UFOS-THE PLANETARY ALIGNMENT

If the predictions that many psychic have made regarding the line-up of the planets in December of 1982 come to pass, UFOs will definitely play an ever increasing role in the destiny of our planet.

Although there are -- as always -- disputes among experts as to exactly what will occur, it is said that there will be a drastic increase in the number (and magnitude) of earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, freak storms, and the possibility that the earth will go so far as to slip out of its current orbit.

We are NOT prophets of DOOMSDAY, but we think that people have the right to be warned of the many possibilities. It is said that UFOs -- at least some of them -- could be hovering around our planet in order to take off survivors should the WORST transpire. Already we have seen an alarming increase in the number of sightings taking place. It doesn't matter where you live UFOs are a fact of life.

- UFOs were recently seen darting around above Moscow. They even went so far as to hover above restricted air bases.

- In China they have become a topic of everyday conversation.

- Some towns in rural South America the residents are fearful about going out at night because they do not wish to run into these mysterious objects which they don't know much about.

- In England, the House of Lords has set up a special group in an attempt to get the Queen to release her findings.

- Strange underwater "subs" with no markings have repeatedly been sighted off the coast of Norway. They always disappear when chased.

- In Sweden there have been many abductions, and even the dreaded "Men-In-Black" have shown up to silence witnesses.

Here in the United States we have a tendency to isolate ourselves. If UFOs are not being sighted in our own neighborhood we begin to believe that they aren't being seen anywhere else either. This is TOTALLY wrong. UFO REVIEW has readers in over thirty countries and from the information we continue to gather, there is a WORLDWIDE flap going on at ALL times. In this issue we've tried to cover just a few of these startling events. But we need your help.

UFOS ARE REAL!
REPORTS SO BIZARRE THEY STAGGER THE IMAGINATION

ALIENS HAVE ARRIVED ON EARTH
Strange Creatures Roam Our Planet
In The Dead of Night

In the last few months reports of close encounters with strange alien beings have been increasing in number. A world-wide wave of bizarre face-to-face contacts with the occupants of flying saucers is now in progress. Daily newspapers don't print the news! TV and radio stations remain silent! Yet one dedicated researcher, Timothy Green Beckley, has been compiling data and is convinced that there will soon be a mass landing of extraterrestrial space ships on our planet. In STRANGE ENCOUNTERS - BIZARRE & EERIE CONTACT WITH FLYING SAUCER OCCUPANTS he writes about 10 never-before-told stories right out of the twilight zone of UFOlogy that will have you sitting on the edge of your seat as you turn each page -- perhaps just a little afraid to go to the next. This volume isn't meant for the weak hearted as it may shock your sensibility.

Here is a summary of what you will find within the pages of this amazing book:

- STRANGEST ENCOUNTER EVER - Mickie E. ★ of San Diego says she and her girlfriend experienced a night of unbelievable terror as they drove home. It all began with a group of lights and went on to include a dog-like creature with blazing red eyes; bizarre "tinkerbells" lights that touched them in the darkness of their stalled automobile; a "little boy" that materialized in the back seat; the stranger who offered them assistance only to vanish before their eyes; and weird beings who emerged from a landed space ship and walked across the highway carrying mysterious "tubes."

- UFO BEINGS DIRECT MY LIFE - Something happened at age six that makes Lorie R. ★ believe she is "not one of us." More and more we cannot deny the evidence that Earthlings are being possessed of supernatural powers due to a special "link" they have with a race of aliens from the cosmos.

- A UFO BASE 40 MILES FROM THE WHITE HOUSE - In 1952 UFO's buzzed the Capitol, and ever since UFO occurrences over Washington D.C. seem - on the surface - to be exceedingly rare. The truth is something else, however, as we explore the experiences of Martha L. ★ who insists that UFO's have established a base not more than 40 miles from the "Oval" Office. Like many other contactees of multiple sighters, Martha has a long history of UFO-related experiences dating

*Complete name given in text

- back to ghostly apparition that appeared in her home when she was a child. You will read about the dog that disappeared, the Bigfoot that breaks off tree branches, Martha's dreams, the silver-suited being with the "glowing belt" and much more.

- FLYING DISCS & GLOWING HAIR - At the girl's birth her doctor reported seeing a gleaming silvery object in the sky, traveling at great speed. Several times since, usually near her birthday, bright objects, round in shape appear and seemingly make her hair glow a peculiar color.

- THE STRANGE MR. TRUDEL - What makes some of us more adept than others at establishing contact with UFO-nauts? There are many contactees around today but only one Harold T. ★ At the space people's direction he goes outdoors with his camera and takes amazing photographs of UFO's so close up that you can see domes, landing gear, and windows. You almost feel you can reach out and touch them. Incredible photos published for the first time.

- THE MD & THE MIB - The doctor was so frightened by his unearthly visitor that he sat shivering at the table holding a loaded revolver, waiting for his family to return home. When the phone rang that night the skilled physician had no way of knowing that he would be in fear for his life. The "man" who made an object disappear from the doctor's hand and heralded a personal warning, the doctor knew he should take the stranger's advice and burn his UFO files.

- AN ALIEN IN OUR MIDST - It's said "they walk among us" and a Pittsburgh musician senses that this is probably true. Tony V. ★ can't help shivering when he thinks about the odd couple - the man was exceedingly thin and always dressed entirely in black, and the woman extraordinarily heavy - who liked to engage him in conversation about astronomy and UFO's. But when the man seemingly died and his body was examined, the rationally thinking drummer knew he had to do away with any preconceived ideas he might have had about life on other planets and the possibility that such life forms are traveling - and even living - here.

- SEX ONBOARD A SAUCER - We only spend a paragraph talking about the Brazilian farmer who had sexual relations on a landed saucer with an attractive UFO-naut. His encounter is well known. The number of sexually oriented abductions is increasing, however, and there seems to be a reason behind the physical union that is taking place between men and women of Earth and our friends from "out there." One New York woman tells of her "cosmic union" in great detail.

- MT. SHASTA - SPACE BASE

While the outer space aliens are seemingly keeping out of sight for the most part, there is possibly one place you can travel to and actually see and talk with beings who are much more advanced than we are. Mt. Shasta, a volcanic mountain in Northern California, is both beautiful and mysterious. Over the years many strange things have been seen in the vicinity of this 14,161-foot towering fortress of nature. Shasta is believed to be a landing port for extraterrestrial beings and we are given proof that these aliens have established contact with a race of "little people" who live inside earth.

SEARCHING FOR "FLYING TORTILLA" BASES IN MEXICO

Was the pyramid at Chichen Itza built with the assistance of extraterrestrials in ancient times?

Immediately upon leaving Merida, the capitol of the Yucatan, the jungle sprang up all around threatening to swallow us up. As twilight approached, we winded our way through several tiny villages where thatched-roofed huts without electricity made up the majority of the dwellings.

From time to time the Indian children, who still walk the streets barefooted, tried to sneak a peek into our van, but our only response was to kick up a cloud of dust into the air as we sped along the narrow dirt roads. From what we could see of the surroundings, it was becoming easier and easier to accept the various stories we'd heard that flying saucer bases exist in the more remote sections of this beautiful, abundantly green, Mexican state. Before leaving the U.S.A., we had been informed through our friendly space contacts that members of the "Ashtar Command" would be along to guide our journey, if not in a physical sense, at least psychically.

Over the past few months we'd repeatedly been told that the space people find the Yucatan to their liking, having established a foothold in the region centuries ago. Our source for this information is a personal friend who professes to have established a telepathic rapport with aliens. He is known to regularly engage in what is termed "space channeling," a process in which he goes into an altered state of consciousness and extraterrestrials actually take over his vocal chords and speak through him. From what he has told us, supposedly the aliens who frequently landed there, made contact with the early inhabitants of this area. In support of this theory, many of the legends of the Yucatan apparently do tell of superhuman Gods who descended from the heavens and helped the natives develop a highly technical culture which included the practical use of astronomy and perhaps even space travel.

As we drove on into the night, venturing further and further away from civilization, the stars began to twinkle above our heads with increasing brilliance, their presence seemingly having an eerie hypnotic effect on our mood. Using a bit of imagination - no doubt caused by the potential excitement of our adventure into what is still largely uncharted jungle - we began to see the stars as if they were in reality a floatilla of glittering space ships piloted by golden-haired ancient astronauts, who almost assuredly visited Mexico during the distant past.

From time to time our guide would utter a few words in Spanish. He indicated that we would arrive at Uxmal in time to view the nightly light and sound show that is put on for visitors who come from all over the world, to marvel at the towering structures that still stand in honor of the gods Quetzalcoatl and Kulkulcan.

STRANGE FORMATIONS

As our gaze reached further out into the blackened cosmos in search of anything unusual (like a UFO!) that might be hidden among the stars and planets, we recalled that Mexico has always had a rich UFO-related history; not only throughout antiquity, but even in more recent times. Over the years many exciting stories have passed through our hands involving face-to-face meetings with space beings south of the American boarder. Close encounters in Mexico are pretty common and are generally accepted by the populace -- especially by those Mexicans who have not been educated in the big cities where such things as folklore and UFOs are treated as being nothing more than superstitions. In fact, it was in Mexico where the first photographs were taken of an entire fleet of UFOs by no less an authority than a highly respected astronomer. That was nearly one hundred years ago, but the account is still a thrilling one to relate.

Senor Jose A.Y. Bonilla, director of the observatory at Zacatecas, was looking through his telescope at 8 A.M. on the 12th of August, 1883, when he noticed a luminous body passing in front of the sun. The trained astronomer was trying to observe sun spot activity from his observatory located two miles above sea level. He said the object - "a dark form" - circled the sun and it was then that he was able to capture its image on a photographic plate. A brief while later, Bonilla was shocked once again when additional objects of various shapes and sizes appeared in his telescope. "I had not recovered my surprise (from the first sighting) when the same phenomenon was repeated. And with such frequency that in the space of two hours, I counted 283 bodies crossing the solar disc. Little by little, however, clouds hindered the observation. I could not resume the observation till the sun crossed the meridian, and then only for 40 additional minutes."

Later on that same day he followed the activity of some 48 additional objects which traveled from north to south. The objects were black and would become luminous as they crossed in front of the sun. They passed in ones and twos and appeared to be round, or "stretched out" like a cigar. On film they took on an "irregular form." The following day, from 8 A.M. to nearly 10 o'clock, Bonilla saw a total of 116 more "mysterious bodies" from his observatory in Mexico.

MESSENGRERS FROM THE STARS

The Yucatan is steeped in mystery as well as history. Nobody knows exactly when they were built or who really constructed them -- there is no record to give clues, the Spanish conquerors made certain of that -- but the pyramids of this region testify to the fact that an advanced culture once existed here. We do know that the Mayan and the Toltecs worshipped feathered gods as well as the serpent, but elements of both these ancient cultures have sort of become intermingled over the centuries, and archaeologists admit that they are still attempting to sort out the true nature of civilization as it once existed in early Mexico.

We do know that there are a number of strange correlations between the pyramids in Mexico and those in Egypt. For example, the dimensions of the base of the "Pyramid of the Sun" at Teotihuacan are said to be exactly that of the Cheops pyramid, and its height is precisely half of the structure that sits near the Nile. We also know that the Mayans did possess more than the bare fundamentals of astronomy, going so far as to be able to calculate the rotation of Venus.

Of course, the many legends of the Yucatan are even more interesting than what has positively been proven. For example, tradition has it that the main pyramid at Chichen-Itza was built directly over a "device" which once traveled across the frontiers of space. Supposedly, it was left behind by the ancient astronauts and will one day in the future fly again. Another belief is that a princess whose hair was as fair as the sun was buried in a secret tomb in the Pyramid of the Moon in Teotihuacan. She is said to have come here from the lunar surface, but died before she could return.

Taking these stories into consideration, it's no wonder that writers such as Erich von Daniken have had a field day when it comes to examining the stone work to be found on many of the structures which stand in this region. There are any number of "helmeted" gods etched on the temples and "priests" with lightning bolts (laser weapons?) shooting out of their hands and bodies.

And what about space travel?

Perhaps best known is a carving found on the lid of a Mayan sarcophagus which dates to around 680 A.D. The sarcophagus was discovered under a large pyramid at Palenque, Mexico and according to von Daniken shows a priest seated at the controls of a rock-like device shooting off flames. Says the leading authority on ancient astronauts: "Here sits a human being with the upper part of his body bent forward like a racing motorcyclist; today any child would identify this vehicle as a rocket. It is pointed in front...widens out, and terminates at the tail in a darting flame...Our space traveler...is not only bent forward tensely; he is also looking intently at an apparatus hanging in front of his face," sort of a control panel, von Daniken asserts in quite serious a way.

DIRE WARNING FROM THE GODS

In addition to the Mayan traditions, the Aztecs made no bones about their belief in deities of a "higher order." In reality, it was their belief in such "gods" that caused their civilization eventually to come to ruin at the hands of the Spanish conquistadors. Passed down from generation to generation was a tale which told how the great "White God" who had visited their land and taught them much had gone away, but had promised to return one day. When the Aztecs saw the Spaniards with their white skin they assumed that it was their rightful legacy coming to pass. Their land was quickly overrun and their society totally raped of its culture.

Actually, one of the greatest UFO oriented stories from this period involves Montezuma, the emperor of the Aztecs. The story is hardly known to outsiders, but it is a tale that has been passed from lip to lip among Mexicans for many centuries.

According to the legend, Montezuma was warned that his empire would soon be wiped from the face of the earth. Thirteen years before Cortez arrived, Montezuma was paid a visit by the King of Texcoco, a neighboring kingdom. It was widely known that the King of Texcoco had sometime before made a pact with the gods which enabled him to see into the future.

The King of Texcoco told Montezuma the bad news, but said that if Montezuma wanted to escape they could go to a place where they would be safe. They would leave their temples behind and stay in the jungle where soon a chief known as Huemoc, who was thought to have been dead for 700 years, would come and transport them to Ciclaco, or "a house on the rabbit," which is interpreted as being the moon.

Apparently, Montezuma thought his friend had been bounced off one pyramid wall too many and went right on living it up as usual. He definitely had second thoughts a year later when in 1509 a fair skinned priest named Tzoncoztli, "The blond one," observed a strange object in the air throughout the entire night. It looked like "an arrow made out of multicolored clouds," and apparently the priest believed it had great significance because he ran off to tell Montezuma of his vision the very first thing the next morning.

Somewhat disturbed by the appearance of this large "arrow" amidst the stars, the Aztec King decided to confer with the King of Texcoco to see if he couldn't get a clearer picture in his mind about what this apparition really meant. The King of nearby Texcoco had a logical explanation. He said this was Huemoc's vehicle which was waiting for Montezuma to finish with his affairs of government and join him.

Time passed and as in any era even the great must pass into spirit. Advancing in age the King of Texcoco invited the nobles of his land to witness his death. Together they climbed a hill where the pyramid supposedly served as an observatory. After praying and meditating for several days, the king asked to be left alone. Adhering to their leaders' last request they left the hill immediately. Eventually, all signs of light were extinguished and the servants climbed back up the hill to recover the king's body.

He was gone!
The King of Texcoco had vanished without a trace. It has been reported that Montezuma was so frightened and shocked by the disappearance of his ally that simulated mock funerals were conducted and the entire matter kept a closely guarded secret from everyone.

THE TALKING ROCK

We have it on good authority that Montezuma received several warnings to be on the look out for those who would not be satisfied until they conquered his people.

To the south of where Montezuma established his empire, there was a most majestic rock which the ruler wanted very much to have as a center stone in his courtyard. Because of its tremendous size, he realized that it would take many men to cart it the required distance to his palace. In order to accomplish the deed he ordered the mobilization of laborers from eight villages. Almost from the start they were frightened of the power this rock seemed to possess. At times it was so heavy that it broke cables, planks and anything being used to haul it. At other times it would become so light that four men could carry it without a great deal of effort.

Eventually, the rock was brought to Montezuma and apparently he too became spooked by it. According to legend the rock began to speak. It said that it did not want to stay in Mexico because a disaster was going to occur. Montezuma was stubborn and he threatened the laborers who would not fulfill their duty, with death. The terrified took advantage of the moment when the stone was light and moved it on their own. They built a special bridge made out of cedar logs to be able to move it to the island which was the heart of the city. Half-way over the bridge the rock became heavy and the bridge collapsed. Not even the divers were able to find it after that. Several days later it was found with its four corners cracked, at the same precise spot where it had originally rested.

Montezuma must have gotten the fear of god thrown into him, as from then on he is said to have spent a good portion of his time scanning the sky from one of the terraces of his palace. One afternoon he saw a "white cloud" rise up into the sky. He knew it was a considerable distance away and this was confirmed the next day, when a farmer sought permission to see the King of Mexico to tell him the details of his unusual experience. The farmer said he had been tending his land near Coat-epec when a "powerful eagle" grabbed him by the hair and lifted him high up into the air. He was put into a dark cave. Then someone took him by the hand and led him into a room where a great and powerful man greeted him and asked him to sit down.

The man gave the farmer flowers to smell and a pipe to smoke. Later he was told to look into space and he saw Montezuma asleep. Then the man ordered the farmer to burn the king on the thigh with his pipe. When Mexico's ruler did not even budge the strange figure told the farmer that this was how oblivious Montezuma was to the potential loss of his kingdom. In a vision the farmer supposedly saw by whom and by what means the loss was to occur. Before leaving, he was ordered to go to Montezuma and tell him what he had seen. Then the "eagle" returned him to the field from which he had been abducted.

After hearing the story Montezuma was on the verge of hysterics. He had the man thrown into a dungeon which he had sealed with lime to guard the secret which had been entrusted to him. It was easy to prove that the farmer was not telling a tall tale. He had seen the "white cloud" and there was a burn on his thigh which he didn't know how he had gotten it.

After that incident just before sunset every evening, Montezuma was tortured by the vision of a large luminous pyramid. The people of his kingdom also saw it and were extremely frightened. Montezuma believed that it might mean one last offer of salvation made by Huemoc, but he didn't know what to do about it. He eventually decided to communicate with the gods.

To do this he used information obtained from the King of Texcoco. Montezuma sent his ambassadors to the deep cave. No one today supposedly knows the whereabouts of this subterranean cave,

Youth's Incredible Healing Powers Attributed To Strange Other-Worldly "Dream"

In issue ten of UFO REVIEW we carried an extensive interview with researcher and world traveler Bill Cox. Among the topics covered were the "Walk-Ins" -- otherwise ordinary humans who possess supernormal powers. Cox recently came into contact with several of these "gifted" individuals while in Brazil, all of whom now maintain that extraterrestrial beings have taken them over and are sharing their physical bodies in an attempt to assist in the spiritual development of the human race.

Since this past issue, several other similar cases have come to our attention. A story involving a 14 year old boy who has incredible healing abilities has just reached us from the town of Torrente, Spain.

Up until three years ago, Francisco Ramon Jimenez was so sick that he couldn't go to school and had to have a tutor come to his home every day. A malady from birth put him in a wheelchair and the doctors had told his parents that he might never be able to walk very well again.

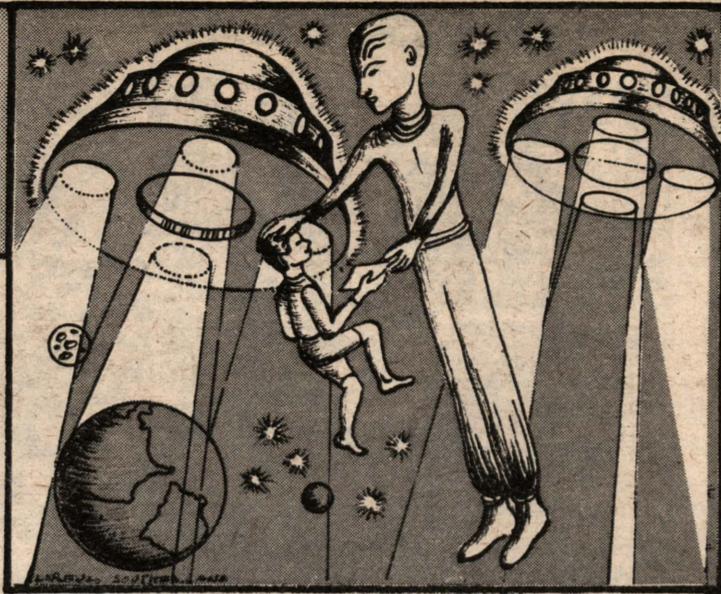

It was while he was in the hospital undergoing an operation at the age of eleven that all of this changed. While under surgery Paquito, as his family and friends call him, had a very unusual dream in which he made contact with outer space aliens.

"I had a dream about extraterrestrials," he now declares to anyone who will listen to his story. "In the dream there was an open grassy field where I was walking. There was a tree in front of me and a large projecting root. I tripped on the root and my mind began to spin. Soon I was moving away from the earth and there were two very bright saucers approaching me. A man got out of one of them and gave me a piece of paper and told me what I was supposed to do for the good of humanity."

Paquito will not go into details as to what was on the slip of paper he was handed, but he does say that the alien whom he met still comes to visit him in his house. "I go to his ship every night. He is tall, and very pleasant and has taught me how to cure people who are very sick. He has given me a special energy which I am to use for the good of all."

News stories published in local papers tell how up to 500 ailing and diseased individuals visit him at home each and every week. For the most part he treats them with the laying on of hands and also recommends natural remedies such as massages, baths and exercise. He says that when he is old enough he would like to go to college and become a doctor.

Paquito does not charge a fee for his work because he is fearful that he may lose his power. He says the alien he is in contact with comes from Ganymede (a moon of Jupiter) and on his visits "he recharges my batteries so that I can do my healings."

Many contactees have, since their initial experiences, gone on to become psychic healers, and it is a trend that seems to be increasing.

STRANGE ENCOUNTERS

Turkish Shepherd Contacting Spacemen For Thirty Years

A Turkish shepherd named Behcet Oncal, says he has been in touch with aliens for three decades. Oncal's testimony was recently brought to our attention by the "Space Phenomena Research Group" with whom we correspond in Istanbul, Turkey.

Behcet was only fifteen when his initial encounter transpired. He was herding sheep near his home village of Eski Gumus. He had stopped for lunch and while his herd was grazing he caught sight of a beam of light which struck a nearby pile of rocks.

"An awesome feeling like a thousand pins sticking into my limbs overcame my entire body," the shepherd recalls.

Out of a bullet-shaped cone of light three figures emerged. One of them was a woman, the other two were men. The beings told him that they were visitors from another world and would do him no harm. "They wouldn't tell me where they came from," the shepherd swears, "but they did say I would be seeing them quite frequently and that they would be transmitting pictures to me."

Over the years, the aliens have become less and less secretive, or so it would seem. They have even gone so far as to allow Behcet to draw a map of their solar system. According to Behcet Oncal the map "includes invisible worlds that cannot be seen with the naked eye unless it is exposed to an apparatus which can split the colors. The spacemen told me a lot about space in the past thirty years and mentioned that "Kur" is considered to be the center of the universe." The shepherd further explained that "the universe was developed by an explosion of the Kur center." Also mentioned were the names of other solar systems such as "Morsanit" and "Lakit."

MIB Take To Rock Music

Who would ever think that a rock music band would make a record about the infamous Men in Black? Well a British group called the Stranglers have come out with an LP titled "The Gospel According to the Men in Black." Frequent UFO REVIEW contributor UFOlogist Antonio Huneeus caught a performance by the group at a New York disco and reports that their UFO-inspired songs include "Just Like Nothing on Earth," and "The Second Coming."

Huneeus talked to the musicians who quite fascinatingly dress all in black for their performances, and found out the drummer who is known as Jet Black, had seen a UFO which got the band interested in the subject.

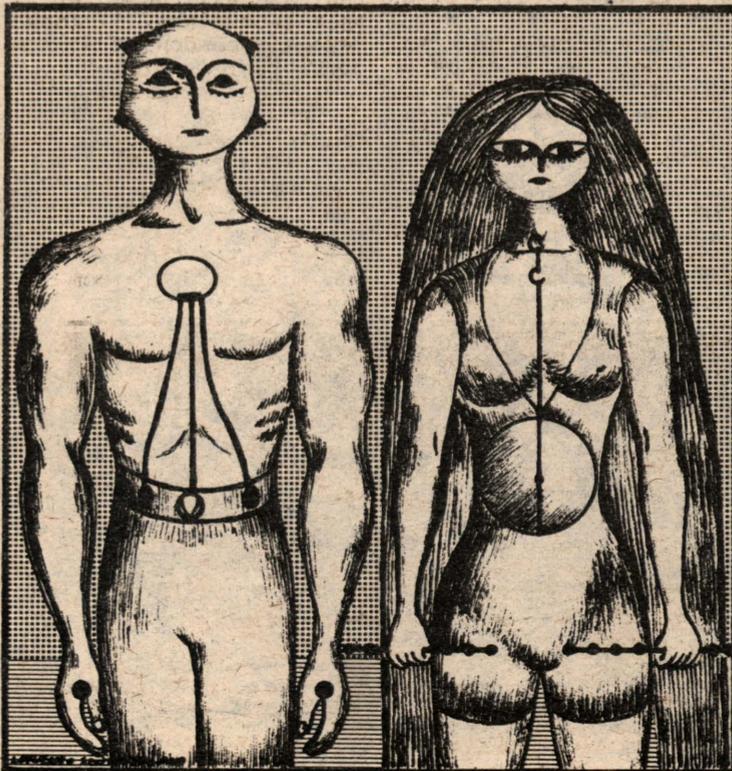

"One night I saw this light coming near me. It certainly was no airplane, helicopter or natural phenomena. I don't know what it was."

Huneeus points out that the British band added something a little extra to their act.

"They had a 'girl in black' dancing on the stage throughout the performance. Though she was quite spacy, she obviously looked much better than the tricksters who have molested John Keel as well as other researchers," he rightly concluded his report.

Things That Go "Bump In The Night" Still Evident In Warminster

Couple Convinced UFOS Here To Help Mankind

After nearly two decades UFOs can still be seen from vantage points just outside of Warminster, England, a town of nearly 15,000 located within 25 miles of the mysterious Stonehenge on Salisbury Plain.

Recently, while on a tour of England (which included a speaking engagement at the House of Lords - more next issue on this), the editor of the UFO REVIEW, Timothy Green Beckley, stopped by to see Arthur Shuttlewood, author of UFO PROPHECY and UFOS: VISIONS OF A NEW AGE. A serious health setback had prevented the famed British researcher from spending any appreciable amount of time skywatching. In years past, Shuttlewood had catalogued something like 500 UFO sightings in the vicinity of Warminster. Skeptics -- mainly those who stayed at home and never traveled to the sight of these events -- stated repeatedly their opinions that Shuttlewood and company had merely been watching conventional aircraft and being in a highly excittransparent UFO beings whom he encountered several times in the vicinity of Cradle Hill.

At about 8:30 on the night in question, Beckley, Shuttlewood, and Strong stood on the hill and signaled to a bright object overhead. "If I hadn't seen it with my own eyes I might not have believed it," confesses Beckley. "Each time we flashed our searchlight at the light

It was about a half hour later as he was getting ready for bed, when a strange compulsion came over him and he went to the window and pulled aside the curtains. There swinging from side to side in the heavens like the hands of a grandfather's clock was a bright object. Immediately Bishop got dressed and went out into the yard. He stood in his garden for 40 minutes during which time the UFO made several passes. Bishop grabbed his camera at one point and snapped the shutter several times. Unfortunately only one photo came out, but luckily it is a very dramatic one -- certainly one of the best UFO pictures taken to date.

A Corte Madera, Calif. couple claim that their lives have been changed following not one, but two encounters with an unidentified object that passed over their home recently.

"Since the first sighting our lives have gone through changes," Lori Morgan told a reporter for the San Rafael Independent Journal. "It seems our lives have been put in some synchronicity. I know what my job is -- to prepare people for the new approaching age," added Jerry Morgan.

"The first UFO we saw was a really close encounter," Mrs. Morgan said. Looking out the window, she saw a strange object with two bright lights hovering very near the ground. The craft was "huge," and the witness felt she was being spied upon. "I was totally frightened...I was totally in a panic."

For a period of time she continued to look at the UFO and then she called for her husband to come have a look. He ran outside to examine it more closely. "It was about the size of two intersections and it had two square headlights on it," he explained. "The headlights were focused right above the house we live in. At the time I thought it might have been a helicopter, but there was no sound coming from it. It hovered and then slowly, at about seven miles an hour, it came at us and then went over our heads. The feeling we got when this thing went over I can't even put into words. I was standing there stark naked looking up at this thing and I wasn't scared."

Though Mrs. Morgan admits that "consciously I can't say I had any kind of communication," she did get "a kind of intuitive knowing," about the UFO. "I knew whoever was in there wasn't to do me any harm." To her the first sighting "was kind of surrealistic." while a second incident some months later was "just a physical sighting."

An "inner awareness" has told Lori Morgan that that she will have further encounters. "I know beyond a shadow of a doubt that it will be back," she concedes.

And as for their reason for visiting earth: both Mr. and Mrs. Morgan now feel that creatures from other planets are very interested in helping us out here on earth, the third planet from the sun. ●

Well, in order to form his own opinion, editor Beckley spent several hours atop the copse on Cradle Hill where many a close encounter has supposedly taken place over the years. He was accompanied on November 7th by the noted writer and Bob Strong, formerly with the Royal Air Force. Strong has dozens of seemingly authentic photos he's taken which show the various forms most often reported -- cigar-shaped ships, discs, and peculiar "light formations" in the evening sky. Strong has even met up with it would respond by moving back and forth or doing a loop in the sky." Beckley adds that the object seemed to be under intelligent control. "It's as if it could see us and was letting us know that our effort to establish contact was being responded to." Unfortunately, the object was not down low enough to make out any detail. "But, from the way it behaved and put on a show for us, I'd be hard pressed to come up with a conventional explanation," Beckley states. "To me it felt as if an unseen hand was working some invisible strings in the sky which were attached to this craft. It's move-

Beckley confesses that it's his first really good sighting since the age of ten. "Strange things still go on in Warminster. I should know I saw a UFO with my own eyes." Also present was Mrs. Eva Alcock, a subscriber from Stoke-on-Trent, England. ●

First Time Revealed:

THE SHOCKING FACTS BEHIND THE PHILADELPHIA EXPERIMENT AND THE ROSWELL INCIDENT

An Exclusive Interview With Best Selling Author, William Moore

QUESTION: We'd like to delve a little into some of the things which have transpired since the two books you co-authored with Charles Berlitz were originally released. Bill, you seem like a rather conservative individual...how did you become interested in UFOs in the first place, and how did you come to work on these rather controversial books?

WM. MOORE: Conservative? May your tongue rot and fall out. May worse things than that happen to you which are unspeakable. How did I get started...I don't know...How the hell did you get started?

QUESTION: I'm supposed to be interviewing you, Bill.

WM. MOORE: Oh, I see. I guess it goes back to the middle 1950's, I was not even in high school and I was taking night courses at the Planetarium in Pittsburgh for astronomy. I was a member of the Amateur Astronomers Association. We had 80 to 100 members and 25% of them were high school students. We held meetings once a month, and when we could, we had a guest speaker. Occasionally the speaker had something to say about flying saucers which was very controversial at the time. It was through speakers such as Morris Jessup and Frank Edwards, that I began reading more about the subject of UFOs.

In the 1960's I did some investigative field work for the NICAP organization. I became quite active during 1974. At this time I started to do research on the Philadelphia Experiment, and have become a full-time researcher.

QUESTION: Why did you pick the Philadelphia Experiment to do research on?

WM. MOORE: Well, I was interested in trying to draw a line between fact and fiction. I was also looking for a story which had never had a full investigation and had a high probability of being a hoax, if not, some kind of elaboration. The Philadelphia Experiment which appeared in an outlived form in 1965 seemed too fantastic to be true. So I picked it and I was going to call it the Anatomy of a Hoax.

I began working on it, peeling away layer upon layer, hoping to uncover embellishments and get down to what was probably a small grain of truth. It was during this investigation that more and more things kept turning up that suggested that there was even more to the story than other people had found. Documents were missing when they should have been there. People who should have known something about the story, didn't or wouldn't say.

QUESTION: How did you track these people down?

WM. MOORE: A variety of ways. It depends on who you are looking for and why. There are all kinds of ways to track people down.

QUESTION: So you went into this, figuring it was a hoax and you came out finding there was a lot more to this than one was led to believe.

WM. MOORE: Yes, I think there was. I think I have gotten to the bottom of it now. I didn't have this kind of information in 1979 when the book came out but I think that now I have gotten to the bottom of the story and it has left some questions which are every bit as strange and unusual as when we started. Very certainly there was an experiment. They used methods which were very strange especially for 1943. There were also problems. Immediately there were two deaths involved with the experiment, and a few others that may have been connected with it. The suggestion that Carlos Allende knew anything of value has always been the sticky point. Everyone who read about the Philadelphia Experiment, comes to the conclusion that if we could only find Carlos Allende we could get to the bottom of the story. It is obvious that he knows more than he is writing so he must know all the answers. And while he is mysterious and wild-eyed, he doesn't have all the answers. He is an accrument to the story and not anything essential to solving it. He picked it up secondhand in a bar-room during the 1940's and used it in his letters to Jessup for his own purposes. He's something of an eccentric to say the least. He is beyond any kind of a solution to the story and is not worth your trouble. In fact he is totally incoherent most of the time now anyway. He wanders around, has been in and out of hospitals around the country. He doesn't like people so he is mysterious by design. He doesn't want anyone to exploit him or make money from the story. Well, I did find him and have correspondences by him ranging from poison pen letters to annotated books and articles, none of which is much value so we moved on to other sources which were not Allende inspired. Are there people out there who have not read Allende's letters to Jessup, or those who are not influenced and who tell the same story or another story of the experiment? If so, then we have a pretty good possibility that it did happen and we could pursue it through non-Allende sources. We have found these sources. There was an experiment but they were not interested in invisibility.

QUESTION: What was the purpose of the experiment?

William L. Moore is the co-author (with Charles Berlitz) of two controversial books on the unexplained -- The Philadelphia Experiment, and The Roswell Incident, both of which have become best sellers. He is a former teacher turned full time journalist living in Arizona.

WM. MOORE: Radar. They were interested in finding out how to camouflage ships and aircraft against detection, nighttime and fog conditions.

QUESTION: But did they make the vessel disappear?

WM. MOORE: Only on the radar scope.

QUESTION: How about the story that the men were made invisible.

WM. MOORE: That is explainable in the context of what actually happened. It was a project designed to test the capability of German radar. German radar was important because we were at war with Germany and they were interested in finding ways to camouflage detection against German radar. The key word is German radar. It seems that the Germans were interested in long wave radar whereas we had short wave radar. Basically there are different properties exhibited by long wave radar, one of which is the index of refraction. Long wave radar bounces off almost anything. It is reflected and refracted severely by a variety of things. As you get an increasing long wave toward UHF and microwave, it has a tendency to go right through. It doesn't bounce around. It goes straight through most things that are not solid. Of course, radar waves do bounce off metallic solid objects which is the purpose of detecting air traffic by radar; you send out a signal and it bounces back at you. But German long wave was a different story. The idea came up that it was possible to defend against detection by them. That is one reason why we don't use long range radar. The principle deals with the spectrum of a prism; stating that white light, as it passes through glass, will be affected differently depending on the wave length of the light and that if the color red is refracted to a greater angle than the color violet, it splits the light into its various wave lengths by the refraction index. This can be done with radio which is an extension of the spectrum.

The idea was to provide a field around the ship which would partially ionize the air, cause a static, which was felt under laboratory tests. This would refract long wave radar and make whatever was behind this field undetectable because the radar wave would pass right on through at a refracted angle and miss the ship. Objects such as ships are very long and there was the potential of using the entire metallic pole of the ship as antennae.

QUESTION: Why would this be kept a secret for so many years?

WM. MOORE: First of all, to get back to the effects which were the problems of '43 technology, they could not explain those effects. They were getting effects of people saying they had disappeared, that they were in a fog, or people saying they had just been in the lower boat and they didn't know how they got there. Some said they had just walked through the walls. Others stated that they were physically moved suddenly, just thrown against things, and in two cases the result was death. They could not understand what in the world it was. They also were getting optical mirages as effects, at certain angles, so that parts of the ship seemed to disappear from the point of view of people standing at the shore looking at it. Looking at the right angle, they got a mirage effect, part of the ship disappeared.

QUESTION: So, then what you are saying is that the experiment went a lot further than the Navy thought it would.

WM. MOORE: It did.. They got effects they could not understand and in terms of the physics at the time, they were not explainable. Now we know that electromagnetic radiation in various frequencies, in some cases long wave low frequency, is able to influence the operation of the human mind, which is essentially an electro chemical system operating in a closed circuit. If you can interfere with the impulses of the nerves by means of external electromagnetic radiation which penetrates the skull, then you can produce all kinds of effects with the human mind. Some of these which have been demonstrated are loss of image vision; a person suddenly seeing everything is dissolved into a gray fog, no ability to detect images. It interferes with the optic nerve operation. There are also hallucinations, hypnotic effects, trance-like effects, the convulsion effect where people convulse and are thrown right off their feet.

QUESTION: Isn't this very similar to people who get very close to UFOs on the ground?

WM. MOORE: Sometimes you get the same kind of effect and probably for the same reason. But all of the effects we are seeing are explainable in terms of physical effects on the human brain. A lot of work is being done now in this country and in the Soviet Union to see what can be done to control human minds; mind control. They are using the same kind of technique on a much more controlled scale.

Question: So that is the reason for the top secret attitude?

WM. MOORE: Oh yes, of course. To begin with, in wartime any experiment is automatically secret because you can't tell your friends without telling your enemies. Anything done during World War II was classified. Now anything which was done and could not be explained but appeared to have very severe and frightening influences on the human mind, you certainly don't want to hand over to your enemies. There is fear that they will turn something loose like that on you. Imagine something like that happening to a battalion of soldiers on a battlefield.

QUESTION: Have you talked to anyone since that book came out who was a part of the experiment?

WM. MOORE: Yes, we have. In fact our very early research has since been followed up in the paperback version with new material not in the hardcover edition. It deals with information supplied by a Mr. Silverman who was actually there and was effected by all this and also with continuing research we found some more people who were able to help us explain it from a scientific point of view. So we feel that we have it solved from the actual physical point of view. There was no teleportation but rather it was a mental effect. The ship had been to Norfolk ten days earlier. Some of the men who had been at the dock, picked up electronic equipment, generators and such which could not be shipped up to Philadelphia because they did not have high enough priority and they needed the equipment. They had thirty days to get the material and so they simply sent the ship down there and they picked it up.

Some of the men on the ship, while the experiment was performed, suddenly thought that they were back in Norfolk. They couldn't understand how they had gotten there. The explanation was that the electromagnetic effect was such that it took them back in time hypnotically.

Question: Have you confronted the Navy with any of this data?

WM. MOORE: No, not yet. I don't know if it would be profitable to do so because I don't know if you could get an admission out of them. There are also implications for Project Stove which was publicized during the Carter campaign, the invisible aircraft thing. The idea of radar invisibility which led up to the Philadelphia Experiment was very interesting from the military standpoint because if we could do this we could avoid detection, no matter who was doing the detecting.

There is one thing which makes Stove different from Philadelphia. In the Philadelphia we were trying to fail German radar which is long wave stuff and you do that quite differently than you would after the war when the radar we were interested in was Russian and they were using short wave radar as we were. So what might have worked for long wave radar would not work for the Russian short wave. They had to find a way to alter the angle of refraction so as to produce the same effect with shorter wave lengths. We couldn't refract them enough and an entirely new angle had to be pursued and I think that is the angle of which we have seen the tip of the iceberg.

We seem to still be interested in doing the same thing and clearly we have made some progress in doing so.

QUESTION: What is interesting is that in the 1950's, concerning the case of the crashed saucers which you have also investigated, there was evidence that our radars were negatively effecting these ships and causing them to crash. Did you ever find anything on that?

WM. MOORE: The sources for the story are not reliable. The effect of incoming radar signals is so negligible that I don't think they could effect any kind of power plant. But of course who is to say for sure. If we can assume that these crafts are using some kind of electromagnetic propulsion, ionizing the air, and the evidence seems to indicate that it is a good possibility; the incoming radar signals could hardly be enough to do anything. Certainly there is an advantage to detecting your opponents radar, if they are beaming it at you. You would certainly want to know this so you do anything you can to detect their radar. It is very common for us to do this, but the source for this information, that radar effected these saucers is not what I would consider reliable.

QUESTION: Well what did cause the crashes? How many cases do you feel exist now?

WM. MOORE: Well, I can only document the Roswell case. I can suggest that the Laredo case in 1949 has some aspects of it that need further investigation and indicate that there may be something there—something happened but it was a saucer crash that I have never been able to authenticate in any way. I think there has been a lot of beclouding of the issue by these recent photos that have appeared. They have yet to show that they are connected to the case.

QUESTION: If these photographs are not evidence, is there any real hardcore evidence that these crashes actually took place?

WM. MOORE: Let's say crash rather than crashes because there is not enough evidence that there were any others except hearsay. This evidence hasn't held up under any investigation that I have done and I have tried to track down the other cases and they either came to a dead end or they are a misrepresentation of evidence which could be interpreted in other ways. The Roswell case is the only one which has any evidence to support it up to this point in time. The only evidence for it is the collaborated testimony of 70 people who contributed to it. There were twenty-four first hand experiences. The photographs of Major Marsal holding what looks like tinfoil in front of news-cameras was collaborated by four other people who also said it was not tinfoil. All the properties were highly unusual. Several high ranking military people also handled it and said it was not tinfoil. In one case a Brigadier General said it wasn't tinfoil and said that the story about it being pieces of wreckage of a weather balloon with a radar target attached, was a concoction to get the press off their backs. So that is all of the evidence there is at this time in the hands of private researchers and the public. There is every indication that the government has more evidence, a great deal of it being bits of wreckage from the ship itself and also the bodies of creatures that were on board.

QUESTION: Where were the bodies and the parts of the crashed disc eventually taken to?

WM. MOORE: I don't know that we will ever know beyond the realm of hearsay. I have heard from three different people who are reliable three different things.

The dates for these are considerably distant in time. One was 1949, another being 1962 and the last being 1980. It is possible that they were all at such places. I'm not giving out the specific dates or places, because if I did I would be polluting the field so to speak and someone who comes to me and says they were at location X, Y and Z could have literally picked it up out of the air from existing stories.

Question: Have you talked to anyone who actually claimed to have examined the bodies, any medical examiner?

WM. MOORE: Not medical people, no. I talked to one person who says he was there and physically handled the bodies.

QUESTION: Where was he when he physically handled the bodies?

WM. MOORE: On the crash site in New Mexico. He said that they were shipped by aircraft and without any special precaution. They were wrapped up in canvas and shipped by air to California. He doesn't know what happened to them when they got there. He even thought that this destination was only a stopping point and that they were not there very long. They could have just been prepared, embalmed etc., in California and flown back to Wright Patterson. We don't know.

QUESTION: What did these things look like?

WM. MOORE: The description of them is the basic description of your basic alien. They were 3 to 4½ feet and about 90 to 110 pounds. They had large heads with widely spaced eyes, narrow lips. For their nose and ears they only had protrusions which looked like a small bump with the appropriate passages. Instead of hands with the normal five fingers they had only four. As to their manner of dress, they would be wearing what appeared to be a one piece outfit, described both as silk or nylon.

QUESTION: How many occupants were there on board the ship?

WM. MOORE: Now that depends on who you talk to. Six to eight I think. The discrepancies come from the fact that some people had only seen what was on the ground and never got close enough to see anything else. I got a few descriptions of the crash sites from a number of people. One had said there were six occupants, another who said he handled the bodies had seen eight; two were still inside the ship.

QUESTION: Were the bodies badly burned?

WM. MOORE: They were badly burned around the nose and throat, the passages. The indication from an immediate examination was what they had died from inhaling hot or poisonous toxic gases. That is certainly possible -- there was a burned area on the ground.

QUESTION: Was there any work done on their internal organs?

WM. MOORE: None that I could fully document. The only thing I have is an account given to me by a man who is actively employed as an agent of the government. He said that he has access to a documented report, highly classified, and he gave me some details of what he saw in there. Just very briefly: the digestive tract was functional, but more simplistic than ours; a single heart-lung combination organ; a single kidney-bladder combination, and a brain with about the same size and weight as a human brain, but with more convolutions in it. This is the story that goes back quite a ways. I've heard it repeated as long as ten years ago, but there is never any reliable evidence. Robert Carr from Florida made a similar statement in the early 1970's. There are certain details in this report which if someone else were able to repeat the details to me, I would be convinced that they had seen the same document and were telling the truth. I have never released details as to the full contents of this report.

QUESTION: What additional information have you received since the Roswell Incident was published which would lead additional weight to this?

WM. MOORE: Many different angles of things. Additional collaborative testimony from other people who essentially tell the same story you already heard. Also indication from those who were in close range to the UFO sighting over the same area as the crash. This was earlier that summer which would tell us that there was UFO activity in that area. But no photos, nothing of that sort. There is one photo in the book, of an alien being led off alive by a couple of Army people of which we knew nothing about when we published the book. We published it with the disclaimer that we couldn't say anything negative or positive about it. All we knew was that it was found in the F.B.I. files dating from 1950. That photo has since been proven a hoax, and there is no doubt that it is a hoax from Germany involving a photographer and his five year old son and some military people; even had the cooperation of the base commander over there to produce the photo and it was done as an April fools joke. There is a lot more circumstantial material on the photographer who photographed the craft while on the ground. So far there is nothing to indicate that it is false, and nothing to indicate that it is true. We now have proof that he was a photographer and was involved in all kinds of experimental things. He died in 1976 at the age of 90. I don't know if we will ever get to the bottom of it.

A fellow UFOlogist, Gray Barker, wrote about this man, Baron Von Poppon, but unfortunately now even most of his friends are deceased. Those who are still living, didn't seem to know anything about this part of his life.

We are still after documents that NASA still has. They are UFO related documents and whether they are related to the Roswell Incident or not, we don't know. The case is now before an appeals court in Washington D.C. and time will tell.

QUESTION: What about the rumors we've been hearing that the Air Force actually had a branch whose duty it was to rush to the scene of these crashes?

WM. MOORE: That was not much of a rumor, it was a collaborated testimony by people who served with units of the Air Force and had knowledge that there was such a group. Keep in mind that there was a difference between what was said by those people and what was interpreted from those statements. They said we were aware of the existence of such a unit. There was no case that stated that the unit was called out.

QUESTION: They were supposedly called the Blue Brigade .

WM. MOORE: Well I heard a variety of names given to them. They were, I forget just what unit. We do have a unit number on them somewhere. They did exist.

QUESTION: Have you heard of any recent crashes; are they still going on?

WM. MOORE: No, I haven't heard anything that I would call a crash story that goes later than the 1940's.

QUESTION: What are we going to need to crack this open?

WM. MOORE: A lot more research I think. Going after the facts and seeing if we can substantiate the 1947 event and then being able to produce people and go into court. We could then make a case against one or more of the intelligence agents who we suspect of holding the documents. What we have to do is to produce enough first hand witnesses to build a substantial court case, produce enough documented evidence, enough circumstantial evidence that we could go into court and say based upon all evidence, that there should be reason to believe that there are documents in the possession of the agencies and that they should be released. And if they say they don't have such documents, we could produce people who say they must have .

QUESTION: Now that you have done the Philadelphia Experiment and the Roswell Incident, what are you heading into now?

WM. MOORE: Well, there are a few things. A book with Stan Friedman which is not a "prove that they are real" book but instead a "now that we have accepted that they are real where do we go from here" book. I think there is a need for this. I am also working on a non-UFO piece. It deals with flight in the 19th century, an historical piece of work. I have ideas for a few other works, that are just ideas and not quite substantial yet.

QUESTION: One last question. Do you know where they are coming from? What does this all mean? Why are they here?

WM. MOORE: Oh, I don't know. I think that these questions should be dealt with after we have established that they are here. As to where they are coming from, you can take your pick. Certainly there is the star map evidence from the Betty and Barney Hill case which would say the Reticuli System. There has been evidence that it is not the Reticuli System because they both appear to be very close double stars which may or may not rule out the possibility of planets. So that has to be investigated further. I don't think it matters where they are coming from. The point is that they are not coming from here. The implications involved is that we better start dealing with this as a planet rather than individual societies. As to why they are here, there are any number of reasons as to why they could be here. Anyone of which could be the facts depending upon your point of view but none of which we could substantiate.

There are a lot of unsubstantiated tales of people claiming contact with aliens, but usually the evidence comes apart at the seams.

As to why they are here, I'm sure they have their own reasons. They could be here for self defense. That's Stan Friedman's theory; that they are interested in self preservation. We are ready to jump out to the stars with all of our toys and gadgets. I think that would be reason enough for them to keep an eye on us so they would be prepared. This could be the honeymoon capital of this end of the galaxy. They could be interested in obtaining heavy metals from this planet. We may be a way-station, a place where they stop, pick up a little water and dump the refuse. In the midst of our own litter, we wouldn't even notice. One other idea is that perhaps they want to stop us from blowing ourselves up. We could be their only source of Uranium and it would ruin them if we destroyed this world. It would literally ruin their economy. I mean the hell with us, but their economy is something they would really be worried about. ●

In 1968 we, Mary and Dean Hardy, had an experience with a U.F.O., during which we were told to build our own pyramid. Since that time we have learned that the pyramid is an interdimensional communication device in which humanity can learn to overcome time and space.

We also sell blueprints on how to build these special pyramids. For free information on ordering blueprints or book, write to:

HUMAN ABDUCTIONS AND THE APPEARANCE

SWEDISH UFO MYSTERY DEEPENS

Art by Carol Ann Rodriguez

During my years as an active UFOlogist, I have come across several UFO contact cases. In the beginning of the 70's, I heard frequent rumors of a remarkable case involving the infamous men in black. Although being very skeptical I started collecting notes from various sources. This was not easy as several of the people involved were reluctant to reveal what they knew. Because of the sinister aspects of the case they had no wish to become mixed up again.

As the years passed, some of the main witnesses became close friends of mine and so more and more I learned of the full details of the case. Today my Helge X file has grown to large proportions. Still, I probably would not have presented this case as yet, save for an unusual coincidence. In 1979 a similar but totally unrelated MIB case emerged from an unexpected source. This case confirmed several of the data I had acquired earlier. I understand that there will be grave doubts regarding this information but I am honestly presenting the facts as I know them.

THE SOURCES

Most of the information has been obtained from three different second-hand sources. All of them were closely related to Helge during the original experiences. Personally I have only had a short telephone conversation with Helge in 1973. He then stated that he was not allowed to tell anything and that people would be shocked if they knew of these things.

The original contact experience was first presented by Ernst Linder, then chairman of I Fologiska Sällskapet -- a Stockholm-based lecture group now discontinued - at a meeting on Jan. 27, 1966. Linder was the first person who heard of the case and made the initial investigations (1). In literature the case was first mentioned in the Swedish magazine Sokaren (2).

Condensed versions of the original contact has also appeared in UFO-gatan by Bjarne Hakansson (3) and Tefatsfolket - Vanner eller fiender by Staffan Stigsjoo (4).

HEALED BY UFO ENTITIES

Helge is an ordinary Swedish worker, age now around 60, rock blaster by profession. He is a down-to-earth man and an atheist. The only difference from the common is that he is very telepathic which has got him into trouble several times because he can see when a man is lying and he doesn't hesitate to say so.

In December 1965, Helge was severely troubled by a stone in his kidneys. On December 9th, the day before his operation, he felt a sudden urge to take a long walk on a frozen lake in the vicinity of his home. At that time he lived with his wife in a small town not far from Gothenburg.

He took his dog along and started out on the lake. Suddenly, the dog began to run in circles like he was mad. Helge had to put him in leash. There was a whining sound in the air. As Helge looks up he observes an object about 5m in diameter and 3m in height. It was saucer shaped and translucent but not like glass. He could see figures moving inside. The object came closer to the ground in a spiralling movement. It stopped before touching the ice, and a dark tube was lowered from under the object. This tube was seemingly made of a soft material since it moved in the wind. He felt a breeze of hot air with a clear smell of hyacinth reaching him.

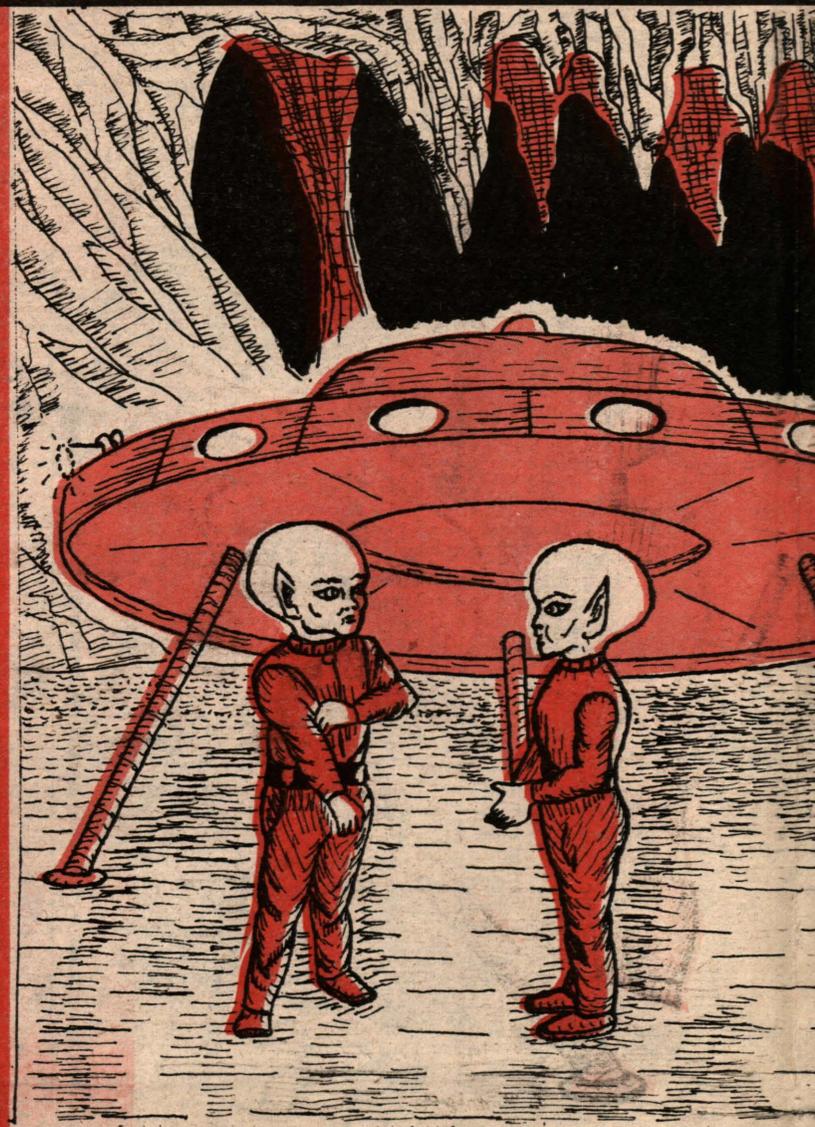

Helge first thought that this must be a Russian machine but soon changed his mind. From the tube, four entities floated down like in an invisible elevator and walked up to him. They were three men and one woman. Except for a translucent overall they were totally naked. One of the men seemed old while the others were younger. They were of normal height, had very large dark, somewhat slanted eyes and perfect teeth. Their skin had no blemishes and there was absolutely no hair on their bodies, not even genital hair.

Helge was especially fascinated by their ears which were large and pointed. The hole into the head was very large, like it is on a cat. He could almost see into their heads, he thought. The men seemed very strong, wrestler types with bull necks. As a whole they had a slight oriental look about them. The entities were covered by the clear plastic overalls which looked like they were held out from the body by air pressure.

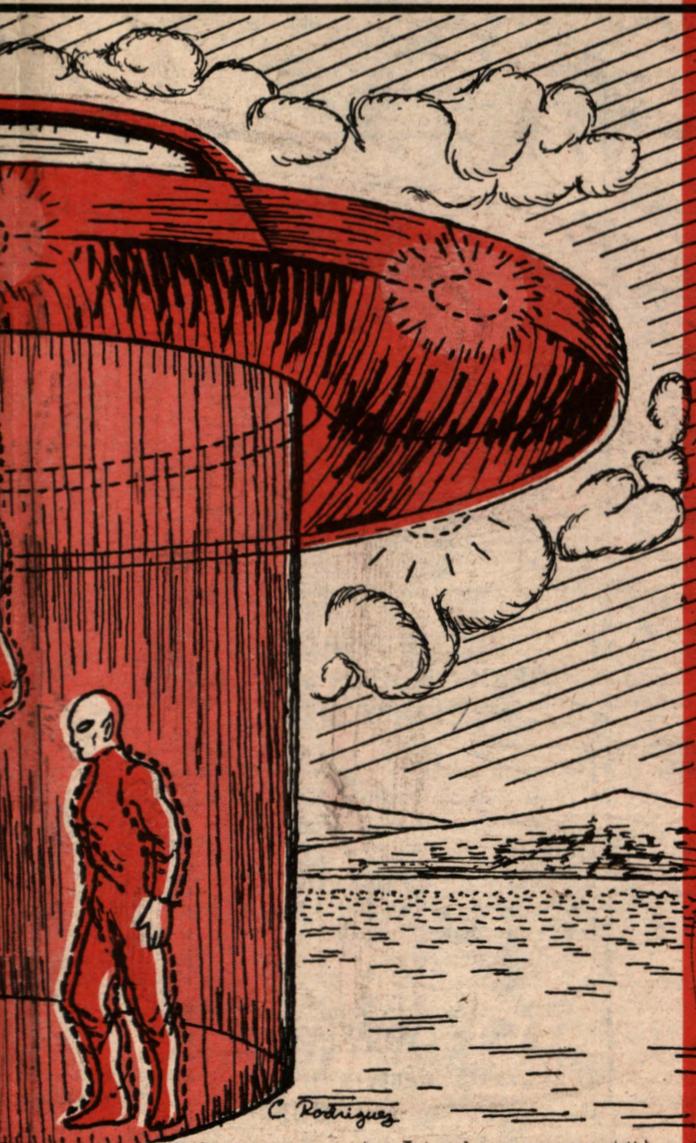

Helge became very confused but not afraid. They started a conversation through signs and drawings in the snow. The entities were very fascinated by his hair. He had to remove his cap several times and they laughed and pointed. When he tried to touch their overalls they quickly moved back. They didn't want him to touch them. With a small black package they sprayed gas (?) on everything before they touched it, even the dog. The dog didn't like this as the gas had a strong smell of hyacinth. Helge even smelled of hyacinth several days afterwards which made his wife wonder if he had already bought flowers for the coming Christmas.

The sign conversation on the ice went on for a while and Helge tried to explain several things, like hunting and dancing. The girl played with the dog which Helge thought strange since it was normally very aggressive towards strangers. All the time it looked as if they walked on an unseen layer. They didn't touch the ground. When the girl patted the dog she also leaned her knee against this invisible layer. The entities had a broad black bracelet with a yellow button on their left wrists. They touched this occasionally which seemed to have some connection to their weightlessness.

The older man explained that he knew about the pygmies: he showed how they hunt with bow and arrow. He also made it clear that his people would come in great armadas in the future. After some conversation the older man went to "the ship" and fetched an object in the shape of a cylinder, or a microphone. He let this object glide along the back of Helge, who suddenly felt relieved from his kidney pains which had troubled him for fifteen years. Helge felt that the object was warm and vibrated.

When the conversation had lasted for about one hour it grew darker and then Helge noticed that the vehicle was surrounded by a blue phosphorescent light. The whole craft sort of vibrated. Except for the dark cylinder beneath, it was semi-transparent. It consisted of two shells of which the outer shell rotated. The inside seemed very spartan-like, no chairs but only three shining cylinders standing on the floor. Terminating the conversation the entities entered the craft which took off with enormous speed. Helge noticed that it changed color from blue to orange as it flew away.

When the doctors had Helge x-rayed on the following day they were very confused as the stone was gone. Subsequently all x-ray plates were checked by a doctor in Stockholm who confirmed that no stone was visible on the plates taken after the contact experience. This doctor has since moved to Switzerland and I have been unable to trace him.

THE SECOND CONTACT

In August 1966, about ten months after the first experience, Helge felt a strong urge to go back to the lake where he had his initial contact. The urge was very strong, almost as if someone else drove the car.

As he arrives at the lake he finds the same craft hovering a few feet above the water-surface (it's now summer). Beside "the ship" a man is standing in the air as if weightless. There is a slight breeze causing ripples on the lake.

Helge spots a small skiff and starts out through the reed towards the craft. He recognizes the man as one from the initial meeting. This man starts to talk but the sounds he makes are not synchronized with his lip movements - they seem instead to come from the craft slightly afterwards.

Helge is informed that he will go to the Bahamas as their contact man, and he is given a metal plate always to wear. He says it is impossible for him to go to the Bahamas since he doesn't speak English and is an uneducated man - besides he has a wife to care for at home. Obviously, however, Helge has no choice, he is ordered to go. Post-contact he digs a hole in the wood and buries the metal plate there.

He tells his wife what has happened and they decide to sell everything they have and even to kill their dog which was very dear to them. In March 1967 they take off for the Bahamas. They are told to go to a certain place on Little Exuma. Helge makes one mistake however. He forgets his plate. Nothing happens on the Bahamas and they are forced to return home.

They feel ashamed to resettle in their old home town. Instead they make contact with a brother of Helge's living in Stockholm. From their remaining funds, they buy a house trailer and settle down south of Stockholm where Helge finds work as a rock blaster once more.

A peculiar episode happened on the plane from England to Nassau in the Bahamas. Helge noticed fourteen people all looking like Catholic priests. When the plane landed in Nassau they disappeared in a mysterious way. One of them was Father Rapas....

FATHER RAPAS

Helge and his wife obtained an apartment south of Stockholm, through friends who were members of "I - Fologiska Sällskapet". He met several of the leading members of that group and one of them, a wealthy building contractor, offered to finance the trips to the Bahamas.

Helge decides to fetch the plate he has hidden in the lake. On his way up from Gothenburg, he stops at a gas station. There, an old man comes up to him and asks if he is going towards Stockholm. Helge felt somewhat tired and thought it would be nice to have someone to talk to so he accepts the passenger.

The man is dressed in black cape, boots, and a big black slouch hat. After a while he asks Helge if he doesn't recognize him. Helge denies this but suddenly it dawns on him that this is one of the priests that he saw on the plane for Nassau.

The man introduces himself as Father Rapas. He is working for the overlords - which he preferred to call them, who had contacted Helge on the previous occasions. Rapas suggests a coffee-break at a motel.

They sit down at a table and Rapas takes off his slouch hat and puts it on the table, but orders nothing to drink. At this point Helge begins to feel very confused about the whole thing. Perhaps I'm going crazy and this man doesn't exist at all, he thinks. When a young boy passed their table Helge gives the big hat a push and it falls to the floor. The boy, thinking it is he who has done it, picks up the hat and apologizes. Rapas obviously is real, Helge thinks.

Helge is given instructions on how to proceed the next time he goes to the Bahamas. This time he must not forget his plate. The plate in question was 7 x 4,5 cm.

UFO REVIEW PAGE FOURTEEN in size and about 1 cm thick with a rough backside. It was made of a material like aluminum and was engraved with three rows of cryptic symbols, possibly a kind of identity card. The plate occasionally became so hot that Helge kept it wrapped up in asbestos. He also claimed it gave him rashes. (This reminds me of Albert Bender, who received a metal disc that became so hot he couldn't hold it and also the Aarno Heinonen contacts reviewed in AFU Newsletter 18 and 19).

As they traveled a few more miles Rapas suggested that he take the wheel for a while. Helge wonders if this is wise, since Rapas seems to be very old; Helge suggests about 60 or 70 years of age. Well, if you double that some ten times you will be closer to the truth, is Rapas' answer.

Anyway, they change seats and Rapas proves to be a good driver, perhaps a little too good... he drives like Helge's old Volvo Amazon was a racing car. Helge tries to calm him by telling that the police may have check-points here and there. But Rapas says he can feel where they are. Helge falls asleep and when he wakes up Rapas is gone and the car is parked beside the road outside Sodertalje. On the drivers seat is a package of fruit.

THE NEW GENERATION

Several Swedish UFO-ologists were now becoming interested in the Helge case and lots of rumors circulated. A Money was to be mailed to Helge through a school teacher in Nykoping - Tryggwe Glantz. In January 1968 a meeting is held in Nykoping. The gathered people are informed of a letter from Rapas, written ed by the overlords. The organization is to be called "The New Generation".

The New Generation was intended to be a peace organization. I quote from the claimed letter from Rapas: "We detest you. That is why we believe in the youth, they are the only ones whose hands are not soiled with the blood of others... Your catchword shall be: Freedom from violence - from hunger - we are all brothers and sisters... You who have supported him (Helge) shall not be forgotten, you shall reap a hundredfold, but if someone hurts him or his devoted wife, I say they shall be revenged sevenfold".

The group also received the "Rapas rules", 65 philosophical points. For example, point 15 says: "If you have helped a poor man with your last money and dressed him with your own clothes, given him your last food and he rises up and wants to knock you down, toss him into the lake, he is worth nothing else". Point 17: "If there should be interplanetary people among you, which I believe is rather rare, don't let them go to heaven but bring them down to earth again and demand more work of them".

Most members of the group felt uneasy about the whole thing. There small group grew up around Helge, who returned to the Bahamas, this time carrying his plate. The building contractor financed this trip.

through Helge and dated Jan. 1, 1968. Rapas outlines the basics for an organization to be started by the Swedish group. This course of action has been confirm-

THE ONLY WAY OUT ... IS IN!

When you've sought for answers to life's mysteries from many sources and still experience only a quagmire of confusion, consider this:

The Only Way Out is IN. There is a peaceful path, there is an Inner Way to the Eternal Quest. All the sages, saints, gurus and teachers from time immemorial have admonished:

"Go in, Seeker, go in!" But the Inner Light keeps vanishing and the restless mind refuses the quiet repose of perfect meditation. How do you "go in" to find there the hidden "Kingdom of God"? Is there a lost key to the Gateway - a Lost Word to rend the veil to the Inner Temple?

Astara teaches an inner way - a sure way, a safe way. Perhaps it is your way. Our free booklet Finding Your Place in the Golden Age may hold a new approach to an old, old quest. It is yours for the asking. We wait to honor your request for it.

fiction writer, actually believed that Atlantean robots, called Deros, lived under Manhattan and other cities in caverns. These malfunctioning robots still survive, Shaver thought and are responsible for all the odd happenings such as mass murders, blackouts, and freak accidents, which they cause by ray beams. In fact, the November 11, 1980 Weekly World News reported (p. 20) that an IBM computer executive went crazy and fired guns from his gun collection. He claimed that, "The machines are after me!" He claimed that he was shooting at "things," not people.

Another interesting tunnel story in New York concerns a group of hoboes who had taken up residence in steam tunnels beneath midtown Manhattan, around Grand Central Station. One of the tunnels under Grand Central has the words, "Burma Road," written on its entrance. Despite occasional police patrols, the hoboes remain, unable or unwilling to live anywhere else. Many appear to be World War II veterans who for various reasons couldn't readjust to civilian life. They cook their food and do their laundry by using heat from the hot pipes.

There are also the stories of alligators in the sewers. I haven't been able to confirm this legend but research is continuing. A zoologist at the Bronx Zoo told me that the alligators died out in the winter because they couldn't take the cold, so even if they were in the sewers at one time, they are now dead. Various state laws prevent the purchase of alligators as pets which are brought back from

In the town of Goshen, Massachusetts, strange tunnels have been found which may be ancient. In THE SEARCH FOR LOST AMERICA (Contemporary Books, Inc., Chicago, 1978, pp. 150-153) Salvatore Trento, an archaeologist, described a mysterious shaft which is 15 feet deep and from the bottom of which two tunnels lead off in opposite directions. The tunnels and the shaft are stone lined. Nobody knows who built them. Some suggested that the "Underground Railroad" built them to ferry escaping slaves to Canada. However, the Underground Railroad is a symbolic term. They didn't really have a subway system, but simply shipped escaping slaves in carts or on foot from one "safe house" to another. There was no need for elaborate construction projects, although some houses may have had trap doors leading to a cellar. Trento compared the tunnels at Goshen to similar ones in Europe which were used for burial by megalithic tribes.

A similar mysterious tunnel of drystone construction was found underneath the streets of Milford, Connecticut. Jim Bradon, author of WEIRD AMERICA (E.P. Duppon, 1978, pp. 54-55) wrote that on September 29, 1972, workers for the J.F. Barrett Co. of Devon, Conn. were digging a ditch for a sewer project at Edgemont Road near Hubbell Place. Suddenly, they found a tunnel which was 200 feet long and 10 feet high by 10 feet wide. Once again, the Underground Railway theory was suggested. I wrote to J.F. Barrett for more data on this tunnel, but they didn't have any. No photographs of the tunnel were taken. UFOs have frequently been sighted in Connecticut. Indeed, the tabloid paper, WEEKLY WORLD NEWS, reported in its July 1, 1980 issue (p.19) that a researcher named Ted Thoben thought that UFOs from another dimension come to our universe by means of a spacewarp near Winsted, where many UFO sightings have occurred.

Jim Brandon described a fascinating legend concerning Mt. Pharaoh which is seven miles from Ticonderoga, N.Y. The local Indians knew about a cave whose walls were covered with hieroglyphs, while gold disks and medallions were piled on the floor. The Indians moved away in the 1840s and the entrance was lost. Before the Indians moved away, a boy whose last name was Johnson was led to the cave by Indian friends. It is said that the Johnson family still possesses one of the gold disks which bears a figure of an elephant. This would be evidence of pre-Columbian voyages to America, since the elephant died out at the end of the Ice Age. However, it is remotely possible that the "elephant" could be a mammoth. In that case, the artifacts in the cave would be Atlantean. If the story is a hoax, it could have been inspired by Mormon tales of the buried tablets in the Hill of Cumorah.

Let us move farther south to New York City. I have found only one report, so far, of a possible ancient underground structure there.

At a recent meeting of the New England Antiquities Research Association (NEARA) in the Spring of 1980, I heard reports of a stone chamber, like those found in New England by Barry Fell, Salvatore Trento, and their colleagues, which is supposedly buried beneath Broadway and 48th Street. It is a drystone chamber, either a temple or tomb, left by an ancient race. It is still under investigation. Next, there is the report of a huge natural cave under Manhattan. I first heard of it in 1975 but was unable to find any printed stories about it until I found Jim Brandon's book. In 1962, Con Edison, the electric company, was excavating in the northern part of East River Park in preparation for the construction of a power plant. When the drill went down to the 200 foot level, it broke into a gigantic cavern. The cavern wasn't explored but instead a park was built over it. Who knows what secrets lurk in that cave? Brandon noted that Richard Shaver, a science

THEY KNEW TOO MUCH ABOUT FLYING SAUCERS

After checking in at the hotel I tried to telephone Timothy Green Beckley at his UFO REVIEW office, but got a repeated busy signal. I wanted to report my arrival in New York and ask if he had heard from Anna Lykins Genzlinger, author of THE JESSUP DIMENSION, and who would be one of the principal speakers at Beckley's UFO and New Age Conference the following evening. Ann was scheduled to arrive from Miami earlier than I, but the front desk noted she had not yet checked in.

The phone rang and it was James W. Moseley.

"That's a relief!" he said; "Mary Robinson had a bad dream about a plane last night, and I just wanted to be sure that you had made it in!"

I knew he was engaging in his customary dark humor - yet Mary's dreams often were prophetic. She could predict attendance at UFO meetings around the country.

"What else did she dream?" I asked.

"About big crowds again. It looks like Beckley is going to have a big turnout for his Conference!" Mary was the widow of the late Dr. John J. Robinson, who for years had been secretary of the Congress of Scientific Ufologists. He was badly missed.

"Oh yes," Moseley added; "I managed to get through to Beckley and he asked me to give you a message. His line has been tied up all afternoon with hundreds of telephone calls about the Conference.

"He wants you to check on Ann. He called the airline and they had no record of a scheduled arrival with the flight number she had given him.

Sort of like she may have taken off from the Bermuda Triangle! More likely there was only a mixup in writing down the flight number!"

I knew that Jim's cavalier manner was only a front for real concern he was experiencing, since he secretly believed in Mary's prophecies.

"Don't worry," I assured him; "We always have frightful rumors circulating at these meetings, and they seldom mean anything..."

"Except (he interrupted) the fact that so many famous UFO personalities, such as Frank Edwards, Edward Rupert, and Ivan T. Sanderson, chose to 'make the crossing' at the very same time such conferences were going on!"

THE 'WALK-INS'

We hung up and I picked up the Conference program Beckley had sent over to the hotel. I looked forward in particular to hearing one of the speakers whom I had never met.

Bill Cox had written some fascinating material for UFO REVIEW, and I wanted to know more about his research on what he termed "Walk-Ins" - space people who have taken over terrestrial bodies. This did not involve "Exorcist" type possessions, however, for personality improvements and even development of extraordinary healing powers often took place. And the extraterrestrials never "walked in" unless to enter a body that was near death. When such "possessed" persons recover they may not immediately realize what has happened, since the "Walk-Ins" function as extensions of previous personalities.

Part of Cox's "cosmic mission," he feels, is to travel all over the world while locating such people and encouraging them to develop their full potentials.

"There are four types of such people," Cox would later tell the Conference audience: Messengers who carry communications from space people; Missionaries who work to awaken people to higher realities; Emmisaries who have a great deal of charisma and usually work in politics, art and other fields; and those space people who become aware of who they actually are.

"There are many such space people who know they are different from others but are unaware of their powers and are waiting for guidance."

Cox had just returned from South America where he had identified a number of these "Walk-Ins," who had remarkable healing powers. But some of their powers proved unsettling: One of them had just been thrown out of a fancy restaurant after accidentally levitating several tables, spilling food and drink into the laps of guests!

THE BLACK LIMO

I hoped that I was not developing such powers, as my table in the posh hotel dining room lurched - but my long legs in the cramped space must be responsible!

It was an off-hourish 4:30 P.M. and the room was deserted, except for a hand-holding honeymoon couple and an odd figure in a dark corner who I fancied kept staring at me. I had grown tired waiting for the overdue lunch Ann and I had scheduled and decided to stop worrying about her and have something to eat. The waitress brought bread and butter, which I attacked while still glancing furtively toward the corner. The mysterious guest seemed to wear an Oriental costume, and fiddled with a large glass of something, which I never saw placed to the mouth.

The waitress brought the menu and I had my eyes close to it trying to make sense of the French dishes in the dim light when I suddenly sensed another presence and heard a voice whisper:

"Shhh! Don't appear startled! Just go ahead and order like nothing happened!"

An oddly-dressed person, surely the stranger from the corner, sat down facing me.

"You don't know what all I've been through!" the whispery voice continued.

The figure wore a mixture of Oriental and Middle-Eastern clothing. A large kimono dominated the getup, while a turban-like headdress was partly hidden by a large floppy black hat. Huge dark glasses obscured most of the face.

I recovered only a part of my composure to ask, "What's all this about!"

"Shhh! It's ME!" "But just who is ME?" "Shhh! It's ME - ANN!"

She removed the glasses and I recognized Ann from her picture.

"I put this rig on because I was tired of being followed around. It's a costume I sometimes use in Miami to avoid some of my 'high society' friends at the stores downtown. Their gossip can get pretty boring!"

Ann then began a muted account of her trip from Miami, which had begun with a mixup in the reservation. When she arrived to pick up her ticket the attendant not only had no reservation but insisted that the flight number given her over the telephone did not exist. Just then a redcap grabbed her bags and was wheeling them away when she intercepted him. The attendant picked up a ringing phone, muttered into it, and then suddenly explained, "Ms Genzlinger, we've just got you on the correct flight which leaves in two hours. Sorry for the mix-up!"

Not until she was angrily sitting at the waiting room gate did she remember she was travelling with a pseudonym, and that he had no way of knowing her real name. She had assumed the false name because she still had misgivings about the bombshells she had dropped about Mind Control in her book.

During the flight two men across the aisle continued to glance at her. Though not "Men In Black," their apparent surveillance bothered her. They were middle-aged persons wearing neat but nondescript business suits and giving the impression of being "government types." When the Captain announced some point of scenic interest on the left they moved into the vacant seat behind her.

"I got the impression they were, for some unknown reason, just trying to 'bug' me," Ann explained. "And I swear one of them persisted in whistling 'The High and the Mighty'!"

At LaGuardia the two men showed up at the other side of the baggage claim carousel, grabbed one of her bags, but letting the other one get away. Ann yelled at them, and they put the bag back onto the spinning track and picked up two other ones.

"It probably was an honest mistake, for they retrieved two other bags which looked almost like my own luggage - though this look-alike coincidence was very odd. But listen to what happened next!"

Ready to hail a cab to Manhattan the driver of a large black limousine interrupted.

"Mrs. Genzlinger?"

"Yes!"

"Here's your transportation to your hotel."

As she stepped into the luxurious vehicle she appreciated Beckley's concern for his Conference speakers. This certainly was a pleasant surprise, for she always dreaded the hassle of getting downtown from airports. But upon arrival she knew something was wrong. The driver parked at a STRANGE OLD HOTEL, with a fading sign, and directed her into the lobby.

"At that point some inner voice said, 'Kid, get the hell out of here!'. And I grabbed my bags and hailed a cab which mercifully stopped for me in what I felt was the nick of time. He drove several blocks before we arrived here where all the speakers have been quartered."

VALIANT THOR

Later, when we would hear the stirring lecture by Dr. Frank E. Stranges, Ann's uncalled "Limousine" would take on new meaning.

Jim Moseley and Gray Barker at UFO & New Age Conference.

Valiant Thor, the chief "good guy" of the spacemen, had promised to meet the clergyman at the airport when he deplaned at Los Angeles to attend a UFO convention. As in Ann's case, a big black limousine pulled up. "I wasn't paying attention," Stranges told the audience, and that lapse of caution almost did him in! He found himself in the speeding car with three men in dark business suits who gave him the heave-ho out of the vehicle. Luckily

Thor and his Venusian cohorts were right behind and managed to patch up his bruises with their remarkable healing powers. They also engaged in a battle with the MIB, "reaching right through the solid metal of the automobile and pulling them out!"

August C. Roberts of New Jersey had first called Stranges' attention to Thor by showing him a picture of the spaceman snapped at Howard Menger's UFO convention. He didn't quite believe Roberts' claims but nevertheless displayed the photograph at a lecture in Washington, D.C. At the conclusion a woman interrupted the autograph session to insist that Stranges speak with her privately. Reluctantly breaking away from the crowd he was dumbfounded when she reached into her purse and withdrew high-ranking military credentials.

"How would you like to meet Valiant Thor face to face?" she asked the shaken clergyman.

The next morning she drove him to the Pentagon and directed him to a room where he was greeted by the same man in the photograph. The Venusian had no fingerprints, displayed incredible knowledge and the ability to speak any language on Earth! Government personnel gave up trying to test him when his IQ registered well over 200!

NEW AGE INVENTIONS

I chuckled as once again I surveyed Ann's strange disguise.

"I guess that must have thrown them off the track - whoever 'they' are," I told her. "But I shouldn't laugh. I'll bet you're shaken up after all that."

"On the contrary, no. I think I can handle the MIB. It's tomorrow I'm worried about. I'm already shaking like a leaf. I keep thinking that once I go to the podium I'll be too frightened to say one word!"

It would be her first public appearance after her book came out.

"Don't worry," I insisted. I've seen other authors in the same fix. But like them, the problem will be to get you STOPPED talking!"

LUCCHESI RETURNS

I didn't have time to get stage fright. I had run onto Dominick C. Lucchesi who had been involved with me and August C. Roberts in the International Flying Saucer Bureau when its director, Albert K. Bender, closed it down in 1953, claiming to have been visited by the MIB. Dom had dropped out of the UFO scene for many years, not because of Bender or the Men In Black, but, I suspected, due to his sensitive position in top secret work for a gyroscope manufacturer. The company frowned upon extracurricular interests of such unusual nature. Evidently this attitude by his employer had changed, for Dom had recently sent me some information for publication. I wanted to talk with him about this, but we were interrupted by the beginning of a presentation by Pam Miller and Ivan Ortiz, who were speaking on so-called "New Age devices."

Both of us had

Psychics, spiritual leaders, scientists and UFO contactees all agree that we are living in what has been called the END TIMES.

- The foundation of our civilization is about to crumble.
- The Physical world as we know it is going to be destroyed.
- Psychic, spiritual and "other-worldly" forces are about to take over!

THE TRUTH CAN NOW BE TOLD

An in depth study recently conducted by a highly qualified UFO researcher indicates drastic changes in our daily life, as well as in the shape and construction of our very planet, are imminent. This information has been channeled to at least 20 of the most highly respected contactees from more advanced beings who reside on other planets and in other dimensions. Unanimously, they agree that a global catastrophe will soon sweep over our nation as well as the rest of the world.

According to the SPACE BROTHERS whom they are in contact with time is running out. We are being told the Earth is rapidly entering the twelfth - AND FINAL! - hour for humankind. All indications are that a "time bomb of destruction" is about to go off ridding the planet of civilization as we have come to accept it. The Book of Revelations will be tomorrow's headlines as Armageddon engulfs the globe.

There are those who say a THIRD WORLD WAR is on the immediate horizon, that an ecological imbalance is now taking place, and a shifting of the North and South Poles is due, which could tip the earth out of its present orbit and send it hurtling toward the sun.

YOU CAN BE SAVED!

While utter chaos will take place all around us, all of those who have received this highly advanced, truly prophetic warning have said that the "Chosen Ones" who "are ready" will be saved and taken off this planet just in the nick of time.

Our special, fully illustrated report, a 50,000 word book titled PSYCHIC & UFO REVELATIONS IN THE LAST DAYS, is the most comprehensive volume ever put together on the subject. There is no other work like it as this book has been inspired from above. These are some of the important things you will learn - things you will NEED to know in order to make the transition from this physical dimension into a higher realm.

- Specific data on land changes. Find out which States will be geographically altered and the "safe" places to go to be out of immediate danger.
- A time table indicating when these events will begin to take place and the order in which they will occur.
- Exact "signs" and "wonders" to watch for which will indicate that only months are left.
- What material objects - "valuables" - you will need in order to survive, and where to obtain them.
- The day you will vanish from this planet - a mass evacuation by space ship will take place in which hundreds of flying saucers will come down out of the sky and "lift off" the worthy. What are your chances of being saved, and what can you do to make certain you are the "Chosen Ones."

Some of those who have contributed to this valuable reference include New Agers Brad and Francie Steiger; Space Channel Robert Short; the spiritual group Mark Age; UFO communicator Jane Allyson; Parapsychologist Warren Freiberg; researcher John White, and the space being known as Ashtar.

If you have even a slight interest in UFOs you will want to order this book. This is not just another title filled with wild stories, but this volume actually presents useful data which could change your life and help you to survive DOOMSDAY!

PSYCHIC & UFO REVELATIONS IN THE LAST DAYS is available by ordering now. Send payment in the amount of $8.95 plus $1.00 for postage & handling and we will include a well as a special meditation you can use in order to establish contact for yourself with these highly advanced alien beings - the space brothers - who are watching over Earth.

long been fascinated by the legends of "free energy" machines invented by John Keeley, and the allegedly suppressed discoveries of Nikola Tesla, which they were discussing. Miller and Ortiz also showed slides depicting plans for "light beam communicators," which UFO witnesses had employed to send and receive messages from space visitors. Famous contactees Helen and Betty Mitchell had been given such a device by their space friends, according to the speakers.

Their lecture delved into ancient literature wherein the "magic carpets" were none other than "flying saucers," powered by a mysterious system of propulsion utilizing mercury in some strange manner. Modern UFOs "follow the laws of quantum mechanics and relativity theory to transport themselves at the speed of light," they told the audience.

Another couple, Lynn and Anthony Volpe, who said they were soulmates from another galaxy who chose to reincarnate on Earth, told about the messages they had received from numerous extraterrestrials on a variety of distant planets.

Jane Allyson, a New York model turned psychic healer, painted a happier picture: the UFOs gave her a message of love after a close encounter. Mankind's ability to love or to destroy itself with nuclear weapons represented a challenge of choice.

JESSUP DIMENSION

Before introducing Ann Genzlinger I sketched a brief history of the involvement of Dr. Morris K. Jessup in the legendary Philadelphia Experiment, whether first hand or only through his relationship with the mysterious Carlos M. Allende. After receiving letters from Allende telling of an alleged Naval Experiment which made an entire ship became invisible and drove part of its crew insane, Jessup was found dead in a parked station wagon in Dade County, Florida, officially the victim of suicide.

But Ann didn't believe the latter. If, indeed, Jessup had accomplished the preparation of the car which one homicide detective had termed "too elaborate," and actually taken his own life, HE DID NOT DO IT WILLINGLY. Ann had done extensive research on Mind Control, and believed some government intelligence agency had driven him to death.

"They've been experimenting with hypnosis since 1946," Ann told the audience.

"They can do anything. And from distances. They don't have to be right next to you. They can be half a mile away - or at the other end of a telephone!"

But her most bizarre statements concerned not her allegations of a conspiracy to murder Jessup, but how she had become involved in a one-woman campaign to vindicate Jessup. She termed herself "an ordinary housewife" with no interest in UFOs nor any knowledge about the Philadelphia Experiment until she was reading a book which mentioned Jessup's possible involvement.

"Something just happened to me, I don't know what. I suddenly said to myself, 'JESSUP DIDN'T COMMIT SUICIDE. HE WAS MURDERED!'"

It was almost as if Jessup had emerged from another dimension to guide her investigations. She actually sensed his presence.

"QUITE OFTEN I HAD THE IMPRESSION THAT JESSUP WAS PEERING OVER MY LEFT SHOULDER!"

At the intermission many of the audience crowded around us to ask questions. One person wanted to take me aside to confer with me privately. I was mildly annoyed as had been Dr.

Stranges at his insistent visitor. But when the crowd thinned I assented.

"I am a psychic," she began. "Before Ann even mentioned anything about how Jessup seemed to be present and helping her, I saw a most amazing thing: While you were introducing her A FACE SUDDENLY MATERIALIZED OVER YOUR LEFT SHOULDER."

Had Jessup been "present" during my short talk, checking up on my veracity? My rumination was cut short by angry shouting in the large ante room where Beckley had set up his book stand.

Ann's presentation evidently had been effective, for people were clamoring to buy her book book from reaching readers.

Beckley escaped through a back door and the buyers quieted down, their attentions partly distracted by the arrival of Dr. Stranges to autograph books.

As I finish this column in a quiet corner of my country home, far removed from my office and the excitement of the New York Conference, I find many things I have written about almost too bizarre to be believable. Although I've had the temptation to greatly edit out some of it, I must hurry it off to UFO REVIEW to meet a deadline.

confirmations of her theories.

But even in this isolated place the demons of Ufology continue to seek me out and haunt me.

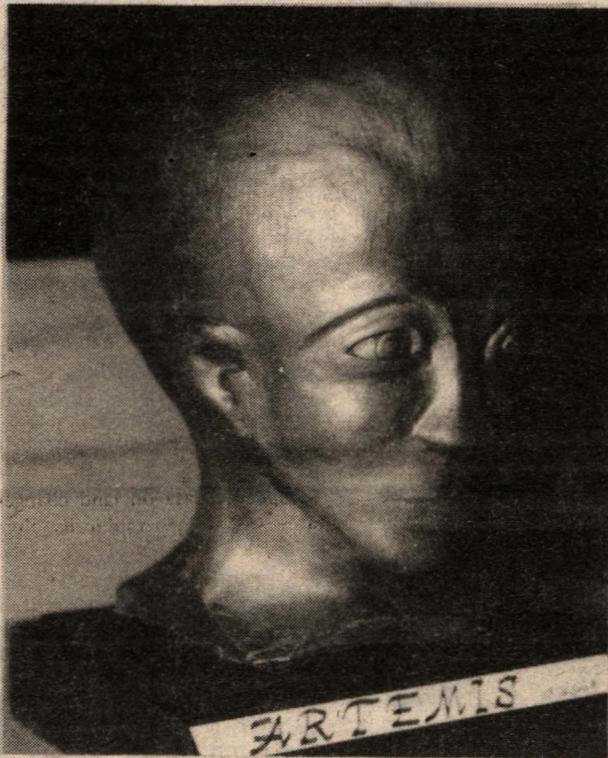

Christopher, my five-year-old grand nephew, has been dragging his toys through the room, wanting to play with the typewriter, and generally interrupting me. Although he has just begun Kindergarten and cannot yet write anything, even his name, he also begs to use my marker pens.

Finally I hand him a pen and paper and ask him to write his name, knowing he will at best be able to make only some squigly marks. He then calmly, and engages in an incoherent monologue, with bold strokes, pens not HIS name, but another, most familiar monicker: "M I B"!

How the child was able to write this, I don't know. To my knowledge he has never been told anything about UFOs or MIB. Nor do I intend to tell him anything that will get him further onto this subject.

Maybe the MIB, like Jessup with Ann, are peering over my left shoulder, helping me with my columns, spooking me now and then by tricks such as giving Christopher the temporary power of automatic writing!

and the few copies I had brought with me were sold out. Beckley had been backed into a corner and was trying to explain the shortage:

Prior to the Conference I had shipped Beckley two large boxes of THE JESSUP DIMENSION. But they had not arrived. A projector shipped several days later had arrived in plenty of time. An initial shipment of books to me from the printer had been taken to a wrong address. It was almost as if there had been an effective effort to delay the ground complex occupied by Oriental-looking men wearing coveralls and accompanied by American military officers. He was caught and one of the officers shouted, "Make him look like a nut!"

The man remembered nothing after that, except that he woke up in a field far from the fantastic installation. He didn't know if he'd been dreaming. Now it may only be a coincidence, but at a recent UFO convention put on by the UFO REVIEW in New York City, in 1980, John Keel told of cases of Oriental-looking men who flew strange, incredibly fast "ghost" planes over Scandinavia long before World War II.

It appears, then, that there is indeed some evidence for ancient, underground cities or installations. Only future research will solve the mystery of the builders' origins. Were they Ancient Astronauts or people from lost continents? Who can say? But there are indeed strange mysteries right beneath our feet. ★

WORLD MESSAGES FOR THE COMING DECADE

A Cosmic Symposium of 27 Extra-Terrestrial Communiques, including nine noted Space Commanders, and representatives of the Solar Tribunal and Spiritual Hierarchy.

Four divisions within the text cover World Chaos, World Changes, World Guardians and World Deliverance. World Teacher Lord Kuthumi is the Hierarchical Sponsor of the book, under the authority of the Great White Brotherhood. The contents were telepathically received through the spiritual messenger "Tuella", in an unprecedented schedule of prearranged heavenly appointments during a seven-day vigil in the mountains of New Mexico. Some of the many topics discussed are:

- What you should do when the earth changes begin.
- Significance of the planetary alignment.
- Real meaning behind UFO phenomena.
- The broad scope of the Guardian Action and why they are here.
- The challenge of the Ashtar Command.
- Prerequisites for interplanetary fellowship and rescue.
- The Saturnian Council and the invisible statesmen.
- The three phases of evacuation.
- The impersonal frequencies of lift-off and how they will affect you.

but Montezuma's representative journeyed there expecting to gain admission to this chamber. However, the blind beings who were authorized to take the worthy before the gods twice refused admission to the king's men. The third time they were able to go before Huemoc who ordered an eighty day fast for the ruler of the land. Montezuma was not allowed to eat, drink alcohol, smoke tobacco, or sleep with a woman.

Huemoc had promised that if Montezuma kept to this rigid fast in eighty days he would come to redeem the king.

There was great rejoicing in the palace. On the appointed night there appeared in the sky a glowing "white cloud" that made the heavens as bright as day. Montezuma along with a delegated party went to where the object landed and was supposed to land, when suddenly another object thrust forward pushing the first one away. The second craft then positioned itself very close to the pyramid at Chapultepec. Montezuma and his group became frightened. Meanwhile, the priest with the "blond hair" was sleeping in his residence nearby when he was awakened by a presence in his room. There stood an entity which told him, "Montezuma wants to escape, but his destiny has been decided. The master of the gods has ordered that he must face the tragic invasion along with the rest of the populace; for that reason I have been sent to stop Huemoc from taking him. He refused to go when the time was right and now he must stay. Montezuma is nearby. Go and tell him he has been ordered to return to his palace.

The rest of the story is history. Montezuma was not picked up" because he would not heed the original warning and too much time had elapsed in the interim. We can testify that the King of Mexico must have cursed the gods for their role in his plight. Along with thousands of tourists in the past his "revenge" was swift and highly uncomfortable for us, but the exciting time we had on our journey made it possible for us to take our minds off our minor stomach problems -- at least from time to time. A SPACEMAN SPEAKS TO US

As our van rumbled along in the dark, hitting just about every bump and crevice under creation, our minds momentarily flashed back to a series of exciting telepathic messages we had recently been receiving via our contactee friend from an entity known as Ashtar. Commander-in-Chief of the Free Federation of Planets, Ashtar, according to tradition, keeps tabs on all relevant activities occurring on Earth from a gigantic space station orbiting near the planet Saturn. Part of his duties include communicating with select earthlings in an attempt to champion the cause of the Space Brothers who are concerned about our war-like activities, our childish behavior, and who would like to see us develop further along on the spiritual path.

Ashtar's end-time predictions have been popularized in the book Psychic & UFO Revelations In The Last Days, and he continues to beam down relevant messages on a regular basis, not only to our friend, but to dozens of other contactees from far and wide.

Never one to forego a golden opportunity to speak out on a subject of particular interest to him, Ashtar made it known in plain and simple language that he approved of our sojourn. From his "conversations" he made us feel as if we were the real life counterparts of Indiana Jones and his beautiful sidekick Marion, about to embark on an expedition to uncover something as tremendously important as the Lost Ark of the Covenant.

"Are you preparing for your visit to the Yucatan?" Ashtar asked point blank during a channeling session conducted some months before we were due to leave New York for Mexico. For centuries, Ashtar stated, the Yucatan has been the focal point for extra-terrestrial activity, the site of the various pyramids in the Yucatan having been used as a way-station for alien visitors to our planet.

"The history of this part of your planet is very dear to us," Ashtar declared. "We go back thousands of years, to when this part of your globe was just being settled. We taught the natives much about astronomy, science, medicine, and controlling the weather. A great deal of what we taught them has since become part of the legends and the lore of their people" the spaceman confirmed beliefs we pretty much already held to be true.

In addition to the Yucatan being a space port, Ashtar said "there were also Egyptians here, as well as Atlanteans. They all shared information with the people who were so friendly and intelligent that for many, many years their civilization flourished. Ashtar, backing up the ancient astronaut hypothesis, noted that the natives "built giant monuments out of stone to show their appreciation for what they had been taught. For many years they lived in peace and harmony, not only amongst themselves, but with their Masters, and with the Universe."

Eventually this society crumbled when their culture literally went to the devil. "There were those who were in touch with the serpent race, who came and took over the area and slaughtered many of the Mayans and enslaved others. They overran the area because the land was so productive." But as always negativity begets negativity and the Creator showed his wrath.

According to Ashtar's version of history, there came a great rain and flood which covered the entire earth. Space ships hovered over the pyramids and lifted up those who deserved to be saved. The others thought they would be taken away too, but they were mistaken. They even went so far as to climb to the top of the pyramid at Uxmal anticipating that the flood waters would never go that high. In the days that followed they were swept away and drowned.

Time being an un-essential factor where they come from, Ashtar and his merry band of space travelers still hold that the Yucatan is sacred ground, and have indicated that during the "final days" predicted by many, tremendous space ships will land in this area and save the worthy.

"We will return and put on an (aerial) display for the people," Ashtar has said. "Some of the descendants of those who left with us are still living among us now. From time to time, we drop some of them down as they can easily pass on the street. They will help in the evacuation when the moment arrives."

During our communications with him, Ashtar has stated that artifacts from their visits in antiquity still exist in the Yucatan, going so far as to hint that we might find something of interest if we kept our eyes open.

"There are still some artifacts from our visitations left. There are so many things to be found there; things that your scientists have not yet discovered. There are tombs underneath the pyramids that haven't been found. They contain much information, some of it about Atlantis, some of it about space travel." On another occasion, Ashtar proclaimed that many secrets remain hidden in the ruins to be deciphered by future archaeologists. "There are secrets of telepathic communication, secrets of interplanetary travel, as well as the secret of levitation which helped to lift the stones of the pyramid into place."

Despite his overwhelming approval that we visit the Yucatan, he did add a stern warning: "Keep in mind that there are individuals who will go to any length to hide the truth. . . Make sure you are not being followed. Go on this trip with the thought that this is a practice run for the evacuation (to take place later on)..."

Ashtar even threw in that eventually "the jungles will flourish and someday a new space port will be built there. LOCH NESS (from back cover) monster has been around for a good many years. "Fourteen hundred years ago Saint Columba supposedly saw a fearsome beastly in the Loch. There were similar stories throughout the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. However, modern sightings began in 1933 when detailed records started to be kept."

Many reliable individuals have seen the monster including the former editor of the Inverness newspaper and several monks from an abbey situated right on the Loch. The monster has been photographed, and analyses of both still pictures as well as motion picture films strongly suggests that something beyond the realm of the norm does reside in Loch Ness.

In fact, with the exception of UFOs, probably more has been written about the Loch Ness monster, than any other "offbeat" subject. Hundreds of magazine articles have been written. TV specials have been filmed, and VARIETY (the show business trade paper) last year ran a full page ad announcing a full length motion picture on the subject, produced by none other than David Frost.

It would seem that just about every man, woman and child over the age of ten has at one time either read or heard about this remarkable scientific curiosity that continues to go unexplained. But what they probably haven't heard is that there are those who definitely believe that through some set of bizarre circumstances the Loch Ness monster and UFOs are somehow related.

The late F.W. Holiday made a lifelong career out of investigating the Loch Ness Monster. Many a summer he spent both days and nights at this beautiful locale which is a 13 hour trip by train from London.

Holiday discovered early on that similar dragon-like creatures existed in various Scottish and Irish lakes, and that carvings of "flying discs" were often directly associated with such "dragons" or serpents. During his travels around the United Kingdom, Holiday came across etchings on the walls of churches which showed large serpents complete with humps, and directly overhead the unmistakable image of a flying saucer.

Comparing notes, F. W. Holiday began to realize that a distinct similarity existed between monster sightings and UFO reports.

"When monster phenomena and UFO phenomena are compared point by point a number of parallels emerge," he wrote in a book THE DRAGON AND THE DISC. "Both change shape and vary their color. White, yellow, red, brown, greenish and black monsters have been described to me by reliable eye-witnesses. I have myself seen yellow and black specimens. Both monsters and UFOs produce great excitement in domestic animals, e.g. dogs, and both sorts of phenomena are reported to move about at high speeds. Moreover, monsters on land appear never to leave any excreta or other traces one associates with ponderous animals. I have examined the surroundings of lakes in all parts of Britain and Ireland and spoken to hundreds of local people without hearing of a single discovery of this nature."

Holiday adds that the sonar returns which have "unquestionably been obtained from monsters are duplicated by the radar returns which have equally unquestionably been obtained from UFOs."

Though his theories are highly controversial, Holiday soberly suggests that both UFOs and sea serpents make up a sort of "neither world." At times they can take on physical appearance, but are not made of flesh and blood. He furthermore contended during his life that the chemical makeup of Loch Ness somehow attracted both monster and flying saucer. To Holiday's way of thinking, aerial phantoms and dragons have long had a pronounced effect on humankind and are the cornerstones of modern religion.

Without even being that familiar with literature in the field of UFOlogy, Holiday points out the sometimes uncanny frustrations that almost always seem to hamper attempts to get good, solid evidence that such things as the Loch Ness Monster really exists. Such frustrations often happen when witnesses attempt to record and photograph the activity of unidentified flying objects. Says Holiday:

"In most cases, either a camera was not available to record what was observed, or if it was available, circumstances frustrated the photographer. Almost everyone rejected such a notion because it introduced an element of irrationality. It also raised doubts about the true nature of dragons which those who were anxious to press the claim for an unknown animal chose not to encourage. Normal animals do not behave in such an inexplicable way because they cannot; therefore you had to conclude that the peculiarities were due to chance."

Holiday didn't see this explanation as being a satisfactory one. In his book THE DRAGON AND THE DISC, Holiday took note of the "psychological effects" on witnesses at Loch Ness. In one case he quotes a letter from Dr. Kenneth MacLeod, M.D., Commissioner of Public Health, Cortland, New York, in which the doctor describes his sighting of the monster while driving near the Loch in July 1968. Dr. MacLeod states that he was motoring with his father when suddenly a "grey-black object 15-20 feet long" caught his attention and began to speed "down the loch in the same direction as the car." In his letter to F.W. Holiday, Dr. MacLeod states: "It was curious that I did not even mention it to my father..." Yet, he later made a note about his observation in his diary.

Holiday also reportedly experienced similar "psychological reactions" as he called them. "After chasing a large, yellowish mass down Loch Ness in 1965 (it was being watched simultaneously by two witnesses on the opposite shore) I remember writing in the Loch Ness Bureau's report: 'It could have been a boat.' Yet manifestly it was not a boat as I could see through my 10x binoculars; nor did I believe it to be a boat. At the time, I put the aberration down to tiredness until I found it was not uncommon in witnesses."

Holiday concludes that these reactions are but a few examples "of what appears to be some sort of a mental block in relation to the phenomena. There is a desire to minimize or dismiss what one has seen and this provides a brief interim in which the object escapes further observation." Similar occurrences are part and parcel of the UFO mystery and deserve study.

No one has kept an active log of UFO sightings made near Loch Ness, but such reports do exist. Taking up lodging for the evening in a "Bed and Breakfast" establishment operated by Peggy MacGennis, the editor of UFO REVIEW was told about several fascinating UFO encounters. The incident quoted in the opening paragraph of this article was related personally by a young man named Ronnie who had kept his sighting more-or-less a secret up until Beckley's arrival in Drumnadrochit. After furnishing UFO REVIEW with the details of his own experience, the sincere excavator revealed the details of another sighting.

"There was one boy who left work one night at midnight. He was coming down the road when he saw this thing 30 feet above him. It followed him down the road and when he got home he ran indoors and got his family to come outside and observe the strange thing in the sky." According to Ronnie, the youth was shaken by his run-in NESSIE (from prev.pg) with a UFO, and it took him a while to calm down. While he doesn't put much stock in there being a connection between the Loch Ness Monster and UFOs, Anthony Harmsworth of the Loch Ness Monster Exhibition has seen UFOs twice in his life. One was a "bell-shaped" craft that appeared in the sky 25 miles north of London, and the other one was very near Loch Ness. "It was a green light and it was moving from north to south. I watched it for a short while and then finally it disappeared over some hills." The Loch Ness Monster and UFOs are both unexplainable in rational, scientific terms. Regardless of any possible connection, both mysteries deserve to be studied with an open mind. Just because they do not fit in with our modern concepts of reality, doesn't mean that they should be relegated to the scrap heap where many such puzzles have ended up throughout the history of mankind.

where they entered a mountain through an opening.

This was the base. Here Helge saw various kinds of entities: giants, hermaphrodites and dwarfs. He was shown the evolution of earth and its civilization in a three dimensional picture. During this experience he collapsed three times and had to be revived by Rapas. Helge was also shown a collection of weapons from all ages. From this mountain center "The New Generation" organization would spring, according to Rapas. Here Helge was to enter some kind of school.

Although the Swedish group broke up, Tryggve Glantz continued for a while to promote The New Generation. He was interviewed by the Swedish daily "Folket" and their article was published on June 1, 1968. Tryggve claimed that they already had 600 members. The movement was referred to as a "world-wide peace movement in the spirit of Martin Luther King, originated by the West-Indian Peacemaker Rapas". In the autumn of 1968 the organizations had plans for a great meeting where Harry Belafonte, Ralph Abernathy and Coretta King would appear. This meeting never took place. Rapas is referred to as a wealthy industrialist this time. During a trip around the world he saw so much misery that he decided to use his wealth for charity purposes, all claims according to the "Folket" article.

CIA AGENT KILLED BY THE BROTHERS

Since the building contractor now had withdrawn his economic support Helge had to rely on his contacts "from space." Obviously this group had unlimited economic resources. One day a man from a car firm visited Helge and gave him a new car. He said it was paid for and was to be delivered to Helge.

Before the third trip to the Bahamas Helge contacted a friend who was to take care of the apartment, pay the rent and care for the flowers. The payment for this service would be sent from the Bahamas, to a special bank account. Helge paid in just five crowns on this account before he and his wife went.

On the very day that they went to the Bahamas someone paid 1,000 crowns on this account. Every week it increased by a few hundred crowns but the receipts never said who put the money there. No money ever arrived from the Bahamas.

When Helge and his wife returned they were very anxious as they thought they must owe their friend a lot of money. When their friend explained that there was always money on the account, they first thought he had given them himself but later realized that some of their UFO-connected contacts must have made payments.

On his further trips Helge only met one type of entity. They were thin, pointed features, deeply tanned with a somewhat oriental look, long tapering fingers and dark eyes. They all seemed very perfect, not a blemish on their skin. Helge never saw the people from the initial contacts in Sweden, the bull-necked ones with pointed ears. On the third trip Helge's wife saw the entities for the first time and she fell on her knees thinking they were the angels of God.

SWEDEN (Cont. from Pg.14) were too many threats in the background. Something was not right, they thought. The building contractor had been told to pay thousands of crowns without knowing what he really supported. When Helge returns from his second Bahamas sojourn, the group breaks up and Helge feels betrayed and secluded himself.

THE BAHAMAS RETREAT

Helge's second trip to the Bahamas had fared better off than the first, however. This time he didn't forget his plate. It all happened around the New Year of 1967-68. Father Rapas had told Helge what to do when he came to the island Little Exuma. On New Year's Eve he went to the harbor and contacted an old negro called Joe who owned a boat. There was also a girl by the name of Li. They started towards a small island, presumably called Wennergren Island,

SUPRESSED C.I.A. DOCUMENTS PROVE U.S. POSSESSES REMAINS OF U.F.O.'S & ALIEN BEINGS

NOW THE TRUTH CAN BE TOLD -- FOR MANY YEARS RUMOURS HAVE PERSISTED THAT THE U.S. GOVERNMENT HAS IN ITS POSSESSION SPACE SHIPS MANUFACTURED ON OTHER PLANETS AS WELL AS THE OCCUPANTS OF THESE INTERPLANETARY-CRAFT. C.I.A., F.B.I. AND STATE DEPARTMENT DOCUMENTS VERIFY THAT THIS 'TOP SECRET' SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY OF ALL TIME HAS BEEN HIDDEN FROM THE AMERICAN PUBLIC.....

For over three decades a monumental discovery has been kept a carefully guarded secret from the American public. This high level secret involves the remains of crashed UFOs and their alien occupants found in the Southwestern part of the United States in the late 1940's and early 1950's. Both Army and Air Force military units on orders from the Pentagon, rushed to the site of these crashes and carted away the UNEARTHLY remains of both crew members and space ships. The wreckage and bodies were eventually put into 'deep-freeze' storage at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. According to military sources who later went against orders and decided to talk, Hangar

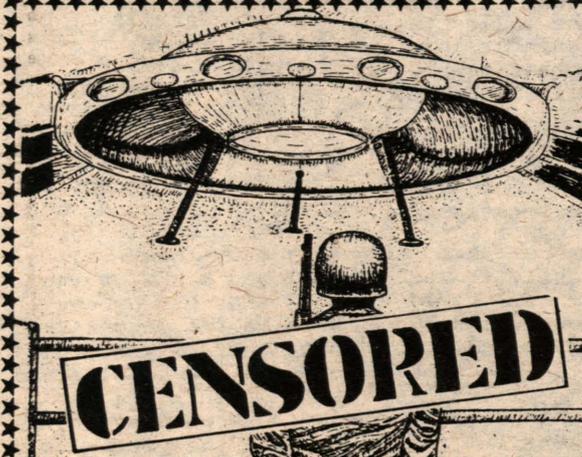

18 was used for this purpose. To date, no one has been allowed inside--not even Senator Barry Goldwater, who was turned away upon making a request that he be permitted to check the contents of the hangar. Now the TRUTH can be told! Recently because of a new law enacted by Congress known as the Freedom of Information Act, civilian researchers have been able to obtain via court order, classified CIA, FBI, and State Department Documents which verify the fact that we are not alone in the universe. At one point there was actually a 'tug-of-war' going on between various branches of the government as to who was to get final access to these objects. Said FBI Director, J. Edgar Hoover in a signed memo 'We must insist upon full access to the discs discovered.' For instance, in the Louisiana case, the Army grabbed the discs and would not allow the FBI to have it for examination. Similarly, in 1973, Henry Kissinger teleaxed our South African Embassy requesting they attempt to recover a UFO that had gone down in the jungle. Researcher and author of 12 books, Timothy Green Beckley has just completed a definitive report on what has been called the 'Cosmic Watergate'. In the Riddle of Hangar 18, you will see actual reproductions of classified documents. You'll even hear from a US Astronaut who chased UFOs for several days in a row over a military base in Europe and later saw motion picture footage (now missing from government files) of a UFO that landed at Edwards Air Force Base for military personnel to get a good look at it. Published also are drawings of the UFO beings found on board the crashed space ships as well as actual photos of these aliens taken by a military photographer.

In the Bahamas, Helge also met others of their earthly contacts. There was a Russian and one American negro, named Loftin, with whom he made good friends. One day Little Exuma was swarming with CIA agents. Loftin had informed the CIA of the base. Later Loftin was found dead with a bullet hole in his head. He had been killed for treason.

Since CIA now knew of the Bahamas base it was moved to a place outside Mexico City. From now on Helge boarded the plane for Mexico City instead of Nassau. In this way the contacts are still going on as far as I have been informed.

THEY HAVE NO FEELINGS

People who have been in touch with Helge through the years naturally ask him why he doesn't stop working for these entities. His answer is that he cannot, or he will go the same way as Loftin did. There is a way in but no way out.

In August 1976 a friend of mine talked to Helge on the phone. He then said: "What I have gotten into is negative, you become very isolated. I warn you from going deeper into this". During the first few years, in the 60s, Helge thought he owed them some help in return for their healing of him.

Later he said: "You don't know what kind of a hell I'm into". In case he couldn't take it any more he had a pill that he carried around.

Helge got very little information from the aliens. If he asked something they would return the next day after consulting with their overlords. Still, Helge's Russian friend said that Helge seemed to know more about them than he had found out after working for them for twenty years. They seemed totally without feelings; death and torture didn't disturb them the least. In some ways, though, they seemed stupid, not even telepathic according to Helge. They claimed they came from another planet and were here to prevent a third World War, but Helge thought differently.

One of my informants saw several photographs taken by Helge on the Bahamas. The entities couldn't be photographed though, instead there was a lighted square where one of them had been. Helge remembers one episode when he sat on a bench, talking to one of them. Suddenly a stranger walks by and Helge felt very embarrassed as it appeared though he was talking to himself. These people had the ability to disappear into thin air.

A peculiar feature was that they never slept or ate, but they did drink. Also, Helge never met any women among them. While on the Bahamas he was allowed to use their cars. He drove an old type, but seemingly brand-new black Cadillac. The strange thing was that it couldn't be crashed. It had a sort of magical eye that steered it. When you learned the trick it was very easy to drive, Helge claimed.

PASSPORT TO PARANOIA

What we have here are the typical and infamous men in black. They are identical to the ones described by other UFOlogists. Sometimes as I look through my file on this case I get a feeling of unreality, like reading a science fiction novel. But I have no reason to doubt my informants. I have deliberately withheld some events, names and places as they are good check-points in other cases of this kind or if more information of this particular case should turn up.

What puzzles me in this case is that there is no mentioning of lost time, hypnosis or the like. In most MIB encounters there is some form of mind-tampering. What we do find here, though, are mythic elements, like the visit to the mountain retreat. Perhaps this was mentally induced?

This case has naturally resulted in much heated controversy and speculation. Where do they come from? What do they want? Another Swedish contactee who had a plate similar to Helge's claimed that this group was a form of mafia. They sell themselves to the highest bidder. The only way to get away from them is to pay more. The ordinary earth mafia pay them money. This devil theory was confirmed by a psychometric medium who held the plate mentioned. From this sitting she got such a shock that she lost consciousness for a while.

The UFO-Mafia connection has been mentioned by other UFOlogists and contactees. Woodrow Derenberger, the American contactee, who was visited by the MIB referred to them as the mafia. While we are on to paranoia theories, I also like to mention Richard Shaver, who claimed that the largest group of cave dwellers were the "ganster groups" who are "in active and frequent contact with both criminals and corrupt politicians on the surface.

Whoever these people are they are working on a global basis. They look almost exactly alike as reports from all over the world confirm. John Keel was deeply involved in several MIB cases during the 1960's. In the Eighth Tower he writes, "On a number of occasions I actually saw the phantom Cadillacs as advertised, complete with sinister-looking oriental-like passengers in black suits. On Long Island, following the directions given me in an anonymous phone call, I pursued one of these cars down a dead-end road where it seemingly vanished into thin air..."

If the intelligence organizations of the world are aware of these things, as is indicated by my Helge file, then they are probably trying to deal with it on their own level with maximum security and no publicity. As UFOlogists there is very little we can do except carefully documenting the claimed facts as they come our way.

There is no reason to believe that these entities are extraterrestrial. They move among us without any apparatus and have obviously been here for a long time. There are MIB reports from as far back as the 19th century. My personal speculation is that these entities somehow belong to this earth but are of a different evolution. In theosophical literature there are frequent mentions of two other physical evolutions sharing this earth with us. They are possibly neither good nor evil but can be "used" by those who know how. Perhaps John Keel is right when he concludes: "We have not been viewing the masters, only the slaves".

UFOS-THE LOCH NESS CONNECTION

"I was going through the woods (near Loch Ness) when I saw this cigar-shaped object for two or three minutes just above the trees. It had a rim going around it. It wasn't very big -- perhaps the size of a large table. It was in daytime in March of this year. I was alone working as an excavator. It landed about 50 yards away. I never saw it take off. Since I was in the forest there were trees blocking my view and I couldn't see it while it was on the ground."

A typical UFO sighting? Perhaps, but what makes it so unusual is the fact that it is one of a considerable number of reports which have come from the Scottish Highlands, all within a short distance of the world famous Loch Ness, home of the legendary sea monster.

An enigma in itself, at first there would not seem to be an obvious connection between UFOs and the long necked serpent. However, there has recently emerged evidence that the two anomalies might indeed be associated in some peculiar way.

On a recent expedition to Inverness, Scotland we found people willing to talk about each phenomena. "People around these parts may joke about the monster to outsiders, but they take the subject quite seriously," noted the knowledgeable Anthony Harmsworth, Curator of the Loch Ness Monster Exhibition located in Drumnadrochit, a tiny community nestled on the banks of Loch Ness. Tony Harmsworth has been tracking down stories of the 30-foot long creature for many years. He is convinced beyond a shadow of a doubt that something "unusual" DOES live in the loch.

As we sipped a cup of warm coffee in an out-of-the-way corner of the exhibition, Tony revealed that during 1981 there were at least four authentic sightings of the monster. "Currently, there is a group of British and American scientists stationed around the loch attempting to verify the presence of the monster with highly sophisticated sonar equipment. Targets have been picked up previously, and they are attempting to do a more detailed analysis of what the targets are doing."

And what does the sea monster look like? According to Tony, "the most common description is of a creature with a large hump that is longer than it is high. Occasionally, people see a long neck that doesn't seem to have any particular shape or head on the end of it. The neck seems to end like a worm, although I don't hold to any theories that suggest that the animals (yes, there is more than one monster he believes) might be an overgrown worm."

According to local folklore, the Loch Ness
