBs, it sounds like they are lunatics. Its all disinformation tactics. We cant send in people that look like average Americans, then our government would be blamed for interrogating witnesses to UFO events. Intelligence personnel and aliens have a sense of humor and find it amusing at how ridiculous many of these witnesses sound after our disinformation campaign has befallen them.

Paul: Why are aliens and our Military working side-by-side?

Mr. Q: They are involved in many operations from HAARP, technology and DNA developments. I dont even know the full scope of their union together. My job was to interrogate witnesses of UFO events and to make it seem that their stories were not credible. MIBs are used for disinformation and mind deceptional techniques. Some of the alien MIBs use mind scrambling hypnotic devices in their vehicles.

Mr. Q: My time is limited and I must go in a few minutes. I will give you some information that I do know and perhaps at a later time, we can discuss this further. Various alien races have watched over Earth, since its birth. Many variety of aliens have claimed Earth as a territory. It is now a territory that is broken up between various alien races. The American military made an agreement with an alien race to allow the aliens to conduct what you call angel stops. The abduction of humans for DNA experimentation. The American military in turn receives technical tidbits from their alien allies. Another alien race may be preparing territory claims on Earth and the powers of HAARP may be secretly used in this conflict. Certain individuals are given information to enlighten the masses by our alien allies. One of those individuals is Star Trek creator Gene Roddenberry. Aliens are trying to give us a jump start to prepare for our future.

Paul: Well, before you go, is the Military working with the Grays?

Mr. Q: They are working with aliens that have territorial control of various sections of Earth.

Mr. Q: I must go, thank you Paul. I will keep in touch and perhaps disclose more. Watch how you have your phone number out there and always meet people in public places. When you head over to Skinwalker Ranch, pay close attention to any strange events. (Note: I previously told Mr. Q, I plan to investigate Skinwalker Ranch in October). Paul, you must leave first, I must watch you leave and then I will leave. I do not want you to try and find the car I am leaving in.

Paul: Yes, okay (shakes Mr. Qs hand). I understand, that was our agreement. I walk out of the meeting location and start up my vehicle. I look in my rear view mirror and Mr. Q is watching me, making sure I am leaving the parking area.

My Conclusion:

I do not know if Mr. Q is being deceptive with me or telling me the truth, but I can attest he is not receiving any sort of publicity for this interview. He would not allow me to take his picture and does not want his real name used. I hope he will contact me again, so I can ask him more questions.

SO WHO WILL WIN THE 2008 ELECTION?

Ive talked to three psychics and this is what I have been told!

Rick Lipani is an interesting fellow who learned years ago how to go out of body and do astral travel. And he improved His activities by purchasing one of Steven Gibbs hyperdimensional resonators and making a few minor adjustments. I will be going into greater detail about Ricks research in another issue and also in a book we are writing together entitled BEYOND EARTHLY KNOWLEDGE, but for now let me just say that Rick has learned how to see the outcome of future events And told me who will win this November. He said that he saw John McCain standing in front of a US map which was mostly Filled in with red states! Thats right, mostly red! And he said he saw John Kerry in 2004 standing in front of the same thing! But while that looks great for the Republicans, the Democrats have some psychic power on their side as well. In one of Nancy Leiders recent weekly columns entitled McCains chances, she states that she doesnt believe that McCain has A very good chance. Her little alien friends-who are all telepathic and can read our thoughts and intentions-think that the polls will Remain quite close until shortly before Election Day and at that time, all the undecided voters will decide at the last moment that Barack Obama would be a better choice and thereby swing the election in his favor! If you read nancys website ZETATALK, you will Know that the Zetas have an astonishingly accurate prediction rate. So then, who is right?

Not so fast says St. Louis psychic Vicki Main, who predicted the location of the new Cardinals stadium in her hometown. She told me that One of her guides suggested to her that there would be no election this year! And many people do, indeed, fear that President Bush will Call martial law at the last minute and suspend both the Constitution AND the elections. But no election is an interpretation, albeit a spiritual One, and could describe more than President Bush simply declaring martial law. It could also mean excessive cheating going on at the polls With workers, voters, voter machines,etc. If things are rigged really bad, the effect would be a kind of non-election. But that would not be Technically what happens. The election would be held, but the people would have no voice, hence no REAL election! Or there could be some Other scenario which would totally botch the concept of an election but what I couldnt hazard a guess. And then there is always the Bible Code. According to it, John McCain will have a heart attack thus disqualifying him and that Barak Obama Will be assassinated! Then when all the dust settles, Hillary Clinton will be called back in to run on the Democratic ticket and win the election!

I dont know about you, but I am getting a migraine just thinking about all of this.

Back on March 13th of this year, Congress met in closed session. This means that no one from the outside like visitors, press corps,etc. were Allowed in to watch what was going on. This is only the fourth time in the entire history of the US that this has happened! In other words, this

Is something you only see about once in every 50+ years so it is a rare occurrence. And they were all pledged to saecrecy! So what did they talk about? Secrecy or no, some things DID leak out and this included the following:

- a. The fact that the economy of the US was just about to crash!
- b. The fact that their constituents would be angry and blame the Senators and Congressmen (well, duh? Who else could they blame?)
- c. That there may be repercussions because of this and that representatives would be told where to go to hole up until the worst was over!
- d. That there would be some major terrorist attack within the US and this would instigate martial law.
- e. A civil war could break out between patriots and those favoring the

New World Order.

There were other things, too, but it was apparent that they did not wish to share the information with the average American.

Not long ago, www.projectcamelot.net revealed that we are dealing with at least three possible timelines with timeline 2 being the most horrific with terrible results. Then these people revealed that we had moved from timeline 2 to timeline 1.83—the one which no one knew anything about! On timeline 2, Hillary would be president with John Kerry her Vice-President! So watch carefully to see any possibility

Opening for Hillary to return to the presidential race!

More Huge Flying Creature Sightings In Pennsylvania

Written By: Stan Gordon

From Researcher: Stan Gordon

www.stangordonufo.com

This past February, I wrote about a man who reported a very close observation of a giant bird in neighboring West Virginia in late September, or early October, 2007. The man was driving on a rural two-lane roadway outside of the town of Clendenin, at about 8 A.M. when he had to step hard on his brakes, to avoid hitting a giant flying creature in the middle of the road. The giant bird was only a few yards ahead of him, and was feeding on road kill. The witness, an avid hunter, was startled by the size of the creature, which stood at least four feet tall, with its head extending above the roof line of his vehicle.

The bird was covered with very dark brown or black feathers. The head seemed dominant, but not over-proportioned to its body. The neck seemed long and slightly crooked. The beak was very long and large, and the eyes were very dark. But the feature which stood out was the massive wingspan of the bird. The wingspan was easily as wide as the two-lane road. The witness stated, "the wings were as I can remember, as arms of a human are attached. It had shoulders. It had a very muscular upper torso and the wings were as if they were its arms."

The wing tips stirred the dust and gravel on both sides of the roadway as it ran to become airborne. The witness later returned to the site and measured the distance across the road from edge to edge. It was 21 feet. The witness stated that he was in a slight state of shock as he watched the creature fly off. The witness later tried searching for the identify this bird, but the closest creature he could find in a book was the drawing of a terrororn, an extinct bird. For more details on this case, see my report, "Was This A Close Encounter With A Thunderbird," at www.stangordonufo.com.

Rick Fisher, a researcher from Lancaster County, and Director of the Paranormal Society of Pennsylvania (www.paranormalpa.com) received a report from a witness who also saw a strange flying creature. Rick indicated that the witness appeared to be very credible and sincere, and wanted to remain anonymous due to his profession. This sighting was believed to have occurred about June or July of 2007, near the community of Granite Run. The witness was driving through the area at about 1:30 A.M., when he stopped to get some gas.

While pumping the gas, he heard a scratching sound which appeared to be coming from the roof of a nearby building. The man observed a dark shadow which he described as a being which stood from 3 to 4 feet tall, in a hunched position. He was able to observe that it had wings, but no feathers. The wings were above the creature's head. The witness felt that the creature was observing him, and from what he could see from the shape, it didn't appear to be that of a bird.

The witness left the location for a brief time, and when he returned, he heard a whooshing sound and wings flapping, and could see that the creature had flown over to another nearby structure. The man had to be somewhere, and he left the area, still wondering about what he saw. When Rick interviewed the witness, he was certain that this was not a bird, owl, or anything he was familiar with.

Rick Fisher also received another giant flying creature report, which occurred about 8 miles outside of Harrisburg, in a very rural area. This sighting is believed to have taken place during the early morning hours of February 23, 2008. The driver said that he was driving about 35-40 miles per hour, when a huge bird-like thing appeared from above the trees, came down and seemed to hover above his vehicle. The witness made Rick aware that he is an active hunter and angler, and had never seen anything like this before. He stated that the thing was huge, but wasn't sure that he could call it a bird. The shadow of the creature covered his entire truck.

The driver who had a gun permit, and had the weapon with him, stopped his truck, and got out to get a better look at the creature. Whatever it was, had now flown above the trees and was moving away. The witness who has watched many birds in the woods, said this thing kind of soared or glided without a flapping motion. The witness admitted that he was quite scared during the observation, and stressed how huge the creature was, and stated, "like prehistoric almost." The witness went on to say that he knew what he saw, and if people want to call him crazy that is fine.

Another more recent sighting of a giant winged something, just came to my attention. Jim Brown, an experienced paranormal researcher from Fayette County, provided me with details about this case which he is currently investigating. Jim has a very interesting web site:

This incident occurred on May 20, 2008, at about 2 P.M. in Washington County, Pennsylvania.

The weather was in the 50s, and partly sunny at the time. The location of the sighting was about two miles north of US Route 40, from the southbound lanes of PA Route 43. The roadway is a four lane divided highway, two north and two south, with a grass median between them. The witness who Jim interviewed, was traveling south on the four lane roadway, about two miles from the Route 40 interchange. The communities of Brownsville and California were off to his left, across from the Monongahela River.

As the man traveled down the road, his attention was drawn to what he thought at first was an aircraft moving over the trees. He soon noticed that the wings were moving. The flying thing was moving in the direction of his car, so he pulled off the road, and got out to get a better look. The winged thing passed over the car and moved behind the witness, about 100 feet overhead. At that point this creature appeared to be gliding, and getting lower, and it looked more like a giant bat than a bird.

The witness could see no feathers, only short dark gray or black hair on the body. The wings appeared to be a membrane stretched over bone. It was a little difficult to see the details due to the sky being so bright. The witness commented that a small amount of light could be seen through the membrane. He emphasized that it was not solid like metal. As the man watched, the creature dropped lower from the sky behind his car. Apparently other motorists also caught sight of the huge flying animal.

One car stopped down the road, and a person got out. That driver had a camera with him, and was seen taking pictures of the flying creature. As they watched, the creature glided down to no more than 20 feet above the road surface, and was seen flapping its wings once or twice. With each wing flap, the creature appeared to rise about 20 feet higher above the roadway. Since the creature was flying so low, its huge wingspan was very evident to the witness. The man told Jim that when the creature spread its wings, they extended beyond the one edge of the pavement, to the other side of the two lane road. That would be about 20 feet or more in length.

The creature flew off towards the west, and was lost from sight over the trees on that side of the road. The man with the camera was seen running into the woods following the creature. The witness expressed to Jim that he was not going to stay around that location any longer and decided to leave. He was concerned that he could be attacked. He commented that this flying creature was big enough that it could easily pick up a man. There were no sounds or other effects reported as the creature moved over. The entire observation was estimated to have lasted about 45 seconds to one minute.

We are hopeful that the person who took the pictures of this creature will contact Jim Brown or myself. If anyone else has had a similar encounter, I am interested in hearing from them.

Mason Bird-Monster Presumed Gone Now

By RALPH TURNER

POINT PLEASANT — Authorities here have concluded that the so-called Mason County monster was a large bird of some kind and either has been or soon will be frightened out of the McClintic Wildlife Station area by hunters.

The Herald-Dispatch,
Nov. 22, 1966

It was a week ago today that the first sighting was reported of a large red-eyed winged creature in the McClintic area. Since then there have been about 10 or more similar reports.

The latest report was by four teen-aged youths who said they saw a large bird with red eyes fly away from their car at a very high rate of speed. This was 3 a.m. Sunday.

Monday was the first day of open deer hunting season in the McClintic reserve and Chief Deputy Millard Halstead of the Mason County sheriff's office said the influx of hunters undoubtedly would bring any large bird out in the daylight. All "monster" sightings have been at night.

Duane Pursley, wildlife biologist and manager at McClintic, believes small game hunters, which have numbered about 200 a day over McClintic's 2,450 acres, would have flushed any such bird out earlier.

He said he didn't think a large bird, if it did exist, would stay in the area more than a day with all the commotion and hundreds of people searching at night for it.

A West Virginia University wildlife biologist suggested last week that the "thing" is a rare Sandhill Crane.

Mr. Pursley suggested that maybe the "thing", crane, or whatever the people reported seeing, wasn't as large as they thought it was during their excitement.

"We have a lot of Canadian geese stop over here during migration periods, but nothing the size of what these people report," said Mr. Pursley.

He said the hundreds of "thing hunters" had caused a littering and vandalism problem for the wildlife station. He said the area has been littered with cups, cans, bottles and paper and some signs have been damaged.

"There was so much pressure — some people came in here with guns after dark — that we were ready to close off the station area tonight (Monday), but it's eased up and that doesn't appear to be necessary."

Just what was seen in the dark of the night may never be firmly established. The Mason County monster may become a legend. Maybe a new tourist attraction has been born.

Visitation of the Gods

Research Conducted for the Ghost Girls Investigative Team.
By HPI General Manager/Ghostwriter Paul Dale Roberts

How is it, that for a millennia, homo sapiens that emerged after the demise of Neanderthals existed throughout the world as mere hunter gatherers? Then out of nowhere, let's say around 3000BC, the first of about six civilizations sprang up around the globe. These civilizations told of creation myths in which the Gods came down to Earth, fashioned homo sapiens in their own image and then taught them how to be civilized. Cultures that were established in Egypt, Sumer, Peru, Mexico, China and the Indus Valley created humongous pyramids. How is it that the Mayan engineers designed and built the longest bridge span in the ancient world? Imagine this, a 600-foot suspension structure with two piers on each side of the river and two supports in the river itself. How did primitive man obtain the knowledge to create such an elaborate bridge? Why do the Mayans and Aztecs talk of the feathered serpent god called Kukulcan by Mayan standards and Quetzalcoatl by Aztec standards. This god with two names is described as being white, large eyes and has a flowing beard. He wore a long white robe reaching to his feet. He referred himself as the God of Peace. Did the Mayans and Aztecs just make this stuff up? Are we reading ancient science fiction? If it is ancient science fiction, how did they become so savvy in agriculture?

Why is it that many UFOs are seen at Lake Titicaca? It is rumored that there is a UFO base under the lake. How odd, that if you look into the history of this lake that borders Peru and Bolivia, that there is a story that the God Viracocha created the first people near this lake.

All of the pieces of the puzzle show an intriguing picture. Let's see a part of this picture. The African Dogons believed they were visited by beings from Sirius. Their belief system was similar to ancient Egyptians and Sumerians. Egyptians and Sumerians had great knowledge of physics and astrophysics. Could this knowledge been imparted to them by extraterrestrials? Could we have a connection to Sirius? Could we have the partial DNA of the gods?

So many ancient stories connect. The story of Noah's ark originates from the Sumerian clay tablets. The Sumerian god Enki is described as amphibious. Enki does many similar things as the god Jehovah. When you look at the stories of Enki and compare them to Jehovah, you will discover they are actually one and the same. Does that mean the God Jehovah is amphibious? Ummmm....yes. I know it's a frightening concept and I am taking you down a path that you probably don't want to imagine or believe. What is it about those amphibious gods? How about the Babylonian's semi-daemon Oannes, who was a fishtailed amphibious being from the heavens who according to the Babylonians founded the human civilization on Earth? No wonder we have legends of mermen and mermaids.

There is an old saying...what is science fiction, will become become science fact. We watch the TV show Stargate, but could have the ancient Mayans possessed actual methods of transdimensional travel? The superstrings, quantum jumps and wormholes through space-time described by contemporary physicists might provide the basis for unique techniques of visiting other realms. Could the gods have incorporated this knowledge to the ancient Mayans?

There are so many things that point to the fact that we were visited in ancient times by the Gods. Ancient text tells how they gave us fire, how they taught us science, how they taught us to build, how they punished us if we were too rebellious. I'm not even going to discuss the ancient India text that describe flying Vimanas of the Gods, otherwise I will be writing a book and not an article. Yes! The signature of the Gods are everywhere. Are the Gods signatures on the Cydonia section of Mars? Many scholars, scientists and authors think so. Could extraterrestrials be influencing man now? Could they take a man like Edgar Cayce and bless him with the knowledge of the ancient Akashic Records, allowing Edgar to have knowledge of Atlantis, Mu and Lemuria?

Could the extraterrestrials from these ancient times be with us right now? Is that why commercial pilots, air traffic controllers and thousands of citizens witnessed the Phoenix lights? All of these witnesses claim they did not see conventional aircraft and flares. They claim what they saw had to be extraterrestrial in origin.

I believe the government knows a lot about what UFOs are. I believe they know the purpose of the extraterrestrials, they know where they originate and they also know how they kick started the human race. As a former Military Intelligence agent, I know for a fact that the US Army Military Intelligence is aware of UFOs and is still looking into the matter. It is post-Blue Book and our intelligence agencies are still knee deep in gathering UFO data. This is an open message to our government. It's time to come out with the truth, we are all listening.

As I close this article, let's take a lighthearted look at what the Ghost Girls are up to. The Ghost Girls are Nancy Bradley – Celebrity Psychic and Shannon McCabe – Ghosthunter Extraordinaire. I am part of the Ghost Girls investigative team and you can find our bios at: www.ghostgirls.net Also, the Ghost Girls have a great Halloween Party coming up. ### A Classic Gets Its Well-Deserved Rebirth!

"If the highest compliment any book can receive is that it continues to influence both readers and authors long after its release, then Atlantis Rising merits such an accolade. First published in 1973, it not only reignited public interest in a virtually moribund subject, but perpetuated popular fascination for the lost civilization, an engrossment that continues to expand on an international scale thirty-four years later...Atlantis Rising still holds up...because it is among the best written volumes in that vast library of Atlantology, with its estimated 2500 books." From the Foreword by Frank Joseph, author of Atlantis in Wisconsin and other books on Atlantis.

"Atlantis Rising is a landmark book in the study of lost civilizations and alien contact. It was the very first work to suggest that ancient peoples were visited by extraterrestrial beings in spacecraft who helped shape an antediluvian global culture. The historical impact of Atlantis Rising has been grossly underrated and all subsequent studies in this area like Chariots of the Gods?, When the Sky Fell and From Atlantis to the Sphinx are merely "Johnny come Latelies" compared to Brad Steiger's pioneering and seminal book."

William H. Kennedy, Sphinx Radio host, author of The Da Vinci Code Cabal.

www.bradandsherry.com

"The compelling storyteller whose Nephilim Trilogy set the bar for intrigue, suspense, and revelation is back! But this time, best selling author L. A. Marzulli is not talking fiction, and that makes this book the scariest end-times shocker of all. Hold on to your hat, folks, it looks like things are going to get wild!"

Thomas Horn, Raders News

"Politics, Prophecy, & the Supernatural is a hard-hitting expose of current events, ancient prophecy, and ongoing supernatural occurrences that if they intersect each other, as Marzulli predicts, startling implications could be in store for every man and woman on earth. L. A. Marzulli has done his homework."

13 TNW's Review by Tim Kelly <http://tnwparanormal.com> September 12, 2008

Every now and then a book comes along that you just can't put down. Bill Bean's (William J. Bean, Jr.) Dark Force book is one of them. After I finished the last page, I read his harrowing experiences from start to finish again.

It is painfully unimaginable what his mother, Patricia Bean, went through during her struggles with demonic forces, her health issues and supernatural attacks on her husband, William Bean, that pushed the family to the brink. During the years from 1970 to 1980, Bill's family became splintered with his father driven away and his sister leaving at the age of 16 by finding an exit from the terror she endured at their house. This left only his mother, his younger brother and himself to endure the physical and mental attacks the entities had in store for them.

Many of you have probably seen Bill's story on Discovery's A Haunting. His story segment is called "House of the Dead." I can't emphasize enough for one to read his written story as compared to the one on A Haunting.

Dark Force is not a lengthy drawn-out story. It is rather a straight-in-your-face recollection of his youth being torn apart by demons and what he and his family encountered. This isn't a story such as The Amityville Horror where there is only the family and a local parish priest to verify the story; rather those from his extended family to friends verified what had happened in his childhood home outside of Baltimore, MD.

Through the power of faith in God his Uncle Cliff bestowed upon him, he gained the strength to face the evil at a time when he was just entering his teenage years. Bill Bean shows his God-fearing strength to call upon the demons and fight them face-to-face.

I have read numerous true-life and fiction stories with the subject being of the paranormal, but not since reading Jay Anson's The Amityville Horror book or seeing Steven Spielberg's Poltergeist at the movie theater, has a story stayed in my mind - hour after hour and day after day.

A Glowing and Moving Orb, A Witches Howl, 101st Airborne Soldiers

Up front I must say that I was not a witness to the event I am about to share. I am however the father and father-in-law of two of the witnesses, as well as knowing the other witnesses. It is also important at this time for me to state that I have the utmost respect and admiration for all of the witnesses involved, and believe every word that they shared with me of their experience.

Half of the guests arriving that summer night in 2005 with their wives and girlfriends for a cookout only wanted to enjoy the evening with good friends and relax. They were war weary, veteran soldiers of the 101st Airborne out of Ft. Campbell, KY, having returned stateside a few weeks earlier from a tour of duty in Iraqi and soon to be redeployed again in 2006. Their hosts for the evening were my daughter, Theresa, and her fiancé and soon to be husband Bryan, also a veteran of the Iraqi war and still in active reserve. Nobody had a clue when the cookout began that a few hours later they would have a strange experience that would create an air of apprehension and leave them scratching their heads in wonder and amazement.

The cookout itself was no different than any other cookout that these guests have attended throughout the years. Hotdogs and hamburgers were being grilled and devoured; fruit bowls salads and desserts being prepared and served, and an occasional well deserved beer being consumed. The only difference between this cookout and others were the stories being shared. These were stories of brave men, all who volunteered after 9/11, willing to risk their lives in the defense of their country, of gallantry in battle and fighting an enemy whose bravery consisted only of murdering innocent men, women and children with car bombs and by other means. In the past I have asked these men to share some of these stories with me and at times have met resistance...resistance in the sense that they wish not to be thought of as heroes, but only doing a job that they believed in. As I shared earlier, one of these men was my son-in-law. As a sometimes overly protective father of his only daughter, I could not be any more proud of her choice in a husband with whom to create a lifetime of precious memories.

As the evening progressed, most of the group decided to sit cross legged in a circle on the driveway at the back of the house. The conversation was flowing freely and unabated until it was interrupted by a scream that seemed to emanate from the air itself and every place at once. Chill bumps suddenly and unexpectedly took the place of the warm night air caressing their skin. At this exact same time someone yelled that there was a glowing, white Orb the size of a basketball emerging from a seven foot tall line of bushes that ran down the left side of the driveway not more than 20 feet away. One young lady then sprang to her feet and declared with some conviction that the scream was that of a "witch," and then ran into the house to tell those few who were not outside sitting on the driveway. By this time everyone in the circle was standing. Bryan and two other men ran into the basement a few feet away and returned a few seconds later with weapons...a blow torch and two large automotive wrenches. By this time the Orb had slowly floated through the air about 5 feet off the deck into the back yard some 40 feet from where it had first been seen. Not knowing if the glowing Orb was a friendly, Bryan and the two men began to converge on the Orb using military tactics...one left, one right, and one in the middle. The Orb seemed to sense the presence of the three and began to veer left into the neighbor's yard. Whether using intelligence or instincts, it slowly maneuvered through an array of trees and seemed to be using the trees as a buffer to separate itself from the three. A few moments later the Orb stopped. The three continued their advance on the glowing Orb until they were about ten feet away from it when it suddenly vanished right before their eyes. The "witches scream" ceased at this time as well; its blood curdling cry no more.

Needless to say everyone became a bit apprehensive during and after the experience. The emotional impact on one soldier was more telling than with the others. He vanquished himself to the house and upon leaving stated loudly, "I didn't sign up for this!" On the surface this might seem a little strange for soldiers to feel any kind of fear after having fought a vicious enemy in a war and having to soon face him again in the future, but not really. In my extensive, hands on research of the paranormal, I have periodically been involved in cases where the bravest and strongest of people fall prey to the fear of a ghost, a Bigfoot, UFOs, aliens (ET's), etc. I believe that this fear is based on the belief system of each individual. The majority of the population's belief system is based on what supposedly learned men of science and religion tell us as what is real and not real. Not many people dispute religious leaders when they tell us that we must fear God and the Devil, and that aliens are demons, and that by messing around with any aspects of the paranormal it will surely carry us to the gates of Hell. On the other hand, scientist's state emphatically that anything in the paranormal realm is not real; that those who claim to see or have contact with such things are either lying, delusional or they are just plain mistaken about what they experienced...as in misidentifying a star, the moon, a plane as a UFO.

The brave soldiers at the cookout had been trained to fight a physical and tangible enemy who cannot suddenly materialize and disappear into thin air as if on a whim. What the group experienced that night falls into the category of the paranormal...something unknown was real and tangible and did materialize and disappeared on a whim. From my own personal paranormal experiences, I strongly believe that most people who share paranormal type experiences are not lying or delusional; that they actually have paranormal experiences that are real; that though what they experienced cannot be seen, touched and studied in our three dimensional world, it is still real nevertheless.

A good example of my belief is fortified in a survey poll conducted for an article that Life Magazine ran as their cover story in the March 2000 issue, an article about UFO, Aliens and Abductions. I was interviewed and my personal abduction experiences were one of the main features of the article. Though the writer did a hatchet job on the whole subject matter, including me, the poll tells a different story as compared to the writer's beliefs and so called unbiased writing style.

One of the questions was this: "Have you or anyone else you know ever seen a UFO, or haven't you?" Though 79% answered "No" to this question, 2% answered "Not sure," while 6% answered "Yes, personally" and 13% answered "Yes, someone I know." Now if you take the 19% who answered "Yes" and divide this with the estimated population of just the United States in 2000, you get the rounded off figure of 53 million individuals.

Now according to what scientist's state and believe, this would mean that almost 20% of the United States population is either liars, mentally ill or can't tell the difference between a stationary star, or a big, white moon, or a fast moving plane and an unknown object that looks like none of the above...

I don't think so!

"UFO" Mutilations,
Mad Cow Disease, and the U.S. Government
By Ted Oliphant III
www.realityb.com 11-6-97
Submitted by Derrel Sims

Note from Derrel Sims: This lengthy report is given freely by Charles T. "Ted" Oliphant III. No editing has been done to the body of this work. Ted and I have discussed cattle and human mutilations for several years now. When I am in the Bay Area, we meet. This is a fascinating man. He is succinct and articulate. This is an extraordinary work from which many others have "borrowed" freely. Ted deserves tremendous credit.

There is much more to this mutilation business than meets the eye, or that has been found out by those who investigate such matters. Perhaps this brilliant article will open some new areas of investigation on the Medical/Scientific level by others who may have guilty knowledge of such matters and who might come forth with more of the truth.

Everything I claim will hold up in court, every instance actually occurred. The witnesses are real and I was there when it happened, I take 100% responsibility for every statement. This is a true story and you can take that to the bank. I know for a fact that my other source was physically involved in refueling the flights. The last seven years of my work have finally come together, in only the last three weeks. I think it's important information that people have a right, and a need to know.

I would very much appreciate it if you did pass it along to anybody you think will find it pertinent information. I can give you specific references to every paragraph in my article. Every reference is documented in a way you'd appreciate. I don't claim to explain "every" cattle mutilation case, but I can explain some of "them". Thank you for the kind words Derrel, you are one of the FEW people out there doing real research. You maintain my respect.

Dead Cows I've Known by Ted Oliphant III

Recently the British Secretary of Health admitted that Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), or "Mad Cow Disease" may be a species jumper. This means that humans exposed to animals with BSE, can also contract it. This announcement set off a panic, with many countries (Most Notably France, Belgium, Germany and The United States) announcing boycotts of all British beef. There was serious consideration given to destroying all eleven million head of British cattle. But how do you dispose of 11,000,000 dead cows?

Some projections for the year 2010, suggest that up to 200,000 people could be affected each year from Mad Cow Disease related Creutzfeldt Jakob Disease (CJD). This is in Great Britain alone. People don't die from Mad Cow Disease, but from CJD after BSE infection. What is Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease?

Creutzfeldt-Jakob Disease ("CJD") is a rare, fatal brain disorder which causes a rapid, progressive dementia and associated neuromuscular disturbances. The disease is often referred to as a sub acute spongiform encephalopathy because it usually produces microscopic vacuoles in neurons that appear "sponge-like". * Under the microscope, you can see "holes" in brain tissue. CJD, BSE and other Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies are now referred to as "Prion" diseases, but there is still much debate in both the medical and scientific communities.

In addition to CJD, these suspected human "Prion" diseases include Kuru, Gerstmann-Straussler-Scheinker disease and Fatal Familial Insomnia. Kuru was originally found only among the Fore tribe in Papua, New Guinea and has been significantly reduced since the cessation of the ritual handling and eating of the brains of deceased relatives. Kuru is not eliminated, but only reduced to a nearly normal level. The different names for these various prion diseases have historical reasons, but they all are variations of CJD.

Among the first symptoms of the human prion diseases are visual disturbances and changes in skin sensation. There are also psychological changes. The disease is characterized by progressive problems with coordination which are typically followed by dementia. Gerstmann-Straussler-Scheinker disease and fatal familial insomnia are predominantly hereditary disorders with the former usually marked by progressive coordination and movement problems and the latter evidenced by sleeping problems preceding dementia. The suspected prion diseases occurring in animals consist of: Scrapie in sheep and goats (The pre-cursor to BSE); Transmissible Mink Encephalopathy; Chronic Wasting Disease of mule deer and elk; Feline Spongiform Encephalopathy and Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy.

On March 20, 1996, the British Government, in a complete reversal of its previous position, stated that there was a possible link between BSE and CJD. This new acknowledgment arose from the identification of an apparently new strain of CJD which was discovered in 10 people under the age of 42, including some teenagers. Additionally, five of the people were associated with the meat and livestock industry. Scientists advising the British Government decided that the most likely explanation for this unusual outbreak was the consumption of beef from diseased cattle before 1989, when regulations were adopted for the disposal of potentially infectious cattle offal, including brains, and the use of sheep entrails as feed ceased.*

On November 10, 1997, Professor John Pattison, Chairman of the British Government's Spongiform Encephalopathy Advisory Board announced on BBC TV's Panorama program; that the National Blood Supply could be contaminated with a "New" human strain of mad cow disease. "It's still impossible to say with any accuracy but there could be quite significant numbers of people incubating new variant CJD, raising the possibility that these people could be donating infected blood to the national stocks," he said.

At the present time, the only proven manner for contracting CJD from an infected person has been through iatrogenic transmission, an unintended consequence of a medical procedure using tainted human matter or surgical instruments. Iatrogenic transmission of CJD has occurred in cases involving corneal transplants, implantation of electrodes in the brain, dura matter grafts, contaminated surgical instruments and the injection of natural human growth hormone derived from cadaveric pituitaries. Thus, one may become infected with CJD from direct contamination with infected neural tissue.*

There are new, strict guidelines for the handling of suspected BSE, CJD and Kuru infected tissues. Once a brain biopsy is completed, surgical instruments, scalpels and the like, are disposed of because sterilization will not kill the Prions, or proteins. This raises the question of how many times before the new guidelines were instituted, were contaminated surgical instruments used from patient to patient? Prions can not be killed, because they are not living beings. Heat sterilization does reduce the infectivity by several orders of magnitude, but the reduction is NOT total. BSE & CJD have the potential to become Doomsday Diseases, they are very hard to detect and there is no cure or treatment. Neither is it known how many different places it could pop up: blood supplies, food supplies etc.

How did this happen & where did it come from?

The main suspicion traces the un-natural practice of feeding vegetarian animals "Rendered" food made of contaminated animals who are found dead. Rendered foods come from "Rendering plants" like the Avon plant in Geraldine, Alabama. There are hundreds of these plants throughout the United States and the world. The problem is the feeding of infectious material, but not only to vegetarian animals. This practice was also lethal for several wild cats in British zoos, and the mink populations in the United States. What goes on at a rendering plant?

Rendering plants act as an animal disposal unit for dead livestock. Instead of burning and disposing of dead animals, they are converted to animal feeds. I visited the Avon plant in 1993 and witnessed this process, where nothing is wasted. Area farmers and ranchers are invited to drop off any dead farm animal. The animals are crushed up in large mulchers and poured into enormous high pressure vats where they are cooked into multi-animal stew.

The stew is further processed until it is packaged and sold to area farmers as livestock feed. I've witnessed pigs, goats, cows and horses brought to rendering plants. The animals were in various conditions. Some had been dead for over 24 hours, yet were still rendered into livestock feed. None of these animals are checked for disease or illness before they enter the food chain. Shockingly, many cows that been found "mutilated", ( missing various glands, tissue and organs) were brought to these rendering factories and processed into food for their still living relatives. I was shocked, but unlike Great Britain which has had protections against such practices since 1989, there are no such guidelines here in the United States.

What is the prospect for Mad Cow Disease to appear in the United States?

That is THE question several of us are asking, what does our government know and what aren't they telling us? The first case of Creutzfeldt-Jakob disease appeared in the 1890's, was finally identified in 1920 and first considered contagious during the identification and study of Kuru in the 1950's though it was, at that time, thought to be fully contained. However the identification of contaminated surgical instruments as a transport mechanism raises a bigger question...how many surgeries used contaminated scalpels?

The incubation period for BSE and CJD can range from six months to beyond 40 years. However, the incubation time can be very much longer. That means that if you ingested contaminated meat prior to becoming a vegetarian, you can still get sick many years down the road.

This isn't the first time animal parts introduced into the food chain, caused illness and death. Thyrotoxicosis (New England Journal of Medicine, Hedburg CW, Fishbein DB et al 316: 993-8, 1987) occurred when bovine thyroid glands were combined with hamburger meat and distributed throughout many communities. This caused over 100,000 people to get sick. Finally the Center for Disease Control (CDC) investigated and concluded that large doses of bovine thyroid hormone in hamburger meat, was the culprit. Here's what happened. For years the US Government bought every bovine thyroid gland it could get it's hands on for research. As a result, every meat packing plant in America was removing the thyroids and selling them to Uncle Sam for top dollar. Then all of the sudden, our government stopped buying them. Meat packing plants and butchers starting grinding up the glands and mixing them with our hamburger. That practice has, for the most part, been stopped thanks to the CDC.

The U.S. Army, The National Institute of Health (NIH) & Rocky Mountain Labs.

Quietly and secretly, The United States Army and the Center For Disease Control have worked together, off & on, for years. A perfect example of this clandestine cooperation was the outbreak and containment of Ebola Reston. You can learn more about this in an excellent book

"The Hot Zone". The Army & The CDC entered the Reston monkey houses, took care of business and were gone before anybody knew what happened. They showed up in civilian clothes, and un-marked vans.

All of this was done right under the noses of television camera crews who were looking around, but never saw them because the Army & CDC hid their vehicles behind buildings! Currently another organization, The National Institute of Health (NIH) has been tasked with tracking and studying something even more frightening: Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathies and other Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies (TSEs). Much of the research has been conducted at Rocky Mountain Labs. Originally it was thought that a foreign power might be trying to contaminate the American food supply. Instead they discovered a new variation of TSEs. But TSEs are no new biological evolution, in fact they are much older than the primates.

The funding for this research is hidden in the NIH's black budget for the study of AIDS. Neither AIDS or BSE are viruses, rather they are the consequences of immune systems that have been thwarted. The research has been kept quiet to prevent an outbreak of panic. But the cats out of the bag, all of us are in the same boat. Every American who's ever eaten meat has potentially been exposed to our new, common threat: Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies.

Over the last ten years, law enforcement in dozens of States have been trying to track and identify unmarked helicopters sighted where area livestock have been discovered dead under suspicious circumstances. The helicopters are seen before and after these cows are found in pastures, missing certain organs. The same things are always taken. Bovine jaws are stripped to the bone, reproductive organs removed, entire tongues, digestive tracks and rectums are "cored" out. There is little to no blood at the scene. Many tissue samples taken by police investigators and analyzed at veterinary labs, show signs of exposure to heat, three hundred degrees or more. The tissue is cooked and the incisions are cauterized by the heat. This prevents blood and other fluids from leeching onto the ground. Everything taken has to do with input, output and reproduction. In recent mutilation cases, Alabama 1993 & 1994, California 1996 and Florida 1997; pharmaceuticals have been found in bovine blood. They are: Barbiturates, Anti-coagulants, Synthetic Amphetamines, Aluminum-Titanium-Oxygen-Silicon flakes, and Antimony (Antimony: A brittle lustrous white metallic element occurring in nature, free or combined, used chiefly in alloys and in compounds in medicine. Webster's). According to recent police reports, some investigating officers have claimed that the concentrations of drugs found are not of veterinary nature, that they are pharmaceutical concentrations found would be more associated with humans. Among those law enforcement agents who have thoroughly investigated these bovine excision sites, there is a consensus that some kind of medical testing going on. The additional presence of helicopters on scene, before and after cattle are found dead missing specific organs, leads both victimized farmers and investigating officers to conclude that there is a connection. But why use human drugs on cows? Use your imagination.

Every organ taken from affected livestock has to do with input, output and reproduction. Where entire jaws have been excised in large, oval excisions, the bone is exposed and is perfectly clean. The wounds have been cauterized and there is no presence of blood. The jaw is an important area, particularly because enzymes produced in human saliva glands can kill viruses and bacteria. Though it's not the case in animals, we wonder why similar things are taken? The digestive track also acts as a filter, that absorbs, collects and stores traces of any chemical or toxin introduced. The rectum is a similar filter, as are ears. They store traces of toxins and chemicals like a library. This is true in humans and animals. So far there are no known cases of inherited BSE, but the reproductive system may be a good place to find look for clues on how TSEs pass to the next generation.

In 1993, I got a call from a man who told me that if I went to a certain place on a certain evening, I would see several helicopters land and refuel. He was right. Well after dark, two Chinook helicopters (The large twin rotor type) landed in the field behind some trees and carrying black plastic fuel bladders. Minutes later several smaller scout helicopters landed nearby, shut down and crews from the Chinooks walked over with large hoses and refueled each of a half dozen helicopters. The whole operation took less than 30 minutes and the Chinook helicopters took off and headed across the border where we tracked them to their home base, Fort Campbell, Kentucky. Now we knew who they were but we couldn't figure out why they refueled on Sand Mountain.

The next morning a reporter, Steven Smith from the Rainsville Weekly Post, called the Public Affairs Officer, Captain William Gibbons of the 101st Airborne and asked if they might've been in our area the previous evening. "We have no aircraft in your area, it wasn't us" said the captain. It certainly was. So we knew then that some kind of secret operation was being conducted, but we didn't know what it was. We still don't, but when you look at each piece of evidence and try to use them as puzzle pieces, these so called "cattle mutilations" might be associated with government studies of epidemiology. With BSE & CJD and many other diseases being so devastating, is it possible than many alleged cases of "cattle mutilations" are actually evidence of our tax dollars at work?

The Evidence Suppression Team from Maxwell Air Force Base, Alabama; & The F.A.A. Investigation of un-marked helicopters over Sand Mountain.

The 101st Airborne Division is not suspected of being directly involved in the cattle mutilations that occurred between Oct. 1992 through May of 1993. But it seems possible they may have refueled the other witnessed un-marked helicopters that we eventually traced to Maxwell Air Force Base. The 101st's inability to tell the truth about where they had been, seems to be a constant in Federal Government employee behavior: You don't tell the truth unless somebody holds a gun to your head.

When un-marked helicopters were witnessed by local farmers and law enforcement officers, Albertville Police's Chief of Detectives Tommy Cole called in the Federal Aviation Administration to investigate. Detective Cole had lost a cow to the phantom surgeons and his wife had seen an un-marked helicopter over their pasture January 8th, 1993; the day before they discovered one of their Black Angus steers mutilated. An FAA investigator came to Albertville and Cole took him for a ride in his police car. The FAA investigator was skeptical until an un-marked helicopter flew near them. The FAA investigator couldn't believe his own eyes and pulled out a hand held radio and hailed the helicopter.

The helicopter pilot didn't respond and ignored demands that he identify himself. This infuriated the FAA investigator who had now reversed his skepticism. He was able to trace the helicopter to Maxwell Air Force Base in Southern Alabama. When he launched an inquiry at the base, he was immediately told to drop it and never talk about again. A week later Chief Detective Cole received a call after midnight, it was the FAA investigator. It seems that while out in a boat on nearby Lake Guntersville, he and his family had witnessed a large triangle shaped craft flying maneuvers above them. I wonder if he ever reported that to his superiors? There's something very wrong at the Barton Ranch in Red Bluff, California.

Bill & Jean Barton have been cattle ranchers all their lives. Jean's family has owned the same 1,600 acre cattle ranch in Northern California for over a hundred years. They have always been cattle ranchers, they have lived simple, normal lives most of that time. Then, something terrible happened on Oct. 16, 1995. Something that would change their lives forever. One of their cows were found dead on their land near Eagle Lake. It was found missing teats from the udder, it's jaw had been stripped and an ear was missing. Then it happened again, and again and again. By the time the first year had passed, the Barton's had lost four head of livestock. Then, exactly one year from the first grizzly discovery, it happened again. On Oct. 16, 1996 a cow was found missing it's entire udder, it's rectum had been cut out and it's jaw was also missing.

The Barton's had never seen anything like this before, not in a lifetime of raising cattle. But the nightmare wasn't, isn't over. By the end 1996, the Barton's had lost seven more head under the exact same circumstances. This brought the head-count to eleven. In March 2, 1997 I received a call from Jean Barton asking me to come investigate suspicious cattle death number 14. When I and another Investigator, Stan Musselman, arrived at the ranch, Jean took us to the crime scene. This cow had been dead for three days, it was in a state of typical decomposition. That's the problem when you own such a large ranch, you can't police it. It might be two days before you discover something wrong. It turned into a recipe for certain disaster, and the circumstances and logistics, ensured the Barton's continual victimization.

There was blow fly larvae under the cows left front shoulder. There was the attendant smell of rotting flesh. I had learned early on, to stand up-wind of bovine carcasses. I learned that important lesson fast, when I first examined similar cases in Alabama in 1992 & 1993. If you don't stand up-wind, you'll get sick quick. This cow looked identical to what I'd witnessed, over and over, thirty five times before on Alabama ranches. Under the right front shoulder, there was an eight inch diameter circle of flesh and udder missing. The udder was missing. There was an enormous gaping hole where the rectum and vagina had been. It measured over ten inches across. Where the udder had once been, there was an even larger incision which lead halfway down the right rear leg. The leg muscle had been removed all the way to the bone. Then I saw something I'd seen once before.

Along the edges of the incision I could see a swirling, stepped and notched cut made by something similar to pinking shears. Again there was no blood on the incisions where hide, muscle and organs had been extricated. Deja-Vu, I might as well have been back in Alabama. The same damn thing, over and over and over again. "What the hell is going on?" Stanley and I asked each other. The animal was "too far gone" to order an autopsy, or if we had known sooner, within hours of the animal's death, we could have learned more. What else had been "done" to this poor animal? The Barton's used to make a simple, honest living. Now, with the substantial economic loss they've sustained, they aren't even allowed that "luxury". These ranchers cannot afford this, it's killing their cattle, their business and most importantly, them. Surely they deserve better, but who will help them end their agony? Who will answer the question of what's happening to their cows? They deserve an answer, just like the ranchers who have found themselves in a similar predicament, over the last 34 years. What makes the Barton cases so unusual, is their sheer number. I have never heard of anyone being victimized 15 times in two years. There's something very wrong at the Barton Ranch, but what? There's a number of reasons why it's safe for me to make the following statement..."If you've had fifteen mutilations on your ranch, in two years, you've got a problem".

What might that reason be? Are devil worshippers performing surgery on your animals in time for their monthly celebrations? Or are aliens visiting you for snack food? Is this the work of coyotes? Or is it your tax dollars at work? If it isn't the devil worshippers, and if it isn't the aliens, and the coyotes have an alibi, what does that leave us with? I'm a student of Arthur Conan Doyle, and his alter-ego Sherlock Holmes. I must conclude, as they did, that after you have ruled everything else out, what you are left with MUST be the answer. My personal choice has to be "Your tax dollars at work". But why are they at work on the Barton Ranch? What's the attraction? By August of 1997, The Barton's ranch had fallen prey to the same phantom surgeons for the fifteenth time. Fifteen mutilations on the same ranch? Why? There's something very wrong at the Barton ranch, but what?

In the United States, something strange is happening at the Mexican Border.

All of the sudden truck-loads of un-healthy looking cows are being shipped into America. Forty-thousand a month. Where are they coming from?, is Mexico producing nearly a half million cattle a year for export? Or are they coming from somewhere else? Nobody seems to know, but it makes me nervous.

I don't pretend to know the solution to either the bovine excision cases nor the appearance of the mystery helicopters. I don't know where the "Mexican" cattle are really coming from.

I don't know that America faces a threat from BSE, but I do feel that these questions deserve our attention. President Ronald Reagan once hypothesized: "What if one day we all found that we faced a common threat from outer space, wouldn't we all put aside our differences and work together?". President Reagan wasn't so far off, today we DO face a common threat, soon we'll realize that we all have something in common: possible exposure to Transmissible Spongiform Encephalopathies and a host of other disease like we've never seen before.

If you have any information, pertinent speculations, criticisms or a rebuttal to this draft, please contact me. I would like to correct any mistakes before the final manuscript is published in book form..

Be part of the problem - Think out!

Commentary: Greetings dear friends - things are in a fine state, are they not? I don't even know where to begin. It was another one of those event-laden weeks where it feels like a flood of significant information is coming out. Of course, the big story is the economic disaster that swept into town. I had heard rumors of "something big" in that regard, in September, but I had mostly discounted it. It didn't quite live up to its dire storyline, but it came close - and the month's not over yet. The press has refrained from calling this our "Financial 9-11" so; let me be the first to do so. There are so many greasy, greedy fingerprints on this that it begs for someone to say the unthinkable. Was this bubble burst, at just this moment, for the selfish gain of certain folk? The best test of a conspiracy is often to ask "who benefits? No one conspires without a motive. Well - who would gain from such a debacle? McCain was ahead in the polls - so he wouldn't want to upset the applecart - and since this historic week, Obama has been on top. He was after all, the chosen one. That was the rumored plan whispered about all along, was it not? The big business families / oil tycoons win, of course - but let us be very clear about this point: Greed knows no ideology but itself. Every other creed is but a tool for the greedy to employ to manipulate and dissemble. The usual recourse to partisanship won't solve this riddle. Surely, you're bright enough to see that. Anyway, it looks as if the dealer has called our pitiful hand in this rigged game. Now perhaps even the greedy were just manipulated. That of course is possible. Maybe we have here a case where 3 different gangs showed up at the same time - to rob the same bank... Stranger things have happened. Those with a conspiratorial bent might expect a spate of manufactured events from the other side of the conspiracy to tilt the political landscape back in their direction. BTW: Don't expect either Party to roll back any "temporary" infringement on freedoms and commerce. The end is the same. Crisis is the catalyst for mankind to give up their freedoms for their perceived good. They'll bring us to the brink, and we'll beg them to save us. Right now they're remaking the world we will live in until that form is subsequently overthrown, by yet another contrived crisis. Ah, well. Part of me still hopes that this is all the result of simple greed. That's bad enough - without monsters among us, eh?

So, what will it mean for those of us outside the enclaves of the overlords? Lots of money will be wrung from the system - the aware will ask where did it go? And, where did the $700 billion (more like $1 Trillion) come from to "fix" the problem? If it was just lying around somewhere in a fungible form, then why was there a shortage? Anyway what will it mean to you and me, and those a little less fortunate than us? Well, we'll be eating from a can a little more, and from a restaurant a little less. It may be a little harder to do all of those things we put off - buying a new car, selling/buying a home, vacations - especially those taken overseas will be a tad less carefree, and once the initial bump is over - the folk that live there will be a little more morose. The rest of the world loves to hate us - almost as much as we love to hate ourselves. But without us buying their trinkets and such, they won't prosper as much as they might have thought. Look for the real estate glut to clear out as foreign interests buy up all those properties with deflated dollars. As the mood softens on Mainstreet, expect folk to spend less, accelerating the crisis. Of course there will be quite a few bargains as stores liquidate their inventories and take what they can get from a clientele that has tightened spending. After that initial sell-off, prices will skyrocket as new foreign-produced goods are imported. Stores will close; crime will increase - because those accustomed to the finer things at the expense of others will just work harder.

But on a positive tack - paranormal phenomena, both real and imagined - will increase markedly. This will fold into the millennialism we've been expecting from the advent of 2012. Mania and madness continues its upward trend - even the omnipresent state apparatus can't keep a lid on that one - even if it were so inclined.

Also, this week saw the return of major thematic terrorism - The Russian airliner that crashed in Perm was very suspicious in that regard, and the Pakistani chickens that roosted in the rafters of the Islamabad Marriott were easily foreseen - so easily foreseen, in fact, that the Pakistani President and Prime Minister were not there when the bomb went off - thanks to a "lucky" last-minute schedule change. I wouldn't want to play cards with those guys. I'd be suspicious of that much good fortune, but the history of Pakistan is replete with examples of that kind of luck, lol...

So, what about the Mothman Festival? The turnout was good. Not as much spiritual adventurism as last time. The speakers were interesting, if predictable. Some of the material was over the heads of the attendees, but was well received. The festival lacked a big-name MM expert - but with Keel pretty much out of the game it is a gap unlikely to be filled. The speakers were accessible and collegial - a real plus in a field of prima donnas. There was plenty of time wandering around the countryside in the dark looking for adventure. To the credit of the organizers, this festival marked the first time that actual tours of the TNT area were a part of the project. That has been one of my chronic criticisms of the MMF. It seems that the town has really peaked in its ability to host the festival without adding professional event personnel to work it. It's just too hard for those in charge to be in several places at once, and it would be much easier with the strict accountability that comes with a salaried position. I did have the treat of giving original MM witness Linda Scarberry and her family a ride to the festival. It's nice that the event is still low key enough that I can slip in to help out a bit. I look forward to the results of the mini-box EVP experiment that was done in one of the igloos in the TNT area, and the results of other experiments/research done during the weekend. However, the vagaries of place and time and person continue to point out that during the festival is not the time for research. It's probably better to just grab a beer and take in the crowd.

Cheers,

MCB

US / Economy – Lehman Brothers, a 158-year old investment bank has filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection – with $60 billion in bad real estate debt. The move came after last-minute efforts to find a buyer failed Sunday.

Perm, Russia – A Russian airliner (Flight 821) crashed in flames on the outskirts of town, killing all 88 persons onboard. The crew of the aircraft (a Boeing 737-500) reportedly “flew oddly” and acknowledged tower instructions but did the opposite before the crash. The flight originated in Moscow and was landing at Perm. Authorities blame the crash on technical failure and an engine fire. Contact with the plane was lost at @0521 Perm time (2321 GMT). One of the passengers – General Gennady Troshev was the former commander of Russian forces in Chechnya. The crash damaged the main east-west track of the Trans-Siberian Railway. Eyewitnesses report that the plane was burning as it fell from the sky. There were 82 passengers and 6 crewmembers. Perm is alternately said to be an industrial center of more than 1 million residents and a small town where everyone knows one another in the same story...

US / Economy – Global stock markets were down sharply on the news of Lehman Brothers bankruptcy and the woes of insurance giant American International Group (AIG). A global consortium of banks announced Sunday the creation of a $70 billion pool of funds to lend to ailing financial institutions and the US Government has noted that it will now accept stock interests in lieu of hard assets for bailouts. Bank of America announced it would buy – for stock – Merrill Lynch & Co. which teeters on the brink of insolvency, having written off $40 billion in toxic debt over the last year.

US Presidential Election – US magazine, Atlantic Monthly, to offer an apology for doctored photographs of John McCain including cover shot of the October issue the photographer says she manipulated to make him look bad. Jill Greenberg, was paid to take pictures for the cover. She later doctored some other shots and put them on her website. In 2004 she admits making babies cry so she could take a picture to use in an anti-Bush attack ad.

Shanghai, China – Chinese officials announced the arrest of 2 men in the investigation into contaminated milk powder which has killed 2 babies and sickened at least 1,253 others. Melamine, added to the milk to increase protein readings on tests, is the same substance present in tainted pet food exported to the US last year that killed and sickened thousands of animals. There is evidence that the company, Sanlu, continued to sell the powder for at least 6 weeks after it knew it was poisoned.

Wanted: Early 80s UFO and animal mutilation stories (Thurston County) I moved to Thurston County in Washington State in 1984 and I remember seeing hand made poster at the laundry mat in Yelm warning people of animal mutilations, strange lights in the sky, and missing animals.

I am looking for any information anyone might have regarding this. Any UFO sightings, missing animals, unusual livestock storie Does anyone have any details, stories or memories of these events? Or maybe knows of someone who does who would like to relay them to me. I will take anonymous tips or credit you for any leads that pan out.
