HISTORY IN THE MAKING

A number of times during various radio and TV appearances, a smug talk show host has looked me in the eye and said, "So what if UFOs are real — they don't seem to be of particular importance, so why should we give a damn?"

This attitude could obviously only be voiced by someone whose knowledge of UFOs is of a novice level, the implication being that we are only dealing with wandering lights seen in the heavens, and not with a superior intelligence from a technologically superior world. If UFOs were only ball lightning, strange astronomical phenomena, or even top-secret weapons of some foreign country, their importance would indeed only be minimal.

However, the evidence points to a different conclusion — that UFOs are the vehicles of species who have developed far beyond the infantile stage that our planet still seems to waddle in.

If UFOs are so far advanced, then naturally it would seem apparent that they have a mission — a purpose — in taking the time and trouble necessary to visit us on a regular basis. In this issue we have collected material from many sources indicating that not only have UFOs been coming here steadily over the years, but that the occupants of these ships have in some instances actually infiltrated our society and are living amongst us now.

It would seem from all that is known, that the UFOnuts — at least those who are peaceful minded — have our well-being in mind and wish to change our civilization for the better. According to contactees, psychics and scientists alike, vast changes are slated to cause upheavals all over the world in the next decade or so, and we are going to need all the assistance we can get.

And while this may seem like so much BS to those who have not studied what is happening closely, the circumstantial evidence all points in the same general direction — that if we acknowledge the presence of UFOs, many great things will begin to unfold for us.

We are on the cusp of some mighty important discoveries and UFO REVIEW promises to lead the way!

THE "SPACE BROTHERS" WANT YOU TO ESCAPE THE COMING HOLOCAUST THAT THREATENS TO DESTROY OUR WORLD...

PSYCHICS PREDICT
 Psychics from the late Edgar Cayce to the modern seer, Jeane Dixon all agree that our planet is slated for "troubled times" in the next few years. With their "gifts of prophecy", these sensitives have been able to peer into the future and know that a rocky road lies ahead, that a great physical holocaust will leave terrible scars over the entire face of the earth. Land shifts will occur, whole continents will rise, while others will sink under the force of gigantic tidal waves.

SCIENCE AGREES
 Seismographs on both the East and West Coasts have registered an unusually high number of earth tremors in the last few months. We are not far from total ruin. Time is running out. The cosmic clock is ticking away and we are approaching the midnight hour. Never before in history has such a large number of earthquakes been recorded around the globe. It's obvious that a widespread disaster that could spell T-H-E-E-N-D for millions is going to happen within our lifetime.

NO PLACE TO HIDE
 Absolutely no area will be safe! There will be no place to hide! We are powerless to avoid this worldwide catastrophe! Water will cover a good portion of the earth. Wild life will die by the score. Our rich farm lands will turn to lakes. Mighty rivers will sweep away our towns. Freak weather storms will unleash havoc with what is left of civilization. Man will turn to battling his brother in order to survive.

AWAY OUT
 But a select few of us will continue on the race of homo sapiens. These individuals will be those who place their trust in a higher power. Those who survive will do so only because they heed these dire warnings and listen to an intelligence from afar.

SPACE PEOPLE PREDICT
 The occupants of these technically advanced vehicles have made contact with

WILL YOU BE ALIVE IN 1982?

many influential people in our own space program, claims a former astronaut. They are not here to play games. They are here to help us in this difficult crisis. Because they have developed their psychic abilities and because they are able to travel into the future, they know DOOMSDAY is just around the next bend.

CHANGE YOUR LIFE
 We guarantee that this book will have a positive effect on your life. The messages contained within its 275 pages is an inspiring one. It is not for everyone, but it is definitely for YOU, the New Age thinker, UFO skywatcher and those who are psychically "tuned in." It's written in plain English (there are no secret codes to uncrack), and approaches the subject of UFOs and the philosophy of our Space Brothers on a level all can understand as well as apply to our everyday lives.

OFFER OF HELP
 Since they are truly our "Space Brothers," and recognize the fact that we are the creator's children, (just like themselves), they want to offer aid and assistance in any way possible. The UFOnuts say that if we will only listen and take their advice that many of us can survive and go on to live in a glorious Golden Age, an age that has not existed on Earth since the days of Atlantis.

HEALTH, HAPPINESS & ABUNDANCE
 There will be no wars. Diseases such as cancer and heart trouble will be conquered, and there will be an abundance of natural resources. Those who are alive today can make it through the next few years and literally live forever in a society that is totally free of the problems that currently plague mankind.

YOUR PART IN THE SPACE PEOPLES' PLAN
 According to Arthur Shuttlewood who has written an encouraging new book, UFO PROPHECY, your part in the Space Peoples' plan is very important. We must all work toward one goal — making the reality of UFOs as widely known as possible. Everyone reading these words are — the aliens realize — open minded enough to heed these dire warnings and work to change the course of history. In effect, the Space People have a plan for each and every one of us, and the noted British journalist who started out as a UFO skeptic, and later had his life changed after many personal encounters of the third kind, wants to share the knowledge of these higher beings and what they have taught him, with you.

THE UFONAUTS ARE HERE!

ALIENS AMONG US

By Timothy Green Beckley

Contactee Howard Menger in the late 1950's maintained that UFOs were landing behind his Highbridge, N.J., home, and that human-like crew members were coming into his house and talking to members of his family. (Photo Credit: Gray Barker/Saucerian Press)

THEY LOOK LIKE US!

■ During the summer of 1966, a Gallipolis, Ohio, nurse saw a dome-shaped UFO land in a remote field outside of town. She was compelled to leave her auto and walk toward the craft. Several seconds passed before a number of beings emerged from the UFO and walked up to the woman, who found herself unable to move from nervousness and fear. The woman said the aliens looked exactly like earthlings and spoke to her for several minutes in perfect English.

Eventually, the ship departed and the woman rushed into town to report her experience. She went immediately to the Sheriff's office and told him what had happened. The law enforcement official laughed at her and told her to go bother someone else.

Months later, while walking along the street, she saw these same two men. Again she ran into the Sheriff's office in an attempt to drag him out to see the "space people" for himself. Once again he refused. Since then she has been constantly ridiculed by her neighbors and now refuses to discuss the case with anyone, though she continues to maintain that these UFOnauts are living in her community.

■ While lecturing at a small college in the Midwest, researcher James W. Moseley was told an incredible story by a professor in his mid-fifties who approached him after his speech.

The professor told the former editor-publisher of SAUCER NEWS that a local resident, whom he had known for upwards of twenty-five years, was driving toward town one afternoon when she suddenly saw a strange ship resting on tripod legs. As she approached the craft, she observed a normal looking woman and two men standing near the vehicle. They were talking to each other and eventually walked over to a parked auto and drove off. The witness apparently tried to stop the car, a Ford, to see what was going on. However, her attempt was in vain, because the men and woman swerved around her, nearly causing her to drive into a ditch.

The weirdest part of this encounter is yet to be told!

The college professor continued by telling investigator Moseley that the woman wasn't overly frightened by what she had seen. Since the saucer occupants were so human in appearance — not some sort of monsters — this tended to put her fears at ease.

In fact, over a period of weeks she began to relax, her life returning to normal, and she eventually even managed to push her unworldly encounter to one side of her mind.

Then suddenly she was thrown back into the void of the irrational once again! This time it happened not out in the country, but downtown in the local supermarket. The woman was shopping for the weekly groceries when she noticed, over at the next counter, a familiar-looking face. Edging closer, she was shocked to find that it was the same "person" who was seen months before, driving off from a UFO, leaving her at the side of the road.

The bewildered woman followed the UFOnaut, the female of the trio, to the check-out counter. Once they were both in line the witness said, "Haven't I seen you somewhere before?" With this the "space woman" bolted from the line, leaving her parcels next to the cash register, and disappeared out onto the street — never to be seen again.

■ Michael Montecalvo (not his actual name) is a 25-year-old graduate of the University of Maryland with a master's degree in psychology. Montecalvo's first encounter with a peculiar aerial object and a human-looking pilot occurred in late December of 1967.

Returning home late one evening, his Volkswagen came to a halt along a newly constructed stretch of Interstate Highway 70, as he traveled south toward Washington, D.C. There in the road was what he thought to be a large tractor-trailer truck that had somehow jackknifed and was blocking both lanes of the expressway.

Closer inspection showed the object to be a large ellipsoid-shaped ship, about thirty feet in diameter, resting on four spidery legs. In front of the ship was a "man," who was beginning to walk toward the witness. "He was dressed in a light blue cover-all that was semi-tight fitting. It resembled a jump suit worn by sky divers. His hair was fairly short, a light brown color, sort of sandy, and he had large blue eyes. I recalled at the time that he resembled Paul Newman, the actor," the witness later testified.

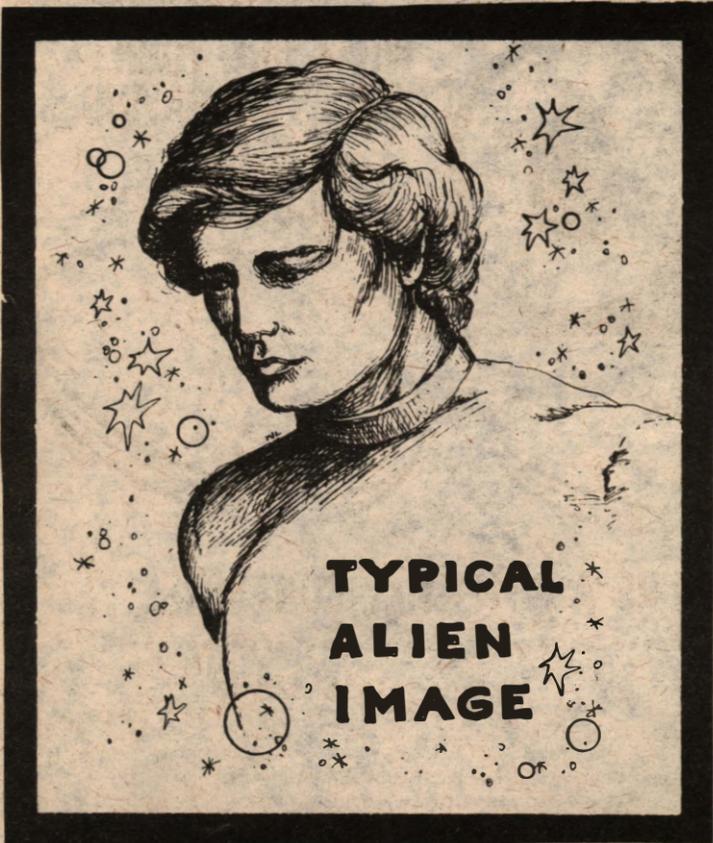

The UFOnaut introduced himself as "Vadig" and said that he came from a planet called

"Lanulos." This first conversation lasted for fifteen minutes, after which Vadig told the stunned university student that he would be leaving for the present, but that he would be seeing him "in time."

The next time Michael Montecalvo encountered Vadig it was under a very peculiar set of circumstances. Michael was working nights as a waiter in a restaurant to help defray the expense of college. One Sunday evening in January, 1968, a man came into the restaurant and seated himself at one of the tables. "I recognized him at once as the man from the saucer, as he sat regarding me with a slight smile," Montecalvo pointed out during the course of a lengthy conversation with researchers Timothy "Mr. UFO" Beckley and Harold Salkin, former publisher of the Little Listening Post newsletter. "I was visibly shaken by the experience. I can assure you it was very strange to see this man again. He was dressed in conventional clothing and he could not be differentiated from anyone else in the cafeteria."

A third meeting took place a week later at the same restaurant. "He came in at about 8:30 P.M. and said that if I advanced technology which they were willing to share with our planet.

Brad describes the meeting thusly:

"For the first meeting I asked Glenn McWane to accompany me — along with a hidden tape recorder. We met in a private home not far from O'Hare Airfield. There were three principals: Ray, the advertising executive whom I had met before, was a former jet pilot who had chased UFO's in Korea and had been on their trail ever since. Bill, an executive with a major airline, was thoroughly dedicated to solving the UFO enigma, able to travel anywhere at a moment's notice to investigate any UFO report firsthand. And there was Salvatore — a non-Terran, a UFO navigator who had been chosen to negotiate with us Terrans for the fuel base and the fireproofing solution.

"The evening went so fast and was so confusing that I never did identify a redheaded lady with strange eyes. She was hostile to me at first, complaining that in one of my books I had said some UFO's may not have the most friendly of intentions. Nor do I recall the identities of a number of other men and women who, apparently, were the investment counselors, the psychologist, the pilots, and other assorted non-Terrans. To make matters more confusing, Glenn's hidden tape recorder later reproduced only some unintelligible voices that sounded like Donald Duck singing in the shower."

As it turned out, Brad says he was never convinced that the person known as "Salvatore" was actually an alien, and during subsequent meetings the man acknowledged that he had been trained by a German scientist who had worked closely with other non-Earthlings who first establish a continuing line of communication with aliens toward the end of World War I. Says Steiger in his exciting report published in Mysteries of Time and Space:

"Dr. Rhinelander (as we shall call him) was contacted by a group of non-Terrans and told that he would be given the plans and assistance to build marvelous aerial craft that would run on a propulsion system totally unknown to him. If he wished to receive this information, he must form a group of scientific disciples and immigrate to a certain coal-mining community in the Midwest, U.S.A. Dr. Rhinelander agreed, and as soon as possible after the signing of the Armistice, the Germans immigrated to the designated area. It was important to be near these nearly played-out mines, Dr. Rhinelander was told, because the fuel he would need for the crafts would be made from a by-product of coal.

"Dr. Rhinelander and his fellow scientists established themselves in the community, beginning their day when the last whistle sounded in the mines. While the miners trudged for the bars, home, supper, and bed, the scientists entered their laboratories and set about to fulfill the time schedule that had been set for them by their mysterious benefactors. Eventually, through the apparently unlimited funds provided by the non-Terrans, Dr. Rhinelander was able to buy up old mines to convert into spacious laboratories and to employ large numbers of the indigenous community.

"Salvatore told us that those who wished to work for Dr. Rhinelander had first to pass a rigorous physical examination and a tortuous, maddening psychological examination. If one were accepted, he was given a special diet and was required to submit to a regular testing of his blood, 'to see if it stayed right.'

"Salvatore served his apprenticeship as a 'checker' — a very simple job. One had only to receive a name and an address and go to that place and 'check' to see if that person was doing what he was supposed to be doing. For example, the computer might say that a certain man was supposed to be living in Orlando, Florida, and was supposed to be a research chemist. A checker would then be dispatched to Orlando to see if that fellow was employed as a research chemist or if he had 'erred' and pursued another walk of life.

"After a few years as a 'checker,' Salvatore was allowed to enter the laboratories where Dr. Rhinelander and his crew were assembling the first aerial craft, which to Salvatore's unsophisticated eye appeared as impractically shaped as upside-down saucers."

At this point there was apparently a falling out between Salvatore and Dr. Rhinelander, and the non-Terrans let it be known that they were not eager for Homo sapiens to have the secrets of interstellar travel, and so they backtracked on the entire project.

However, operating on his own — utilizing the secrets he had already discovered — Dr. Rhinelander proceeded with his work without any other-worldly assistance. Eventually the doctor died and Salvatore — be he alien or earthling — began to contact those he thought would appreciate such formulas.

But, as Brad Steiger asks, was this "man" authorized to sell these formulas?

"Salvatore always answered yes, but he seemed typecast as a conspirator. In each of our meetings he had the disconcerting habit of always looking over his shoulder — or ours — as if someone lurked unseen in the shadows. He explained that the group was now poor, and the few survivors had authorized him to seek a high bidder for their scientific breakthroughs.

"Did the fuel work? Yes, we were told. Ray said that he had used it in his lawnmower all summer with good results. An attorney was supposed to have used it in his Lincoln Continental for several months, and he had been told by mechanics that the motor was in excellent condition.

"A jarful was mixed and handed around the room. There seemed to be little odor. Glenn dipped in a finger and touched it to his tongue. Little taste — maybe a bit like kerosene. We poured a bit out and touched a match to it. Instantly it poofed into smokeless flame.

"Did the fireproofing work? We were informed that a wished to accompany him, he and his associates would pick me up after I left work." The University of Maryland student left the restaurant and looked across the parking lot behind the building, and there in an old sedan was Vadig, along with yet another "alien" sitting in the front seat with him. "The second man had on a bright red hunting jacket and looked just as normal as anyone I was used to waiting on. The car they drove was a dark blue Buick."

At no time during his experiences did Montecalvo get the impression that these beings were anything other than human. The only thing that totally convinced him that he was not dealing with a couple of hoaxers was the fact that he eventually was taken for a short ride in a UFO that looked identical to the ships that had originally blocked the path of his automobile.

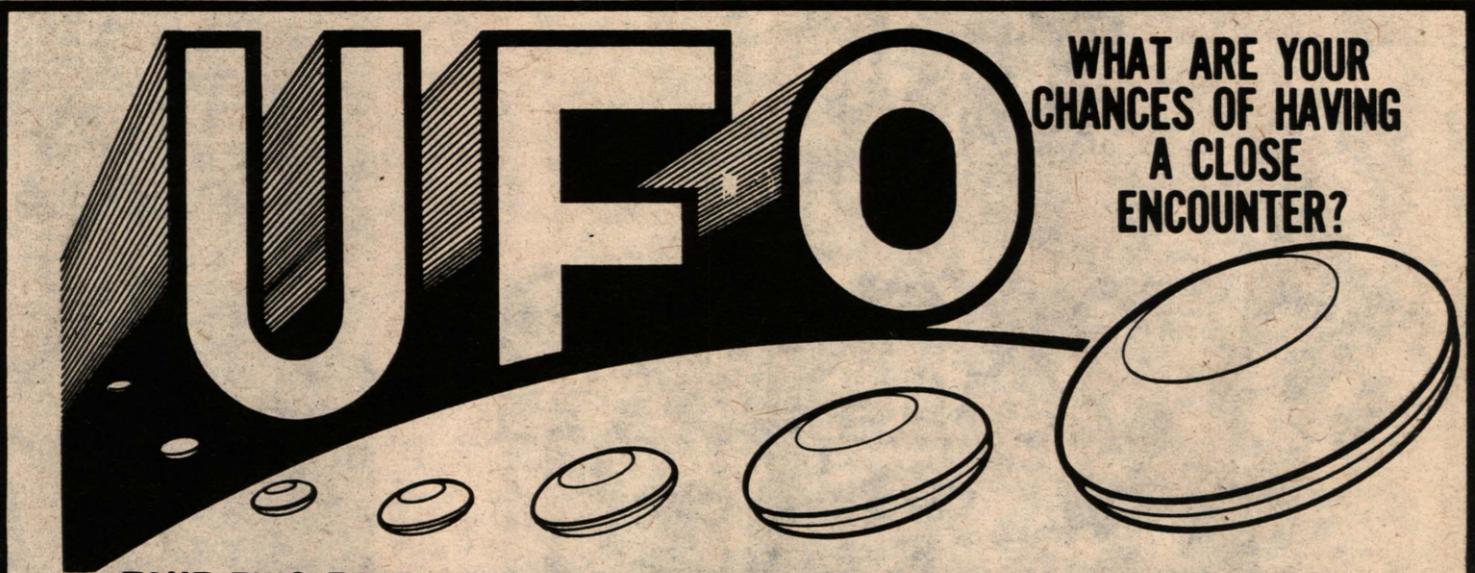

A New York City woman, Barbara Hudson, had repeated UFO sightings as a child living in the Harlem Section of Manhattan. One day after leaving school, she was driven by several ordinary looking men to a rural area of Pennsylvania. In a secluded field surrounded by a forest she saw other men and women walking around outside of an object which stood on tripod landing gear. The men who had driven here to this locale said that they would make contact with her from time to time and would disclose things that would benefit her. They warned her about speaking of her experiences, as they said "nobody would listen." Ms. Hudson maintains that the operators of this craft are known as "The Group," and that they have several bases here on earth. One is in New England, where Barbara has traveled on several occasions to meet with other aliens whom she says mingle freely in our society, taking jobs and going about their business undetected.

MINGLING WITH OUR SOCIETY

The above four cases represent only a fraction of the total number of reports on file with UFO REVIEW which indicate that human-looking aliens are living on this planet, co-existing side-by-side with Earthlings. As totally bizarre as this concept may seem, the weight of evidence is that another — a vastly superior — race of beings has secretly been populating our world over the course of many years, and there is even reason to believe that their numbers are increasing.

More and more, responsible individuals are coming forward with their contributions to this puzzle, offering keys to unlocking a mystery so deep that it boggles the mind.

If one were to do nothing more than study the sheer volume of reports in which the crew members of landed UFOs were said to be totally human in appearance, it would become quite apparent that these alien beings could very well roam about our cities and towns and not be identified as being other than hard-working businessmen or women, fathers, mothers,

UFOS HAVE LANDED!
Despite governmental denials, the startling truth is that alien operated vehicles from other worlds have been landing on Earth for decades.
From the far corners of the globe come absolutely amazing accounts of face-to-face encounters with a seemingly strange variety of beings and creatures whose existence can no longer be denied.
In most instances the aliens have selected ordinary people from all walks of life for these encounters. They aren't interested in speaking with government or military officials, but with the "man in the street." Their program of awareness is being carried out on a "grass roots" level, for it is by communicating with "everyday folks" that they believe our society will be changed for the better.
ARE YOU AMONG "THE CHOSEN"?
However, as noted UFO authority Timothy Green Beckley (author of six books on the subject as well as publisher UFO REVIEW, the world's only flying saucer newspaper) points out, there does seem to be several "common factors" which make certain individuals more prone to be contacted.
Now you can find out if you are likely to be selected to experience a close encounter of the third kind. All you need do is take a few minutes from what you are doing and take this CONTACTEE POTENTIAL TEST which will show you if you possess the special "TRAITS" the space aliens look for in communication with humans. (NOTE: If you do not wish to cut this magazine you may make a photo copy or simply write out the numbers 1 to 12 and "YES" or "NO" along side each corresponding number as your answer).

STRANGE CREATURES WALK OUR PLANET IN THE DEAD OF NIGHT... DO YOU DARE LOOK OUT YOUR WINDOW THIS EVENING?
This year will definitely go down in history as the year of the humanoid. There have been more reports of strange creatures being observed around our planet than ever before. UFO-nauts come in all shapes and sizes and John Brent Musgrave of Canada has been tracking them down partly with a large grant given to him by an agency of the Canadian government.
Now you can learn of his startling findings and receive a personal analysis of the above test which will give you the exact percentage of your chance of making contact with aliens. The CONTACTEE POTENTIAL TEST will be evaluated free of charge when your order John Musgrave's UFO OCCUPANTS & CRITTERS.
Make no mistake about it, John Musgrave is no flying saucer "kook," but instead he is a highly trained astronomer who knows the difference between conventional objects that are often mistaken for authentic UFOs, and actual craft from other realms. What he has discovered during his research is absolutely amazing. He has weeded out those cases which can be rationally explained and has come up with some utterly thrilling conclusions.

UFO OCCUPANTS & CRITTERS details more than 90 close encounters most of which have never been published before this book was issued. You will read such startling cases as:
* David Sewall's report that he was followed home by a UFO. Later he had a nightmare and afterward became convinced that in fact he had been abducted into the saucer. David remembers being bathed in an orange ray of light and undressed by critters who had rough brown skin like a crocodile.
* Three men fishing at a lake south of Edmonton, claim to have witnessed an octopus like creature associated with a light that landed around midnight. Allegedly at one point the critter wrapped one of its tentacles around one of the witnesses and tried to drag him into the craft.
* A Mrs. Couturier glanced out her window and noticed a patch of bluish light south of her house. She and her adult son went to investigate and found a "small person" lying on the ground with its face lifted so she could see the eyes but not the lower part of the face.
This volume comes complete with illustrations showing the various types of UFO-nauts that have been observed, and answers the nagging question: What is behind the behavior and origins of the flying saucer crew members?

wives or husbands. They could hold jobs easily, mingle with society and still not be detected, simply because they are so like us in physical appearance and habits. There is even speculation that some of these "people" might not fully realize who they are, having been brought here at any early age. There are many "orphans" in foster homes who have absolutely no recollection of where they were born or who their legal parents might have been. But be that as it may, none of these reports should be dismissed out of hand. Our files contain well over 500 cases in which human-looking UFO-nauts have been associated with a landed flying saucer. There is also good reason to suspect that such governmental agencies as NASA, the FBI and the CIA are aware of the consequences of this situation and have tried to handle the matter diplomatically, but without letting any information leak to the public or the press.

THE NON-TERRANS
Astute investigator Brad Steiger feels he may have had a run-in with a group of non-Terrans in the fall of 1969. At the time he received a telephone call from a friend, an executive in a large Chicago advertising agency, who requested his presence at a very unusual meeting. As described in Brad's book Mysteries of Time and Space (Dell paperback), he was to sit in on a conference composed of an executive from a major airline, some investment counselors, a psychologist, several pilots and two mysterious individuals who said they had a formula that would transform common tap water into smokeless, nonpollutant, no-knock fuel, and a liquid that would totally fireproof any surface upon which it had been sprayed. They intimated that the formulas were the result of an

THE STRANGER AT THE PENTAGON

The CIA seems to know about at least one alien said to have visited the Pentagon for three years. Among a thousand pages of documents recently released under the Freedom of Information Act there, is a curious item which makes reference to a "blue-eyed 'superman'" who spoke excellent English and "could breathe freely in our atmosphere without any devices." And while the memo, which is marked "EXTRATERRESTRIALS AND..." (several words have been blanked out in black marker) is addressed to a "Donald Cook, Jr.," there is no indication as to what governmental or military position he might have held or who even wrote the message.

However, from the content of the memo it is obvious that the man who is spoken about is none other than the mysterious Val Thor whom evangelist Frank Stranges contends he met with in the Pentagon during December, 1959.

Stranges, according to his own testimony, was brought to the famous building by a "person with a sound mind and a high position in the Pentagon." He was able to pass directly through the security guards because the individual he was with was known by everyone and his movements were never questioned. His host led him to a room where a lone man stood facing a window.

"As I approach the figure, he turned slowly and looked at me. It was as though he looked straight through me. With a warm smile and an outstretched hand, he slowly approached me. I felt strange all over. He then raised his hand toward me in a gesture of friendliness."

Stranges says that for all intents and purposes, the man looked like any ordinary Earth person, but that he HAD NO FINGERPRINTS. During a half-hour conversation, many questions were asked, and the being who identified himself as Val Thor from the planet Venus explained that he had been on our world for three years and was using his influence to speak with "men in authority," but would not use force, and would be happy to consult with them only "at their invitation." He further stated that only a few men in the government knew of his existence in the Pentagon, and few leaders availed themselves of his help and advice during the course of time he was visiting here.

According to Val Thor, there were at the time "seventy-five of us walking among you in the United States, constantly coming and going."

Frank Stranges, who is currently producing a film for TV titled "The Interstellar Connection," recently revealed in an exclusive interview that he is still in touch with Val Thor, who is presently a resident of California and still meeting with world leaders. "I can't prove it, but I think Billy Graham talked with him. Shortly before he published his recent book on Angels which mentions UFOs, an associate of his sent to me for information on Val Thor and I understand a face-to-face meeting was arranged."

One of the other leaders the "Venusian" supposedly met was the late Senator Robert Kennedy. "One day I was eating supper at my house in Van Nuys, in California, and we heard all these police sirens outside. The doorbell rang and two Secret Service men flashed their credentials and said that Bobby Kenny wished to speak with me. He came into the living room and said he wanted me to arrange a conference between him and Val Thor. I told him that was impossible but that if he wanted to I would be happy to deliver any message. He went into the next room and typed something out in a letter and handed me an envelope. Later, I understand he did meet with Val and Kennedy wanted to know two things: 1. Who killed his brother? 2. What were his chances of becoming President? He was told to be careful, that there was a plot to kill him. But apparently he didn't listen, and eventually was shot."

In addition to not having any fingerprints, Frank Stranges says that the aliens living on Earth seem to know a lot about our life's experiences. "They can tell you things which you yourself don't even know about your childhood. Only upon checking out this information will you often find that it is very accurate." Stranges maintains that these other-worldly visitors are quite adept at reading minds and being psychic. "It's just a natural ability they have."

According to the West Coast evangelist, more and more people will be finding out about the existence of aliens on earth. "I'm hearing something about the year 1981 as being a breakthrough year in this regard. The media will never play this up. It will be something that grows slowly across the country."

Besides the highly classified CIA report that has just been released, others claim to have met Val Thor, and so it is unlikely that he is a figment of the imagination. In fact, several years ago UFO photographer August C. Roberts took several candid snapshots of Val as he attended a flying saucer conference with several "friends," who may or may not be from "out there."

UFO REVIEW doesn't claim to have the answers, but we're interested in knowing... WHO WAS THE STRANGE MAN INSIDE THE PENTAGON?

FORTHCOMING EVENTS UFO CONFERENCES

A three-day symposium called "UFO '79" will be held November 16, 17 and 18 at the Royal Quality Inn, San Diego, Calif. The Chairman of the event, Hal Starr, has announced that speakers will include Dr. R. Leo Sprinkle, an Associate Professor of Psychology at the University of Wyoming; James A. Harder, Ph.D., Associate Professor of Engineering at the University of California at Berkeley; Nuclear Physicist Stanton Friedman; Cleve Backster, one of the world's leading authorities on the polygraph; Coral and Jim Lorenzen, directors of APRO; Dr. J. Allen Hyneck, of the Center for UFO Studies; archeologist George Hunt Williamson; and Major Donald E. Keyhoe, U.S. Marine Corps (Retired), whose talk will highlight a special banquet scheduled for Saturday night. Toll-free Tel: (800) 228-5151.

Startling pictures, exciting tape recordings, puzzling artifacts and serious scientific presentations will mark this as the best effort so far this year in probing the puzzle of the UFO. The conference fee is $149.50 per couple and includes lodging, parties and banquet. Further information can be obtained from Hal Starr, an investigative reporter who writes and narrates a daily radio program, "UFO Report", syndicated in seven countries. His address is 312 West Frier Drive, Phoenix, Ariz. 85021.

Also, James W. Moseley, former publisher of SAUCER NEWS plans to sponsor a UFO conference in New York City during the summer of 1980. Moseley was responsible for organizing the largest indoor UFO gathering of all time back in 1967 when over 7,000 people attended a 3-day program in midtown Manhattan. Moseley promises top speakers at this event and a debate which will include arch-UFO critic Philip Klass. For details contact Jim Moseley at Box 163, Fort Lee, N.J. 07024.

demonstration had been arranged at an airfield. A mixture of oil and gasoline consuming an old fuselage had been extinguished within seconds with but one squirt from a fire extinguisher filled with the substance."

Unfortunately — for whatever reason — negotiations broke off and the strange Salvatore vanished as mysteriously as he first appeared. The fuel and fireproofing formulas may have disappeared with him, or at some future date the UFOnuts may again decide we are deserving of such a scientific breakthrough.

THEY TALKED TELEPATHICALLY

Don Elkins and Carla Rueckert are convinced that we are faced with a spine-tingling enigma insofar as the question of whether or not "aliens walk amongst us" is concerned. The two Kentucky-based researchers are the authors of the popular book SECRETS OF THE UFO (privately published and available directly from the offices of UFO REVIEW at $8.95) in which they present startling evidence that outside forces are influencing our planet at this time.

One of the cases they have investigated concerns a 25-year-old woman who currently works as a waitress near Louisville. The woman, who never completed high school and seems not to have the imagination necessary to make up such tales, insists that she has astral-projected at night on board a UFO. But she knows that the experiences are not just dreams, because the UFOnuts of her nightly visions appear in physical form and come into the coffee shop where she works.

"When I was leaving the ship," she revealed under hypnosis, "I remember seeing this last guy standing near the doorway. He wasn't fat, but he was short and his face, you know, was not chubby but kinda round. He talked to me once and I remember he seemed to have a real heavy accent."

Several times this UFOnut came to her place of

During a hypnotic session of April 22, 1977, Don Elkins quizzed the woman at length.

Elkins: If you saw all these people walking on the street and they were wearing our type clothing, would they seem unusual?

Witness: Oh, you'd probably think that he was quite normal!

Elkins: So they all look just like us?

Witness: Well, some of 'em are pretty white (light-skinned) and others are darker in color.

HERE TO HELP

Naturally an area of research so speculative as this is apt to be ripe with controversy. Many of the early UFO contactees such as George Adamski and Howard Menger maintained under the most hostile of conditions (they were frequently attacked by many of the private saucer groups which existed at that time) that they had frequent conversations with aliens whom they would meet in such unlikely places as parks, hotel lobbies, as well as in their own homes. Though they were the brunt of a lot of negative publicity, no one has yet disproven sufficiently that at least some of their claims were true. After all, Adamski's photographs have stood the test of time, and many additional witnesses testify that what Howard Menger said regarding the landing of bell-shaped saucers complete with humanoid crew members, was true.

Laura Mundo, who runs the Flying Saucer Information Center in Inkster, Michigan, was a highly respected educator when she first sponsored George Adamski at meetings which drew upwards of five thousand people in the early 1950's: Later she claimed to have seen one of Adamski's bell-shaped UFOs pass directly over her house, convincing her that his accounts were real.

Ms. Mundo recently told UFO Review, "I saw the bell-like saucers when I lived in Dearborn, twice, one time in 1954 and in 1965. I have also met Orthon, the young man from another planet whom Adamski tells in his books about meeting in the California desert in 1952."

Laura insists that "Space

Brothers are everywhere, living incognito amongst us." They are, she says, "trying to help us to help ourselves, before the atmosphere becomes unbearable due to increased sunspot activity, which is creating extremes in weather, people's actions, natural catastrophes and causing confusion in general." Laura adds that the aliens "are simply more advanced physical people who live on more advanced planets and who are able to travel in more advanced electronic ships."

Though not everybody is capable of doing it, Laura says that it is possible to detect space beings by their "atomic vibrations," but only "after we have proven to them we will not turn on them and thus defeat their purpose in coming - to help us."

According to Laura Mundo, the UFOs were living here amongst us to help us through a period of great crisis. "Those who qualify will be taken to a place of safety in the space people's insulated ships, through the unbelievable planetary turmoil, and come back after the sunspots settle down." As a note of comfort, Laura reveals that some space people will remain on the earth to go through the planetary crisis we are slated to face to help those earthlings who will not be able to make the trip outside of our atmosphere. "We are never left alone. On September 25, 1955, I received via shortwave radio a vocal message from a spaceman telling me that our time was short." She's convinced his message is coming true today!

WHY THEY DON'T WISH TO BE RECOGNIZED

Psychic Bertie Catchings of Dallas, Texas, does not have the reputation for being a crank or a crackpot. In fact, in her neighborhood she is highly thought of and has assisted families and law officers in over 50 crime-related cases. While it is not general knowledge, Bertie recently revealed that space beings communicate with her through ESP. "They do not wish to cause us any harm. They don't care to be recognized or hassled by people, and so they frequently share helpful information through mental telepathy."

The psychic says that "aliens are working in hospitals, as well as energy-related fields, space technology and in various scientific jobs. Their jobs may be as unsuspecting as janitorial duties. Their characteristics include being very efficient, above average in intelligence, easy to get along with, and they never ask questions except about their duties. They look like earth people and include the entire spectrum of race characteristics

'STAR PEOPLE'— COUSINS TO THE UNIVERSE

AN EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW WITH FRANCIE STEIGER

When we published a rather sensational article on "How To Contact Space Beings" in the August UFO REVIEW, we never imagined what sort of response we would get from our readers. From all over the United States, and from around the world, we received letters from subscribers telling us that they had experienced many of the same things that Star Maiden Francie Steiger had undergone in her life, leading to her conviction that she was among those "Star People" being seeded on our planet in what are said to be troubled times. Because of the positive response from readers seeking further information, we are running a mini-interview we recently did with Francie explaining in more detail her beliefs.

UFO REVIEW: Since you are a Star Person, Francie, are you telling us that your father or your mother was an alien?

FRANCIE: I believe there was such a mixing of the genes between Earth men and women and Star People from some other world, but this interaction took place several generations earlier. I believe that this is what so many of the world's religions are referring to when they speak of the "Sons of God" or the "Star People" seeing that the "Daughters of Men were fair." The "Giants in the Earth" which resulted from these early unions were the ancestors of the Star People of today.

UFO REVIEW: And are the Star People going to take over our planet, just like the aliens always try to do in those science fiction movies?

FRANCIE: Far from it! All across this nation - and undoubtedly the world - the Star People are becoming activated to help their Earth cousins through the fast-approaching times of dramatic Earth changes, cataclysms, volcanisms, perhaps even the reversal of the Earth's electromagnetic field. The Star People are helpers, not invaders. This is our planet, too, and has been for thousands of years.

UFO REVIEW: It comes as a relief to know that someone sincerely wants to help us in these chaotic times of pollution, economic unrest and energy crunches.

FRANCIE: One of the most exciting things to come from all the publicity that the Star People have been receiving recently is confirmation of this fact. Almost without exception, the Star People who have contacted us have been professionals in the "helping" aspects of society. They have been psychologists, social workers, nurses, medical doctors, chiropractors, teachers, clergymen, and all kinds of counselors - both psychological and physical. They are also normal in appearance, attractive physically, and, for the most part, successfully integrated into contemporary society.

UFO REVIEW: Don't you claim to be in contact with people from outer space?

FRANCIE: I have been in contact with three beings since my earliest childhood. Kihief, my guardian, who also guides me; Holyea, my Higher Self; and my Master Teacher, who gives me Universal Knowledge of that which was and will be. Though these beings appear quite solid and without wings, they should more accurately be compared to angels, rather than astronauts. Yet they are space beings in that the domain from which they come is that which we call space. We have found that nearly all of the Star People speak of some type of contact with multidimensional beings or that they had an activating experience with such beings when they were around the age of five.

UFO REVIEW: And you believe that the Star People are being activated now to assist us in the coming times of cataclysms?

FRANCIE: Yes, it is as if some chromosome time-release mechanism is causing the Star People to realize who they are so that they might serve their cousins during this time of transition, this Great Cleansing, which the entire Earthborn population must endure.

UFO REVIEW: Will this be Armageddon, the end of the Earth?

FRANCIE: An Old World is dying, but a New World is being born. The human species will be purged, but it will survive and evolve to a higher state of consciousness and accomplish a personal and societal transformation.

UFO REVIEW: Would you share with us the pattern profile of the Star People? We know that you have managed to isolate a number of characteristics.

FRANCIE: I would be happy to do so. Let me mention, first, that not all of the emerging Star People will have all of the following characteristics, but they will have most of them:

Compelling eyes. Great personal charisma. Lower than normal body temperature. Unusual blood type - or even a combination of blood types. Transitional vertebrae, extra vertebrae, extra ribs. Appear hypersensitive to electricity, electromagnetic fields. Unusually sharp eyes, sensitive to light, powerful sense of smell. Lower than normal blood pressure. Chronic sinusitis. Thrive on little sleep and do their best work at night. Was an unexpected child. Felt their mother and father were not their real parents.

Feel that their true ancestors came from another world, another dimension, and they yearn for their true home.

Their artwork and/or dreams involve very often a multi-moon environment or a very different planetary environment from that of Earth. Children and animals appear strongly attracted to them.

IS IT JUST AN OVER-IMAGINATIVE TALE TOLD BY A 13-YEAR-OLD BOY, OR THE TRUTHFUL EXPERIENCE OF ANOTHER "STAR CHILD?"

SEVEN SHIPS FROM THE STARS

Robert Shell Spicer, 13, of Tinton Falls, New Jersey, claims he had a close encounter on January 6, 1977. He first contacted the publisher of UFO REVIEW, Timothy Green Beckley, while the latter was a guest on the Long John Nebel radio show. Of course the boy's allotted time to speak over the telephone to the radio's huge audience was short, so Mr. Beckley sent writer-researcher Harold Salkin to conduct an interview with the youth. Mr. Salkin was quite intrigued with what he heard.

On the night in question, it was 10 p.m. and the sky was clear. Robert took some garbage out to his back yard. He lives on 12 acres of property. He looked up and saw seven glowing objects no more than 25 feet above the ground. They were about 30 feet from him and all descended to about one foot from the ground. Five of the ships appeared to have some sort of exhaust system.

One of the UFOs stayed up higher than the others. Robert judged it to be approximately 100 feet long. One of them, down low, was about ten feet long and similar in appearance to our own space shuttle.

Another was diamond shaped with a curved top. There was a ventilation system around the outside of it. Robert saw it as a ship that operated on exhaust light rays similar to laser beams.

Another craft was about 12 feet high and triangular in shape.

Still another was ball shaped and 16 feet in diameter. One craft was 20 feet high and shaped like a saucer. The last one had a crystal look to it, was about 13 feet long and tapered on one end.

All of the ships were silent and metallic looking. The one that stayed higher than the rest, the large one, appeared to be a mother ship.

Robert Spicer stated that as he watched the UFOs hovering just above the ground, eight beings appeared. He saw the hatches open. Despite the fear that was knotted in his throat, Robert approached them.

They appeared to talk in normal voices and Robert was made to know that one of them was the Superior. This one did the translating. The sub superior had a large head, stubby nose, a very thin mouth and large eyes. His ears were smaller than a human's and much too small for his head size. The eyes were slanted upwards. He wore a one-piece white jumpsuit with black boots. Robert said his hands looked normal, with five fingers on each. He told Robert his name was Sigtive.

One of the entities was a female "humanoid." (Robert's word), who also wore a white jumpsuit. She had short dark hair, ear length, parted on the left side in a style much like earth women wear.

The males had no hair at all and all of the beings were about five feet tall. Robert said, "The female was very ordinary looking. Her eyes were not slanted like the men's and she could have easily passed for one of us if you saw her on the street."

The males, however, would have trouble doing so. They were not at all human-like. One of them, for instance, was called a bionic human. (The terms used here are translations and are used because they most easily fit the entity being described).

The bionic human is like a robot, Robert said. This one was basically a living being with electronics built into him. He was told that some of these

THE FASTEST GROWING CHURCH IN THE WORLD

by Brother Keith E. L'Hommiedieu, D.D.

It's quite safe to say that of all the organized religious sects on the current scene, one church in particular stands above all in its unique approach to religion. The Universal Life Church is the only organized church in the world with no traditional religious doctrine. In the words of Kirby J. Hensley, founder, "The ULC only believes in what is right, and that all people have the right, as long as they do not interfere with the rights of others."

Reverend Hensley is the leader of the worldwide Universal Life Church with a membership now exceeding 7 million ordained ministers of all religious beliefs. Reverend Hensley started the church in his garage by ordaining ministers by mail. During the 1980's, he traveled all across the country appearing at college rallies held in his honor where he would perform mass ordinations of thousands of people at a time. These new ministers were then exempt from being inducted into the armed forces during the undeclared Vietnam war.

In 1986 Reverend Hensley was fighting the establishment on another front. The IRS tried to claim the ULC wasn't a legal church and proceeded to impound the ten thousand dollars in the church bank account. The feisty Hensley filed suit against the IRS in federal district court for return of the funds and to permanently establish the ULC as a legal tax exempt entity. On March 1, 1974 Judge James F. Barton ruled against the IRS in his decision which stated, "Neither this court or any branch of this government will consider the merits or fallacies of a religion. Nor will the court praise or condemn a religion. Were the court to do so, it would impinge upon the guarantees of the First Amendment." The judge then ordered the IRS to return the impounded money and to grant the Universal Life Church its tax exempt status.

Reverend Hensley has stated that he believes a church is people and not just a fancy building. He also believes in total freedom and equality for all people. The ULC will ordain anyone without regard to religious beliefs, race, nationality, sex or age. The ULC's success formula is both effective and unquestionably legal. After a person has become an ordained minister, he or she can join with two other people and form their own Universal Life Church. These three people then make up the Board of Directors consisting of a Pastor, a Secretary and a Treasurer. The ULC will then grant the group the use of its legal church charter complete with both federal and state tax exempt numbers. The newly formed church may then open a bank account in the church's name. Any member of the church can legally donate up to 50% of his or her outside income to the church and take a corresponding tax deduction. The church in turn can pay the complete housing cost of its minister including rent or mortgage payment, insurance, taxes, furnishings and repairs. The church can also provide the minister with full use of an automobile as well as pay for travel and educational expenses. None of these expenses are reported as income to the IRS. Recently a whole town in Hardensburg, New York became Universal Life ministers and turned their homes into religious retreats and monasteries thereby relieving themselves of property taxes, at least until the state tries to figure out what to do. Churches enjoy certain other tax benefits over the common man on the street. For instance, a church can legally buy and sell real estate or stocks and bonds completely tax free. It can receive tax free income from bank deposits or mortgages. Many churches own large publishing, recording, or other related businesses like hospitals, clinics and schools without paying any income tax.

A church can sponsor any kind of fund raising event such as a concert, play or even bingo. Churches are also exempt from paying inheritance taxes. When the pastor of the church dies, the Board of Directors simply appoints a new pastor and the church goes on.

Reverend Hensley has stated that he personally doesn't believe in the tax exempt status of churches. However, if the government is going to give a free ride to Billy Graham and the Pope, then why not let everybody participate in these blessings. Furthermore, he backs his words up by offering to defend in court the tax exempt status of his congregations.

Since the church was founded in 1962, it has attracted members who are movie and TV personalities, businessmen, government officials, lawyers, and doctors as well as all types of regular working people. During the last 15 years the Universal Life Church has blossomed into a full blown grass roots papal movement. Reverend Hensley is ordaining ten thousand new ministers a week and predicts that the church will have over 20,000,000 members by the early 1980's. In addition, requests for interviews and TV appearances continue to pour in.

Anyone who is a member of the ULC will tell you that the ULC is destined to change the world. By unifying mankind into a brotherhood of freedom oriented individuals, each respecting the other's right to live life as they see fit, the Universal Life Church hopes to put an end to all wars. Reverend Hensley admits that this is a pretty monumental task to accomplish, but he also points out that he is already well on the way to reaching his goal.

Rev. Hensley invites all those interested in becoming an ordained minister and receiving complete information and Minister's Credentials, to send a $10* tax deductible donation to the Universal Life Church, 1335 Seabright Ave., Dept. 19 Santa Cruz, CA 95060

Continued from previous pg. beings have micro-computers inside. His face was human in appearance but he never would have passed for a human because he had no mouth. In its place was a small panel board with two switches on it and a meter that Robert surmised was a decimal meter. It was a small device and one that was implanted in him.

The bionic human's name was 6-28 John. The female's name was Clarasay. Another being was called Dimesnio-Superior. This one especially interested Robert Shell Spicer because he was different from the others. He was taller, for one thing, and was not solid. To the boy he appeared only in the outline of a human, rather fuzzy. "He was hard to describe," Robert said. "He was energy. I was told that Dimensio-Superior is a sort of nuclear power plant, that at the age of five he becomes capable of turning his body into energy."

According to the youth, Dimensio-Superior had no definition, no features. He was able to travel through dimensions. This one's name was Mison and Robert was able to talk to him through mental telepathy only. Mison told him that when he dies it's like a star winking out. The energy he holds is dissipated and he is finished.

Another entity was more frightening to behold. He was from a race called Talpos with a lizard ancestry. His name was Groll. He wore a red vest and the rest of the uniform was black. Robert said he was about five feet tall with a rough kind of voice. He noticed a stub of a tail, which was something like a reptile's. The face was stubby, too, with large teeth, but his ears were little more than holes in his head. The face was only vaguely human, with a planadonolin on his head, a sort of peak or crest. The skin was rough, but not reptilian. It was more like an elephant's skin, and grayish in color.

Robert described another creature as one with an obvious insect ancestry. It was very short with eyes set high on his head. It had mandibles, like an insect. The head was large and round, thick neck, red eyes. The face was somewhat human except that he had an exceptionally long tongue.

The being called Philo-Superior interested Robert. The Philo was short for philosopher. The race was brilliant and opposed to violence. This one facing Robert was called Alecton. He wore something that looked like a robe and sandals. He was completely bald and was about six feet tall.

"The one that fascinated me the most was Superior," Robert said. "Superior told me that he lives forever. There is no death for him. He was able to do anything with his body. He could change the composition and disappear. He was extremely intelligent.

"Superior put a beam to the heads of the others. I don't know what happened, but after he did that they all came over to me. It was like we were old friends and I wasn't scared."

The boy listened as they told him about their early visits to earth when civilization was just

and color. They dress simply, with very little jewelry except a watch. They need very little sleep, and they always seem in excellent health. Sometimes they have brown markings on their hands and arms that form star patterns. Their purpose is to study earth in order to gain knowledge that will be helpful to the entire universe. For instance, the people of earth have many illnesses that are caused by the pollution of the air and water. Most of earth's problems are not experienced on other planets — they can prevent them from happening by studying our mistakes."

THEY ARE ALL AROUND US!

"The next time you find yourself in a supermarket crowd or strolling the corridors of a shopping mall, consider the possibility that you may unknowingly encounter an alien to this planet.

"The typical alien image is usually undetectable, unless one is gifted with inner-sight and knows what to look for," says Dr. Wanda M. Lockwood of Sedalia, Colorado, a student of metaphysics who holds a doctor's degree from the Brotherhood of the White Temple. "Because the Cosmos is nearing its (material) end, all intelligences from all dimensions, interlocking spaces and planets must establish enduring harmony with one another." Dr. Lockwood believes that we are "presently 23 years into the New Golden Age — the Age of Aquarius — and that the so-called "Aliens of Light" are working "very vigorously with those Earthlings who have made utmost efforts to align themselves in perfect rapport with the Cosmos and have released all reverse and rebellious concepts of life."

Dr. Lockwood maintains that included in the work of those aliens living among us who wish to bring peace to our worldly existence is to:

1. Join Earthmen as one of them.
2. Council and train man in higher ways.
3. Aid the peace-makers whenever danger threatens them.
4. Help prepare Earth for the great trials soon to besedge this planet.
5. Aid man in evolving peace and technology.
6. Reveal high-secret knowledge to those who qualify through virtue.
7. Act as a bridge between obsolete beliefs and superstitions, to greater and true systems and teachings.
8. Help establish Universal Brotherhood, total acceptance and understanding of all universal species, regardless of form or culture.
9. Aid man in re-awakening his sixth sense, that sense which acts as his preserver of harmony and peace.
10. Teach the secrets of immortality and eternal youth.
11. Teach man how to manipulate the fixed Universal Laws.

"There are aliens all around us," says Dr. Lockwood. "Many hold key positions, especially where technology and psychology is involved. The Aliens of Light are never involved in anything war-related — this is an important clue to their identity."

NOT ALL OF US ARE EARTHLINGS
Going a step further, Dr.

Lockwood maintains that certain specific Earthly races are actually alien to this world. "The Chinese race originated beyond Earth. Their former world was demolished through a vast explosion. A large space-fleet escaped and landed upon the moon's surface eons ago when it was a lush green sphere. They established their home upon its exterior until it was bombarded with meteorites, which forced the race to once again take flight in their "Fiery Dragons" to the Earth's surface. The ancient Chinese legend of the sacred fiery dragon was derived from their antique cigar-shaped space ships that safely transported them to this planet."

Researcher Carla Ruckert

Like many of those involved in UFO research, Dr. Lockwood is convinced that the UFOnuts are "helping to prepare man for the last great catastrophe." "It's very near now — possibly within the next 15 years, or it may even occur much sooner — before 1985. The exact time is unknown. It may involve a devastating global war or vast earthquakes, or possibly a combination of quakes triggered by mighty nuclear weapons." As to why they don't wish to be identified, Dr. Lockwood says that "most aliens choose not to be detected, as they can perform their mission with much greater ease and success. When they are recognized, a well-known human weakness takes hold, and people overlook the message the visitors have to offer man — they end up only focusing their consciousness on the phenomenon and the messengers themselves. They place the alien upon a pedestal and make a god or messiah out of him."

A PLANETARY ALIGNMENT IS DUE

From personal experience, Dr. Lockwood says that the aliens have the power to appear or disappear at will. "About 15 years ago my parents lived in a remote mountain home accessible only by traveling down about 10 miles of dirt road. One summer evening as my father weeded his garden, he heard the crunch of gravel upon the road. Peering over his shoulder, he saw a good-looking man dressed in a suit with a briefcase approach him. Slightly puzzled, he turned his back and continued the weeding process. Presently he felt eyes watching him, and swung around to find the young man standing nearby in observance. As he speechlessly gazed, the visitor proceeded to say only six words, 'Remember 1982 and keep your faith.' He then quickly retraced his steps back down the gravel road, leaving my father totally mystified. He looked away for only a few seconds, but when his gaze returned, the mystery man had vanished as if into thin air. Since then he has often pondered the meaning of the message."

Dr. Lockwood says that in 1982 the planets in our solar system will align in a very rare aspect. "It is speculated that vast earthquakes will result, or possibly it will indicate the advent of some very trying events to besedge the world in relation to civilization or culture. The alignment will indicate global change on a large scale, and certainly the aliens are aware of these coming changes."

We cannot say with any degree of certainty how much of this is true, and how much may be only wishful thinking. But certainly every word spoken is food for thought.

That beings from other worlds are walking our streets might be difficult for many to accept. But then remember that to a large percentage of people, the very idea that UFOs are a reality is still a concept that is beyond their immediate grasp.

It would be senseless for us to laugh at the possibility that we are not the only species here — that Earth is not totally our domain. Every night we look up into the sky in search of UFOs, but did you ever stop and think that the answers we search for might be right here under our very noses, and that actual beings we hope to eventually meet might already be walking our streets?

It could very well be! ●

EXPLORING UNEXPLAINED MYSTERIES OF EARTH, SPACE & TIME

Initially, the young creative recording artist and writer found herself at odds with a meddling spirit who seemed bent on stopping her from having any fun. But eventually the entity showed her the real reason for his other-worldly visits. . .

THE GHOST WHO TRIGGERED A DIVINE REVELATION

What young person doesn't grow up with a view of morality and ethics different from that of their parents? Each generation likes the independence and freedom to choose its own style of living. Now and then, the spirits of the departed return to show they are not altogether happy with the way their offspring are carrying on. In these cases, a struggle between the living and the dead can result in pandemonium.

It was with a degree of reservation that Sarah Kernochan let down her defenses and allowed us to pick her brain. Something had been bothering her—something in the area of the occult—that she found difficult to express. But once we broke the ice, it was relatively easy for her to relax and relate her problem.

And it's a doozie!

The flame of creativity burns brighter in some of us than in others. This is a statement of universal fact. Few and far between are those multi-talented individuals who manage in their lifetime to excel in more than one field of endeavor.

Undeniably, Sarah Kernochan must be placed in the category of "pure genius." Still in her mid-twenties—but "all grown up"—she has many accomplishments to be proud of. At the somewhat tender age of twenty-two, Sarah had already been the recipient of the coveted Oscar, presented to her for her excellent co-direction of the motion picture, Marjoe. Sarah is also a recording artist. Her two albums for RCA have received a fair amount of attention.

Thus, it may not come as a particular surprise to learn the future appears even brighter for a tantalizing young woman who will soon see her creative efforts once again come alive on the giant silver screen. Not only has Sarah written the screenplay for The Dry Hustle (which is, in turn, based on her own novel, published by William Morrow), but the film is being backed by a relatively new company consisting of such notables as Dustin Hoffman, Steve McQueen

An aspiring singer and Academy Award winner, Sarah Kernochan found her life disrupted for a time by a spirit whose motives turned out in the long run to be purely gold.

CELESTE HOLM'S INCREDIBLE PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

Many celebrities claim to have ESP, but reading minds comes particularly easy to Celeste Holm.

"Sure I have ESP!" declares actress Celeste Holm. "We all do, to some degree. But, unlike most individuals, I am able to pick up on the thoughts of others. The more a person tries to hide something from me, the quicker I will know they are trying to pull the wool over my eyes—to deceive me."

In an exclusive interview, held backstage following a recent performance of the Broadway comedy, HABEAS CORPUS, in which she stars, the Oscar winner revealed how strange psychic abilities seem to run in her family.

"My grandmother had the power before me," she noted. "Back in Norway, my grandfather would leave the house every morning at the same time. Because of his occupation—he was a minister—he would return at varying hours in the evening. This made little difference, as my grandmother would walk into the kitchen without fail and say, 'Pastor Holm will be here in twenty minutes; I'd better start supper.' I don't recall that she was ever wrong! In addition, grandmother seemed to have this 'sixth sense' which let her know when some member of the family was going to be hurt or taken ill. She'd look at me and say, 'Better watch out, dear, you're in for a bad tumble.' Sure enough—a few days later I'd come in, my knees all scraped and my dress torn. Grandma knew!"

Celeste maintains that the ability to perceive things by ESP has gotten her into some rather unusual situations. She recalls in vivid detail an incident which took place in 1945 while she was a WAC stationed in post-war Germany.

"I was staying with my troupe in Frankfurt-am-Main, and every day we would drive out to an army or air force base and entertain our boys. Before leaving the States, my mother told me to look at some of the beautiful jewels in Europe. I had had dinner one night with a nice gentleman, who suggested we pay a visit to Kronberg Castle, as they were having an exhibition of some of the most expensive

A UFO exploded over Ohio, and a while later Edward Lunguy discovered a peculiar rock-like substance on his property. NASA has admitted that it is not manmade.

It was the steady, pulsating globe of strange orange light that caused Edward A. Lunguy to crane his neck through the window of his automobile that unforgettable Wednesday evening in July of 1972.

The driveway was dark, and the circular orb, glowing like a full moon, only larger, squatted weirdly in the sky about a mile away, directly over the Magic City shopping plaza where he was to meet his grandmother. Silent and wondrous, like something wholly unreal, it seemed frozen, put there by God-knows-who, for no other reason than to bedazzle the senses of man.

Awed, Edward Lunguy squinted, straining his eyes for another look. No, he wasn't dreaming. The object seemed to radiate an inner glow, like an amber-colored light bulb, hovering about 100 feet in the Ohio sky.

It was sticky and very humid, and fast approaching 10 P.M. when Lunguy's auto came to a halt outside of Moose Lodge, where his grandmother, 70-year-old Mrs. Hazel M. Obney, was attending her usual once-a-week club meeting.

Now directly overhead, the thing loomed noiselessly, about the size and shape of a Klick market sign, Lunguy related.

"When I picked up my grandmother, I told her about the strange round object that was over the Plaza, and asked if she would like to see it. She agreed, and we stopped the car while coming down our street, at 962 Howe Road, Cuyahoga Falls. We both climbed from the car. It was about 9:50 PM, and it was still overhead, hovering ghostlike above the shopping center complex.

"Then the object began to move as though some invisible hand turned a switch to start a motor. It moved slowly, sluggishly, towards the north side of Barberton. It was as though whatever force controlled that movement didn't seem to care who saw it — and it didn't seem to be in any hurry at all.

"It was traveling, I'd say, 100-125 miles an hour, like a small airplane — a Piper Cub — toward the Sun Rubber Company. And then, just as it passed over a water tower about two blocks from where we were standing in our back yard, the object exploded in a silent shower of sparks and disappeared. It looked like the Fourth of July!

"We didn't see anything fall to the ground, but we did see lots of sparks fly all over the sky, and we were somewhat disappointed to see it explode like that. And strange it is to say that it still made no noise — nothing at all — even while it was exploding. Then we went into the house and I told my mother and the children what we saw that night. . ."

Although unconfirmed by any authoritative sources at the time, police switchboards buzzed incessantly with reports of a UFO sighting, and a noiseless explosion of a huge orange ball in the sky that couldn't have been a meteor. Speculation that it might have been a balloon were dismissed because of its speed and the shower of sparks when it quietly exploded.

However, that spectacular sighting over Barberton, and what followed, are causing many in the scientific and UFOlogical communities to speculate that not only did a UFO visit Ohio that night during the summer of 1972, but that it left behind physical evidence of its brief stay — evidence that could once and for all prove the reality of space craft visiting from distant worlds.

For it was the beginning of August, three weeks after the sighting, and conversation concerning the incident had all but ebbed into nearly forgotten kitchen-table small-talk; Lunguy was busily working around the yard early one morning, smoothing the hedges and mowing the grass on his farm-size piece of property.

It was while he was maneuvering the lawn-mower around a pine tree that he found the substance that looked like a rock. It was under the tree, buried beneath an inch of soil. He was immediately drawn to its beauty. It was like nothing else he'd ever seen before. The nine-inch, 13-pound mass was smooth and black, and amber tones gleamed from it. It was such a beautiful specimen that Lunguy couldn't let it lie in the yard, and so he picked it up gently and took it into the house.

The rock-like material was admired by the family and finally put aside, to be used as a decoration on the mantlepiece.

"My children were very small at the time and quite often utilized it (the rock) as a footstool with which to watch television, and many times used it to reach the light switch in our home.

"After the passing of my grandmother in 1974, my wife suddenly asked me what kind of rock it was. I shrugged, telling her I didn't know. But she spurred my curiosity, and so I began looking through many books. I also went to the library, but I just wasn't able to find out what kind of rock it was. After a time she asked me to take it to someone to see just exactly what it was. I told her I would."

In August of 1974, just before he took the mystery find to Kent State University, Kent, Ohio, the sudden flash of coincidence struck home, hitting like a door slamming him in the face.

The amber, beer-bottle color tones of the rock and the hue of the UFO sighted above Barberton two years before, were the same. . .

With that "coincidence" fresh in his mind, the rock was taken to David Burns, assistant professor of geology at Kent State University.

Burns performed a series of spectrograph tests and came to the conclusion that the rock was too fresh to have been outside long. What's more, tests concluded that it was not a rock at all — but glass.

When Lunguy told Burns of the celestial explosion witnessed in 1972, and that the material was discovered some weeks afterward, it was suggested that Lunguy immediately notify NASA.

Before the still puzzling substance was submitted for testing to Rober Oldrieve, a NASA scientist at Cleveland's Lewis Research Center, Lunguy was visited by Earl Neff, director of the Cleveland UFO Club, and Mr. Canduso, of the Akron UFO Club. The interview was conducted on Thursday, September 10, 1974, and their findings were that "Lunguy is a credible witness who sought no publicity either at the time of the sighting or now."

In the meantime, Edward Lunguy's 13" x 9" x 4" 'rock' was given over to Oldrieve, himself a 20-year veteran at NASA/Cleveland. A new diffractometer trace as well as a spectrochemical analysis was made.

Although a radioactivity test produced negative results, one of the most interesting coincidences NASA/Cleveland discovered is that the glass itself was not any of the volcanic or common natural glasses known.

Dr. Richard Grekila of the Westinghouse Research Laboratory was called in. He suggested Feldspar, Anorthite, or Orthoclase with limestone in solution. This proved out negative, as such a glass would not be clear, but crystalline.

Another major coincidence drawn by Oldrieve was how vastly different the unknown glass is from any natural glass, and how close in composition it is to glasses which were found to be desirable for rocket nozzle applications in NASA programs.

In part, Oldrieve's report states, "That such a composition should be associated with a UFO is curious, to say the least. Mr. Lunguy could not have known the color of the glass until his investigator cleaved it. When he saw it he immediately exclaimed that this was the color (as he had described to us previously) of the UFO he had seen."

The report continued, "The unknown glass has the desirabilities for the protection of such hot items as jet engine combustor liner, or ram-jet or rocket parts."

In short, the mass was determined to be a natural glass similar to rocket glass — the substance used in space research, to guard space capsules entering the earth's atmosphere.

Scientists are continuing to test the as yet elusive material. Speculation runs high that it was not man-made — that it may possibly have been constructed by extraterrestrial life far beyond the earth's surface.

Tested, it has shown to be a fantastic refractory material, has great bonding strength, and that it has good thermal expansion. It could prove invaluable in the space race. Many experts have exclaimed that it could revolutionize the glass industry.

Expounded Oldrieve: "The only conclusion that can be made is that the unknown remains unknown. Apart from the fascinating possibility that the glass was part of a UFO, the glass is harder, less fusible, and in these respects more like a gemstone than is common glass. The properties which would make the 'UFO-glass' suitable for re-entry are: will bond to metals; expansion coefficient of tungsten; will not spall or flow off; and should prevent oxidation."

Glasses are so different in composition, he brought out, and are so abundant, that no conclusion can be made about uniqueness. The fact that it is like a rocket glass in composition is the only tie-in to a UFO sighting.

A "gossamer, thin-walled ornament" with internal lighting device? An extraterrestrial "experiment" to see if humans are perceptive of objects in the sky? Or just a rock?

Only time, and further testing, will tell. In any event, the UFO-glass, which is the name that has been applied to it, is being kept safely under wraps — in a vault, deep in the basement of a bank in Barberton, Ohio. ● diamonds and jewels to be found anywhere in the world. I was excited. I remember looking at the closely guarded cases and wishing I could afford even an inexpensive diamond. Of course, in those days I didn't have any money. I was making under $10 a day.

"Taking my meager savings, I went to see a particular Colonel who, I thought — since he knew the town — could help me locate some nice pieces which I could purchase with the small amount I had on my person. There was no reason for my picking him, except that I figured he might be of assistance in my search. I went to his office and they told me he was not in. Under normal circumstances, I should have given up; perhaps come back later. But no! I had to see him. Something drew me to this house on the outskirts of town, where I knew the Colonel lived. I climbed over rubble to get there — the street was being dug up, ruined by the bombing.

"Arriving at his door, I was met by this Colonel in his shirtsleeves. I'm standing there in my uniform. I was very correct — saluted him and all. He said, 'Yes, what can I do for you?' I said, 'Sir, I understand you're the person to talk to about jewels.' He just looked at me for a second and froze. 'What?' was the only word that left his mouth. After he caught his breath, he said, 'I don't know what you are talking about. I don't know anything about the jewelry!' He seemed very excited. I immediately knew I had hit a sensitive nerve. The Colonel just about slammed the door in my face. Though there was no reason to suspect him of anything wrong, I was positive he was involved in some shady deal and was trying to hide something."

A few days later Celeste returned to Kronberg Castle on her day off, to take another look at the jewels on display there. "Well, who was there but the Colonel! Now he's got his uniform on, and looks quite official. I saw him talking to this tall, elegant woman who seemed to be in charge. She came over to me, and told me that the exhibit was closed to the public — I was in my civvies that day. I told her I wasn't a civilian, and she replied that I would have to be in my uniform in order to remain on the premises. I could see she didn't want me around. So I said to the man with me, 'Let's go back!'

"He drove me home. I put on my army pinks and back we went to the Castle. The Colonel wasn't there any more, but this same woman kept tabs on us and giving me all kinds of looks. I'm sure, reflecting back now, that she really wasn't paying that much attention to me, but in my mind's eye it seemed like I was the center of attention. I kept thinking, 'Why are they staring at me so intently?'

The answer came some time later.

"I was back in the States. One day, while having lunch in a New York restaurant, I picked up the newspaper and there, somewhere on the back pages, was a story about an attempted robbery at Kronberg Castle. Reading further, I discovered that the Colonel who had given me such a hard time had been arrested and was implicated in the crime. I chuckled to myself. An inner voice had told me he was not an honest man and should not be trusted. I'm convinced it was all ESP — that my mind was locking in on his and picking up his negative thoughts."

In another incident, an ESP experience was responsible for saving the life of the well-known actress.

"I was in Stockholm, Sweden, and I had a Number One priority — which was given to most celebrities in the service — which meant that, regardless of rank, I was given the roval treatment. They even met me at the airport upon my arrival, and offered to show me the town. My plans called for me to stay over in Stockholm for only a day or two, since I was scheduled to do a USO show in Paris.

"Everything was going smoothly. I had even been given a couple of tickets to the opera. Later that same evening, after the show, I was escorted to a local night club. While there I was introduced to a young, curly-haired pilot, who took an and Barbra Streisand—definitely not credits to ignore. "The last thing I would want to do is appear crazy," emphasizes Sarah. "I pride myself on being sane and rational, and I don't want to jeopardize this reputation. Up until a few years ago I was never really involved with any of this psychic stuff. Now I'm in up to my neck!"

Sarah is obsessed by it now! Eager to relate the events that have transformed her life, in their proper sequence and in their entirety, Sarah started with her childhood.

"My parents live in a house in Connecticut which was built, with the exception of one room, all on one level, because my mother was crippled and couldn't climb stairs. This upstairs room was supposed to be for guests, but mainly antiques were stored there so the kids couldn't get at them. As a child I considered this room haunted, but only in a way children consider any dark place haunted. When I was thirteen, I made my first little film. It was supposed to be a horror movie, which I shot in this room which we called the 'attic,' because the place was so creepy."

Throughout her early adolescence, Sarah tried her best to stay away from the room. Made to sleep upstairs one night when the Kernochans had company, she found it impossible to close her eyes. Something, which she couldn't quite put her finger on, scared her and kept her awake. After that, Sarah made all kinds of excuses so that she didn't have to sleep there anymore. Sarah stayed clear of 'the attic' for many years!

As the pages of the calendar were flipped over and Sarah blossomed into womanhood, she forgot all about the haunted room, giving no credence to any former fears which she could now logically explain as being nothing more than normal, transitory, childhood phobias. Even when overnight guests would trot briskly down the stairs in the morning complaining of someone having been in their room during the night, Sarah paid it no mind. "It's just the eerie atmosphere," she kept telling everyone, including herself.

It wasn't until repairs were being made to their home that she found it necessary to stay upstairs again.

"There was construction going on in the house, and there was absolutely no place else for me to sleep. Actually, I didn't give the matter of sleeping in the 'haunted' room a second thought. I considered myself an adult, and nothing could possibly scare me."

Sarah should have known better!

"After reading for a few minutes, I crawled under the covers and shut off the table lamp. Maybe it was just the heat in the radiator, but I thought I heard the floor boards creaking. 'It's only the sounds homes make—they don't frighten me,' I thought. Then off in the corner I heard something—a ball was rolling across the wooden floor."

Understandably, Sarah froze in fright. "Next there was this whispering in my ear which I couldn't understand, followed by the pulling of my big toe."

Determined to believe it was all her imagination, Sarah continued to sleep in the upstairs room for the next few weeks. Each night was worse than the night before.

Not knowing what to do, Sarah confided in a friend, New York City antique dealer Vivian Monk, whom Sarah knew to be interested in matters such as these. "Vivian had brought up the subject before, but I'd always told her to 'bug off,' that I didn't have the time for such nonsense. When I told her what was happening in Connecticut, she recommended that I go and see a certain psychic, a Frank Andrews, who might be able to clue me in on what was really involved in all this."

After looking up Frank's number in the phone book, Sarah called the highly respected psychic to arrange for a private consultation. "At first I didn't say anything about my problem. I wanted to see what he could 'pick up' on his own. Well, let me tell you, I walked in cold right off the street, without having met this man before. Frank gave me an incredible reading. He told me things about myself that absolutely nobody knew!"

Toward the end of the consultation, Frank Andrews made a print of Sarah's hand and studied it carefully. "Immediately, he wanted to know what person close to me who had died would be trying to influence me. I couldn't think of anyone, and then Frank said, 'There is a spirit with you, and he's always with you, and he's desperately trying to get through to your conscious.'"

As she sat in the psychic's living room, a picture began to form in Sarah's mind. It was an image of her paternal grandfather, Marshall Kernochan, who had died when she was but eight. Marshall Kernochan, like his granddaughter, had been very active in the arts.

Puzzled by what Frank Andrews had revealed, Sarah excused herself and concluded their meeting prematurely. She was anxious to get out into the fresh air and clear her head. Later that same day, Sarah kept a scheduled appointment with her therapist. "I had been filling my analyst in on all the strange activities as they took place. Then— out of the blue— she said, 'You know, I've been thinking about the poltergeist in your house, and the only person I can think of who might be trying to reach you is your father's father, because he was creative like you!' To say the least, I was dumbfounded. I hadn't mentioned— not even hinted at— what had taken place with Frank Andrews!"

That night, the talented young artist returned to the "haunted room" and began to look around. "The place was really cluttered with relics from the past. This room hadn't been cleaned in ages. It was more-or-less a storage area for family heirlooms." Amidst the bric-a-brac and antiques, Sarah found a number of items that had belonged to her grandfather. "There was his book collection, his clothes, and even the Marshall crest."

Standing there next to his belongings, Sarah began to feel queasy. Suddenly, she knew things about her grandfather that had never been told her. 'Don't ask me how, but racing through my mind were all these facts that nobody else knew. It seemed that Marshall Kernochan had been extremely wealthy. He had made decent money as a composer, and even owned a house on Sutton Place in Manhattan, living rather luxuriously. He was apparently quite a wonderful character, but the last half of his life he wasted." Sarah explained that her grandfather had started a publishing company, to publish his own and his friends' music, but then he stopped writing entirely. "His wife was dying of cancer and he was unable to handle the situation. By the time he died, his fortune had dwindled considerably."

At this point, Sarah concedes she did a bizarre thing. "I sat in front of a portrait of him, which was on the wall, and I talked to him. I said, 'I know who you are now, and I'm not afraid any longer. Please understand that I love you very much, but don't push me too hard. I know you want me to work hard and make the family very famous, but I'm till pretty young and vulnerable. Don't worry though, I really love you!"

For quite a while after Sarah sat in front of her grandfather's portrait and "talked to him," the unearthly happenings came to an abrupt halt. Then, all at once— "out of nowhere"— Sarah began to write music, something she hadn't done much before.

It was during this period Sarah also began having unusual dreams, which turned out to be prophetic.

"I had this one dream," she says, "where I saw an album cover. One of the songs on the cover was a piece called 'Biology and You,' which I later wrote and recorded."

Although he was a helpful sort, Marshall Kernochan could also be a meddling busybody when he wanted to be. For Grandpop had a knack for interfering with Sarah's social life and causing trouble with her male friends.

Whether she's dressed in a long flowing gown on her way to a cocktail party, or just lounging around in the tightly fitting T-shirt and cut-off jeans she's more accustomed to wearing, Sarah is as sexy as any woman could possibly be. She has a cute and innocent face that only adds to her already eye-catching appeal.

It's no wonder that all the guys go crazy over her. But Sarah's overly protective grandfather was going to make sure no one got too "involved" with his lovely grandchild.

"Everytime I would try and start up a relationship with somebody, my grandfather would scare him away," Sarah angrily observes. "I remember while living in California, I met this real nice guy, a real romantic, and a fine actor to boot. After taking me out to dinner this one evening, he came back to my apartment. There was no central heating in the house, and we were lying in bed trying to keep warm when— wham!— the cover to the portable heater flew off, five or six feet in the air, and hit this fellow in the head. He said, 'Who the hell did this?' Well, I got hopping mad. 'Grandpa,' I shouted, 'stop it! Quit interfering with my love life!'"

One after another Sarah's boyfriends took off in disgust. "As time went by, I became increasingly frustrated," Sarah notes, telling it like it is. "I was back in Connecticut, doing nothing but writing. It seemed that everybody I called was either unavailable, or out of town, or wasn't interested, I just couldn't believe, for an attractive girl, I was having so much trouble with my love life. One night I screamed, 'All you want me to do is work day-in and day-out. I can't live this way. How can I write about life if I can't experience it?'"

The following day a peculiar thing happened. "The telephone started ringing— it didn't stop! Guys I didn't really want to see were even calling."

Selecting a companion proved no problem, but there were complications— serious ones! "I was sleeping with this fellow when suddenly I heard my grandfather's voice. He was saying, 'Look out, look out, look out.' The guy heard the warning too, but neither of us knew what to make of it."

Two weeks later Sarah discovered she was pregnant!

"No way I could have been!" she exclaims in disbelief to this day. "I had taken all the necessary precautions."

After having an abortion, Sarah paid another visit to Frank Andrews. "I simply had to know what was going on in my grandfather's head. Frank explained that, in a sense, spirits are human beings, and so they have character flaws. 'They can,' he told me, 'be jealous too!' Apparently Grandpa was."

Consulting the top-ranked psychic, she found out what she had already half expected: that her grandfather wanted her to devote full time to writing music. "He wanted me, it seems, to write an operetta some thirty minutes long."

Deciding that she had no choice but to heed his request, Sarah began to compose "Pranks for Warped Children," the lyrics for which came to her in bits and pieces, in dreams. She worked on it like a slave for three full weeks. "After I had finished, I went back over my notes and realized that much of what I'd written came into my skull from out of the blue. I feel that this composition was written in collaboration with my grandfather. You see, he was terrible with words, and words are my forte. But even so, there is nothing from my past or my parents' past which could possibly account for what I had come up with. The operetta tells a complete story— makes a total statement. It has a rather macabre set of lyrics."

Someday in the near future, Sarah hopes to cut a record of this song, as it is one she feels strongly about.

Soon after penning this original composition, Sarah felt compelled to speak with her father, whom she hadn't really talked with in a long time. "My father and mother had separated, and my dad and I seemed to spend less and less time even trying to know each other. Suddenly, one night, I felt this tremendous pressure to sit down and engage him in conversation. For three whole days I fought the feeling, and I instant liking to me. He even offered to buy me and my escort a round of drinks. By accident, he dumped a glass of wine on my date's tuxedo. I thought, 'How careless - I'm glad I don't have to fly anywhere with him!'

"When it was time to depart Stockholm, I placed a call to the commanding officer. He informed me that I was in luck; that the pilot I had been introduced to the other night in the club was due to fly to Paris on a special mission, and he would take me to my destination. By this time I had forgotten - at least consciously - all about the 'accident' involving the spilt drink. From out of the blue, I came down with stomach cramps at the last moment, and had to call in and tell them I couldn't possibly make the flight that was planned for me.

"The Colonel in charge was not happy. He told me that if I missed this flight, I might not make it to Paris in time for the show. They didn't know when there would be another plane going my way. I begged his forgiveness, but explained that I was just too sick to travel.

"When I finally did arrive in Paris, I was met with the sad news that the plane had gone down somewhere in the Atlantic, killing the young pilot and two or three military personnel on board. At the time, I thought it was just luck that I hadn't been on the fallen aircraft. But later on, upon reflection, I remembered the incident at the night club and the thoughts that had gone through my mind at the time. No doubt my subconscious was reacting to a very serious situation. Those stomach cramps were nothing more - I realize now - than the physiological reaction to a very real threat. I'm convinced ESP saved my life!"

ramp. There's no way to really describe what transpired, but just as I approached my exit, I blanked out, and came to down the road well past the point where I was supposed to make my turnoff."

Doubling back, Sarah tried to get off at the proper exit again, but something was preventing her from doing so. "Every time I would get to it, I would lapse into a trance and miss it, and have to try again. This happened at least six times before I ran out of gas, and had to telephone my folks that I was lost in totally familiar territory."

Sarah points out that great men throughout history have had their consciousness expanded and have, in the process, been given glimpses of the cosmos which few have been privileged to see. In desperation, these great men have tried to impart their knowledge to the world, but were misunderstood or, worse yet, ignored. "Yeats tries to say it in his book, A Vision. But," according to Sarah, "even he admitted that he couldn't figure it all out; the way of the universe is so vast and mysterious. You have to understand that the entire revelation is like a complicated chemical formula. It boggles the senses, stops the tongue, and even the most brilliant of minds cannot totally conceive of it."

Not sure of what the future will bring with it, Sarah says she plans to take the next few years "as they come." She does know that her deceased grandfather unlocked the door to another world outside our own, and Sarah Kernochan is obsessed with the idea of finding out what lies beyond!

MY "MAGIC LAWS" FOR ABUNDANT HEALTH AND PEACE OF MIND

By Luke G. Thomas

A poor Vermont boy, I was orphaned at 12. I did all the wrong things up to age 58 and yet have managed to live to age 86, sound physically and sharp mentally. I am neither retired nor in a rest home; I am truly enjoying productive activities.

Many FATE readers believe an unseen energizing force may be tapped by receptive researchers to greater or lesser degree. Some seek mystic wisdom, mantras or amulets. I found the "magic pearl" by learning and obeying simple, natural laws of eating, deep breathing, mild exercising, resting and respecting the loving Creator.

IT PAYS TO CONSIDER NEW IDEAS

You may need the priceless information brought to me in 1950, following a fourth heart attack. Survival seemed remote. I also suffered from painful arthritis, high blood pressure, prostatitis and obesity which I blamed upon age. I WAS KIDDING MYSELF... it was the effects of wrong information. Since 1950 my body rebuilt itself with what I put into it. Doctors say my heart is sound... I suffer no pain, use no medication, exult in energy.

Once I corrected mistakes, CHANGED HABITS brought me, automatically, HEALTH, NEW IDEAS and ENTHUSIASM. Thus I gradually became PROSPEROUS and HAPPY. Life wants you to be the same. We are mysteriously endowed with body cells which replace themselves INDEFINITELY according to what goes into the mouth and through the mind. ADDING LIFE TO LIFE IS SIMPLE, for "Whatever a man soweth that shall he also reap". This is POSITIVE, INEXORABLE TRUTH! It is possible to undo some damage you created, as I did, through ignorance and violation of fixed, universal laws.

How far you may improve your health, circumstances and influence by following my advice, no man can tell. These "magic laws" should work for you as they have for me and thousands of others. YOUR OWN CHOICES of food, water, thoughts and action will decide the outcome. "The human body," says Dr. H. G. Bieler, M.D., "has an amazing capacity to repair its own injuries and to heal its illnesses". MY BODY DID IT WHEN I TREATED IT INTELLIGENTLY. If you dream of more abundant and productive life on earth my "magic laws" are worth trying.

CHANGE WHAT YOU CAN CHANGE

You cannot change your countenance, your genes or aptitudes but YOU CAN MAKE BETTER USE OF WHAT YOU HAVE. How you live, now that you have read this story, may determine HOW LONG YOU LIVE IN, YOUR SELF-HEALING BODY. GREAT IMPORTANCE

APPARITIONS IN THE SKY

Are we being "watched over?" Does some other race have our well being at heart? Down through the ages these entities have revealed themselves in many forms. In times past they might have appeared as "angels." Today they come as alien visitors. This volume is a block buster. Thousands of individuals in Zeitun, Cairo (Egypt) have reported a remarkable "apparition phenomenon" that some claim is the return of a Superior Intelligence to earth. See shocking photos never before released due to their controversial nature. $4.50.

LAST BATTLE FOR EARTH

In this 425-page book the author (Walter Wiers) reveals that Earth is experiencing a change of gods, that the mid-east arms buildup is now out of control. It is his contention that the "Last Days" of Man are almost upon us. He sees the disturbances caused by UFOs as a radical Omen, a warning that we must heed. But fear not, some of us will survive. You too can contact UFOs by telepathy. He also informs us that there is an "invisible world" concentric with ours, that people, planes and ships CAN be made to vanish. This book has a lot of the answers. It ties in UFOs, the psychic and much more. You shouldn't miss it. $7.95.

GHOST STORY

had absolutely no idea what it was I had to say. Finally, on the fourth day, before he was due back for supper, I ran out and got a six-pack of beer and decided to get drunk. I couldn't stand to do anything crazy in front of my father. I really resisted this compulsion to lecture him, especially since I didn't have any idea what I was supposed to say."

Sarah acknowledges that it was a tacky situation. "I found myself saying things to him that were calculated to upset, and yet all along I was aware of the fact that I was being used and couldn't do anything about it. True, it was my vocal cords that were being utilized, but I didn't have any way of controlling what was coming out of my mouth!"

Little by little, after their conversation, Sarah's father began to develop talents that had lain dormant for years. "At one time, he used to play the piano, and then suddenly it was like a dead instrument to him. Following our chat - which I have to admit I had little to do with - he started to play again, and even to compose music."

Sarah felt for certain that this development would please her grandfather and he would go away, or at least be a bit more considerate.

This turned out to be wishful thinking!

In fact, the poltergeist activity increased, even reaching a new level of intensity. "My pet rabbit was so scared that she thumped and ran around all over the house, trying to build nests for herself to hide in. And at precisely 9:00 one morning, a painting fell off the wall and landed on the floor with a loud crash. 'What a corny trick,' I thought as I sat up in bed. 'I'm really getting awfully tired of this kind of stuff, Grandpa,' I half shouted. 'Let's come to an agreement - don't do this unless you have to, because it's making me mad!'"

Coming to the stark realization that something drastic had to be done or she would never spend another night in peace, Sarah again contacted Frank Andrews.

"Frank told me the only way I could get rid of my grandfather was to write his name on a slip of paper, and set it in the middle of ten burning candles while meditating on him to go away. This posed a problem since there were no candles in the house and I was too tormented to drive the car to go shopping." As a last effort, Sarah telephoned a nearby liquor store to see if they had any candles they would sell her. "I was told all they had were birthday candles and that the minimum delivery was twenty-five dollars, but I had no other alternative, so I ordered the necessary amount of liquor and two boxes of birthday candles."

Arranging the candles in a circle, Sarah tried to concentrate on her grandfather, to send him a mental message that she was not at all anxious to have him around pestering her.

The magical spell was successful, but its influence lasted only a short while. And then - "it was never the same afterwards, for I began to sense the presence of other spirits besides my grandfather, around me." It was as though this spell had somehow opened a cosmic Pandora's box.

From her experiences with them, Sarah says she gets the distinct impression that spirits, in many ways, are just like the living. "Their hangups can be as complex as human beings." Some of them like to shove people around a bit and show their authority, while others are more benevolent and have our best interests at heart."

Lately, her spirit contacts seem to have taken on a much broader meaning, as beings who reside in another dimension have imparted to her some startling revelation which she is at a loss to put into words.

Believe it or not, Sarah's divine revelation came to her while she was driving by car from New York City to Connecticut. "I had gotten back on the highway returning home, and had to make a very simple turn-off, which I had made many times before. There were ample signs posted well up ahead warning the driver when to get into the right lane and slow down so as not to miss the exit

ABOUT FLYING SAUCERS

A NEW "MYSTERY MAN"

I called Shelia, my assistant, over to watch my Radio Shack computer and boasted that she was about to see a complete distribution of UFO sightings by counties in West Virginia.

"Who knows?" I threatened, "Maybe it'll turn up some 'Bigfeet' sneaking around your house trailer!"

"Don't tell me that! Even though I know you're joking, now I probably won't get any sleep tonight!"

I stopped the tape that fed in all the data and confidently typed in, "RUN".

But after the title, "DISTRIBUTION BY W. VA. COUNTIES", flashed on the readout screen, it went black, with only the observation, "READY", appearing at the top.

"Stick in a 'TRON' and I'll debug it for you," a deep voice spoke from behind us. I whirled to see a large man with a fierce black beard looking over our shoulders.

"OK, brother!" I agreed, entered the command used to trace errors, and re-ran the program.

"Hmmm. . ." the stranger mused. "Now print out the list for me." His sharp eyes took in the computer program text racing madly up the screen, and he stabbed the "Break" button with his forefinger.

"I thought so! You got messed up on a 'Gosub' and have a 'CLS' in the wrong place. Change your 'CLS' from 20100 to 10191 and your distribution chart won't get wiped off the screen!"

When I followed his instructions, my nice table of sightings appeared.

"It's beautiful!" I said proudly, and added, "Thank you, Bill!"

UFO LEADER OR SECRET AGENT?

We shook hands and I introduced Shelia. I knew my caller could be none other than Dr. Willard F. McIntyre, a nationally-known communications expert, who also happens to be interested in UFOs. In fact he is director of MARCEN, an acronym for the Maryland Center for Investigation of Unconventional Phenomena. He had alerted me that he might drop by while on a trip to Pittsburgh to be a guest lecturer at the Hayden Planetarium.

"That's a neat little rig," McIntyre complimented the compact microcomputer. "In fact it can do almost anything the huge ones can do at MARCEN. Maybe we can do it a lot faster, and store a thousand times more information, but after all, ours cost a lot more bucks."

I turned off the computer and motioned to a comfortable chair. Then I asked Shelia, with mock seriousness, "Could you turn up the microphone a little louder?"

McIntyre's eyes twinkled momentarily, then his face went deadpan. I sensed his carefully-masked sense of humor as he went along with the gag:

"That's all right. I'll just speak a little louder."

The MARCEN leader knew I was referring, with tongue-in-cheek, to accusations circulating in UFO circles that McIntyre was secretly an agent for the Central Intelligence Agency, or some other intelligence organization. The rapid rise of his UFO organization from an unknown local group to one which, within a few months, had attracted more than 4,000 members, and which had dozens of technical experts and Ph.D.'s on its roster, probably had contributed to the rumors.

The accusations took the form of anonymous letters, which named him and other UFO investigators as Government agents — among them James W. Moseley, Phillip Klass, James Oberg, John Keel, and even myself! These letters claimed that McIntyre and Stuart Nixon (a former NICAP officer and alleged CIA operative) held clandestine meetings in a cemetery where they exchanged the latest top secret UFO information.

And although I doubted very much that Dr. McIntyre was anything other than he claimed to be — a very capable leader deeply interested in getting to the bottom of the UFO mystery — I was very curious about the real purpose of his visit, for I knew he had traveled miles out of his way to drop in.

McIntyre soon got to the point:

"I read your column in UFO REVIEW — your interview with Robert Carr in which he added confirmation to the allegations of captured 'saucers' and their occupants. I wondered what you thought of all this personally?"

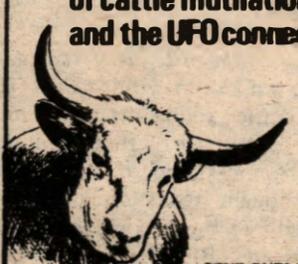

"I think I expressed my feelings pretty well in the column," I replied. "Although I haven't met Dr. Carr, his credentials are impressive. He's an expert in your very own field — communications; though his specialty is in non-verbal communications. That landed him a job with Walt Disney Studios during World War II, producing training films which had to stress the visual instead of the verbal. In fact, Dr. Carr may be considered one of the founders of what we call modern Audio Visual Education.

"I also know that after his stint with Disney he worked for a couple of giant corporations, which I can't name. You might call his jobs with them "Public Relations." I gather that the thrust of these jobs was influencing opinions of city and state governments and bringing them along to these corporations' points of view. But of course this has hardly anything to do with his

If you are squeamish or easily offended by explicit details of mutilated animal bodies, we ask you not to order this book. For over five years animals in some 38 states have been found butchered, blood drained and had their sex organs removed. knowledge of retrievals of the crashed craft."

Dr. McIntyre paused before commenting.

"I don't exactly agree with you. To the contrary, giant corporations, after all, would have quite a stake in the UFO mystery. Particularly when revelations of their propulsion systems might have impact on Big Energy and the internal combustion engine industry."

Then he abruptly changed the subject. He told me he had copies of some letters to show to me and suggested we go out to a nearby restaurant for some lunch. I gathered he either didn't want Shelia to hear about it or was being cautious just in case my humorous reference to "bugging" our conversation might have some basis in fact!

THE MYSTERIOUS LETTERS

Although McIntyre seemed visibly relieved that the restaurant at the "Flying A" tuck stop was virtually deserted, still he motioned toward a table in a remote corner and seated himself so he could survey the entire dining room.

"I know you've been wondering about the purpose of my visit. So read this. I just

The photo was received in May, 1950 from an Intelligence and Security Officer, at the New Orleans Port of Embarkation. The photo depicts a "man from Mars" in the custody of two U.S. Army MPs, the location of the incident was said to be Germany. wanted to know what you thought about it!"

He handed me photocopies of two letters, both from the United States Air Force.

I scanned both letters quickly and whistled.

"Bill, there's gotta be something wrong here. These letters are too good to be true!"

Both letters were addressed to Todd Zechel, an associate of William Spaulding, who heads an organization called Ground Saucer Watch (GSW). Spaulding's organization had bearded the lion in its den by taking on, almost single-handedly, none other than the Central Intelligence Agency, and by public pressure and lawsuits forced the CIA to disgorge many of its secret UFO files for public scrutiny.

The first letter addressed to Zechel was on the letterhead of the Department of the Air Force, Air Force Rocket Propulsion Laboratory, Edwards AFB, California, dated Feb. 2, 1979, and signed by Kenneth E. Sterling, Chief, Technical Information Branch. It read, in part:

"In response to your many inquiries, on behalf of this command and this base, I can state without reservation that no crashed Unidentified Flying Objects have ever been studied by this command, nor have any ever been stored at this base. The blue berets that you refer to, more appropriately known as the 9741st Alien Aircraft Retrieval Squadron, have always operated out of Wright Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio, and all of their retrievals would have been taken directly there. . . ."

The second letter, dated May 4, 1979, was also addressed to Zechel, but it was from the Department of the Air Force, Headquarters, Foreign Technology Division, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio, and signed by Col. Frank Jamieson, Adjutant to the Commanding General. Again we quote in part:

"We have checked and verified your former security clearance with the National Security Agency, but cannot grant your request to visit Foreign Technology Division's underground alien aircraft artifact storage warehouse. Entrance requires an active clearance much higher than you ever held."

"BOO-BOOS" OR LEAKS?

Still stunned from the contents of the letters, I could only stare at Dr. McIntyre in disbelief, as the uneaten cheeseburger and 'fries on my plate were getting even colder. I picked up the ketchup bottle, set it back down, and re-read them.

"First of all," I told my visitor, "I'd say it's 99 percent that these letters are hoaxes."

"I agree," he quickly chimed in; then he paused. "I think what I'm getting at is this: if they're hoaxes, who is the hoaxer and why. . . . I think it's the WHY that may be important."

I cogitated on his unusual response.

While there could be a remote possibility that Kenneth E. Sterling could have made a colossal boo-boo, maybe after too big a party the previous night, or, like many Government sources, could have been deliberately leaking information — well, that was about a million-to-one shot!

And the second letter, written three months later, and from a different Air Force base, again (if authentic) represented a colossal foul-up of security, and again virtually admitted the capture of crashed saucers and their occupants!

If one stretched his imagination, and stood on his head while rotating two thumbs in opposite directions, ONE letter just might take on some credibility. But TWO unconscious breaches of security? TWO deliberate leaks? One would have to be a devout disciple of OFFICIAL UFO to swallow all that fish!

"I am certain of one thing (I told McIntyre), if these letters were written by some ordinary hoaxer, he or she could be pounding rocks in the pokey for a mighty long time. The law is very strict about misuse of official Government stationery!"

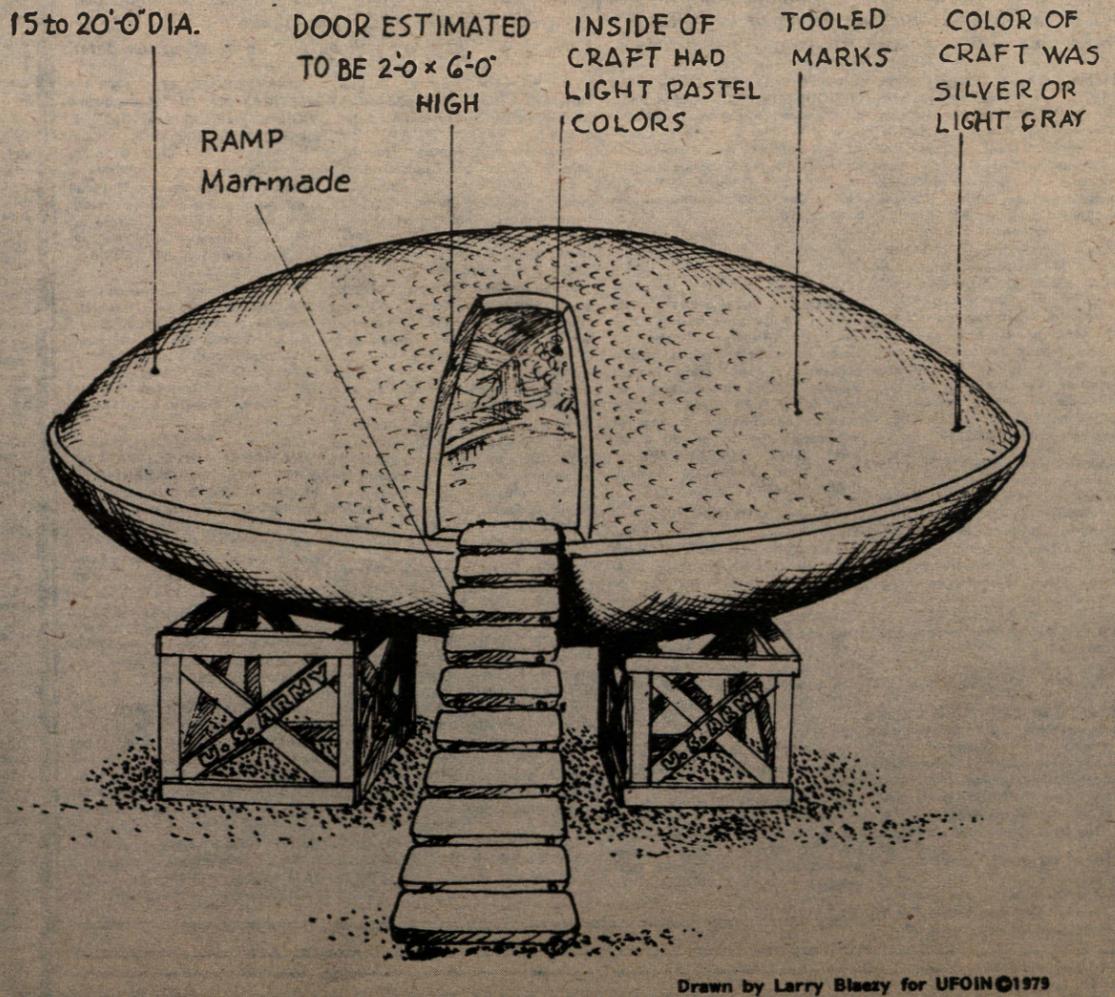

"But what if they're NOT hoaxes?" McIntyre murmured. "If that's the case, we're all in for trouble!"

I tried to explain my complex point. Like a lot of UFO researchers, I had more or less thrown out the baby with the dirty bath water after Frank Scully's book, Behind the Flying Saucers, had been "exposed" in True Magazine. Not until later had I realized the writer had exposed Scully's sources, not the basic story. And despite the downgrading of the idea, the "little men" and their malfunctioning hardware had a way of continuing to rise from their graves and to march through the nightmares of people trying to make some logical sense of the UFO mystery. Lately even the highly respected Leonard Stringfield, a public relations director for MUFON, had, after years of study, finally presented his "pro-crashed-saucers" paper at a prestigious MUFON symposium. I thought enough of the paper to devote a lot of space to it in my Gray Barker's Newsletter, and to back it up with an interview with Dr. Robert Carr in a recent issue of UFO REVIEW.

"You're telling me," McIntyre interrupted, "that, after all these years of ridicule, the crashed saucers and little men are becoming respectable again?"

"You have an excellent way of wrapping up, crystallizing and expressing my thoughts," I

Many are the accounts of crashed UFOs. This illustration depicts a craft that either landed or crashed at Ft. Riley, Kansas, Nov. 1964, and was seen by a Mr. A.K. who was on guard duty at the time. complimented. "I wish you'd drop by more often."

I finally fell into silence and decided to eat my food. But as I did so, McIntyre's statement kept bugging and prodding at my subconscious.

A PLANTED PLOY?

Suddenly I grabbed and tugged at his shirt sleeve, until, realizing that my spontaneous physical action was uncouth, I let go, grinned and apologized.

"You'll have to excuse me when I get a wild idea. But something just hit me: Remember that Scully was discredited, not because of his claims that crashed saucers and little men had been captured, but by discrediting two of the people who had given him information. In fact they later were arrested for fraud in connection with a 'doodlebug' scheme for locating underground oil."

Finding McIntyre a good sounding board, I tried to develop my theory further: Say the crashed saucer and retrieval stories were true, and were about to leak out. Knowing that Scully was a popular writer with a wide audience, maybe the Powers-that-be "set him up," by sending the phony "oil man" and the "scientist" to him with an essentially true story. Once the sensational book came out, however, the two informants (perhaps actually intelligence operatives) allowed themselves to be discredited, probably with some cooperation with law enforcement authorities. Thereafter any authentic leaks would be tarred by the same brush and be discredited.

"Let me ask you this:" I queried; "For the last 20 years or so, what would have happened to a UFO investigator who repeated or endorsed Scully's story?"

"He would have been laughed off the podium, and his colleagues probably would have burned his publications!"

McIntyre reflected: "Indeed, whether accidentally or deliberately, Scully was completely discredited."

I tried to make the now stale 'fries palatable by dousing them in more ketchup.

"Discredited," I repeated, "until recently."

I didn't have to repeat what I was referring to. McIntyre knew

BOOKS

THE ENEMY IS VIOLENCE! by Brenton Van Court. My first novel, which is written in the art form known as Expressionism, is a flying saucer novel entitled The Enemy is Violence! It is only partly finished, and covers a wide variety of subjects ranging from the adventures of Jane Fonda to the mismanagement of America's police forces. The treachery of the villain of my novel, Louis Violence, will come as quite a shock to many people who have regarded him as their friend. He appears in my novel, expressionistically, and it is clearly seen that what the police really need is not brutality but brainpower: "Shock's high-level police ineptitude is so widespread that it constitutes what would have to be called a 'nationwide crisis.' From the fascinating book about our former police commissioner Patrick J. Murphy "Commissioner A View From the Top of American Law Enforcement." The book, just published by Simon and Shuster, has Murphy listing his readers in the kind of stationhouse secrets they'd never learn from Colombo or Kojak. Call for Louis Peace, Detective! CHASING FLYING SAUCERS

the recent furor caused by Leonard H. Stringfield, whose book, Situation Red, the UFO Seige and the paper read at the MUFON symposium, had convinced a lot of UFO researchers they should go back to the drawing board and disinter the retrieval tales for serious re-study.

"Your 4,000 subscribers read about it in your Marcen Journal. Although I don't have that many subscribers, I sent out about 10,000 sample copies of my Gray Barker's Newsletter containing my in-depth interview with Stringfield. It also got some newspaper coverage. And from sniffing the wind blowing through the politics of organized UFO research, I get the impression a lot of responsible people are again buying the story.

"If it is, indeed, a pure cock-and-bull story, I'll have a red face when it's knocked down again. But if the story is true...."

"REVERSE PSYCHOLOGY"

McIntyre looked at the letters again. Now I'm about as psychic as a bed post, but somehow I could tell that my visitor had picked up my train of thought and was tossing it around mentally:

In "reverse psychology" the ploy would work something like this — along with resurgence of popular belief in UFOs, fanned by top-rated movies and TV shows, a re-evaluation of many early UFO incidents was taking place. Due to Stringfield's prestige in the UFO investigation field, organized UFOlogy was again ready to dig into the retrieval stories. In a climate following the massive leaks and civil disobedience attendant to the Viet Nam war, some former military personnel who were privy to the retrievals might be getting ready to blow security and talk. Also, statutes of limitation are wearing into security oaths.

"I don't believe a word I'm saying," I continued. "My little Radio Shack computer, along with your big computers, would term this theory idiotic — if you could program them to make such an analysis. But here it goes...."

"The letters were deliberately made up and planted in the hope that they would be initially believed and publicized by a few gung-ho UFO people. A few small gullible publications, (such as James W. Moseley's Saucer Sheet, which has subsequently published excerpts from the letters) would spread the "word." Of course no rational researcher would swallow stuff such as 'the 9741st Alien Aircraft Retrieval Squadron', and again, any serious research, such as that done by Stringfield, would be discredited. Stringfield and a few others would be made to look like fools, and UFOlogy would have a hearty laugh. But not as hearty a guffaw as the psychological warfare experts who created the ploy!"

My elaborate paranoid construction was interrupted by a kind of gasp or snort from Dr. McIntyre, who also had upset his Coke. He had turned from me and was watching a bearded man leaving the restaurant carrying a large black briefcase. I had been so enmeshed in my wild speculations that I had taken little notice of the man, who had just emerged from the men's room adjacent to our table.

My mind flashed back, again

CHASING THE FLYING SAUCERS

to one of Moseley's newsletters, which contained a reference to a man in a false beard who had been seen watching McIntyre's house — a man he believed to be none other than Todd Zechel, the addressee of the letters and a self-admitted former intelligence agent! The man had been in the john quite a long time. He could have been reading a book — or recording our conversation through the thin wall!

But whatever the identity of the man leaving the restaurant, McIntyre was obviously agitated at seeing him. I thought it was a good time to pick up the check and suggest returning to the office.

As we drove the short distance, Moseley's newsletter reference continued to intrigue me. There had seemed to be something wrong with the man's beard: it didn't quite match the color of his hair! Had a mysterious agent followed the Maryland UFO expert even to the hills of West Virginia, just to watch him — or to frighten him?

If true, that would rule out McIntyre as an agent himself — unless two different agencies, one of them out to leak the UFO secret, another to suppress it, were engaging in a civil intelligence war, with me shouting "Gee whiz!" and writing this column about it.

I might have figured it all out, had it not been for the commotion that confronted us when we pulled up to the office, which is a part of a drive-in theater complex.

Dennis Gaunt, the grounds keeper, was on the roof of our office, changing the theater marquee, but he abandoned the job in the middle of the "ALIEN" copy and was wielding a large club. Mrs. Long, a nearby neighbor and an avowed coservationist, was pointing a bony finger up at him, shouting that "It's harmless. It was just trying to catch the mice after the cat disappeared."

Shelia, standing outside the building, was visibly terrified. "It was the largest black snake I ever saw. Dennis tried to kill it but it got away and ran into the building."

I groaned, knowing that from that day onward Shelia would refuse to go to the second floor where some of our UFO files were stored.

Dennis, the groundskeeper, was shouting right back at Mrs. Long:

"I don't care what you say. It stuck out its tongue at me and was ready to bite if I hadn't threatened to smash it!"

"COWARD! COWARD! To let a harmless snake get you so upset!"

Dr. McIntyre, either because of the frustration of the interruption or, more likely, due to his pressing schedule, chose to leave in the middle of the fracas. In my efforts to calm things down at the office I only half heard his parting remarks, and I beg his pardon if I misquote him:

"Gray, remember your computer. Don't abandon logic in trying to solve the UFO mystery.

"Yet, we must remember that even though your little Radio Shack rig, and our accessibility to multi-million-dollar hardware and voluntary time by expert programmers at MARCEN, are very valuable tools. . ."

(He paused to open the door of his station wagon)

"... The 'Flying Saucer' Mystery cannot be actually solved this way. . ."

With that somewhat mysterious statement, and a burning of rubber on gravel, Dr. Willard McIntyre sped away on Rt. 19, toward the I-79 interchange which would connect him with Pittsburgh and his series of lectures at the Hayden Planetarium.

(Editor's note: The alleged Air Force letters appear above in greatly edited form to eliminate derogatory references to Phillip Klass, a noted UFO skeptic. Readers wishing to contact Dr. McIntyre or obtain information on his organization, MARCEN, may write him at: Box 218, Kensington, Md 20795. Let us hope that these developments do not signal a wave of official repression against UFO organizations, and that courageous investigators such as Barker and McIntyre will be allowed to continue. ●

ATTRACT THE POWERS OF GOODNESS TO YOU

There are both positive and negative forces at work in the universe. Though they remain invisible at most times, we can learn to tap into the "Universal Life Force" and attract to us those things which are highly beneficial — HAPPINESS, SPIRITUAL GROWTH, FINANCIAL SECURITY AND HEALTH.

UFO literature is full of cases where ordinary people have established communication with the entities who pilot the craft we have come to call flying saucers. In a large percentage of such contacts, feelings of warmth, harmony and love radiates from the UFO-nauts who arrive here on a regular basis from far away worlds. For the most part our "Space Brothers" want to bring us the things we desire. We are told that if we listen to their words we will have much to learn that could be beneficial to all of mankind.

THE FORCES OF DARKNESS ARE ALL AROUND

Unfortunately, not all aliens are concerned with our physical and spiritual development. Some of the entities are evil, motivated by the forces of darkness. Those who come in contact with these negative beings often find that they no longer have control over their minds and bodies. It is if they were actually POSSESSED by some power that is representative of all that is bad in our solar system.

BENEVOLENT SPACE BEINGS DIRECT YOU TO USE THE 'UNIVERSAL FORCE' TO ATTRACT GOODNESS FOR YOURSELF AND TO COMBAT EVIL & NEGATIVITY IN THE WORLD...

If you are a UFO researcher or just interested in this subject you must know what steps to take to protect yourself from these COSMIC VAMPIRES. They have been known to suck the blood of animals and leave the bodies of cattle, dogs and wildlife mutilated beyond recognition. They are far worse than any Satanic cult on earth for they draw power from all those who leave their minds and bodies unguarded against mental attacks of this nature. It is their plan to take over the earth by creating a force of zombies, a race of "insane robots" who will do their bidding upon telepathic command.

EVIL PLAGUES MANKIND

These negative influences are said to cause plagues, wars and disasters that have been responsible for killing millions of innocent individuals throughout the ages.

Yet, each one of us can learn to fight them. We as individuals can change our life for the BETTER as long as we know how to defend ourselves.

But it is a tricky situation since they are on the physical plane and take on Earth-like appearances. This makes it possible for them to carry on various acts of "espionage" without being detected.

"UFO SIGHTINGS IN ANTHOLOGISTS' FIELD NOTES"

listen and then hope to remember it for my notebook.

She told me that she was walking on the same street around 8:30 p.m. on a December night about five years earlier (that would be in 1967). Since there is very little industry for miles around, the sky is exceptionally clear, so in the absence of clouds the stars twinkle with considerable intensity. Suddenly out of nowhere a revolving form appeared over the hill in back of the village's 300-year-old church. The underside was dark and completely round. She could tell because it blocked out the stars where it hovered, seemingly on edge only a few hundred feet above the ground. She heard no noise whatsoever. Then the object slowly tilted down, banking in the other direction, revealing its top side. She described it as being plano-convex in cross-section, with a dome on top. Ringing the dome at its base was a ribbon of light — perhaps a series of "windows." The light was yellowish and revealed the dull gray metallic color of the surface of this object. All the while it hovered, first tilting over on one side and then on the other, it was revolving. Then, just as suddenly as it had appeared, it disappeared. As she put it, the object just got smaller and smaller. No doubt it took off at a very rapid speed.

When I asked her what she thought this object was, the Registrar was evasive. I asked her if anyone else had seen it, and she listed the names of other residents for me. I then inquired about the duration of the sighting. She was uncertain, but noted that it could have been several minutes, because dogs had begun to bark and the ensuing ruckus brought their owners out into the courtyards, and that is how so many villagers came to see it. The barking dogs might indicate that the object was emitting a high-pitched frequency which would have been inaudible to the people.

Although my companion was unwilling to offer her own explanation for this sighting, she did use an expression to refer to the object. Everyone else I interviewed in this village gave me the same account and used the same expression: "letecky tanier" ("flying plate"). Over and over, I asked my informants if they had heard this expression used in newscasts or if they had read it in newspapers or magazines. No, they had not. They formulated it by themselves. They really thought it looked like one of their dinner plates. In this part of Eastern Europe, dinner plates resemble shallow soup plates with a wide flat rim. Soup is served first, then the rest of the meal is placed in the same dish. If you flip one over, you can easily see why these villagers came to use the expression "flying plate."

UFO's — whatever their origin — appear to be a global phenomenon. As such, information concerning their appearances is stored in hundreds of societies. One avenue of access to these as yet unknown accounts is through the discipline of anthropology.

The single, unifying experience of nearly all university-trained doctoral students in anthropology has been and will continue to be fieldwork. Studying aspects of other societies in their own settings often yields an amazing array of unusual accounts. Sprinkled among the stories told to fledgling anthropologists by their informants must be many first-hand sightings of UFO's. Unfortunately, descriptions of the sightings are recounted in the language and symbolic/religious matrix of another culture, so they are difficult to recognize. They are likely to be recorded in the field notes under a catchall category, such as "magical beliefs" or "dreams and hallucinations."

While conducting my own dissertation fieldwork in the Czechoslovak Social Republic back in 1972, I came across several accounts of an unusual UFO sighting that had taken place about five years earlier. I was collecting data on witchcraft and "evil eye" in a small village located in the Myjava Foothills of Western Slovakia, the easternmost province.

The people living in this agricultural region have no contact with the Western media. Press coverage of UFO's in the Warsaw Pact countries is non-existent. Quite often, they even "forget" to publish news of their own airplane disasters. I am therefore fairly confident that my informants in this village were not prompted or influenced by information they had seen or read. Contagion could not have contributed to what they told me.

One evening as I was walking down the pitch-black main street in the village with the Registrar of the Local People's Committee, after spending several hours recording witchcraft stories in a neighbor's home, I happened to look up and pointed out a shooting star. My Registrar friend nonchalantly chuckled and said that it was nothing compared to what she had seen a few years ago. Naturally I was very curious, and immediately formulated a few questions. By the time I could get them out, she was already reciting a detailed account. All I could do was

PREDICTED BY ALIENS

Thanks for making me a member of the UFO Investigators League. What I'm going to tell you next might seem far out, but it really did happen.

I know how Skylab falling came about, but I don't know if anybody will believe it. I knew it would happen many months ago, because I heard about it over the radio.

It all started back in December of 1977, when someone sent me a newspaper article that read: "If the weapons on Earth are not laid down, destruction from outer space will quickly follow." This came true on January 24, 1978, when the Russian spy satellite crashed in Canada. I believe there are some hostile aliens that don't want us to move ahead with our own space program. I also received a message that read as follows: "One of our spaceships accidentally tipped the satellite during an inspection tour. We also hit what you call 'Skylab' by mistake and made it wobble. It's still wobbling and will come down soon." The alien warning was given a man in England in the first week of 1977. You can imagine how I almost fell over dead when I heard the initial news about Skylab's projected reentry into the earth's atmosphere.

A NOTE FROM BETTY HILL

It has come to my attention that an unknown person is contacting national publications to place an ad to sell copies of the original tapes of the hypnosis of Barney Hill and me. No authorization by Dr. Simon or by me has been given for the release of these therapy tapes. Therefore this claim is a hoax, or if this person did obtain a copy of our tapes, his possession of these is illegal. The confidentiality of our therapy tapes are fully protected by all state and federal laws. If any of your readers should be contacted, it would be appreciated if you would inform me as to the identity of this person, or company involved in this matter. Good luck!

GRANDMA WOULDN'T LIE!

This story was told to me by my grandmother. On or around July or August, 1935, at dusk in a very rural area of Utah, four miles south of Willard to be exact, a light green UFO was spotted by Adair Housley (my grandmother), Marion Clay Jeppsen and Vernon F. Housley. The object was circular and about the size

The authors have examined the entire spectrum of the contactee enigma. They have studied the experiences of many famous figures, from George Adamski to Uri Geller. of the full moon. It was green in color and moved toward the east. No sound was heard coming from the object — and I stress "object," because no one had heard the words UFO or flying saucer in those days.

Could it have been the moon, or perhaps Venus? "No," my grandmother says, "because it was moving too fast and the moon moves from east to west not west to east" like the UFO was traveling. A plane or weather balloon, maybe? Neither, because a plane isn't round, and they didn't have weather balloons in those days. It's not likely to have been a natural phenomenon either, so it must have been a... UFO!

MEN-IN-BLACK

I'm an artist, and several years ago I used to go to bars to sketch people to make a little spending money. Being shy, I had a difficult time working in such places, especially since I'm a woman. I used to go into the back room in one particular place, and I remember this one time I think I met your MIB. There were three men in black suits and wearing fedora hats. They looked to me like ordinary men, dressed in unusual suits for a workingmen's neighborhood. Well, one of the men in the fedora had me draw his picture. He was a nice looking man, and before I could finish the sketch, he handed me a dollar and said he had to go. I keep all my sketches, so it is possible this one is still around the house. I've been interested in UFOs for about 20 years and have read almost all the books on the subject. I believe UFOs mean us no harm, and that they are probably the angels spoken of in the Bible. They are here, I feel, to help us when Earth's polarity reverses itself. Their coming is a sign of a spiritual awakening of the people of this planet.

UFOS AROUND THE WORLD

We would appreciate receiving by registered mail your books, The People of the Planet Clarion, The Subterranean World and Book of Space Brothers, in exchange for books or microfilms of any articles published in the Soviet Union. I've received with great gratitude your UFO REVIEW. It is much needed today in our turbulent world. I'm a UFOlogist myself. I haven't seen them physically, but I have been contacted from time to time astrally, and just at the time your publication arrived, they gave me a contact, and even as I write this their presence is still around me.

Since 1975 I've publicly announced my beliefs. I have followers scattered around the country. I also maintain, free of charge, a spiritual library that needs UFO and psychic literature badly. Any contributions from your readers would be appreciated. UFOs are frequently sighted in Indonesia, and they sometimes leave physical proofs that are indisputable. I was really surprised to note that Indonesia was not included in the list of landings and encounters presented recently to the UN delegates.

UFOs have been seen in Turkey. We even have people who claim contact with the occupants of these ships. Some of our citizens believe in these — others do not, as it is elsewhere. Our group operates in conjunction with the Metapsychic Research Society of Turkey.

DR. BERNARD???

I would like to ask your help in an extremely difficult research project.

For the last few years, I have been collecting material on the Hollow Earth Theory for a history of the subject. I now have several hundred pounds of books, magazines, newspaper articles and such on all aspects of the Theory, but there is one point at which I've been stuck for quite a while.

I have not been able, anywhere, to find any definite biographical information on Walter Siegmeyer, a/k/a Dr. Raymond Bernard. Sometimes I wonder if the man even existed! Several places I've written, such as his publishers, have given me no real information or they didn't at all. Your book The Subterranean World gives a little info on Bernard, and I'd like to ask you if you could give me any more. Do you know, for example, what year he was born and where he was married? You say in your intro to his writings, "Many writers in the United States have accused Dr. Bernard of fabricating his information as a money-making scheme." Do you know where I might find the writings that make such an accusation? I have gone through several old UFO magazines and have not been able to find anything dealing with Bernard except for ads for his book.

In short, I'd like to know anything I can possibly find on Siegmeyer/Bernard. If you can't reply or don't have time, could you please either pass my question along to someone else who might have had contact with Bernard, or send me their address so I might contact them myself?

BARKER'S PARANOIA?

I enjoy reading your publication, UFO REVIEW, and look forward to its continued success.

I was particularly intrigued by Gray Barker's comments about alleged government censorship of the media in your June issue. Since I have worked in both the broadcasting and publishing industries, I should like to respond to some of the charges made by Mr. Barker.

I don't know why the Movie Capricorn One was withdrawn from circulation, but I do know that it is being presented this month on the Home Box Office Pay-TV network, apparently uncut. Since cable TV penetration extends throughout the country, I dare say this movie will receive a wider audience now than when it was released to the movie theaters. Any suggestions of censorship is without foundation. Distributing agencies may have a lot of reasons to remove a movie from circulation. Contractual commitments for later pictures may be responsible. It is also true that — although the movie had a reasonably good box office gross in this country — receipts had fallen off sufficiently to cause its withdrawal.

Barker is also distorting the facts about the re-release of Close Encounters of the Third Kind. I read the same trade publications he does, and nowhere is it stated that large portions of the first hour and a half will be deleted. It is true that a new scene showing the inside of the landed spaceship will be shown. A small portion of the middle of the movie, thought by many critics to be particularly slow-moving, will be axed, so that the length of the movie will not be increased. The producers want a product that will appeal to a wider audience. I doubt that any "key" scenes that might shed light on the UFO mystery will be deleted. Bear in mind, the film is science fiction.

Most of the media is controlled by businessmen — not artists. Their choices are dictated by considerations of profit and loss. They are not perfect, and frequently make bad decisions. Most of your readers know, for example, that plans for Star Wars were rejected by many studios before the picture was finally filmed. It turned out to be the biggest box office smash ever! Obviously a few heads rolled at rival studios over that decision.

The same holds true for the publishing industry. Management consists largely of accountants, lawyers and professional administrators. They know and generally care little about artistic considerations in many cases. They are interested in the bottom line of a balance sheet. They like to invest money in proven products.

Also, many media-related industries are large conglomerates with thousands of employees. Lots of decisions are made on a middle-management level. There are many contradictions and mistakes. Let's not get so carried away with it all that we attribute human imperfections and the fear of taking chances to censorship.

It is far more important to deal with the facts about the UFO enigma. There are enough scientists taking the subject seriously these days to insure that meaningful data will get a fair hearing. Incipient paranoia will only hurt our case.

WILD RUMOR — OR FACT?

I have a slight problem I hope you can help me with. I need confirmation regarding an incident that supposedly occurred in north Texas in Sept. 1973, involving an armed confrontation, some citizens firing on a University of Texas investigative team seeking evidence of a wrecked saucer and, oddly enough, a buried "spaceman". The U. of T. team reportedly had in their possession certain specimens of an alloy from the craft. This incident is the central theme of a paper I have been assigned in one of my classes here at the University of Hawaii. I have to date had no response from other sources. Any and all assistance would be greatly appreciated.

A 40-YEAR-OLD ENCOUNTER

I am a man of 62 years who has emigrated from Bristol, England. My experience happened over 40 years ago, when I was attending Barton Hill School in Bristol. One afternoon one of my teachers was told by a boy that was sent by the headmaster to stop everything and get all the students into the playground to see the "airship". Boys ran into other classrooms and soon the school was emptied. I will always remember clearly going into the playground and seeing about 500 boys with their hands pointing up into the sky all shouting, "There's the 'airship'." I saw it cross the clear sky. It was very brilliant, as if the sun's rays was reflecting off it. About a year before that, I did see the dirigible R-101; it was flying very low and seemed to be just above the roofs of the houses. It was so different from the other, the real airship going very slow and making a loud chugging noise. It was going on its way to crash in France.

YES! ALIENS WALK AMONGST US -

BUT ARE YOU PREPARED TO MEET THEM?

DOCUMENTED EVIDENCE PROVES THE "SPACE BROTHERS" HAVE ASSISTED EARTHLINGS IN MANY WAYS. . . THEY HAVE LOCATED VAST TREASURES FOR DESERVING INDIVIDUALS — SOLVED PERSONAL PROBLEMS NO ONE ELSE COULD — CURED PHYSICAL AILMENTS — BEEN RESPONSIBLE FOR HEIGHTENING ESP ABILITIES IN HUMANS THEY HAVE CONTACTED — ANSWERED PRAYERS WHEN ALL SEEMED HOPELESS. IT'S POSSIBLE THEY MIGHT HELP YOU! READ ON AND SEE HOW.

Timothy Green Beckley, widely known as "Mr. UFO" has personally investigated hundreds of authentic UFO landings and contacts, and is keenly interested in the many beneficial aspects of communicating with the occupants of these technologically advanced craft that continue to come into our atmosphere on a daily basis.

DON'T BELIEVE THE LIES YOU ARE BEING TOLD

There has not been a decrease in the number of reports. Sightings continue to be made somewhere in the world every 24-hours. But there is an attempt being made to keep this vital information out of your hands!

His 15 years of researching the UFO phenomenon has convinced Tim Beckley that a lot can be learned by carefully studying the seemingly strange behavior patterns of these glowing objects that can out pace our fastest military jets and "disappear" in the twinkling of an eye.

Many of the best UFO related incidents have been kept from the public because the "powers that be" realize drastic changes will take place in society once we've "linked up" with the cosmos. Once open contact has been established, civilization as we know it will collapse and there will be a "New Age" on earth. All the contacts made by the "Space Brothers" with earthlings point to this startling conclusion.

Yes! The aliens have arrived, but before we can meet with them face-to-face certain changes will have to take place. Now, "Mr. UFO" invites you to help in the investigation of the greatest mystery of all time.

When you become a member of the UFO INVESTIGATORS LEAGUE for the next year you receive the following benefits:

- 1) A six-issue subscription to UFO REVIEW, the world's only flying saucer newspaper. Each issue is jammed with photos of extraterrestrial vehicles; stories about ordinary people who have established contact with UFOs; reports of strange creatures from time and space; weird encounters with the sinister Men in Black, and proof of an international cover-up.
- 2) Handsome membership card with your own personal ID number which gives you authority to officially investigate UFO cases in your area, and report your findings to our headquarters.
- 3) Beautiful UFO Investigators Certificate which you may hang with pride in your home.
- 4) UFO Investigators Field Manual which tells you how best to interrogate witnesses. Gives you the "important" questions to ask. And, what to look for to prove beyond a doubt, landing, or contact has taken place.

5) A subscription to the highly confidential "UFO SPOTTERS NEWSLETTER," which will contain "top-secret" information on previously unpublished incidents too "hot to handle" in our regular publication. Also, there will be a pen pal section, free "swap it" ads, photos of members, and MUCH MORE.

6) Three authentic photographs depicting spacecraft from another world.

7) The right to purchase all your UFO books and merchandise from our offices at a 10% discount below what the public pays.

8) Full authority to use membership credentials when applying for interviews on radio, TV, or with newspapers in your area.

9) The authority to set up, if you so desire, an affiliate or club, with permission to hold meetings in your home and report on your club's gatherings in our newsletter.

10) The right to renew your membership after the first year at a 25% discount.

Yes! The aliens have landed. Now we must get ready to meet with them openly. You must do your part and be ready for the experience of your lifetime! Join today and become part of a team that has its eyes on the sky and is looking toward tomorrow.

SEVEN SHIPS FROM STARS

beginning. They told him that one of their years was equal to 360 of ours. The sub Superior lived about 250 years, their years, and the humanoid lived about 275 of their years.

They talked about their own planet, called Exonar. It had six moons. They breathed pure oxygen. They told the boy that their planet was fourth from their sun, which they described as the Red Giant. There are eight planets in all. This Solar System is in the Milky Way, our own galaxy.

At that point in the conversation something popped into Robert's head, a sort of telepathic message that told him the stars referred to as the Red Giant was what astronomers call Beter Tucci.

The youth was told that the universe is in an elipical shape and that the Almighty is the supreme being for this universe. However, according to Robert's informants, there are billions of such universes far beyond counting.

"They told me that on this planet earth there is a gateway to another dimension," Robert said. "It fades in and out. They didn't tell me where it was, but I thought of the Bermuda Triangle. They said that on the other side of this dimension there are gateways leading to still other dimensions."

The boy was told that so far the aliens have been studying our people and have a base on the moon and another one on Saturn. "They'll return in the year 2011. I don't know why they selected that year, they didn't say, but they told me they would make themselves public at that time." Robert emphasized that this should not be interpreted to mean that they won't come back until then. He was told that they would continue to make voyages to earth as they have been doing in the past.

The aliens made no attempt to teach Robert the language, but they did tell him their alphabet phonetically. He wrote it down and memorized it: SRRUM KENTO PILTO RAZON TOWEL SHUN RUUN PALO TALO XAR NAPON SUMAY SUALO FLA BITO PEL INA INAY INEE INZON TRALO SUBALO IMALO TESS STESS.

According to the Superior, each letter represents a sentence from the Universal Bible, which is a monumental tome made up of the history of every planet in the universe. Robert read a passage which was translated for him by the Superior:

"First there was the void, then the void flashed and the Almighty was formed. The Almighty created life and life created more life. At first life was primitive, but gradually grew in intelligence. The most intelligent of all life became a Superior, who was one notch below the Almighty. The Superior taught what he had learned to the universe, but the beings in the universe destroyed themselves.

"Then the Superior found earth and taught the planet to be strong, but the earth was convulsed and was destroyed. So it started over again on its own with very little of its old knowledge.

"Earth will eventually teach the universe. The Superior will return and lead earth to the Almighty. The Almighty will welcome earth and the earth will learn to live with all of the universes. And we shall see we are all one."

Robert was told that the human beings on earth lost most of their old knowledge through a series of earthquakes, volcanoes and other mighty upheavals, but that we are now gaining it back slowly.

The Superior said that aliens are helping earthlings now without really revealing themselves. They do it through mental telepathy, using only those minds which are well trained and disciplined. They include scientists, statesmen and philosophers.

One of the most stunning aspects of the encounter was time itself. Robert felt that time had stopped during the interval when he was in a nose to nose confrontation with the aliens. To be more exact, the energy in the area around him and the space visitors had halted. Although the complicated profess was explained to Robert, his 13-year-old mind, he admitted, had not been able to absorb it.

Anyway, when he returned to the house his mother said he had come back rather quickly. Yet to Robert it seemed as though he had been gone for hours.

The Hardy family pose proudly for UFO REVIEW in their backyard in front of their pyramids, which they say were constructed with the assistance of the "Space Brothers," who wanted to help their son John. He was suffering from dyslexia, a malady which Earth doctors couldn't cure.

SECRETS OF PYRAMID POWER UNLOCKED AFTER UFO ENCOUNTER

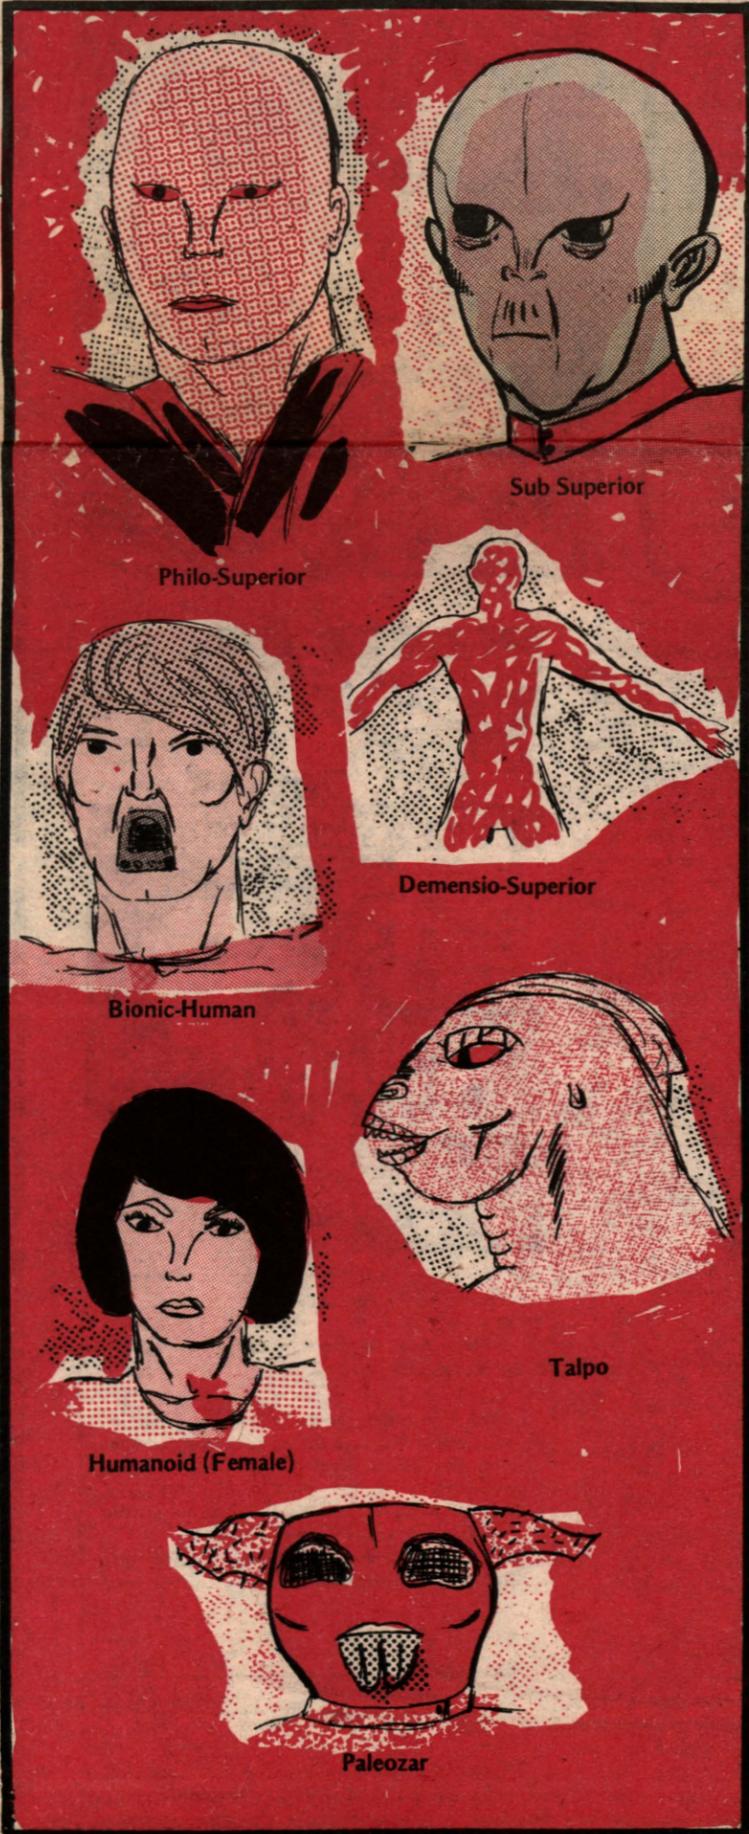

Some years ago Mary and Dean Hardy became aware that their youngest son, John, was not developing in a normal way. "We thought at first he was deaf. He seemed unable or unwilling to communicate, or relate to the world around him. His eye-hand coordination was poor. When he got to school and began dealing with written language, he was found to be dyslexic - he read and wrote backwards. Even dressing himself was difficult because he wanted to reverse everything." Dyslexia is not fully understood by doctors, but some authorities believe it is caused from brain damage or an emotional disturbance.

No treatment proved helpful until one time in October, 1968 the Hardy family was driving back home when they had an experience with a UFO. It was discovered that 45 minutes was missing from their lives, and that there was no rational way to account for what happened. From that moment on, every Sunday night during the approximate time that was lost, the Hardy's always found their back door unlocked and felt that invisible entities were coming into their home on these occasions.

Shortly thereafter Mary found herself sitting in a circular room on a light-emitting table. In front of her was a figure standing by a panel of lights. Later Dean Hardy began to have a series of pre-sleep visions. "I saw myself walking a road that split in two directions. At the fork stood some kind of humanoid figure in a monk's robe. I could not see his face. I asked him what I was to do about my son and he pointed down one of the roads at the end of which stood a pyramid."

On another night Mary asked that they show themselves, and almost immediately the living room lights flicked on and off.

Little by little they began to communicate with an entity called Kauhalan, who gave them specific instructions to begin building pyramids, which he said would not only cure their son but would be helpful to all of Mankind. Today, John Hardy no longer suffers from dyslexia, but their research with different types of pyramids continues on a large scale. Many UFO contactees have claimed encounters with alien beings, but the Hardy family has managed to obtain information which has proven beneficial. Much of what they have uncovered is printed in a self-published volume, PYRAMID ENERGY EXPLAINED, available from the authors in care of Delta-K-Products, RR No. 5, Dumont Lake, Allegan, Michigan 49010.
