They are here! Yes, there is no longer any doubt — we are being visited by beings from other planets, other galaxies — other solar systems! Unidentified flying objects are not figments of some overactive imaginations. They are real! Try telling anyone who's seen one up close, or who's been confronted by aliens, that what they saw was imaginary. The UFOs are landing at various points around the world daily. And with that in mind, it is my pleasure to present the premiere issue of UFO SIGHTINGS.

This magazine will be dedicated to reporting the truth — the whole, uncensored truth — about UFOs and aliens! We will hold nothing back, no matter who — or what — may threaten us! It's time that somebody did something, and if the press doesn't start things rolling, then we're all in big trouble.

Our first issue focuses on the alien presence — both past and present — in our society. Our tireless reporters have managed to track down some startling information. It will shock and astound you, but then again, we all know that truth really is stranger than fiction!

To lessen the shock a bit, we'll inform you beforehand of what you can expect. We have dug up the truth about the possibility that aliens may have killed a camper in Michigan. As if that's not jolting enough news, one of our ace reporters uncovered the story of a professor who discovered an alien dictionary. This may very well be one of the major breakthroughs in science and UFOlogy during the past century! Plus, believe it or not, it has been learned that aliens fought in the Russian Revolution. Did they set in motion the beginnings of communism taking over the free world? We have also included a startling report that aliens may be about to seize control of this country's presidential election, installing the candidate of their choice in office. You'll find these and many other fascinating articles within these pages.

In the months to come, UFO SIGHTINGS will delve much deeper into the mysterious world of UFOs. You can bet that whenever there's a major sighting, we'll be there to cover it in our own inimitable way! By all means, if you see a UFO, or know someone who has, contact us. You won't only be helping us, but all of humankind as well! Until the next issue, remember, UFOs are in our midst — the truth shall soon come out!

Sincerely,

Russell Wiener

WE DARE YOU TO LOOK OUT YOUR WINDOW AT NIGHT AFTER YOU HAVE READ JOHN BRENT MUSGRAVE'S "UFO OCCUPANTS AND CRITTERS" ...

• David Sewalt of Calgary, Alberta, Canada reported that he had been walking home across a field when he heard a humming noise. Looking up, he saw a large saucer shaped object with portholes all around the craft. The next thing he knew he was running into the house with the UFO still hovering overhead. Later, David had a nightmare, and afterward became convinced that in fact he had been abducted and taken aboard the saucer. David now remembers being taken up into the saucer by an orange beam of light, being put on a table and wheeled through a room full of instruments, being undressed by critters who had "rough brown skin like a crocodile," and wore no clothes. David described the critters as having holes for their ears and noses, and just sort of a slit where their mouth should be, with eyes that came out on a slant.

• Three men fishing as a lake south of Edmonton, claim to have witnessed an octopus-like creature associated with a light that landed around midnight. Allegedly at one point the critter even wrapped one of its tentacles around one of the witnesses and tried to drag him into the craft.

• About 10:45 one evening, a Mrs. Couturier glanced out of her kitchen window and noticed a patch of bluish light about 25 feet south of her house. She and her adult son went out in the yard to investigate. Although Mrs. Couturier walked up to a couple of feet of the light, her son remained near the corner of the house, urging extreme caution. The son only observed the bright blue light. Mrs. Couturier, on the other hand, had a far different experience. She observed what appeared as a "small person" lying on the ground with its face lifted so that she could see the eyes but not the lower part of the face. She was unable to determine the source of the light, but gained the impression that it came from the creature's eyes.

Born with an inquisitive mind, John Brent Musgrave has been interested in UFOs and especially in reports of humanoids and "critters", for many years. He wanted to know what was behind the behaviour of these strange beasts, since he always felt that the answer to the UFO mystery was probably not to be found in investigating reports of lights in the sky, but in the all too numerous cases where creatures have actually been seen to emerge from these unknown craft.

Taking the bull by the horn, John Musgrave approached an agency of the Canadian government and told them he would like to research more fully those astounding reports in his country which he felt were significant. This agency gave him a sizeable grant and for several years John gathered all the material he could.

The above cases are only a few of the many examples of UFO-nauts terrorizing earthlings, intentionally or perhaps unintentionally. In UFO OCCUPANTS AND CRITTERS you will read dozens of well documented episodes all proving that we definitely are not alone in the universe.

Make no mistake about it, John Brent Musgrave is no flying saucer "kook". Instead, he is a highly trained astronomer who knows the difference between conventional objects that are often mistaken for authentic UFOs, and actual craft from other realms. What he has discovered during his research is absolutely amazing. He has weeded out those cases which can be rationally explained and has come up with some utterly thrilling findings.

This volume comes complete with illustrations, showing various types of UFO-nauts that have been observed, and answers that nagging question: WHAT IS BEHIND THE BEHAVIOR AND ORIGINS OF THE FLYING SAUCER CREW MEMBERS?

ALTER- NATIVE 003

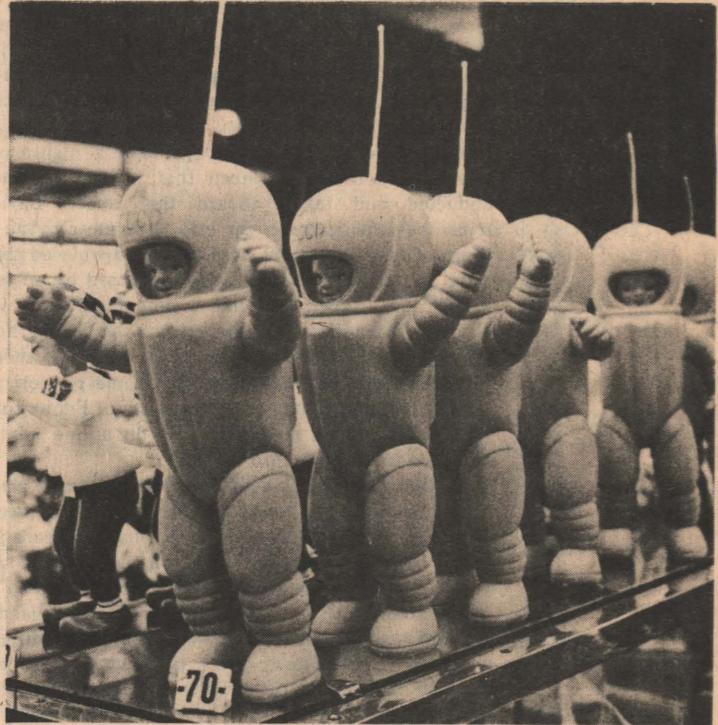

Are these the models used by the Russians for planting men on Mars? Read "Alternative Three" to find out.

■ What if the Earth were dying? What if the amount of pollution pumped into the air were to create a "greenhouse" effect, trapping the heat from the sun under a carbon dioxide blanket? How would the world's leaders react to this oncoming heat death?

Leslie Watkins, with David Ambrose and Christopher Miles, offers an answer to these questions in ALTERNATIVE THREE. They suggest that the United States and Soviet Union have undertaken a massive conspiracy to save mankind from ultimate destruction by transplanting people to Martian colonies. According to Watkins et al., the whole space program is a fraud; they believe that the conquest of space was achieved back in the 1950s and that the Apollo missions to the moon and the Voyager mission to Mars were just bluffs to keep the world from knowing the truth. They state that there is a conspiracy on a massive scale to kidnap the best scientists around the world—or eliminate those who won't help—to help establish a Martian settlement.

ALTERNATIVE THREE is fiction. Based on a documentary made in England, the book follows the discovery of the conspiracy up through and after the making of the documentary. However, the producer of the "documentary" has revealed in the September issue of OMNI that his film was imaginary. John Rosenberg has said in OMNI: "Looking back over the things I've done, the film that stands out most was a fictionalized 'documentary' called Alternative Three. It was about a conspiracy of several governments on Earth to plant survival colonies on Mars. We showed, very scientifically and realistically, that the ecology of the earth's environment was gradually ceasing to support life. The film caused a great furor over here. In fact, the networks were rather scared of it. I've never had such a response from the audience. All the telephone lines were jammed, and it proved to be a very worthwhile experience for me because I myself spoke to so many people about the program. The Americans were going to buy it, but then they didn't, fearing, I would think, another Orson Welles/War of the Worlds incident."

There are a number of basic scientific mistakes in the book that underline its fictitious nature. The concern that carbon dioxide will one day cause a runaway greenhouse effect—as happened on Venus—does not take into account the fact that green plants use carbon dioxide for sustenance. The slight increase in carbon dioxide is not enough to cause the runaway greenhouse effect. Also, they imply that there is air on Mars. There are simply too many indications from too many sources that Mars has almost no atmosphere—or at least one so low that no form of life could survive.

ALTERNATIVE THREE is presented in a "realistic" style at the beginning, including reports from transcripts between Russians and Americans, quotations from newspapers, and personal interviews with people involved in the project. The main body of the book follows the attempt by the film crew to track down the truth about Alternative Three and what happened after the documentary was aired. There is an overwhelming sense of paranoia in the book—a hangover, one supposes, from the Watergate affair.

If one enjoys finding conspiracies under every table, ALTERNATIVE THREE is perfect entertainment. If one is searching for the truth about unusual phenomena in and around our planet, the book is a smokescreen. The book does not clear away any of the mysteries about UFOs or possible conspiracies; rather, it creates confusion where there should be none.

ALTERNATIVE THREE is published by Avon Books. The paperback version costs $2.25. ●

THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR

■ One of the primary services a book-reviewer is supposed to perform for the reading public is to tell them how the book he is reviewing differs from other previously written books of the same genre. This will not be possible with THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR, however, because this book, which purports to be yet another so-called close encounter with an extraterrestrial race, offers us nothing we have never read before. Only the names have been changed.

To summarize the book, one has only to list the chapter titles—"Prologue to the Incredible," "Uninvited Visitors," "On Board," "The Examination," "Trip to an Alien Realm," and so on. With titles like these, one wonders why anyone would even bother to read the chapters themselves. One would bother, of course, if by reading the chapters, one would learn something new, but with THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR, this is not the case. To have read the chapter titles is to have read the whole book.

Here is the content of THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR in a nutshell: The Andreasson family is at home one night, minding its own business, when suddenly, an alien starship lands in the backyard. The aliens, whose leader goes by the name Quazga, enter the house and put everyone into a trance except for the woman of the house, Betty Andreasson. She is taken aboard the aliens' ship [sound familiar?] and "examined." She is also taken on a little trip by her hosts to what she surmises to be the aliens' home planet. Eventually, she is returned to Earth and just before saying goodbye, the aliens wipe Betty Andreasson's mind clean of all memory of what has happened to her. However, as time passes, Mrs. Andreasson begins to feel that something has happened to her, but she doesn't know what.

In order to find out the truth, she undergoes hypnosis and this is when the "true story" comes out. Indeed, a great deal of the book consists of transcripts of Betty Andreasson's statements under hypnosis, complemented by drawings made by her of what she has seen. Thus, we have drawings of the alien ship, some of the instruments supposedly used to examine Mrs. Andreasson, the aliens' home planet, and of course, the aliens themselves. We also have a middle section consisting of photographs of Betty Andreasson, her family, and some of those who examined her, including the hypnotist, Dr. Harold J. Edelstein, and the author of the book, Raymond E. Fowler. There is also an interesting series of photos of a three-dimensional bust of Quazga, the leader of the aliens, based on Betty Andreasson's description of him—or her or it.

And this, above all, is the problem with THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR. After George Adamsky, Betty and Barney Hill, and who knows how many others, the last thing the world needs is yet another personal Abduction by Aliens account. What the world does need is proof. The fact that Betty Andreasson told her story under hypnosis does not constitute proof that the events described by her actually took place; it only proves that a.) she believes the events happened or b.) it is possible to lie under hypnosis. What the world needs is photos of the aliens, their ship, and their instruments and "hard" evidence of their existence.

THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR provides neither.

THE ANDREASSON AFFAIR, by Raymond E. Fowler, is published by Prentice-Hall, Inc. and costs $8.95 in hardcover.

IN SEARCH ANCIENT

■ We are often given to the patronizing attitude that simply because a tribe of people is primitive, they are also ignorant of how the world works. Because they cannot give the mathematical formula for a triangle, we think they don't know how to use one. Because they build out of stone, we think they are inaccurate architects. This chauvinistic attitude on our part—believing that we are smarter than the primitives—often confuses us as to the true value and wisdom of these peoples.

IN SEARCH OF ANCIENT ASTRONOMIES (edited by Dr. E.C. Krupp) explores many of the mysteries of stone-age astronomy (also called archaeo-astronomy) and comes to the conclusion that our early ancestors were much wiser than we give them credit for being. The book is a series of essays based on lectures given at the University of California, San Diego, and the University of California, Los Angeles, in 1975. The authors of the lectures wrote up their ideas as essays which have been used in the book.

The first essay, "A Sky for All Seasons," by Dr. Krupp, gives an overview of spherical astronomy, an introduction into the behavior of the sun, stars, moon, and planets as seen from the surface of the earth. It gives a non-mathematical illustration of how the months and years work and how the motions of the heavens can be easily determined.

"Rings and Menhirs: Geometry and Astronomy in the Neolithic Age" by Alexander and Archibald Stevenson Thom leads the reader back into prehistory to study the strange stones and stone rings of Britain and France. One of the surprising revelations is that Neolithic man may have had a better sense of geometry than was long supposed. We are accustomed to thinking that geometry was created by the Greeks, but now it seems that several stone age cultures had developed sophisticated ideas about geometry just by following the movement of the stars and planets.

Stonehenge has always been a fascinating mystery to many people. Dr. Krupp examines the site in "The Stonehenge Chronicles" and pulls together much of the information that has previously been published to give an excellent overview of the ingenuity of the ancient Britains in the creation of the great stone ring.

In "Archaeoastronomy of North America: Cliffs, Mounds, and Medicine wheels" by John A. Eddy, the focus shifts to North America. Recently, evidence has been accumulating that the American Indians followed an independent line of reasoning, but still reached the same conclusions as the Neolithic Britains about how the objects they saw in the sky worked. The final structures differ considerably from the stone rings of Britain, but they are all equally accurate.

"Astronomy in Ancient Mesoamerica" by Anthony F. Aveni studies the amazingly accurate astronomy of Mexico and Central America. One of the facts discovered is that much of the architecture of the Aztecs and Mayas was designed around astronomical observation and that odd buildings in the great old cities may have been built just to study one celestial event.

Dr. Krupp returns in "Astronomers, Pyramids, and Priests" to study the astronomical knowledge of the ancient Egyptians. Although we know much of the information the Egyptians discovered—they left it in writing—we still are not absolutely sure of how they acquired their knowledge. We have a few of their calculating Alfred Watkins, and the terrestrial zodiac of Katherine Maltwood.

IN SEARCH OF ANCIENT ASTRONOMIES is an excellent book for the amateur astronomer and for the general public. Much of the confusion about the mysteries of the past is cleared up by an accurate account of what really happened in the past. Diehard fanatics may find the book challenging to their beliefs, but they might have many questions answered in detail.

IN SEARCH OF ANCIENT ASTRONOMIES is published by Doubleday and Company. The hard cover book costs $10.00.

There are many dimensions to space, as seen here. Naturally, this fascinates astronomers.

Since the dawn of time, people have looked to the skies for explanations for life.

instruments still in existence, but they seem limited in accuracy when compared with the massive stone works found in America and Britain.

The final chapter may be the most interesting for our readers. Dr. Krupp examines in "Observatories of the Gods and Other Astronomical Fantasies" some of the more current "heretical" theories by Velikovsky and von Daniken among others. He clearly points out many of the contradictions and obvious mistakes in these new ideas. In addition, Krupp also takes to task the belief that the Dogon tribe were familiar with the dark companion of the star Sirius, the ley lines of

ALIEN DICTIONARY

FOUND!

Recent newcomer to our team, Jason Murdoch, reveals the amazing discovery of an alien dictionary that may ultimately give us a clue to the motives for alien intervention on our planet!

■ Wanikuha is a small town in a region of New York State that is primarily flat, meandering countryside punctuated with an occasional gently rising hill. The town itself is a rustic collection of one and two-story buildings arrayed along either side of a single two-lane highway that is, in fact, the only street in town. Named after an ancient Indian chief whose name in English means "Favored Son of the Great Spirit," Wanikuha has a native population of some 2,000 inhabitants. However, this population swells each year to almost 40,000 each spring as students at Howardson University, just beyond the town limits, begin their studies.

Like any college town, Wanikuha seems strangely deserted during the summer months and so, as I drove along the highway that runs through the center of town, I felt almost as if I were driving through a ghost town. But the weather was uncharacteristically mild for the middle of August and so my feeling was one not of ominous foreboding, but rather of peaceful calm.

I stayed on the highway as it led out of town and followed it to another, smaller, road that branched off into the surrounding countryside. As I turned onto it, I glanced at the notebook on the seat beside me and read once more the directions that had been dictated to me over the phone little more than 24 hours before. If they were correct, this road would take me to Howardson University and a most amazing rendezvous with destiny.

Professor Roger Haily of the linguistics department, when he smiled and shook my hand, proved to be as lively and affable in person as he had been on the phone. As he led me down the hall to his office, he told me how pleased he was that I could come to speak with him. He asked me how I'd enjoyed the drive, had I been to that part of New York before, etc. It was not until we'd entered his office, closed [and locked] the door behind us, and sat down to face each other across an ancient desk cluttered with books and papers of every conceivable size and description, that the professor leaned forward, his expression serious. "Please don't think me paranoid," he said, "but before we begin I must ask you if you are absolutely certain no one has followed you here."

Smiling, I assured Professor Haily that mine had been the only car on the highway that morning and the professor, though he made no sound, was quite visibly relieved. "Good," he said after a few seconds of silence.

Several more seconds passed in which no words were exchanged. Finally, I asked the professor, "What is it exactly that you wish to show me? Your description over the phone was rather vague."

"Yes, I know," Professor Haily said. "But if you'll just be patient . . ." His words trailed off as he unlocked one of his desk drawers and withdrew a small, yellow book. He examined it briefly, then handed it to me slowly as if reluctant to let it out of his grip. "Tell me what you make of this," he said.

I took the book from him and became immediately intrigued when I noticed that the cover was comprised of a material I had never seen or felt before. Though the cover was no thicker than, say, a matchbook cover, I was completely unable to bend it, even using both hands. In addition, there were a few lines of strange printing on the cover. Inside the book was page after page of the same weird printing.

"What language is this?" I asked the professor.

"I don't know," was the professor's cryptic reply.

"But I don't understand," I said. "I thought linguistics was your field."

"It is," the professor said, leaning back in his chair.

"But . . ."

"The writing in that book does not correspond to any language spoken on the face of the Earth."

"And that's why you contacted us?"

"Exactly. I didn't know whom else to turn to."

I nodded my approval. Thanks to this academician's foresightedness, here was one possible piece of evidence of aliens in our midst that would not be buried beneath the cloak of so-called national security! "You did the right thing in contacting me," I said. "Now tell me, where did you find this book?"

Aaogi businessmen wait for morning bus to work. If only they would talk to us.

The professor leaned forward again. "Believe it or not, I found it in New York City, during a recent trip there. A man left it on the subway."

"Can you describe this man?"

"No," the professor replied, shaking his head. "I'd been sitting next to him for several minutes, but I really hadn't paid that much attention. It was only later, after he'd gotten off, that I noticed the book. I know it sounds unbelievable . . ."

"On the contrary, professor. New York City is a major center for alien activity on this . . ."

"Aliens!" the professor exclaimed! "Do you really think . . .?"

"I don't know. It's possible."

The professor nodded gravely. Then, he said: "I am at your disposal."

"Good," I said. "Have you deciphered any of the words in this book?"

"No," the professor said. "I've been trying for weeks, but have yet to decipher a single character. You must understand that this is a small university and I have only limited means at my disposal. If I could only get my hands on certain equipment. There is a certain computer—there are only three like it in the world . . .”

“Four,” I corrected.

The professor looked at me, amazed. “You have a Computer Innovations C-813279Z?”

“Yes,” I replied flatly.

“Can I use it?”

“Of course. And the sooner, the better.”

It was a long drive back to New York City and my anxiousness to decipher the contents of Professor Haily's book did not make the time pass any faster, but eventually, we reached the main office and the Computer Innovations C-813297Z. The professor went to work immediately. As I watched the linguistics expert pore over the curious volume, making copious notes, carefully transferring the strange symbols from the book's pages to the computer's input, I was constantly tempted to ask questions, but I prudently held my peace so that Haily could work unhindered.

Several hours and uncounted cups of coffee later, the professor put down his pencil, rubbed his eyes, and turned to me. “I think we're in luck,” he said.

“You've translated the book?” I asked anxiously.

Haily gestured for more coffee. I put some Taster's Choice in a cup, added water, and handed the cup to him. “What can you tell me?” I prodded.

The professor smiled. “It's a dictionary.”

I could feel my eyes widen with surprise. “A dictionary? What kind of dictionary?”

“They call themselves the Aaogi. They come from Tau Ceti. Fourth planet in the Tau Ceti system, to be more precise, or maybe it's the third. I'm not sure.”

I could hardly contain my joy. “Do you mean to say, professor, that we are actually in possession of a dictionary of some extraterrestrial language?”

No, no,” the professor replied. “What we have here is not simply an Aaogi dictionary, but rather, an Aaogi-English, English-Aaogi dictionary.”

“What??! Are you positive?”

“Yes. Absolutely.” He opened the book and began pointing to various words and sentences as he explained: “Look. In this column, here, we have the Aaogi word and in this column, here, we have the equivalent English word, written in Aaogi characters.”

The author briefs reporters on his findings.

“Then, by means of this book, we can figure out the Aaogi language, learn about their culture, and perhaps even discover their purposes here on Earth.”

“Yes,” the professor agreed, “it's possible. However, to do that, we must first find an Aaogi to talk to or some Aaogi writing that we can read.”

“Yes,” I said, “that's true enough,” and my face fell because I, for one, certainly did not know any Aaogi—nor, was I sure, did any of my friends.

“Perhaps,” the professor suggested, “we should contact the government.”

No,” I said emphatically. “That is the one thing we must not do.” I knew very well from past experience with our supposed “benefactors” in the U.S. government, what would happen to the Aaogi dictionary, should it fall into their hands: The dictionary would, for all practical purposes, cease to exist. I, personally, would be ridiculed and the aliens crawling over the face of the Earth would continue to operate with impunity.

“What should we do with it then?” Professor Haily asked me. “We cannot simply hold onto it.”

“No,” I admitted, “but if we put our heads together, there may be a way to put the Aaogi dictionary to use—for us.”

“And how do you propose to do that?”

The professor had me there. The dictionary itself was ample proof that there were aliens walking the Earth, but unfortunately, most of the people occupying positions of power in our government were more than willing to ignore “proof,” no matter how strong, if it conflicted with their personal beliefs. “The only “proof” these people would accept would be an encounter with an actual extraterrestrial.

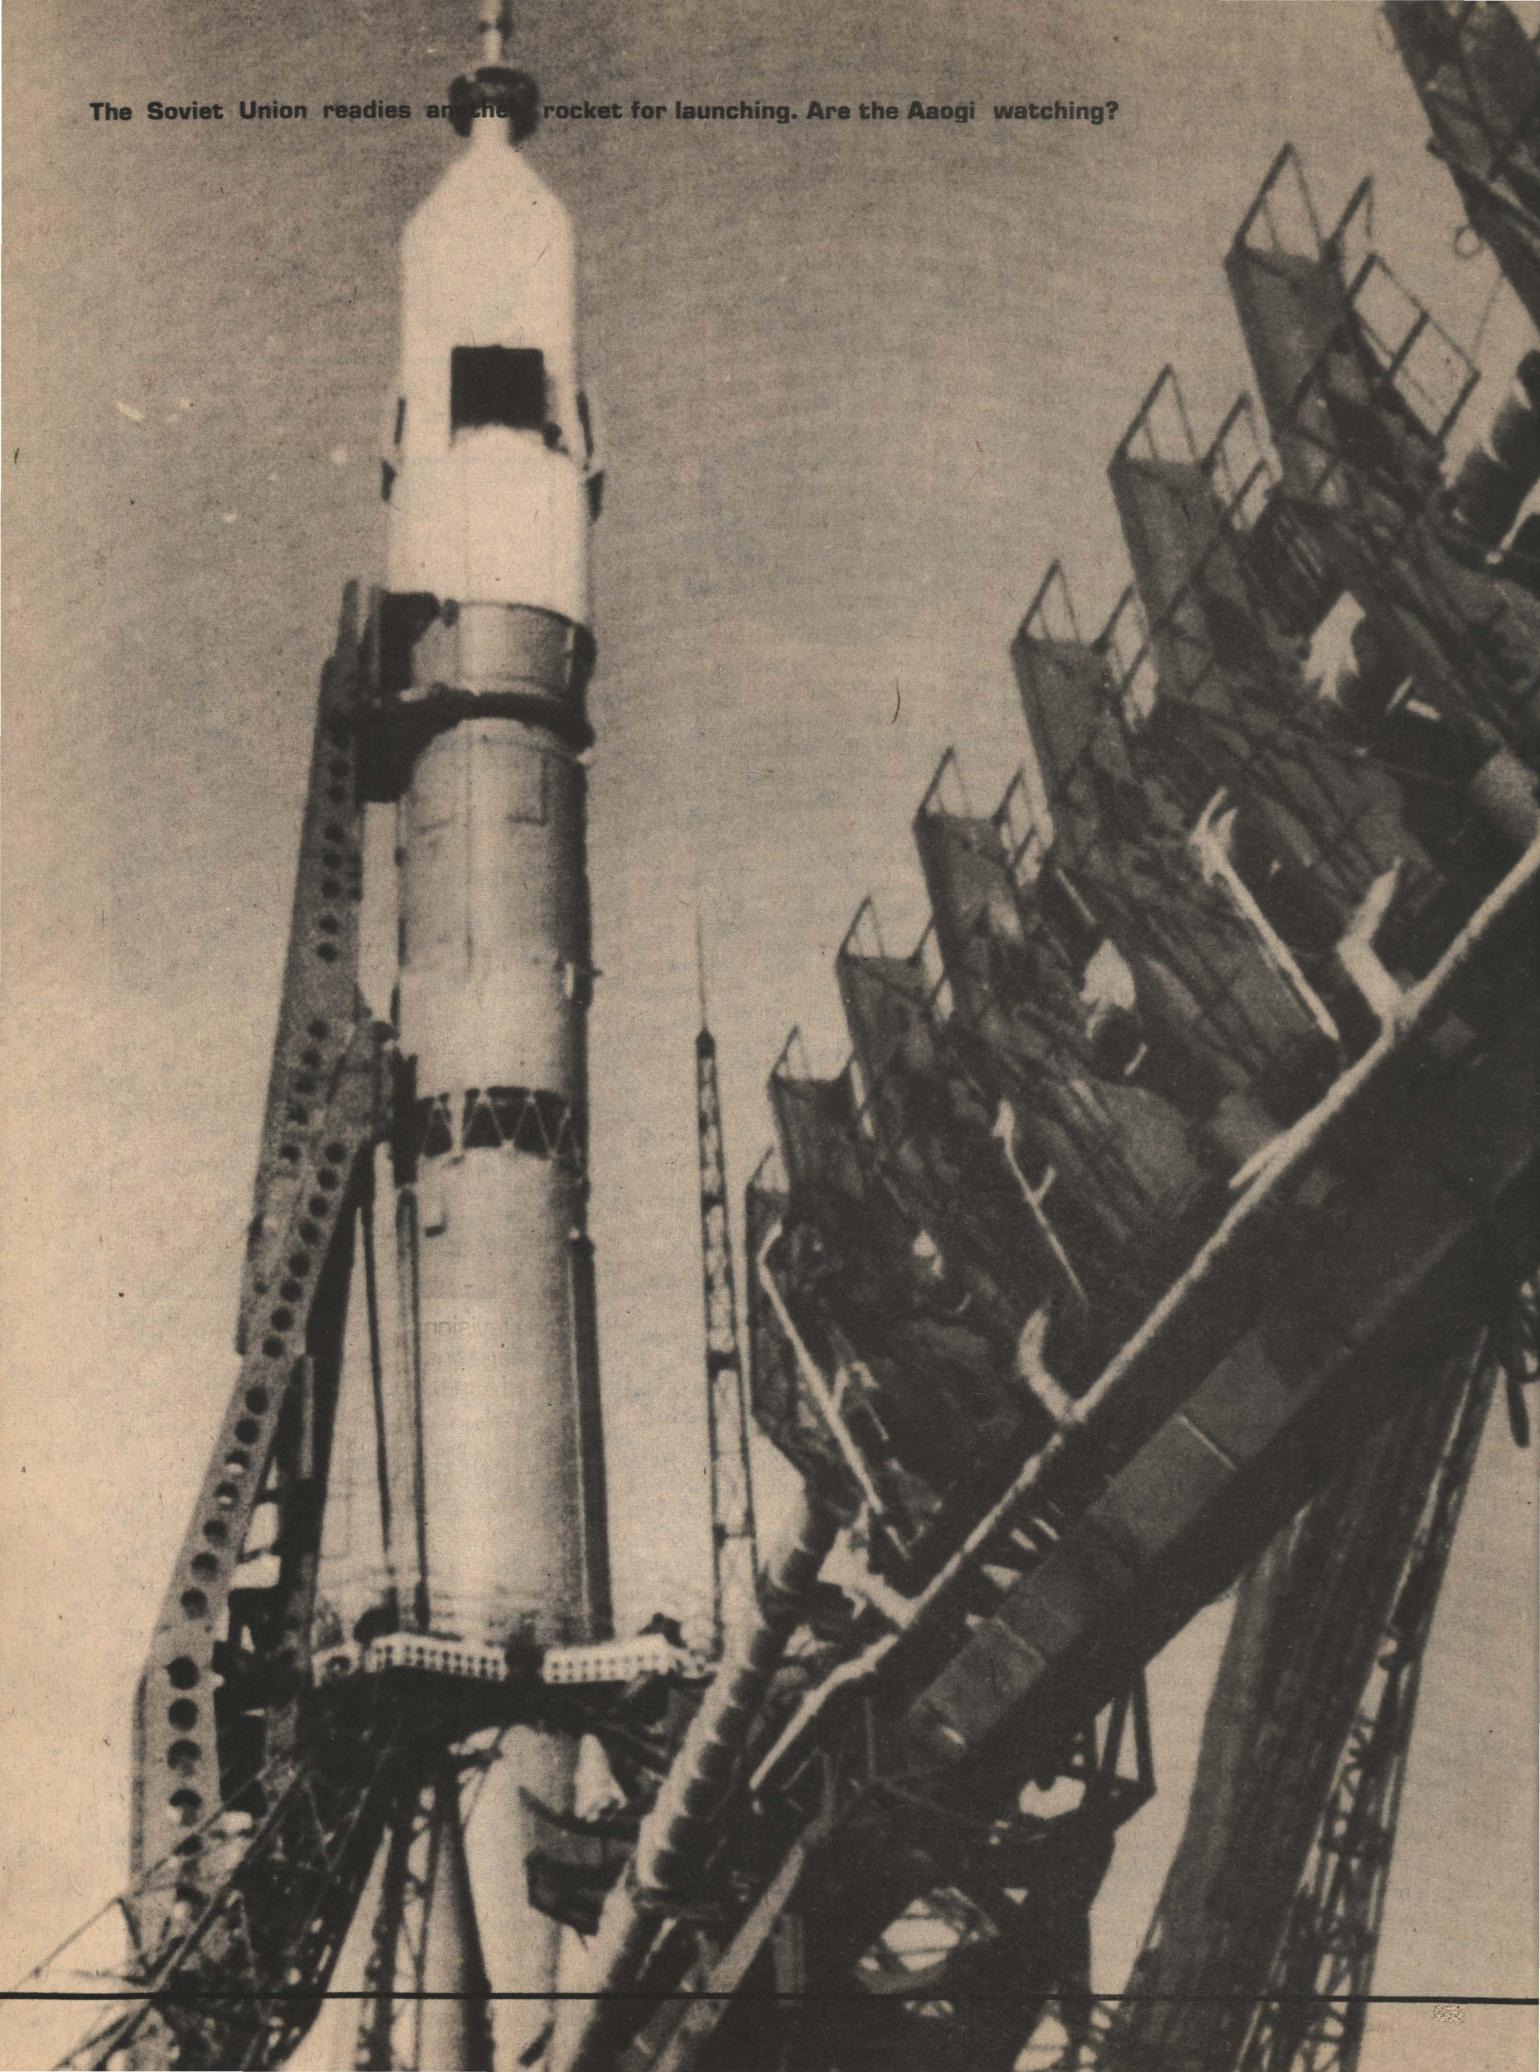

The chances of that, I knew, would be slim.

Or perhaps not.

We had the Aaogi dictionary and since we had it, that meant we might be able to communicate with the Aaogi themselves. I asked the professor if this would be possible.

“Perhaps,” the professor replied. “You see, it is true that we have

The Soviet Union readies another rocket for launching. Are the Aaogi watching?

Prof. Haily dedicated many hours to trying to translate the alien dictionary.

the dictionary, but that will only give us word definitions. There is much more to a language than its words. There is also grammar. Only by knowing the grammar, the way in which words are hooked together to express a logical thought, can we be able to use this dictionary to actually "broadcast" a message in such a way that it will be understood by the recipient."

"Can we use this dictionary to figure out the Aaogi grammar?" I asked.

"Yes," Professor Haily replied, "but it could take months, perhaps years. I may be able to put together a few crude sentences, however, with the aid of your staff and the C-8133279Z."

We went to work immediately.

The problems encountered by Professor Haily and the staff were enormous. Even though we had the Aaogi definition of many words, this could not make up for the fact that we were working in an idiom that was completely alien to us. Members of the investigative teams all over the world have had encounters with extraterrestrials and have been spoken in by them, but in those cases, the aliens had always spoken in English. This would be the first time we would be attempting to communicate with them in their language. Nevertheless, within days, we had managed to compose what we hoped would be a clear message.

The next problem, then, became choosing the most effective medium for communicating the message. All the media were considered—radio, television, books, newspapers, magazines...

Magazines!

That was it. The extraterrestrial races visiting Earth, were well aware of the existence of our magazine; indeed, they had attempted to contact us on numerous occasions. What better way to reach these races then, but to publish our message within these pages?

This, then, is the message: JDHE GDIE HDGOGIG EKEID KDGJTN UDNDT YDAFJKFNH JRHM KGGDG FSNDY AGAJN HGL!

We hope, if the Aaogi are still on Earth and have received this message, that they will contact us.

We call to you in peace. We mean you no harm. ●

□ Have you ever thought that if you sighted one of those weird, seemingly impossible objects from outer space coming in for a landing or observing us from within our atmosphere, you would either drop dead on the spot, fall unconscious, or go insane? What would you do if you experienced such a sighting? Would you believe your own eyes? How could you have what you see happening confirmed for you? Who would you ask, whom to trust, to handle such a situation? How would you handle it if you saw a flying saucer?

We here spend our lives considering such seemingly unreal possibilities. To us they are as real as the mundane, common aspects of life, such as fixing your car or brushing your teeth. That is why we are the first ones you should turn to for advice about just such situations — the type of hypothetical happenings that everyone becomes obsessed with considering at one time or another, yet hesitates to come straight out and ask about. There is a common sense way to approach such events as seeing a flying saucer or experiencing some other extra-terrestrial phenomenon, and if you remember these helpful hints for said situations, you may prevent yourself from losing your head in a dangerous way the next time you have such a sighting in front of your own eyes!

The first, and most vitally important, rule in the event that you should see, or think you see, something new in the sky or atmosphere above or ahead of you, is this seemingly obvious one: don't panic! Many a scary situation with aliens in the past could have been avoided if the humans involved hadn't lost their heads — and seemingly their whole grasp on reason — at the crucial moments. Keep calm while you are sizing up the situation. Remember, a calm man can hold his own in a fight, and is his nation's and world's best diplomat.

The second point is to relax. If the situation of seeing something that might never have been seen before is making you hot under the collar, loosen a collar button or two. Blink your eyes once or twice to get a clearer view — it may not have been those two double scotches before dinner, but there are also air pollution, fatigue and eyestrain to be considered as possible factors in your "sighting." Remember, if you can convince yourself that neither nervousness nor personal or atmospheric conditions are causing you to see something in the sky, you know that you are not hallucinating.

If you have serious doubt about your sanity in scary situations like sudden saucer sightings, getting a second opinion might be a wise idea. Before you start calling the local observatory, the police and the National Guard, call a friend or someone that you trust to come and look with you. Knock on a next door neighbor's portal and ask them to assist you in determining that you did actually see something up there. Don't be afraid to be thought mad! Get a relative to come over and sight along if you live with or nearby one. If you live with a family, get a member of the clan to come and see if what you're seeing is really to be seen. Frequently, the judgment of someone sane will be your best denominator in a flying saucer situation.

When you have seen something surfacing within the confines of our planetary atmosphere, and are sure to the full extent of your reasoning capabilities that it wasn't what you had for dinner, the next move to consider making in such a situation is to alert the authorities who can best handle the situation, and whatever new developments and problems may arise from it. This does not simply mean that you should call the police and wait for the armored squad car to come screaming up your block. There are several ways to handle the happening in a sane manner and guarantee that it will be kept under control.

First, the scientific minds in the area should be alerted to the possible phenomenon occurring in front of your eyes. They may have been alerted by other sighters of the scene already — and if you need a confirmation of your actually having sighted and not actually having lost your sanity, there really are no better ways. Call your local observatory or planetarium. If you are a Christian Scientist, call in an expert from the local Reading Room, or consult whatever writould you do if you saw a flying saucer? We have a set of common-sense rules you should consider first!

To Do About A UFO

3: A Lifesaving Guide

ings you might have at home that could guide you through such a situation. If you know a UFO expert or have an organization in the area devoted to study of such rare phenomena, phone them without hesitation. Explain clearly and precisely what is going on, state your full name and location and ask them to come to your assistance. They are better informed to investigate and control a space vehicle sighting than you may be yourself, with resources not at your immediate disposal.

Now that the information on doings when the sighting for sanity's sake has been disposed with, the question remains of what to do if you should have a close encounter of the third kind. If a flying saucer landed on your front lawn all of a sudden, out of nowhere and a clear blue sky — and alien intelligence could potentially have developed the technology to do such things — would you, perhaps, scream and run in the opposite direction? Or would you be moved to go for your gun? Or would you simply go into the house and lock the windows, double-lock all the doors, and turn out the lights and hold your breath to await the worst?

Obviously, these are slightly un-rational ways of dealing with such a potential situation. Not irrational — unless you are actually moved to go that far as to use that gun. Guns are first and foremost for self-defense, remember. If self-defense has not been proven to be necessary, you should not need to shoot the arrivals. Also, if they are a potential threat, wouldn't they perhaps be bullet-resistant, and perhaps antagonized by your harmless pellets enough to shoot you with a dose of something stonger than lead and more destructive than your ammunition? That is another possibility. But that isn't the point.

The main fact is that we consider creatures to be innocent until proven guilty when applying our best justice — and our best justice should prevail in such an incident. In America especially, the land of democracy, a rational application of this rule of justice is your best rule to follow. Until you see something aimed at your face or by some sleight-of-hand your house should start to burn down behind you, don't feel you have to start self-protection emergency measures at once. If you are concerned for your safety as a contact-participant, go for human help of some kind before you lose your head and do something that the whole world could regret later in an intergalactic or interplanetary conflict. In this type of situation, your sanity could save four billion lives, so don't lose it and do anything drastic!

In a close encounter, assuming that such a thing should ever happen to you, the best behavior to be on should be your best behavior. Try to be friendly, albeit tentative, to a newcomer. Attempt to control your shock if the new arrival wears what looks like a deathmask with two faces, or has two or three heads or tentacles, or seems to be an ambulatory robot android, or wears some kind of space gear you have never seen anything similar to before. You've seen Star Wars; you took crazy costuming or creatures in stride then, so why not in real life? Don't let your nerves get in the way. As for meaning you any harm — if the creature is intelligent, interested, diplomatic, and curious, it shouldn't try any funny stuff. You would be of value to an android investigator — remember, you are a form of intelligence on this new planet, someone whom they will need for information and under-

The man who has turned the track into A MONEY MACHINE!

Early in 1979, one world ranked scientist and 17 Professional Horse Players made a deal. That deal was nothing less than to take their vast combined experience and knowledge and subject it to analysis by one of the most powerful computers on earth, under the guidance of a world famous computer scientist. The aim was to produce the ultimate horse racing system. The skill of 17 men who were already making a luxurious living from the track went into the computer study. What came out will revolutionize gambling for a limited number of players in America.

THE TRUTH

If you're considering advice on playing the horses from anyone, you are plain gullible if you don't get answers to two questions:

1. Who is giving the advice and why should you believe him?

2. If the advice or system is so good why sell it?

If you read any racing paper you will have seen literally hundreds of advertisements with headlines that make ridiculous promises. One recently guaranteed you to win $1000 a week by spending 3 minutes handicapping each race! The price was $20. Ask yourself—if you really had a system so simple and so good would you sell it for $20? Hardly. If you want to be told there's a magic system that requires no effort and guarantees huge winnings READ NO FURTHER—but if you want the truth about racing, read right to the end of this announcement. You'll find there is a way to make a comfortable, relaxed living from the track but it takes at least an hour each day, using some completely new facts revealed by an extraordinary new report.

THE AUTHOR—of the report is Professor Frank George. He is recognized internationally as one of the world's top computer scientists. He is a consultant to N.A.T.O., a consultant to the Treasury and the British Ministry of Defence. Dr. George has lectured extensively on Computer Applications throughout the whole United States at top Universities like McGill and Princeton, and is a member of the prestigious Smithsonian Institute in Washington. NEVER BEFORE HAS SUCH AN EMINENT SCIENTIST WRITTEN OR PUT HIS REPUTATION BEHIND A STUDY OF HORSE RACING.

Indeed it was Professor George's sheer status that made this history making project possible in the first place.

For Professor George may be one of the top 5 computer experts in the world—but he is also a horse player of some 30 years experience. As such he had felt the same frustration every player feels—there's just so much information available on each race and so much advice—often conflicting advice!—but which information is really relevant in predicting the outcome. Just how much importance, for example, do you give to speed, or age, distance, earnings, weight, class, current form, the stable? And more complicated still, how do these factors relate to each other?

The average human mind is just not capable to considering so many factors at once—so the average horse player develops his own simplified handicapping system—and the average horse player loses.

But there are Professional Horse Players who do win regularly and win big. There's enough of them to be certain it can be done. The Professionals win because they know there is a predictable pattern in the results.

THE ULTIMATE SYSTEM

Professor George's idea was inspired. At the beginning of 1979 he approached in all 17 professional players, one at a time, and offered them a 'deal'. The deal was this. He had available to him one of the world's most powerful computers. It had already been fed with EVERY race at EVERY major track for the last 2 years—in all several million bits of data. (This itself had been an extremely expensive and time consuming project).

Professor George offered to take each gambler's own system and run it through his computer. The computer would reveal the exact strengths and weaknesses of the pro's own system and show him precisely how to improve it. It was an irresistible offer, especially as it was agreed in advance that each individual professional player's own system would remain a secret between him and the Professor. However, the overall results of all the systems would be the property of the Professor—in other words Professor George ended up with ONE final system that combined the best elements of 17 professionals who were already making a living from the track! The cream of the cream. The ultimate system.

Professor George now has the horseplayer's dream. A clear, simple method of selecting horses that is automatically adjusted in advance to take into account all the important and relevant information. You no longer have to consider a large number of factors because the computer has already considered them for you. The system works in effect like a pocket calculator which is preprogrammed, so when you feed in simple data it instantly feeds you back with a simple answer.

Yet the report doesn't just contain a system, it reveals fundamental truths about horse racing—facts that will win for you in a lifetime of playing the horses. One fact alone guarantees to make anyone possessing the report a winner.

HOW THE PROFESSIONALS CAN CALCULATE THE TRUE ODDS IN ADVANCE!

The essential difference between the professional horse players and the millions of unsuccessful bettors who keep them in relaxed luxury is this. A professional knows how to calculate in advance of the race what the TRUE ODDS on each horse should be.

A simple example proves this key point. If you knew in advance that the TRUE ODDS of a horse should be, say, 2-1 yet the public had underrated it and given it FALSE ODDS of 5-1, you're suddenly on the "inside," with the odds running in your favor. You can now bet on the basis that you can lose as often as you win but the price of your winners GUARANTEES YOU A PROFIT.

Re-read the last paragraph. Notice that no one is asking you to be a miracle worker—you can still lose as many bets as you collect, but because the odds are now running FOR you not AGAINST you, your cash profit will be continuous. That's how the professionals win—no fantasy blue sky-high percentage of winners, just solid, continuous earnings from backing PROBABILITIES. For the first time you're in the position the track normally enjoys—on the inside with the edge running for you.

DEVASTATINGLY SIMPLE SECRET

The secret is devastatingly simple—once you know what the "true odds" really are, you must win. Professionals aren't 1000 times smarter than you—they just know the secret of 'TRUE ODDS'. And Professor George's report shows you how to calculate "true odds" and therefore how to invest in PROBABILITIES.

The report, however, also contains an absolute treasure trove of previously unpublished data on American horse racing.

We all know, to take just one example, that stables disguise form—but the combined experience of the professional players, checked and refined by the computer, has thrown up FIVE clear signs of a horse that's "ready". It's almost like having a direct line to each stable in the race. You move yet again from the outside to the "inside." You know who's disguising form. You know who's inflating the odds to make a killing. And most important, you know if he's likely to pull it off—so you can be right there, scooping in the winnings with him.

THE AUTHOR—Professor Frank George.

Every single factor that makes for a winner is examined in this report and for the first time you get hard facts not opinion. For example, you will know that one simple aspect of speed is four times as important as a straight Speed Rating—yet it has been previously overlooked!

Knowledge is Power. When you bet on the Totalisator you're not backing against a faceless machine, you're backing against other people's money. The player with the best knowledge wins.

Professor George with his historic "deal", has acquired that knowledge. And now YOU can acquire this towering advantage over other bettors. You can acquire the exact knowledge and exact system used by Professor George, just by clipping the coupon below. Too good to be true?

WHY SELL PRICELESS INFORMATION?

To a horseplayer who sincerely wants to make a living from the track, Professor George's report is probably literally priceless—but it was certainly not cost-less! In fact the research involved, the computer programming and the preparation of the report cost well over $100,000. This cost is naturally being recovered from winnings, but Professor George rightly reasons that it can also be partly and immediately recovered by offering a strictly limited number of copies of his report appropriately entitled 'A Better Bet'.

You are advised to act now. It's a chance to experience the exhilarating sensation of winning continuously, of joining the elite ranks of 'The Professionals'. The Report costs $25 and will be sent by First Class Mail. Mail now before the offer closes!

Calling the police in such a situation is always a good idea if you are not sure how else to control it. Keep in mind and stress to them that you do not wish to initiate a conflict with the new visitors, but remember that the best way to insure this prevention is to have the area sealed from potential troublemakers as quickly as is possible. It sometimes takes reminding a policeman or force that doing their job with an unknown visitor does not necessarily mean using force, violence or gunshot against the newcomer(s). Remember the lesson of The Day The Earth Stood Still: diplomacy now could prevent worldwide chaos later.

CAMPER KILLED IN MICHIGAN:

■ Andrew Holmes was a young geology student in his second year at Northwestern University, in Michigan. His grades had been good that year [1979] and so, when summer vacation came, he decided to reward himself by doing something he'd been planning for a long time: A solo hiking trip through the Upper Peninsula. Consequently, he filled a backpack, hitched a ride to a point just outside the town of Marquette—near the northern tip of the state—and set out into the woods.

He never returned.

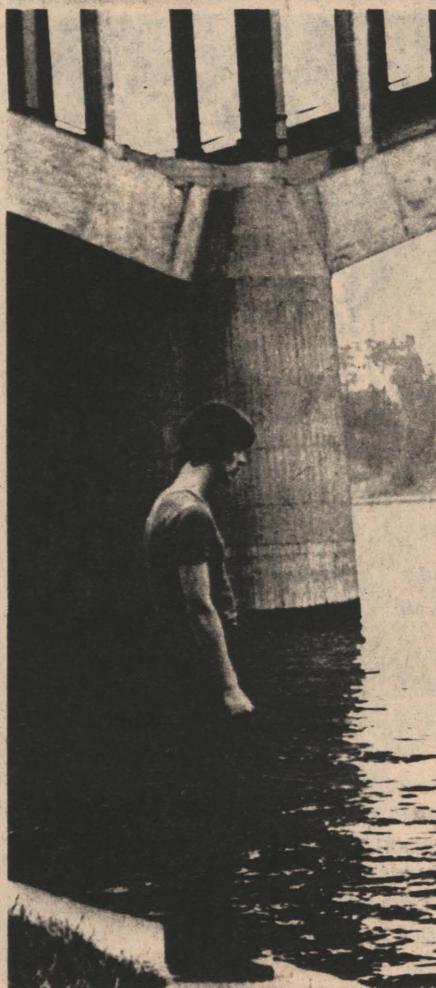

The woods in northern Michigan cover a vast area and so, it was nearly a week before the body of Andrew Holmes was found slumped over a rock beside a quietly running river. Exposure to the elements had caused the body to deteriorate at a rapid rate and the odor must have been overpowering as the corpse was put inside a plastic bag and transported to the nearest hospital for examination.

Holmes' backpack, which had been lying on the ground only inches from his body, was opened and found to contain enough food for several days. Furthermore, the body had been discovered next to a source of fresh water. Therefore, it seemed clear that Andrew Holmes had not died from starvation or thirst; nor did it seem he could have died from exposure since it was summer and he had a sleeping bag.

As is standard procedure in such cases, an autopsy was performed on the body of Andrew Holmes to determine precisely what had been the cause of death.

All the tests came up negative.

He was young and seemed to be in perfect health—yet he was dead. Only one explanation seemed plausible...

Andrew Holmes in a photo taken only days before his death.

Andrew Holmes had been a young man, strong, and in good health. There was nothing wrong with his heart, kidneys, or any other organ. No poisons were detected in the body, nor were any drugs. After three days, then, the doctors completed their examination as baffled as when they had begun it.

The doctors were stymied, but duty demanded that they make every possible effort to determine the cause of Andrew Holmes' death. Therefore, since they had performed every test allowed by the facilities available to them, it was decided that the body be shipped downstate to the hospital at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The University of Michigan Hospital was a state-of-the-art institution equipped with the latest in diagnostic equipment. If the experts there could not determine what had killed Holmes, then there would be no choice but to release the body for burial and write the case up as "unsolved."

The doctors set to work in earnest. First, they repeated all the tests done earlier by the doctors upstate in order to confirm the upstate doctors' conclusions. They were confirmed.

Though superior to the upstate hospital in many ways, it was in the area of microbiology that the U. of M. hospital had its greatest edge. It was decided to begin the new investigation there. Tissue samples were taken from various parts of the body and carefully analyzed. At first, the results were, as before, negative. But when the hospital's electron microscope was brought into play,

WERE ALIENS RESPONSIBLE?

By Nora Reese

the doctors hit paydirt. Dr. John Mellon, the microbiologist who headed the investigation, explains:

"We had been trying to find an overt physical cause of Holmes' death with absolutely no success. He was young, healthy, and his organs were in good shape; there was simply no logical reason for him to have . . . It just didn't make sense.

"We decided, therefore, to attack the problem from a microbiological angle. Since the subject was obviously dead, something must have killed him. Perhaps it was something very small, something we were not familiar with, something that could kill without leaving any readily visible physical damage in its wake.

"It was the first time, to my knowledge, that an electron microscope had been used in the performance of an autopsy, but my colleagues and myself felt this unorthodox and unprecedented step necessary in light of the fact that all other methods used by us had failed.

"So we took a tiny scraping from the inside surface of the subject's cheek and subjected it to examination with the electron microscope. The result was immediate, dramatic, and, to say the least, puzzling."

What Dr. Mellon and his colleagues found in the body of Andrew Holmes were extremely tiny microbes, much tinier and different in appearance than any virus discovered heretofore. Nonetheless, an attempt was made to put the microbe into some kind of classification. The attempt proved fruitless.

"What we have here," Dr. Mellon said, continuing his explanation, "is a new organism, a form of life that has never been seen before. What it is and where it came from is far beyond me. As for what it's doing in the tissues of a human being is . . . well . . . I just don't know. I don't doubt for a second that this is what killed Andrew Holmes, but I can't tell you how it happened because, frankly, I just don't know what the damn thing is."

In order to learn more about the strange organism, samples were taken and placed in petri dishes to multiply. So far, there has been little progress. As Dr. Marilyn Gladwell, another member of the scientific team puts it, "The Holmes Microbe is something new, something we've never seen before, but more than that, it seems to be a complete anomaly. Its biological makeup and processes are completely unlike that of any other living thing on Earth. In order to study it, then, we must begin virtually from scratch."

Because of this necessity to "begin virtually from scratch," the investigation is proceeding slowly. Nevertheless, there is one hypothesis on which everyone studying the microbe agrees: the so-called "Holmes Microbe" is not of this Earth.

"It almost certainly has to be of extraterrestrial origin," states Dr. Manuel Ortega, an exobiologist called in soon after the idea was proposed. "New organisms evolve from other organisms that preceded it. They don't just appear out of nowhere."

It was at this point that we

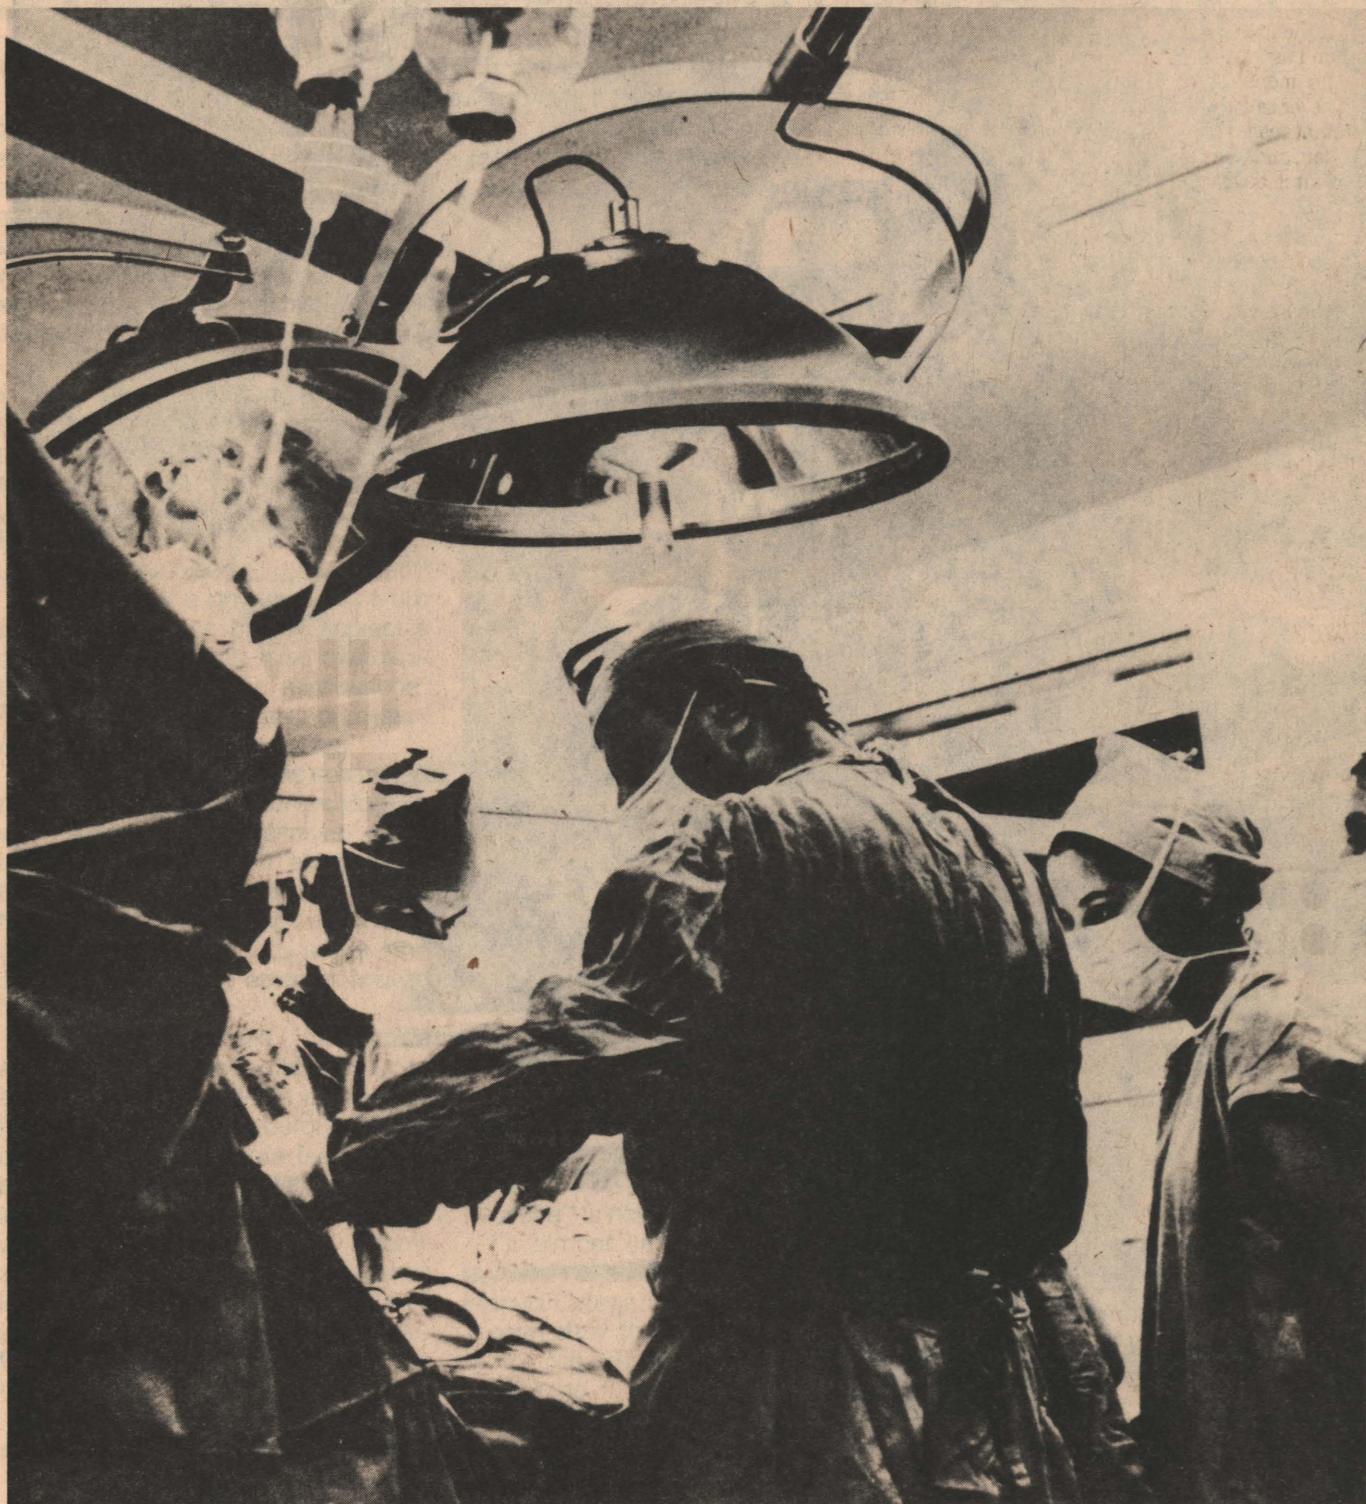

Scientists search area surrounding spot where Holmes died for evidence of extraterrestrials.

were contacted and asked to check its files for any record of UFO activity in the area of Michigan where the body of Andrew Holmes had been found. As it turned out, no sightings had been reported, but this did not necessarily disprove Dr. Ortega's hypothesis. The area under question was vast, heavily wooded and sparsely populated. It would not be unusual for a UFO entering that area—especially if it came low, just above the treetops and made little noise—to go completely undetected. It was decided, therefore, to send a team of investigators to northern Michigan to comb the area for evidence of UFO activity.

The search began early in the morning of Sept. 3, 1979. Using the spot where Holmes' body had been found as the center, a circle three miles in diameter was described and divided into grids. Each grid was assigned five searchers, one of whom was equipped with a metal detector. In addition, each team carried “Imagine! I received money just by using the powers of my mind. So can you!”

It's true! Now I am going to tell you this almost unbelievable story. I was down on my luck, so one day I decided to see for myself once and for all if silent command powers really worked. So I went to a New York bank and asked for a money order for $48. While the teller went to make up the money order I simply applied the mystifying powers of my mind. I never said a word. Sure enough, the clerk was back with a money order that read $1,000,048. Yippee—it really worked! If I can do this, anyone can, and the amazing part of this is that it's as easy as turning on a light switch once you know how. You can learn in minutes.

TRANSFORM YOUR LIFE

You know I wouldn't be able to say this if it really didn't happen to me. So I decided to offer my unique Mind Control method to those lucky few who are wise enough to take advantage of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Let me assure you that these powers are so fantastic, you will be able to dominate anyone you choose just by using your powers of mind command. Imagine! All of your dreams of wealth, wisdom, love and popularity are yours for the taking!

a walkie-talkie in order to make hourly reports to a central command post on its progress and to summon assistance should it become necessary.

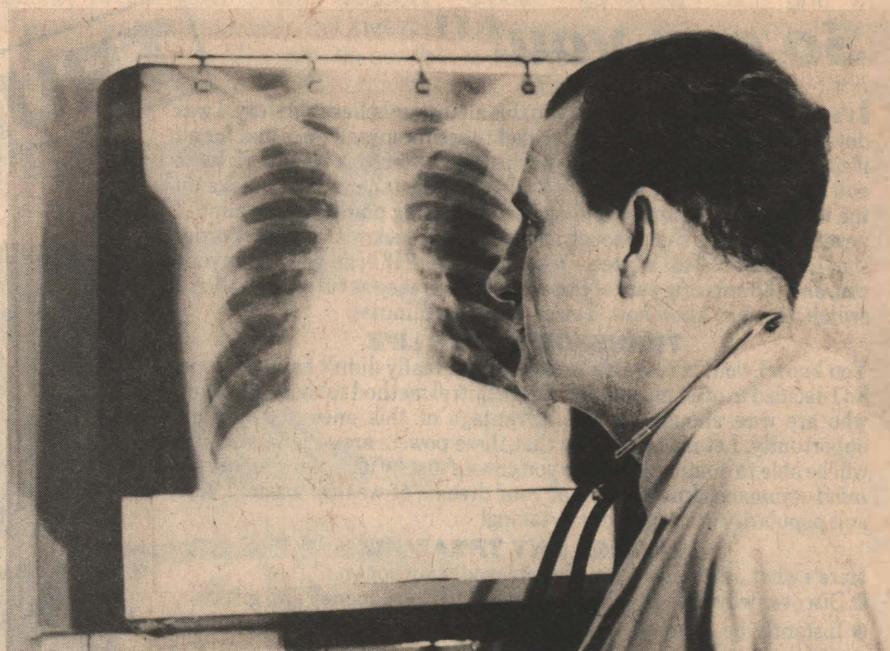

It was not until late afternoon of the second day that one of the searchers shouted excitedly into his walkie-talkie that he had found something. Quickly, the other teams converged on the area where they found the team that had sent the alert crouched around a circular burn-mark of about 20 feet in diameter. Beyond the circle, at a distance of 30 feet, arrayed at three points around it, were three deep depressions.

Was the burn-mark made by an alien spacecraft? Were the three depressions made by the craft's landing legs? To many of the scientists working on the project, the idea seemed fantastic, but no more fantastic than the strange microbes that should not have existed, but nevertheless did. Also, to assume the presence of extraterrestrials in the woods near the place of Andrew Holmes' death would allow the scientists to form a hypothesis as to how the death occurred.

Perhaps an alien craft really did land in the woods of northern Michigan and perhaps the occupants of that craft decided to take a little exploratory stroll, a stroll during which they encountered an Earthman, a young male named Andrew Holmes. And perhaps, either deliberately or inadvertently—probably the latter—the human was infected by an alien microbe, a microbe against which his body would have had no defense. And the microbe killed him.

Is this in fact what happened to Andrew Holmes on his fatal hike through the woods of northern Michigan?

We believe it is. ●

Dr. John Mellon, who headed investigation, examines X-ray of Andrew Holmes.

It was by this river in northern Michigan that the body was found.

TIME TRAVEL SOLVED!

Dr. Jean Killingsworth, one of our research scientists, has uncovered a unified field theory of space-time travel, which will explain why UFOs are seen so frequently around our planet. Time travel will soon be ours for the asking!

■ "Anything the mind can conceive can become a reality."

This is our creed at our research centers. It is our goal in life to reveal possible explanations of the many mysterious phenomena we see around us every day. We know, for instance, there is active alien interference on our planet. Although the ultimate reason for this interference has not yet been discovered, it seems only a matter of time before we learn the truth.

At the same time, we have discovered the existence of time travelers in our midst. We have only sketchy evidence of their activities, but we have allocated many of our resources to learning their reasons for interfering in our lives.

One major problem that has always confronted us about both alien visitors and time travelers is their mode of transportation. We know the distance between stars is enormous and, therefore, any intelligent race that would visit our planet must spend great amounts of time and power to come here. Also, it seems almost impossible in the Einsteinian universe for people to go back through time, and yet we have evidence that this is so. Again, the power requirements for moving through time would seem to be prohibitive. Obviously, since we know there are aliens and time travelers in our midst, they must have some economical method of transportation. We have set about trying to determine how an economical method of time-space transportation could be achieved.

Only recently have we come across

Dr. Jean Killingsworth, discoverer of time travel.

a possible method for quick, cheap transportation across both time and space. Dr. Jean Killingsworth from our Manhattan Research Institute has stumbled upon one possible method whereby movement in time and space can be accomplished at a reasonable expense and with moderate energy expenditure. [The method would be terribly expensive for us at this moment, but for advanced races it becomes more economical.] Although her mathematical analysis of the method is still not complete, it can be explained fairly simply. We asked Dr. Killingsworth to explain her approach to the problem and her ultimate revelation.

"My main interest in research has been time travel," Jean explains. "Time travel can be defined as movement through the time-space continuum in which the traveler experiences only a short passage of time in his continuum while the world around him ages greatly. Now, we know a limited time travel can be achieved today. According to Einstein, as a body approaches the speed of light, its mass increases and its length decreases. Also, its sense of time, as observed by someone outside the traveler, would seem to slow down. Thus, a star traveler going to Alpha Centauri at almost the speed of light would age very slowly while, at the same time, the rest of the universe would seem to age normally. This time paradox has been proven to exist; studies of sub-atomic particles with very short lifetimes have been observed to exist for much longer periods than they should. This is due to the time dilation effect.

"Now, travel backwards in time presents several problems. If a body could move backwards in time, could it stay in the same place? H.G. Wells in The Time Machine assumes that a body can travel through time without having to travel through space. However, we know that our solar system is not stationary in space. The earth moves around the sun, the sun moves through the galaxy, and the galaxy moves in relation to the rest of the universe. Unless a time machine was designed to move in space as well as time, it would probably pop up somewhere in the vast expanse of the universe—nowhere near where it originally began its movement.

"Diagram One gives an idea of how Welles thought time travel would work. He assumed space was one directional, while time had two directions—past and future. A person traveling into the future would end up in the same location at which he or she started, but with a near instantaneous leap into the future or past. However, this form of travel does not take into account the fact that the universe is in motion.

"Diagram Two gives a better picture of how I see time travel as a possibility. If time can be a two-way line pointing to the past and the future, then space should also be a two-way line—one direction points to the future movement of matter in the universe and the other direction points to where matter in the universe was in the past.

It is believed that time travel could be achieved through a tunnel like this one if prevalent theory is right.

"Einstein's time dilation is in the direction marked 1 in the diagram. As a body moves through time, it also moves through space. A time machine would also have to keep careful track of where its target was during its movement around the universe. Similarly, the direction marked 2 would follow a time traveler moving backwards in time. The time machine would have an easier time following its course back through time from a point in the future since its on-board computer would already know the coordinates for any point in time it had passed through. However, if the time traveler wanted to start from his "present" and move backwards in time, the time machine would have to follow the movement of its target spot backwards through the wandering of matter in the universe.

"For months I agonized over the Scientists think that, in the near future, humans will be able to travel through time via these specially made outlets.

problem. Every idea I tried ended in the same dilemma—great distance travel requires great time leaps.

"I remember distinctly how the final solution came to me. After a particularly distressing day at the office, I returned to my apartment to collapse on my bed. I did not sleep well, for figures and crossed-axes kept swimming through my head. Then suddenly I saw the time-space continuum—my two-dimensional model-start spinning like a top. In a flash it came to me. I had been working with too few dimensions—there was a third dimension involved! Just as something solid has three dimensions—space, time, height—so, too, time travel has three dimensions—space, time and . . . well, for want of a better word, I called it dimension.

"Diagram 3 shows how time travel seems to work best. A time-traveler can move through time and space and through dimensions! Instead of only four possible methods of travel, there are now eight possible ways to move! I list them below:

Researchers at our laboratories prepare computers for analysis of Dr. Killingworth's formulas.

1. + + + —normal travel through Einsteinian space/time continuum (dimension) Same as 1 in diagram 2.
2. + + - —ahead in time and space in another dimension.
3. + - + —same as number 3 in diagram 2.
4. + - - —ahead in time, back in space, but through another dimension.
5. - + + —same as 4 in diagram 2.
6. - + - —back in time, ahead in space, but through another dimension.
7. - - + —same as 2 in diagram 2.
8. - - - —backwards time travel through another dimension.

“By adding this third dimension to time travel, it now becomes possible for a time machine to go great distances, but not to have to travel backward or forward through time to such a great extent. By popping into another dimension, a traveler finds himself on the spot he wished —BUT IN A DIFFERENT DIMENSION. He may not be in the space-time continuum he wishes to be in, but he is at the point in space and time where he wishes to be. Thus it seems obvious that UFOs are not only travelers through time and space but also through a different space-time continuum!

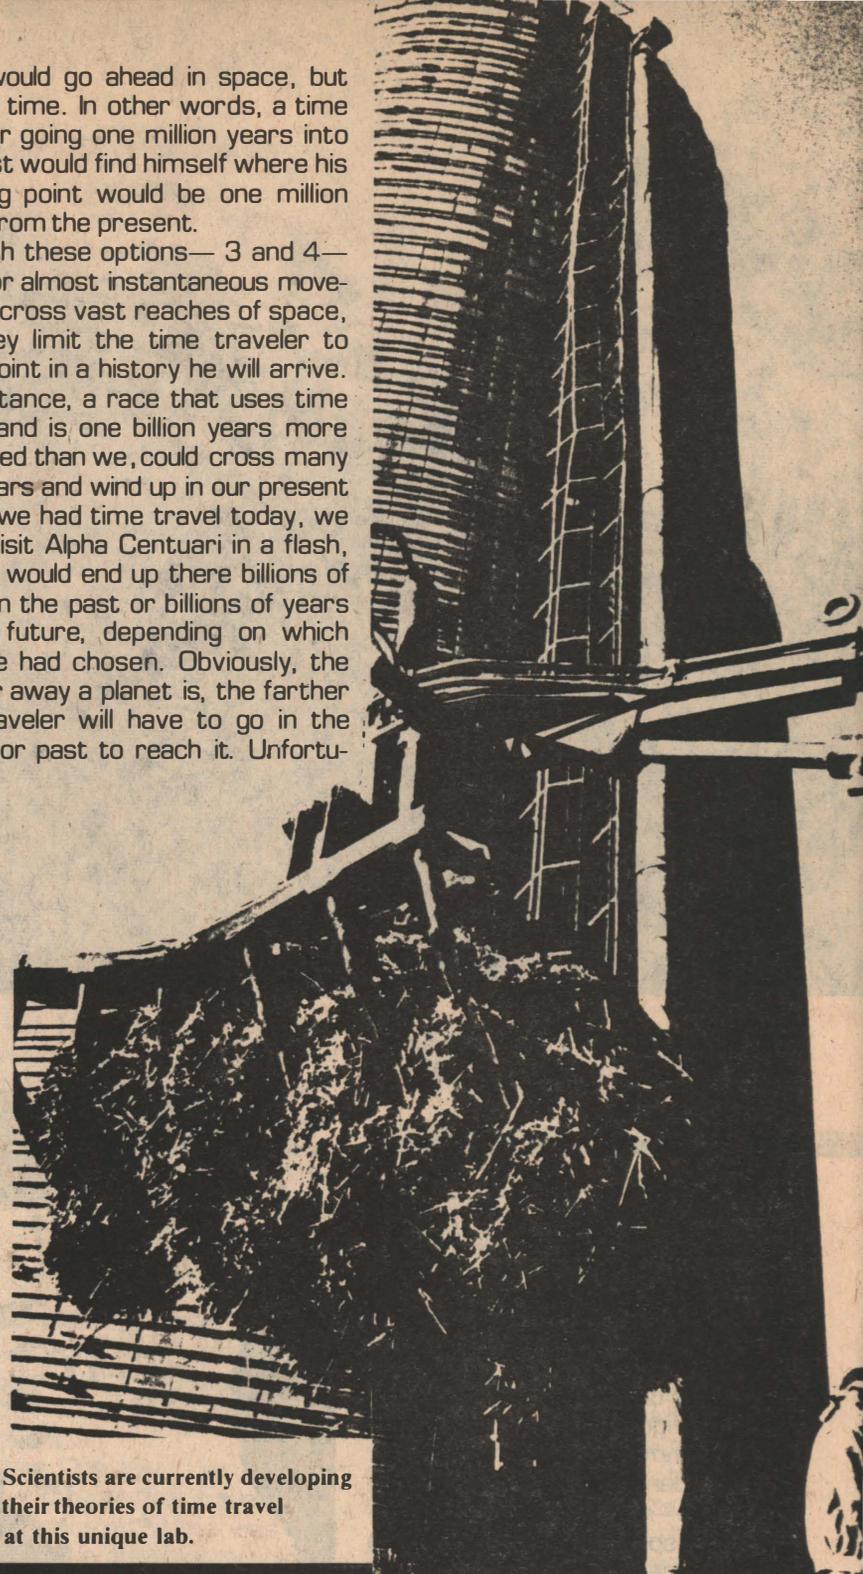

“The most feasible time travel must occur whenever the ‘Dimension’ in the chart reads negative. The universe sets limits to travel within this ‘present’ continuum, but allows for time travel outside this continuum to any point one desires.

“Position 3 and 4 offer unique methods of transportation, which may, I feel, account for much UFO phenomena. A time machine traveling in the direction of 3 would go ahead in time, but backwards in space. In other words, the traveler would land one million years in the future—if that is the chosen time period—but end up in space where his starting point had been one million years before. If his planet had moved two light-years over one million years, he would end up back at that point two light-years away but one million years in the future.

“By traveling along axis 4, the traveler would go ahead in space, but back in time. In other words, a time traveler going one million years into the past would find himself where his starting point would be one million years from the present.

“Both these options— 3 and 4— allow for almost instantaneous movement across vast reaches of space, but they limit the time traveler to what point in a history he will arrive. For instance, a race that uses time travel and is one billion years more advanced than we, could cross many light years and wind up in our present day. If we had time travel today, we could visit Alpha Centuari in a flash, but we would end up there billions of years in the past or billions of years in the future, depending on which axis we had chosen. Obviously, the farther away a planet is, the farther the traveler will have to go in the future or past to reach it. Unfortunately, the universe is not ageless. Fifteen to twenty-five billion years ago, the universe was nothing but a hot ball of plasma. There is a limit to how far in space a traveler can go in distance, because there is a limit to time at the beginning of the universe.

Scientists are currently developing their theories of time travel at this unique lab.

“Once I had stumbled upon this dilemma, I felt crushed. I thought I had figured out a way to make instantaneous travel through time and space a reality. Now, I was stuck with limits as to how far away and how far in the past travelers could go. My theory could not account for the appearance of UFOs on our planet. Unless races were billions or trillions of years advanced beyond us, they would not be able to reach us through time-space travel. We have evolved from sub-microscopic cells in less than a billion years and the next billion years will probably see us evolve into something totally unexpected. It seems highly unlikely that the aliens we have met are so far advanced beyond us.

It won't be long before we'll be able to take it easy like this while travelling back and forth through space and time.

"I presented my ideas to my superiors and they seemed interested in my initial discovery. However, they could not think of a way around the difficulty. I was allowed to keep on working on my ideas, but I felt discouraged.

"How can one describe alternative dimensions? Would they have the same physical properties as ours? We assume the laws of physics are everywhere the same in our universe and we might assume—although only tentatively—that the laws of physics hold true in all dimensions. This is one aspect of time travel that needs further research and analysis.

"There is an interesting idea going around in physics today. I call it the "either/or" hypothesis. It implies that each time a decision is made in the universe, two continuums spring from it. In one continuum the decision was decided against—for instance, a man decided not to get up for a cigarette—while in the other continuum the other decision was reached—the man did get up for the cigarette. Thus, each time a cause arises, an infinite amount of effects come into being. That means that there is an infinite number of universe being created every second—each a different space-time continuum. If there are an infinity of infinities, then time travel can select which continuum is closest to the one the traveler desires, but without it quite being the same from which he started.

"An infinite number of universes allows for possibilities which we can imagine but know are not real. For instance, the term 'blue unicorn' relates to an idea with no physical reality—in this continuum. In another continuum there may be blue unicorns, and elves, gnomes, wizards, etc. Ideas of creativity may come when a writer taps into another dimension; dreams may be 'fallout' from other continuums. Many of the mysteries we find today may be explained by the existence of multiple continuums.

"Finally, let me give an idea of how time travel may occur—a possible energy source, if you will. The one object in the universe that we are unable to fully comprehend at the moment is the black hole. At a certain point, our mathematical analysis of what occurs inside a black hole breaks down. We know matter is squeezed to a zero point—is it then squeezed out in some other dimension? Could black holes be the energy source whereby beings are able to travel through time and space? This seems to me the most likely manner of travel.

"But it would be impractical to hunt down black holes since they will probably be spread at great distances across the universe. The time taken to travel to a black hole may be too long. Instead, it would seem to me more logical for the time machine to create its own black hole—aimed at the point in time, space, and dimension where it wishes to reappear. Matter itself would not naturally shrink into a black hole unless . . .

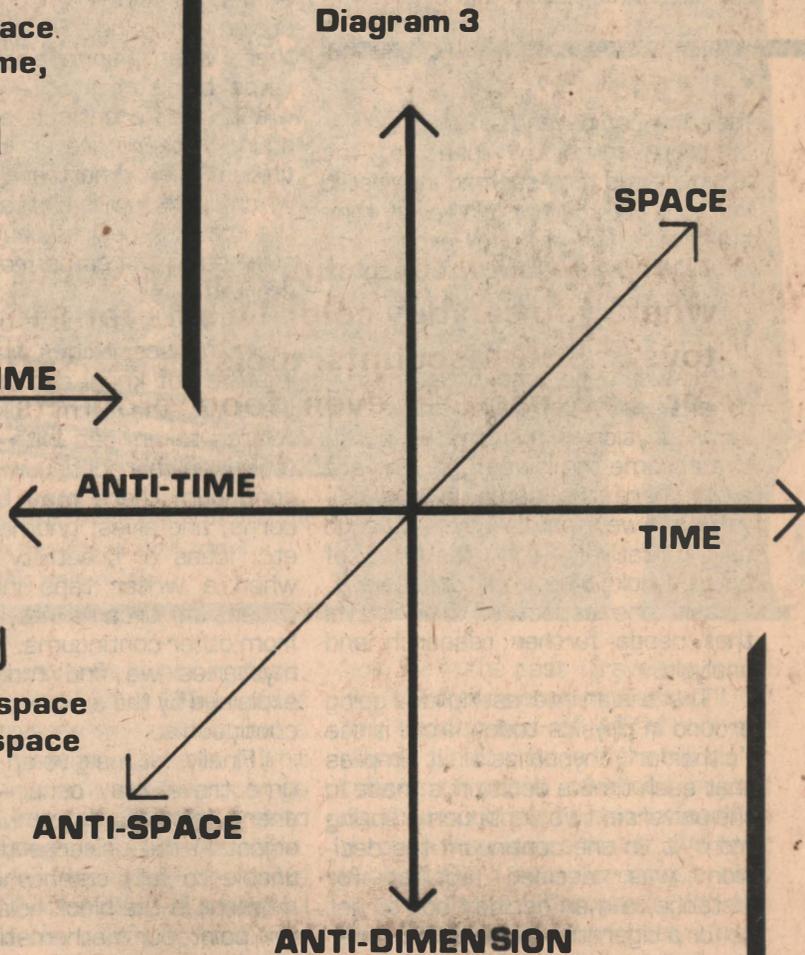

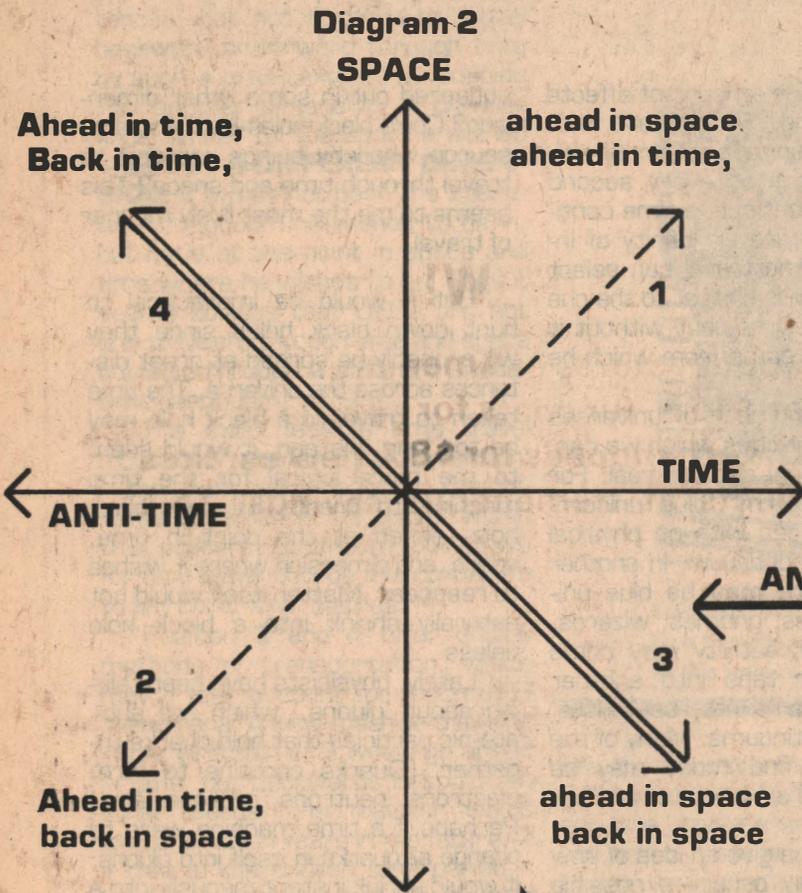

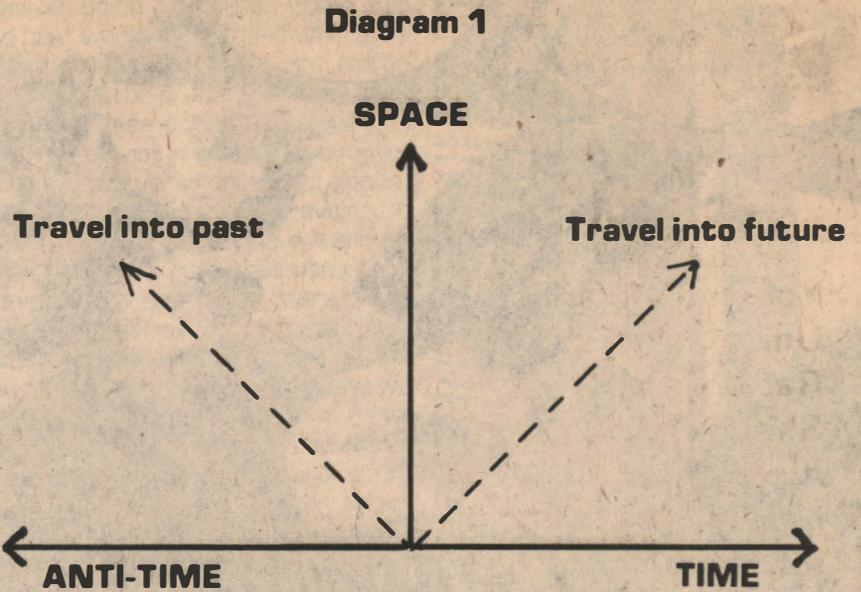

"Lately, physicists have been talking about 'gluons,' which are subatomic particles that hold quarks together. [Quarks combine to form electrons, neutrons, protons, etc.] Perhaps if a time machine were to change all quarks in itself into gluons, it would shrink instantaneously into a black hole and then pop out at the desired point somewhere else in this or another continuum.

"I don't pretend to give a mechanism whereby a time machine can accomplish this task. I simply offer it as a possible method whereby a time machine could become its own black hole. It would be rather like the two fighting cats who started eating each other's tails until they both consumed themselves—and popped out of the universe.

"Until we have more concrete data about gluons—what they are, how they interact with quarks, and the energy within them—my suggestion is, at best, a vague hypothesis. However, I think the mathematical analysis of my theory will prove me right. In the very near future, we may one day be able to pop out of our universe and appear somewhere in the past or future in another dimension."

We are currently devoting great computer time to Dr. Killingsworth's ideas and we hope to be able to bring you more information in later issues. ●

Is There An Alien President In The Making?

We have uncovered a startling alien plot! The presidential election of 1980 is being controlled by aliens who want to choose our next president so that they can control our country! What can be done to stop them? It's time for our country to unite! These aliens don't deserve the vote!

□ Who will win the 1980 presidential election? Various names are currently being bandied about. Carter, Kennedy, Ford and Reagan all have their supporters. But which one of these men is supported by the aliens? Does that sound like a ridiculous question? The answer is an obvious yes. But as inane as it may sound, you will soon see that there is a basis on which it is founded which is anything but ridiculous! We have gotten word of one of the most incredible alien schemes of all time! Our source tells us that aliens are conniving to control the results of the 1980 presidential election!

This may sound too amazing to believe, but our information is highly reliable. At first, we too, couldn't accept the fact that aliens could possibly be the motivating force behind electing our next president. But the more we learned, the more we believed.

This incredible discovery came to our attention about two weeks ago. We were sifting through a pile of letters from our readers and contacts when we came across a most interesting one. There was no postmark and the letter arrived in a tattered, mutilated state — as if someone had rummaged through its contents. What was written was truly startling. The letter read: "You have to listen to me. There's not much time. What I have written here may seem like the scrawlings of some insane person, but you have to believe me, or else we are all doomed! I was driving along a dirt road one dark evening when I saw a flying object in the sky. I knew it had to be one of them flying saucers. Then the darndest thing happened!

"I had my radio on, listening to Dolly Parton, when, all of a sudden, all I got was static. But then some other weird noises came on, noises I had never heard before. Then I began picking up some voices. The sounded as if they were coming from far away. At first I couldn't make it out, but then it began getting clearer.

"I almost jumped right out of my skin when I heard what was being said. These two guys, I guess they were guys, were talking. Well, what they said scared the stuffings out of me!

"The first one said, 'Who did you say our leader wants us to make sure wins?' The other one answered, 'He said either Kennedy or Ford.' All the time that they were talking, that object was flying near my car. I put two and two together and figured that I must have somehow picked up a transmission from their craft. Well, I then heard one say to the other, 'Our master plan is finally beginning to take shape! Once we control the selection of the president of the United States, the most powerful country in the world will be ours! With our man in office, we will be able to effect the outcome of all important world decisions. It will be another giant step toward conquest of earth when we bring about the election of the next president of the United States.'

"Well, after those horrifying words, my radio went dead. Then that flying object started changing colors. Then it looked as if it was about to come towards me. I quickly stepped on the gas and made my getaway as fast as I could. But that thing followed me. I thought it was gonna swoop down and get me, but in one swift instant it flew away like a shot.

"But ever since then, strange things have been happening to me. I feel as if I'm always being watched or followed. One day I found a dead bird on my front porch. I know they're after me! But I had to warn you no matter what happens to me. Those creatures in that flying machine were talking about how they would be the ones who selected the next president of our great country. You have to tell everyone, we have to stop the aliens before they gain control of our land!"

Whew! That was certainly some letter! We were naturally apprehensive about its authenticity. In fact, we were all but ready to dismiss it as the work of some joker. But we began giving it more and more thought. After all, we had nothing to lose and a whole from the political scene. And it definitely appears as if the aliens are behind it! Just look at the evidence we have turned up.

To begin with, we believe it all started a few years back when Jimmy Carter said he saw a flying saucer. Because such a powerful man related his experience to the world, thus giving more credibility to the fact that aliens exist, the space creatures wanted to discredit Carter. They saw their opening with the advent of the 1980 election. And best of all, the aliens decided they could kill two birds with one stone. Besides making things bad for Carter, the aliens figured this was their chance to also take control of the whole country by being the ones who controlled by the aliens. Kennedy was forced to announce his candidacy for president. That's right — forced! As in past years, he felt he wasn't ready yet to run. But aliens seized control of his mind. And do you know how we know this? Well, one of his closest friends told our reporter that Kennedy claimed he definitely wasn't going to run. But then he had a strange visitor — a Man in Black! The very next morning, Ted told his friend that he changed his mind and was going to run for president.

In Gerald Ford's case, he entered the race because he found a letter addressed to him which stated that he would definitely win his party's candidacy if he ran. The mysterious lot to gain by finding out the truth. So we dispatched a reporter to see what he could learn about aliens controlling the 1980 presidential race.

Well, what he uncovered was a real shocker — the Watergate of alien affairs! In a relentless investigation, covering all bases, our man found startling evidence to back the claim that aliens are indeed toying with the 1980 presidential election! Yes, the whole alien plot became apparent as our relentless reporter dug deeper and deeper.

He began his investigation by delving into the current political scene. He first studied recent political trends, comparing them with those of the 1976 election. Well, needless to say, the results were startling! The '76 presidential election was a straightforward one. The campaign and final outcome were quite predictable, garnering to political conformity. Political experts agreed that everything was above board, turning out as forecast.

However, when our reporter got to looking at the current election trends, he was amazed! It seems as if there is a definite plot to oust Jimmy Carter selected the head of the United States.

Their plan was a dastardly one indeed. They would make Carter look bad by initiating a series of shocking world events! Oil prices would go up, necessitating a rise in our gas prices. Inflation would become quite bad and Carter would be seen as a "do-nothing" president. His once-high level of popularity would sink to an all-time low! The people of our nation would begin clamoring for a new leader!

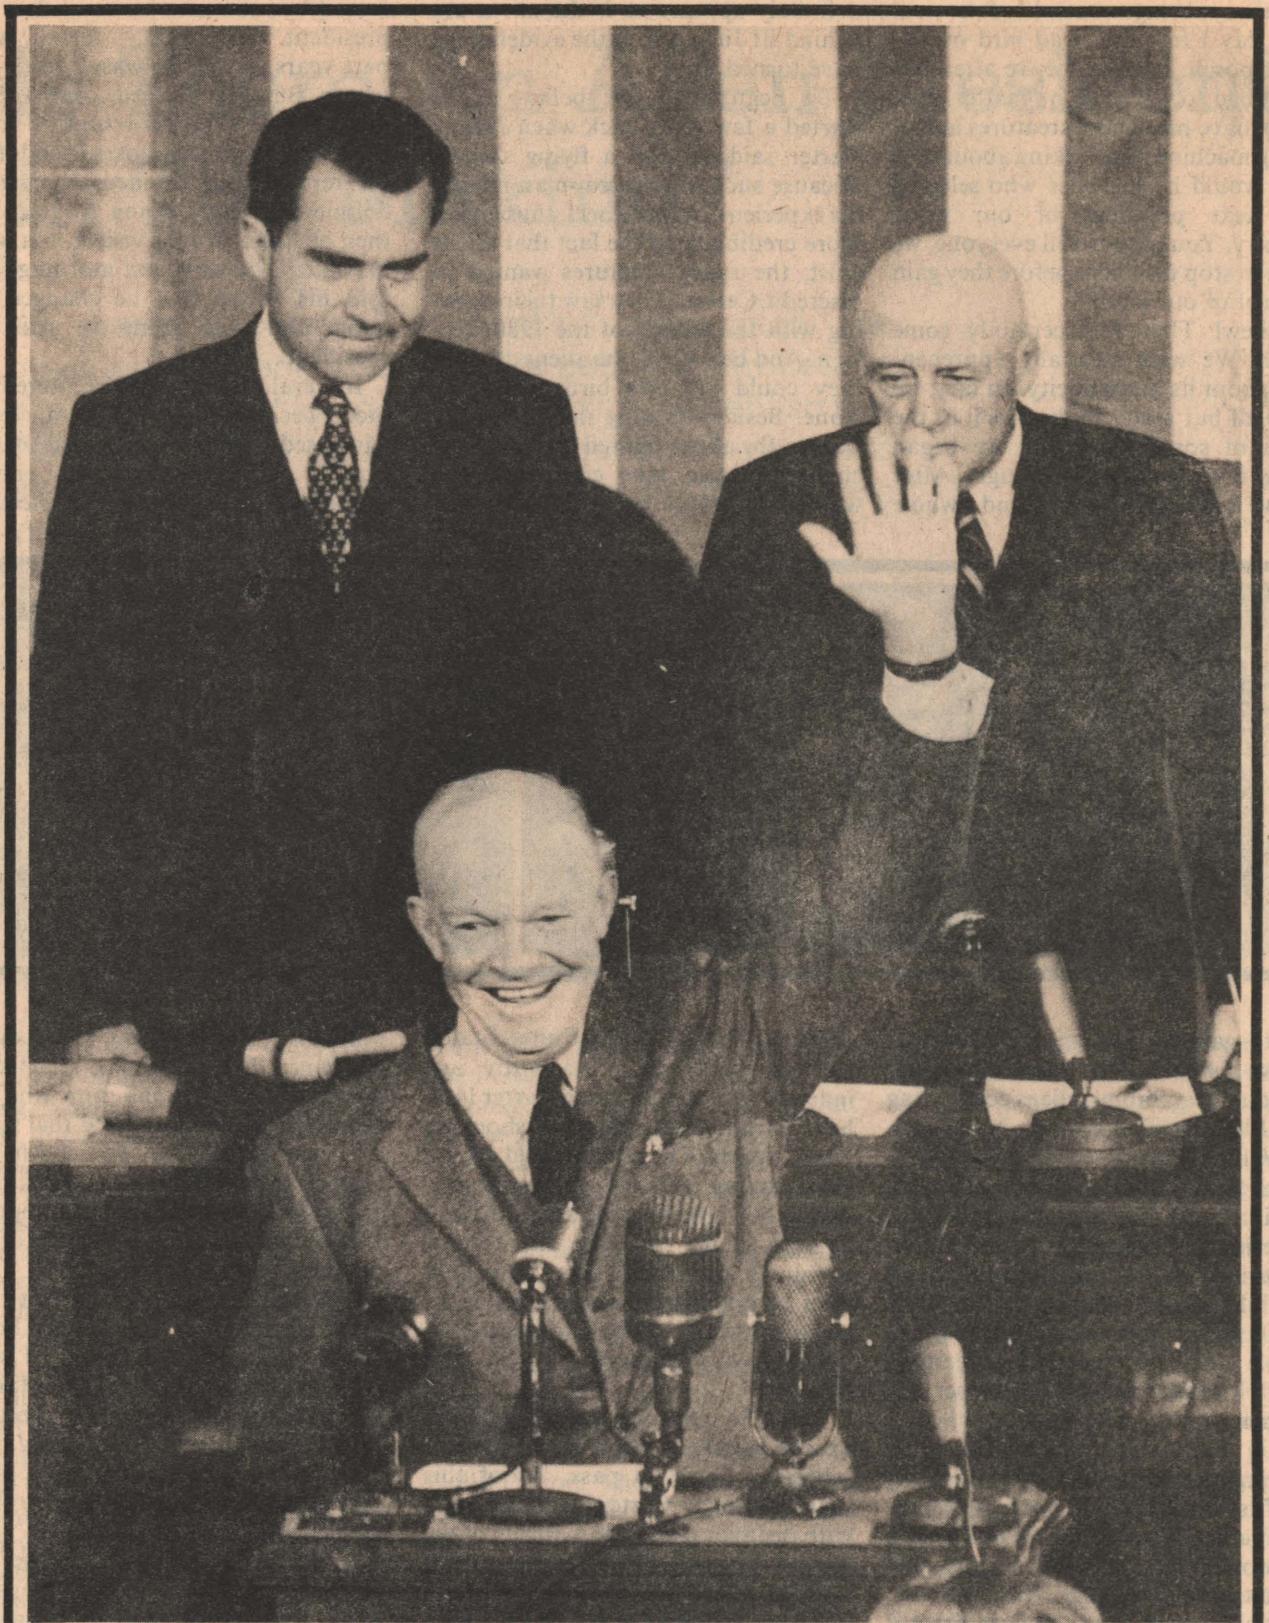

Yes, the plan of the aliens went exactly as scheduled. All their devious scheming came to pass. As of this writing, Jimmy Carter is looked upon with disfavor by a wide majority of the American people. He is fighting for his political life. There are "Oust Carter" movements everywhere — even within his own Democratic party. It certainly looks as if the aliens are getting their way.

As for the other candidates, the aliens are shaping the face of their campaigns. The prime candidates, Ted Kennedy, Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan are all under the control of the aliens. Their political moves are being note also claimed that if he didn't announce his intentions, a horrible accident would befall him and his family! It further indicated that it was a certainty that he would win the nomination of his party because he would be running virtually unopposed — that matter to be "taken care of" by the letter writer.

Naturally, the ex-president dismissed the letter as the work of a kook. But his mind was soon changed when he, too, had a "visitor," a Man in Black! After this ominous meeting, Gerald Ford, just as Ted Kennedy had done, announced his plans for seeking the nation's highest elected office. Coincidence? We doubt it!

In Ronald Reagan's case, he was swayed to run for president because of what a close confidante deemed a "dream." Our source told us that Reagan experienced a really "way-out and weird" dream while he slept one night. In it, he saw a vision in which he as a slave, chained in shackles, under the command of Jimmy Carter. Carter kept on whipping Reagan until the latter stood up, took off his hat and threw it in a large ring. Upon awaking the next morning, Reagan knew what had to be done — he would announce his candidacy for president!

All these incidents point to one unmistakable fact — aliens are controlling our upcoming presidential election! When our reporter dug even deeper, he unearthed evidence that campaign committees for each of the candidates have sprung up across the land. What's so unusual about that, you ask? Well, these are not your common campaign committees, run by your common, everyday campaign workers.

The "people (?)" in charge of these organizations are more powerful than Could it be possible that past presidents like Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon were controlled by the aliens? Perhaps the aliens controlled Nixon's mind during Watergate!

HOW TO READ ANYONE'S MIND LIKE AN OPEN BOOK—EVEN FROM MILES AWAY!

Truly incredible! Incredibly true! Finally, you can crash the barrier to genuine person-to-person thought communication as you never could before. All alone, with no help, no tricks of any kind, perform the fantastic feat that defies explanation: Actually visualize ideas, images, and words from someone else's mind right in your own head — as if you were reading the pages of a book!

Forget about distance! Your subject can be in the same room with you, chatting with you by telephone, or completely out of sight across the country. You still can do it. Accept the unprecedented proposal offered to you in this announcement — and I'll prove it to you.

I know exactly what you are thinking right now. You are quite intrigued. And most skeptical. You sincerely believe that it is absolutely impossible. That no one can really read anyone else's mind. From miles away? Never!

You have every right to be unconvinced. "Mind-reading" is usually a stunt performed on TV or in a club. We all know that such demonstrations rely on some kind of secret gimmick.

That while it's great entertainment—it's an out and out fake. Certainly not the real thing.

The real thing—for use in real life—is what I am talking about. Like you, I was totally doubtful that it could ever be done "off-stage." Especially by the average person.

AT LAST! THE REVOLUTIONARY TECHNIQUE THAT TURNS FANTASY INTO SHEER REALITY!

Something happened that converted me from a die-hard cynic into a fervent believer. The "Mind-Read" Manuscript crossed my desk.

As a publisher, I read many manuscripts. Yet, this particular one caught my eye at once. I had heard about the author. He is a highly-gifted psychic with a record for pioneering in the field of extra-sensory perception.

His manuscript stunned me. Practically knocked me off my chair. Any lingering doubt I ever had about the "impossibility" of person-to-person mind communication went flying out the window!

I just couldn't believe my eyes. Here it was, in black and white. Written in simple language anyone could understand. An easy-to-learn break-through technique to enable an ordinary man or woman to read someone else's mind. Anytime. Anywhere. At will!

A TECHNIQUE SO POWERFUL IT MIGHT EVEN BE ILLEGAL!

My first inclination was to burn the manuscript. To destroy it entirely. In the wrong hands, it could be dynamite!

Then I had second thoughts. Why should I be a censor? I believe in a free press. So I printed up a limited edition for distribution only to those who will use the technique carefully and wisely within the law.

If you are such a person, I am more than willing to let you try it out for a full six months without your risking one cent. That's how confident I am of the integrity and power of this most innovative technique.

START READING MINDS TO START A WHOLE NEW WONDERFUL LIFE!

Imagine what it would mean to you to have instant access to another person's thoughts whenever you wished.

You would have immediate, lifetime control over your family, friends, neighbors, business associates—even perfect strangers.

Like it or not, they would come under your direct personal domination. You would know what they were thinking at any given time. No one, not even the sharpest human, could hide a thing from you. Others might be fooled by their words. But not you!

You already know why. You would be able to read their inner-most, hidden thoughts. As clearly as if you were looking at the pages of a book set in type one inch high. Without their ever knowing about it! Unless you, yourself, told them!

Dealing with the opposite sex would be a pleasure. Imagine knowing in advance just what to expect from your date or mate. No more guesswork. No more wasted time. No more frustration. For once, you are boss!

And watch the money roll in. You could out-negotiate anyone in any business situation. "See-through" sales double-talk straight to the plain facts. No one gets the better of you. Not when you can read minds!

Whether you're quoting a price or asking for a raise, you'll never short-change yourself. You'll always know the other party's bottom line. And get it!

There's no "gamble" in gambling when you bet on a sure thing. You'll smile when you sit down to play poker or blackjack. When you know the other players' cards, it is hard to lose!

When a loved one is far away, you'll be at ease. Merely follow the technique to find out what he or she is feeling and doing. It's a lot cheaper than a long-distance telephone call!

This is just the beginning. Day-in and day-out for the rest of your life, you will enjoy using the technique in countless ways. To be happier, richer, more fulfilled.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BELIEVE IT. YOU RISK NOTHING TO TRY IT!

If you still insist that "it's impossible", consider this: Have you ever said something to someone only to have him reply: "Funny, I was just thinking the very same thing"?

Coincidence? Maybe. Or perhaps you have unconsciously used the technique without even being aware of doing so. Now you can consciously engage in true thought communication with valuable knowledge like this:

- The first key to mind-reading success.
- 4 ways to reach crystal-clear reception.
- Why an angry person's mind is easy to read.
- How to secretly verify another's thoughts.
- Why "out of sight" does not mean out of mind.

THE THOUGHT COMMUNICATOR — YOURS AS A FREE GIFT!

Even if you return the manuscript later, I want you to have "The Thought Communicator" as my personal gift.

This unusual device demonstrates the brain-boggling power of mind-to-mind communication. Perform it anywhere, anytime for utter amazement.

It's easy. It's fun. Anyone can do it. I'll enclose details on how to get yours when I ship your Manuscript Survey. Whatever you decide after your six months' trial, it's yours to keep with my compliments. Mail coupon now!

- How to read many minds at the same time.
- How to effortlessly sharpen and hone the technique.

Everything is explained in easy, step-by-step detail. No special experience or education is required. The technique is for the average person. That's what makes it so workable.

ACCEPT MY OFFER AND PREPARE FOR A MIRACLE!

For the moment, suspend your skepticism. Keep an open mind and I'll gladly send you a Manuscript Survey to read, without obligation. It discusses the astonishing benefits of this remarkable technique and how you can start using it immediately.

The Manuscript Survey also gives you a unique no-risk plan to try out the technique for a full six months. Put it through the most rigid test, the most challenging examination. To prove to yourself, beyond question, that you can read anyone else's mind like a book.

"The Thought Communicator", my free gift offer is yours to keep even if you later return the manuscript.

Act now. Mail the coupon with $1. My package will be mailed promptly and confidentially. Backed by my unconditional money-back guarantee. The risk is all mine—not yours.

Jimmy Carter is surrounded by well wishers during a campaign swing. If the aliens don't want him to remain president, it's doubtful whether he'll win re-election.

past counterparts. They are in total control of the voluntary workers. They have strange campaign practices, dominated by powerful relations with the press. They seem to definitely be sabotaging the campaigns of some candidates so that the man they want elected will have an easier time of it!

Our reporter had no choice but to finally conclude that the letter we received was not the work of a lunatic or prankster. Instead, it was an authentic missive, stating the awful truth! We are very worried that the aliens' next step might be to take control of the minds of the American voters, horror of horrors! In this way, they would be assured of seeing their man elected. All we can do is hope that now that their plot has been exposed, they decide to back off.

Will the next president of these great United States be a puppet of aliens? And which of the prime candidates do they want to see elected? We'll just have to wait to find out those answers until the election. However, in the meantime, let's hope that the alien plot is waylaid and the American people will choose the president of their choice. May the best man win and may this be one election where aliens don't register to vote!

Are these the alien campaign workers? It certainly looks that way! Beware these people! They are out to see that their candidate wins re-election. They will go to any length to have their man made president!

WILL YOU BE ALIVE IN 1982?

THE "SPACE BROTHERS" WANT YOU TO ESCAPE THE COMING HOLOCAUST THAT THREATENS TO DESTROY OUR WORLD...

PSYCHICS PREDICT

Psychics from the late Edgar Cayce to the modern seer, Jeane Dixon all agree that our planet is slated for "troubled times" in the next few years. With their "gifts of prophecy", these sensitives have been able to peer into the future and know that a rocky road lies ahead, that a great physical holocaust will leave terrible scars over the entire face of the earth. Land shifts will occur, whole continents will rise, while others will sink under the force of gigantic tidal waves.

SCIENCE AGREES

Seismographs on both the East and West Coasts have registered an unusually high number of earth tremors in the last few months. We are not far from total ruin. Time is running out. The cosmic clock is ticking away and we are approaching the midnight hour. Never before in history has such a large number of earthquakes been recorded around the globe. It's obvious that a widespread disaster that could spell T-H-E E-N-D for millions is going to happen within our lifetime.

NO PLACE TO HIDE

Absolutely no area will be safe! There will be no place to hide! We are powerless to avoid this worldwide catastrophe! Water will cover a good portion of the earth. Wild life will die by the score. Our rich farm lands will turn to lakes. Mighty rivers will sweep away our towns. Freak weather storms will unleash havoc with what is left of civilization. Man will turn to battling his brother in order to survive.

A WAY OUT

But a select few of us will continue on the race of homo sapiens. These individuals will be those who place their trust in a higher power. Those who survive will do so only because they heed these dire warnings and listen to an intelligence from afar.

SPACE PEOPLE PREDICT

The occupants of these technically advanced vehicles have made contact with many influential people in our own space program, claims a former astronaut. They are not here to play games. They are here to help us in this difficult crisis. Because they have developed their psychic abilities and because they are able to travel into the future, they know DOOMSDAY is just around the next bend.

CHANGE YOUR LIFE

We guarantee that this book will have a positive effect on your life. The messages contained within its 275 pages is an inspiring one. It is not for everyone, but it is definitely for YOU, the New Age thinker, UFO skywatcher and those who are psychically "tuned in." It's written in plain English (there are no secret codes to uncrack), and approaches the subject of UFOs and the philosophy of our Space Brothers on a level all can understand as well as apply to our everyday lives.

OFFER OF HELP

Since they are truly our "Space Brothers," and recognize the fact that we are the creator's children, (just like themselves), they want to offer aid and assistance in any way possible. The UFO-nauts say that if we will only listen and take their advice that many of us can survive and go on to live in a glorious Golden Age, an age that has not existed on Earth since the days of Atlantis.

HEALTH, HAPPINESS & ABUNDANCE

There will be no wars. Diseases such as cancer and heart trouble will be conquered, and there will be an abundance of natural resources. Those who are alive today can make it through the next few years and literally live forever in a society that is totally free of the problems that currently plague mankind.

YOUR PART IN THE SPACE PEOPLES' PLAN

According to Arthur Shuttlewood who has written an encouraging new book, UFO PROPHECY, your part in the Space Peoples' plan is very important. We must all work toward one goal - making the reality of UFOs as widely known as possible. Everyone reading these words are - the aliens realize - open minded enough to heed these dire warnings and work to change the course of history.

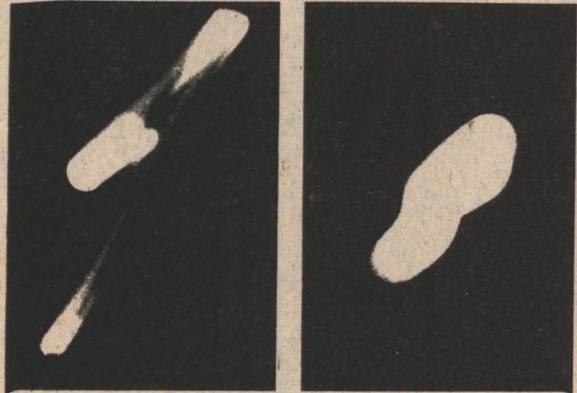

In effect, the Space People have a plan for each and every one of us, and the noted British journalist who started out as a UFO skeptic, and later had his life changed after many personal encounters of the third kind, wants to share the knowledge of these higher beings and what they have taught him, with you.

THE QUEST FOR

Perhaps, with the perfection of teleportation techniques, spacecraft like this will become obsolete.

■ "The shortest distance between two points is a straight line." We've all heard this statement countless times and it would seem to be so clearly true that no reasonable person could possibly take issue with it. But what if the two points happen to be dozens, even hundreds of light-years apart? Then, the "shortest" distance between two points becomes quite formidable indeed!

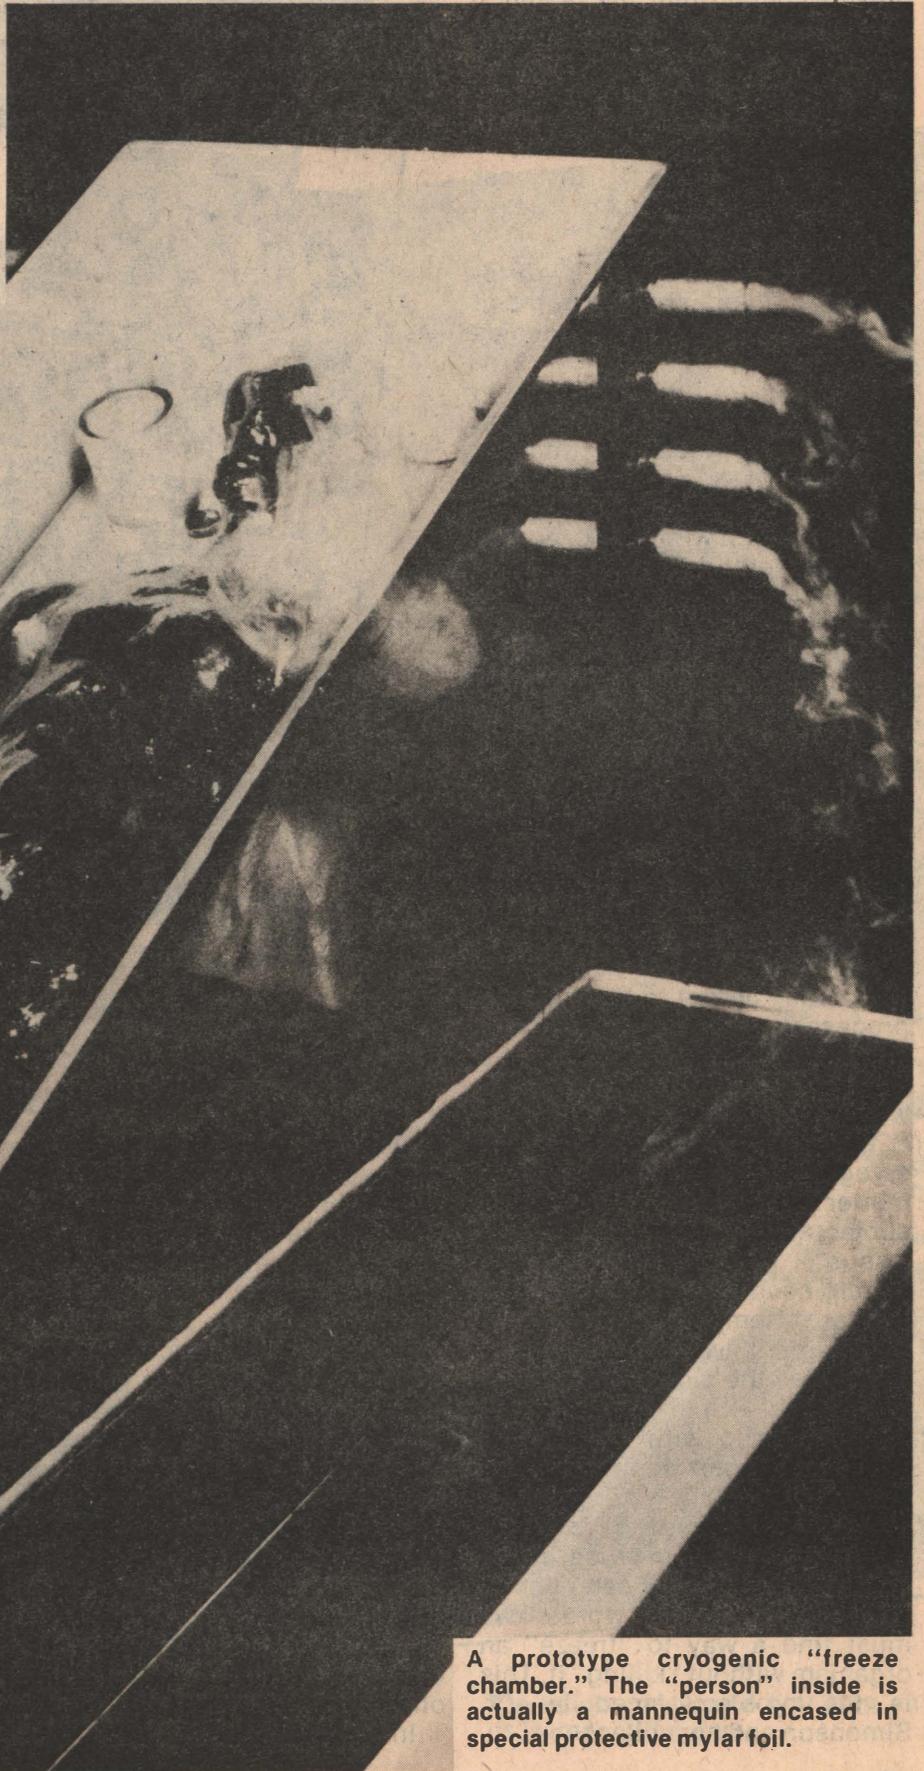

The distance we are talking about, of course, is the vast distance between stars. For example, Alpha Centauri, our closest interstellar neighbor, is approximately four and one-half light-years away. Therefore, if we could move through space at the speed of light, it would take us four years to reach Alpha Centauri. Other stars are much farther away and the travel time to them would be even longer.

Actually, our hypothetical trip to Alpha Centauri would, under our present technology, take much longer than four years because the only thing that can move at the speed of light is light itself; a spaceship would move much slower. This is because, as far as we can determine, all matter in the universe is governed by Einstein's equations which state that as matter is accelerated, its length decreases while its mass—and therefore, the energy to move it—increases. The cutoff point for these changing values, according to Einstein, comes at the speed of light—186,000 miles per second—when length becomes zero and mass becomes infinite. In other words, a spaceship moving through space at the speed of light would have no length, would have infinite mass, and would require all the energy in the universe—and more—to move it. Clearly, this is impossible. Using the technology available to us today, a voyage to the nearest star would take several generations. Other voyages would take a lifetime and most journeys would take several lifetimes.

TELEPORTATION

By David McCarthy

Will instantaneous travel over interstellar distances ever be possible? Our reporter asks the experts and receives a resounding "maybe!"

A prototype cryogenic "freeze chamber." The "person" inside is actually a mannequin encased in special protective mylar foil.

So what do we do?

Even though we are many years away from even attempting an interstellar voyage, scientists have already begun to work on ways to circumvent the distance problem that would seem to make star-travel an impossibility. The only viable method at the moment, according to our scientific executive board, is cryogenics—or, as it is most commonly known, freeze-sleeping.

The acknowledged world-leader in cryogenic research and development is the Cryogenics Institute of Wisconsin. Established in 1964 with grants from the United States government and the Ancient Astronauts Foundation, the Cryogenics Institute today occupies 300 acres, has a staff of 4,000, and an annual operating budget of $1.3 billion. It is run by Dr. Andrea Simonson, who will almost certainly receive a Nobel Prize for her contribution to the science of cryogenics.

In a recent interview, Dr. Simonson described the present state of freeze-sleep technology:

“At the present time, there are still many barriers to be surmounted if we are to freeze and later revive a human subject successfully. Most of these difficulties lie not in the freezing process, which is relatively straightforward, but in the process of revivification. This is where the real obstacles lie.”

The problem plaguing cryogenics is the tendency of matter to become brittle when subjected to extreme cold. Living tissue, when cryogenically frozen, becomes so delicate that so far attempts to “thaw” it afterwards have failed. Another problem is the fact that, since we are dealing with living matter, we are concerned with much more than simply freezing and thawing something while keeping it perfectly preserved. We must also stop certain life-processes in such a way that they can later be restarted. In other words, we must find a way to “freeze” an organism without “killing” it. This is the problem faced by Dr. Simonson and her colleagues.

Another experiment that failed. When scientists attempted to teleport this set of matching luggage, suitcases ended up in airports in Newark, Dallas, and Detroit.

But even if we do find a way to put someone into suspended animation and later revive him or her successfully, we have still not really cracked the interstellar distance barrier. It will still take us just as long as before to traverse the distance between stars; if a colony were to be set up on a planet orbiting, say, Tau Ceti, communication between that colony and Earth would be all but impossible.

If mankind is to extend his domain to the stars, he must find a way to “get around” the speed limit imposed by Einstein’s equations. And with the recent discovery of black holes, this may one day become possible.

In January of this year, under the auspices of the Ancient Astronauts Foundation, a new organization was set up, the Teleportation Research and Development Administration. The TRDA’s goal is very simple: It will try to discover, before the end of the century a practical means of quickly—preferably instantaneously—transporting living and non-living matter from one point in the space-time continuum to another. Put another way, the TRDA will attempt to design and build a practical teleportation device by the year 2000.

Because of the obvious military applications of such a device, the U.S. government has asked us not to publish the location of the TRDA's location or the names of the scientists who work there. We have been permitted, however, to divulge certain general information deemed not harmful to the national security.

At the present time, teleportation technology is in a very rudimentary stage. Extremely tiny glass beads (the largest is no more than a few Angstroms in diameter) of almost perfect purity have been teleported over distances not greater than 1.2 centimeters, but the cost in terms of energy required has been enormous and reconstitution of the teleported object at the "other end" has been erratic, to say the least. More often than not, the beads, upon reaching their destination, have rematerialized in an extremely "jumbled" state. Almost all of the teleported beads, upon being examined, were found to have at least a slight imperfection in their molecular structures.

One of the scientists working

The moon—mankind's first stop on its journey to the stars.

at the TRDA described the problem this way: "The problem is the fact that once we have broken an object into its component quarks and anti-quarks (Quarks are the fundamental units of matter, the units that, when combined in various ways, make up the various protons, electrons, neutrons, etc. that comprise atoms.) and converted these units to energy, we must have a way to reconvert them to matter is such a way that their original relationship to each other is maintained.

"At first, we thought we would have a problem simply keeping the energy field we created together; that is, keep it from separating and diffusing into the time-space continuum, but this problem virtually solved itself when we found that matter, when converted to energy in a teleportation transmitter, would naturally form an energy "envelope" or "ball" that would keep it together during teleportation.

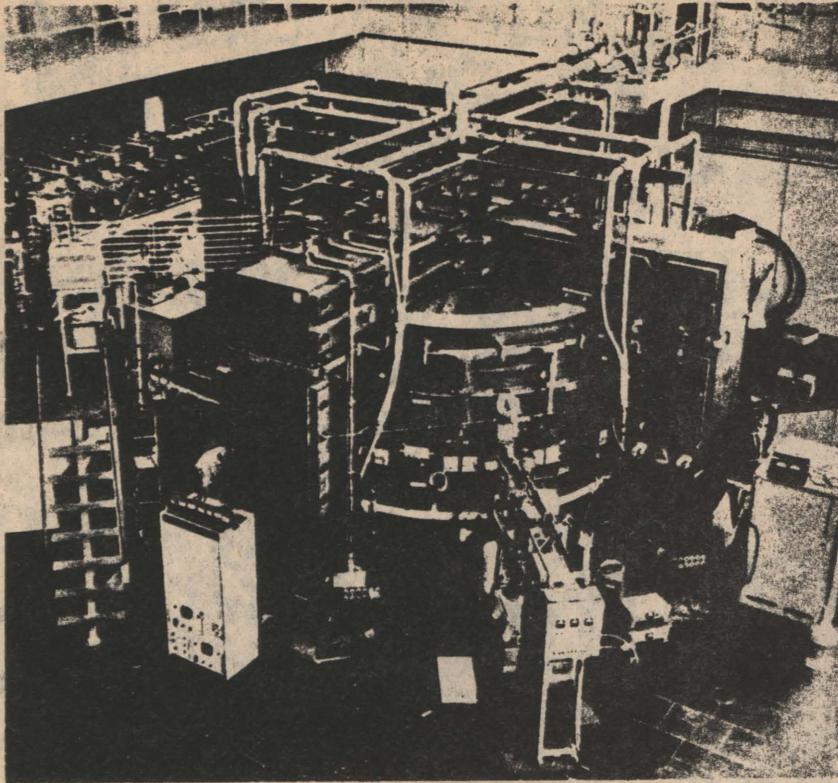

"The primary difficulty lies at the "other end" when we try to reconstitute the teleported object. You see, all matter has a structural "code" that uniquely determines how the quarks and anti-quarks comprising it are situated in relation to one another. Even the tiny beads we are using at present have millions of these quarks and anti-quarks and simply plotting their coordinates with sufficient accuracy is an operation of mind-boggling complexity and delicacy. And then there is the problem of how to condense this code and teleport it, along with the energy envelope, without "jumbling" it on the way.

"Our track record, so far, has not been very good, and if this is the amount of difficulty we are having with an object as simple as a tiny pure glass bead, you can well imagine how hard it's going to be to teleport successfully a human being."

In order to establish a teleportation "network," it may first be necessary to send receiving units to the stars aboard probes like these.

A portion of the massive prototype teleportation transmitter at the Teleportation Research and Development Institute.

In the early days of teleportation research, an attempt was made to teleport this hamster. The attempt failed.

Another problem mentioned by the scientists at the TRDA is the amount of energy needed to teleport an object. Like the location of the TRDA, the exact amount needed is a well-guarded secret, but it can be safely said that the power requirements are enormous. On the bright side, however, is the feeling on the part of the scientist that though the initial requirement is staggeringly large, there is a cutoff point at which no more energy is needed and the process becomes self-supporting. That is, once a certain power output is achieved, an object can be teleported across the galaxy as easily as around the block. Admittedly, this level has not yet been achieved, but the mathematics underlying the process seem to point in this direction.

There is one problem, however, that may never be solved.

The problem is simply, that for the present, an object can be transported only if there is a transmitter and a receiver. Therefore, if we want to teleport something—or someone—to, say, a planet in the Alpha Centauri system, we have to get a receiver there first.

Perhaps, as technology and science advance, we will find a way to teleport an object without requiring that there be a receiver at the "Other end," but for now, it looks like the only way to achieve interstellar teleportation—assuming the other problems already mentioned are solved—is to send or carry a receiver to the proposed destination by more conventional means and then, afterwards, begin trafficking between the two points by means of teleportation. This means that on the dark side, when man begins to explore the stars, it will take a long time to reach a destination the first time; but on the bright side, once that destination is reached, travel and communication between the two points should be relatively simple. •

ALIENS FO THE RUSSIA REVOLUTION

In 1917, the revolution was going badly for the Bolsheviks. They needed a little help—from another world!

■ It was during the laying of the last few miles of the trans-Siberian railway in the Soviet Union that the discovery was made. A group of workmen were busily swinging pick and shovel when suddenly, one of the men, Pavel Vasilchentko, cried out to the others to stop working. His pick had struck something metallic.

The rest of the workers stood by curiously as the workman who had called out dropped to his knees and with his hands, began to dig through the ground—which, though it was winter, was loose due to the action of the picks. After a moment, the workman borrowed a shovel and used it to lever out carefully an ordinary tin can about the size of a modern coffee can. The can was in a seriously deteriorated condition, and the worker had to handle it delicately lest it fall apart in his hands.

The can was obviously very old and no longer held its original contents as the original seal had been broken and a makeshift seal of paraffin-impregnated cloth substituted. Very carefully, the worker pried off the seal.

Inside the can, the worker found a small notebook. His first impulse, not surprisingly, was to remove the notebook, open it, and read it, but he wisely realized that because the can containing it had been eaten through in several places, the notebook itself may also have been damaged.

UGHT IN AN DN!

s until they received

Rather than risk destroying an object of possible historical significance, the worker turned his find over to the crew's foreman, who in turn informed the Soviet Ministry of Cultural Preservation.

Analyzing the can, scientists at the Ministry placed its age at approximately 50 years, which would place its origin at the time of the Communist Revolution. However, the scientists were at a loss as to how to examine the notebook without destroying it. It was finally decided that the book would be lent to the United States under the auspices of a recently-inaugurated anthropological exchange program. Hopefully, the Americans would have the technical know-how needed to complete the examination.

The Soviets selected Dr. Morris de Soto, head of manuscript restoration and preservation at the Iowa Center for Anthropological Studies to conduct the examination. Working with a small staff of experts and using the newly developed iodine-fluorine staining technique, Dr. de Soto was able to rescue significant portions of the notebook. And now, after months of careful examination, the results of Dr. de Soto's research have been released to the general public.

The book discovered by the Soviet railway worker is a diary written during the Communist Revolution of Pavel Vasilschenko, the railway worker who discovered the diary.

1917 by a White Russian soldier, Nikolai Shkolnikov. Much of the diary has been irrevocably destroyed by time, but enough remains to piece together an amazing tale—the story of a Russian soldier's encounter with an extraterrestrial being in the difficult winter of 1917. Here then, are excerpts from the diary of Nikolai Shkolnikov:

"14 November, 1917—We have taken many lives over the past few days and still, beyond all reason, the Bolsheviks continue to fight. Their food is short, their ammunition almost completely gone, but they simply will not give up. What is it about this 'communism' that gives these simple workers and peasants the will to throw themselves unflinchingly at our bayonets and cannons against all hope of success. Victory will certainly elude them; they cannot win. And yet, they continue to fight.

"17 November, 1917—This morning, while marching through a lightly wooded area, we saw a brilliant flash of light in the distance, followed quickly by a loud report. It seemed to us that the enemy had somehow managed to acquire a large cannon and explosive shells and we feared for a difficult campaign; but later, when we met on the field of battle, the Bolsheviks fought as they always had and we saw no evidence of artillery of any kind. What caused the flash of light, then? I don't know.

"18 November, 1917—Disaster. As each day has passed and as we have driven ever deeper into the Siberian wasteland, I have been plagued with the nagging fear that we are moving too quickly and overextending our supply lines. Today, fate has caught up to us and played us a bad turn. The Bolsheviks, in a surprise move, attacked this morning and severed our supply line several miles to our rear. We are cut off. We must reverse our course and mount a counterattack immediately or be faced with the possibility of being placed under siege and starved into surrender. For the time being, the tables have been turned.

"19 November, 1917—The enemy continues to hurry us, attacking our flanks constantly in an effort to make us use up our ammunition. In addition, these irritating attacks are having the added effect of slowing considerably our progress toward the rear. If we do not achieve a breakthrough soon, there will begin to be a very real doubt as to whether we'll be able to reach the place where the enemy has breached our supply-line before. . . ."

It is at this point that the passage of time begins to render certain portions of the diary unreadable. It is not until several pages later that we are able to pick up the narrative. Clearly, by this time a few days have passed.

"... the flash of light I had seen before. Aatu explained that this light was indeed emitted by the spacecraft and that it was by means of this light that the craft was able to cross the vast distances between the stars. Precisely how this light served to propel Aatu's vehicle, Aatu would not say, just as he had steadfastly refused to explain the workings of the translating device. He did, however, agree to answer any questions we might have about his world, its culture, government, etc., provided that we agree to answer any similar questions that he might ask us. We agreed readily. Aatu thanked us and then activated a strange device that would, according to Aatu, record our conversation and preserve our spoken answers to his questions for all time. Clearly, the device was a 'phonograph,' a device with which I was familiar, having seen one once on a trip to Moscow. However, when I asked Aatu where the cylinders were stored and how the horn was attached, he looked at me curiously and uttered a sound that

Dr. Morris DeSoto, expert chosen by the Soviets to examine the diary.

I'm sure, in a human, would have been laughter.

"24 November, 1917—Since I was the one first approached by Aatu, it was not surprising that I was the one Lieutenant Mayakovsky made responsible for the strange being's safekeeping, though how I would be able to protect my charge when I could barely protect myself was beyond me. Our supplies, especially our ammunition, have been diminishing rapidly as the Bolsheviks continue to harrass us. Their bullets whistle around my head constantly and I sometimes wonder if it is only a matter of time before one of them finds its mark. Aatu, though obviously concerned for my welfare (how strange it is to think that this odd little being in the silver suit, with his yellow skin and fragile-looking antennae—a citizen from another world—has become my friend!), is still totally unable to comprehend the concept of death. Whenever one of our soldiers is struck and lies immobile in the snow—his life oozing out in crimson rivulets—Aatu never fails to ask me why we do not simply revive the fallen man. The first time he asked me this question, I asked Aatu in return if this is what the people of Ko'fuur did in such cases. 'Of course,' he replied."

"28 November, 1917—Today, I asked Aatu to describe his home planet of Ko'fuur to me. The following is his account:

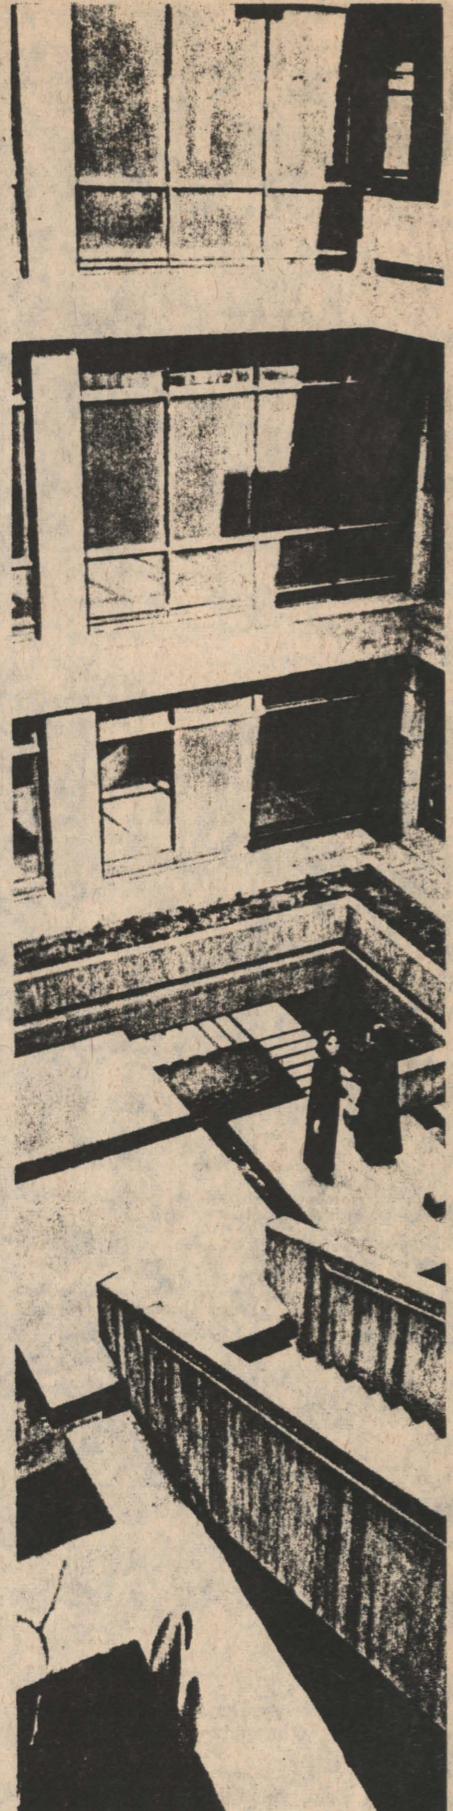

"The planet Ko'fuur is approximately the same size as the Earth, but does not have as much water as the Earth does. Ko'fuur, according to Aatu, is the fourth planet of a star system known in our language as Tau Ceti. It is a much older planet than our own and likewise, Aatu's race is much older than the human race.

"Long ago, there were many nations on Ko'fuur, just as there are now on Earth, but about a hundred years after their race learned to travel beyond the atmosphere of their own planet, all the nations of Ko'fuur banded together under a single government. I was naturally interested to know the form of this government. Was it a monarchy, for instance? Or was it, perhaps, a democracy like the one in America? Aatu, to my surprise, was well acquainted with America and the system by which the citizens of the country governed themselves, and he remarked to me that indeed, there were many similarities between the American form of government and that of Ko'fuur. There were also, he added, a number of similarities between his form of government and the one the Bolsheviks were fighting for, the Communist system. Shocked, I asked Aatu if perhaps he was fighting for the Bolsheviks in their revolution, but he would not answer yes or no, but would only say that he was here to help the people of Earth and not to hurt them.

"I asked Aatu to continue his description of Ko'fuur. He then told me about Ko'fuur's capital city, Graa'n.

It was in this building at the Iowa Center for Anthropological Studies that Dr. DeSoto conducted his examination.

A member of Dr. DeSoto's staff uses a microscope to examine a fragment of the diary.

MAKE ANYONE DO ANYTHING YOU MENTALLY COMMAND— WITH YOUR MIND ALONE!

Now! Command . . . control . . . dominate anyone you choose with the power of your mind — and your mind alone. Say nothing. Yet, miraculously see people — even perfect strangers — do exactly what you silently command them to do. Willingly . . . cheerfully . . . and quickly!

You can do it . . . because you have unknowingly done it your entire life. Accept the proposal offered to you for a limited time in this announcement — and I'll prove it to you!

I would be skeptical if I read an ad like this. But I'd also be highly intrigued, as you are now.

With good reason! The very thought of possessing the ability to command, control and dominate others is probably your secret wish. One which you sincerely believe could never come true.

Well, think again! Your secret wish is about to be granted in full, unmistakable measure. A few short days from now, you are going to demonstrate that fact to yourself right in your own living room.

On that fateful, momentous occasion, you are going to mentally project a thought command to someone you know. Not one word will be uttered by you . . .

YET THAT PERSON IS GOING TO FOLLOW YOUR SILENT COMMAND TO THE LETTER . . . WITHOUT EVEN KNOWING OR SUSPECTING THAT YOU GAVE THE ORDER!

And only you will know why he or she is acting in that manner! Your next test is going to be even more unbelievable! This time, you'll command not just a single individual but a group of four or five people. This time, you'll mentally project a thought command to all of this group!

AGAIN, WONDEROUSLY, THAT ENTIRE GROUP IS GOING TO PERFORM YOUR SILENT COMMAND EXACTLY AS YOU WILLED IT!

Again, they will have absolutely no idea whatsoever that their actions—seemingly voluntary—came directly from you! Why should they? You said nothing. Made no gestures. Nor indicated your wishes in any way—except mentally!

Yet, you're going to top even these astounding results! In the weeks and months, thereafter, and throughout the rest of your life, you are going to intensify your secret ability to command, control, and dominate others in ways that may bring you thousands of dollars extra . . . the love of someone you desire . . . the status and position you've thought unattainable—until today!

If you are selling, the toughest prospect will be putty in your hands. The urge to sign a sales contract with the terms dictated by you—will be irresistible.

In business situations, your ideas are the ones which will be heartily and enthusiastically approved by the "top" brass—just as if you wore the boss' hat!

In your private life, you will capture the adoration and affection of anyone you fancy—even at first sight. At social gatherings, you will be the one regarded as the leader—the person who makes decisions that must be unquestionably obeyed . . . at once! Yes, wherever you go, whatever you do, everyone you meet will come under your silent control. Do with them as you will!

Does all this sound impossible? Not only hard to believe—but hard to achieve?

Then get set for the surprise of your life!

YOU WILL BELIEVE IT . . . AND YOU WILL ACHIEVE IT!

Stop and think for a moment. Skeptics were once convinced that the earth was flat. They were dead certain that the new-fangled automobile would never, ever replace the horse and buggy. Man reach the Moon? Impossible!

You and I know differently. The "never happens" of yesterday are stark realities today. So if you are still a skeptic, I'm more than willing to give you the opportunity to make a liar out of me. To prove that everything I've told you so far could "never happen".

Along with the opportunity to prove me wrong, I'll also give you the "risk-free" chance to prove I'm right . . . along with a free gift for you to keep. Here's my proposal.

My company has just released a strange new manual dealing with a subject that has fascinated the human race since the beginning of time. That subject is parapsychology. It deals with the ability of the mind to project thought and communicate with others, outside the body, using none of the five senses.

The manual takes this exciting subject and develops it into a new technique to help you command, control, and dominate people with your mind alone.

Actually, you do not need the manual to do this. You have already done so many times without ever realizing it, through your own unconscious native-born ability. The manual will help you to understand the technique so that you can perform it consciously, on demand to achieve your goals and wishes.

We call this technique SUCCESS—the science of extra-sensory persuasion. This is not the regular ESP you've heard about. This is Extra-Sensory Persuasion. Properly used, it permits your thoughts to influence one person or many.

This manual could be the basis of a personally-conducted course with a fee of $250. But, not being a school, my company felt that the manuscript was so simply and clearly written, the instruction so precise, that anyone who could read could master the technique.

Therefore, instead of $250, we could slide the price all the way down to a mere fraction of the normal cost . . . payable only if you are fully convinced. And with the transaction handled entirely by mail for your convenience and privacy.

TAKE THIS FREE GIFT MONOGRAPH AND START MAKING IT BIG!

Do you dare to take a close, hard look at yourself? What's really stopping you from making good? Are you still making excuses about why you can't afford that shiny new Caddy, that plush new home, expensive custom-made clothes, and all the other trappings of the good life?

If your ship still hasn't come in . . . or even if you've missed the boat, take heart. You can make good, beginning now. And you can do it FREE . . . entirely on your own!

First, let's face a few facts about you! You may have wondered about "what" it is that stops you from being successful. Maybe you've been able to pinpoint it. You think it's money . . . connections . . . ability . . . health . . . education . . . or just dumb luck.

Yet the "what" you believe stands in the path of your march to the top, may not be the real "what" after all. We believe that this real "what" is one which you know all about. You face it daily and nightly. This key "what" is your personal "Success Barrier."

It actually prevents you from taking full advantage of any lucky break. It shackles your feet so effectively that you find it virtually impossible to move forward toward your goal.

It even serves as your "whipping boy" . . . your convenient excuse for failing. It acts as a dismal crutch for your "not making good."

BUT IT DOESN'T HAVE TO! Once you understand this "what" that undermines your efforts and keeps you cruelly pinned down, you can finally break its ruthless grip. Yes, you can eliminate it from your own life by your own efforts and no one will ever know. What they will know—and see for themselves—is that YOU ARE SUCCESSFUL!

How can you perform this vitally important feat—perhaps the most important act of your entire life? How can you once and for all crash through your personal "Success Barrier"?

The answer may lie in an exclusive Monograph "YOUR SUCCESS BARRIER—HOW TO SHATTER IT FOREVER." Graa'n, according to Aatu, was quite large, larger in fact, than the Earth cities of Moscow, New York, Tokyo, London, and Rome combined. The smallest building in Graa'n was many times taller than the tallest building on Earth and was constructed from a substance he referred to as 'Mennotiis.' I asked Aatu if this Mennotiis was some form of stone or concrete and the extraterrestrial replied that it was not. When I prodded Aatu for further explanation, he shook his head, saying that it would be extremely difficult for him to describe Mennotiis in such a way that a denizen of Earth would understand. He asked me if I had heard of a substance known in Earthly terms as 'plastic.' I replied that I had not. Aatu sighed.

"29 November, 1917—The Bolsheviks, sensing our predicament, are growing bolder with each passing day. There have been three attacks today and though we managed to make a good showing of ourselves in each case (I myself killed seven of the fanatics), we have lost many men. Slowly, but surely, our forces are beginning to diminish to the point that soon our efficiency will be seriously impaired, perhaps irreparably. Needless to say, we are still cut off from our supplies and the situation has grown desperate; so desperate, in fact, that as of today, Lieutenant Mayokovsky has cut our rations in half. There is also the matter of fuel. It has been extremely cold lately and we must have wood to burn for warmth. However, we cannot send a party into the forest to gather wood without immediately being set upon by the Bolsheviks, who, like the cowards they are, attack quickly, then scatter and run in a dozen directions before we can return their fire.

"As for Aatu, he seems, surprisingly, to be unaffected by the extreme cold. I asked him why this is so and he explained to me that the silver garment he wears is sufficient to keep him warm. He then allowed me to touch the material of his garment. It was not cloth, but some other material that I had never seen before. I looked at it closely to see how it had been woven and was surprised to find absolutely no evidence of weaving whatsoever! The material was of one solid piece! Moreover, it was of an almost unbelievable thinness, a thinness rivaling the thinnest silk. How could a garment of such thin material protect its wearer from a coldness that I, beneath several layers of thick wool, could barely withstand? As before, when I questioned Aatu, he told me in his usual friendly tone that as much as he wanted to explain to me, he was completely unable to do so in such a way that I would understand.

"That night, as I settled down to eat my meager dinner, I followed what had become my usual custom of offering half of my food to Aatu, even though this would force me to subsist at a level barely above that of starvation. To my surprise, Aatu refused this time, explaining that his race did not require food as we knew it to live and that he had only been eating until now to please me. More surprises!"

The next several pages are lost. When next we pick up the narrative, it is...

"2 December, 1917—Our ammunition is almost gone and not surprisingly, the men are beginning to speak of surrender. I know not whether the Bolsheviks will succeed in their revolution, but there is no longer any doubt that they will win this battle. Lieutenant Mayokovsky, against all logic, continues to order us to fight and has threatened personally to shoot anyone who refuses to do so. As for myself, I am too good a soldier to desert my comrades in their time of trial and can only pray that the Lieutenant will abandon his obsession before we are all killed.

"Aatu has been gone two days now. I bear him no grudge for his part in helping the Bolsheviks to cut our supply line. His race is obviously a peaceful one and far, far more advanced than our own technologically, culturally, and certainly morally. If he says humanity will ultimately reap a great benefit from a Bolshevik victory, then I must believe him. I only wish..."

It is here, unfortunately, that the diary of Nikolai Shkolnikov ends, and so yet another mystery is added to the many that already vex mankind. Is Shkolnikov's account of his meeting with Aatu true or is it merely the delirious ravings of a shattered man, starving and besieged on all sides by enemy soldiers? Did an extraterrestrial being help the Bolsheviks win the Revolution of 1917? And if so, why? What was Aatu's civilization like?

Until or unless Aatu returns to tell us, we will probably never know. ●

forced into SEX aboard a flying SAUCER

This challenging book, the first of its kind, presents questions that must be answered by every government throughout the world to its citizens. The contents should not be suppressed any longer as it affects all mankind.

WHAT IS THE RESULT... A NEW RACE OF HUMANOIDS?

DOCUMENTED CASES

● A Canadian woman is found wandering nude in a park and claims she was abducted by space beings and taken to the back of the moon where she was "implanted with outer-space semen."

● Mrs. V., from Somerset, England, finds herself on an examination table. Robots stand nearby as a humanoid entity drains blood from her arm into a plastic bottle. Colored cubes seem to monitor her vital functions. Before being returned to her stalled auto she has relations with one of the outer space beings.

● A New York woman awakens one night and finds an entity standing at her bedside. He is adorned in a navy blue uniform sashed with a gold belt. He wears short black boots with pants tucked inside. During the ceremony that takes place the woman feels a white fluid being passed into her save or destroy the world — yet few will harken to that which is transpiring before our very eyes.

The ten chapters in STRANGE ENCOUNTERS will go a long way in explaining the mystery of the flying saucers.

PSYCHIC OR PHYSICAL?

Not all UFOs are physical, nuts-and-bolts craft. A San Diego woman tells in intimate detail of her unbelievable night of terror. It all began with a group of lights that formed themselves into earthly trucks and went on to include a dog-like creature with blazing red eyes; bizarre tinkerbell lights that touched them in the darkness; a "little boy" that materialized, and the weird beings who emerged from a landed space ship and walked across the highway carrying tube-like devices.

WE ARE NOT ALONE!

UFOs DIRECT MANY LIVES OFFER SUPERNATURAL GIFTS

In another documented case, Lorie Roberts tells what happened to her at the age of six, a bizarre experience that makes her believe she is "not one of us." More and more we cannot deny the evidence that Earthlings are being endowed with supernatural powers due to a special "link" with a race of unknown visitors from the stars.

FLYING DISCS & GLOWING HAIR

A Philadelphia man reports that on his daughter's birthday gleaming silver objects appear in the sky over their home traveling at great speed. As if to celebrate their appearance the little girl's hair will glow a peculiar color. Strange are their powers, indeed!

PHOTOGRAPHIC EVIDENCE

Amazing photos prove that at least one man is in direct contact with these beings. Sees objects so close up that it's impossible to deny they were made on another planet. Portholes and landing gear are clearly visible.

ALIENS ARE IN OUR MIDST

It's said they "walk among us" and a Pittsburgh musician has the frightening proof of this. Read of his incredible encounter with a "stranger" who always dressed in black, had peculiar features apparent in his anatomy and appears and vanishes at will much to the amazement and disbelief of those directly involved.

FACT NOT FICTION!

Every story in this volume is the absolute truth. You can't afford to miss out on this opportunity to take a spellbinding look at what's happening to an ever-increasing number of people.

The author sincerely feels that there will be increased activity in the number of contacts, encounters and physical abductions. He believes that YOU could be next. Only by reading about what has happened to others can you prepare yourself for the changes that will come about after you have been touched by this UNKNOWN FORCE.

The fully illustrated, STRANGE ENCOUNTERS — BIZARRE & EERIE CONTACTS WITH FLYING SAUCERS can be yours for only $9.95 (plus $1.00 for postage and handling). This offer includes a 6-issue subscription to UFO REVIEW, the World's Only Flying Saucer Newspaper — each issue new evidence is presented to prove that we are NOT alone in the universe. SECRET PLAN

First-hand investigation by the author of this book, noted UFOlogist Timothy Green Beckley, indicates that the UFO occupants have a secret plan of operation that they are carrying out — one that not only involves interbreeding between interplanetary species, but another, intimating that a much larger purpose is behind these cosmic implantations.

POWERS SO GREAT AS TO BE DENIED

Science refuses to accept the reality of UFOs because these objects do not fit in with the physical laws that they had adopted. This book will reveal many of the fantastic things that have happened to ordinary people from all walks of life, but are being hushed up not only by the academic community but by so-called serious UFO researchers who don't wish to acknowledge what really is going on. UFOs could either

AT LAST— THE TRUTH ABOUT THE DINOSAURS!

Where did the dinosaurs come from? Why did they disappear so suddenly? New evidence lends support to an incredible theory!

Were the dinosaurs created by alien scientists as an experiment in genetics?

■ The Earth, as we all know, is billions of years old and only during the last million or so of them did the race known as man come into existence and begin its rise to dominance over all the other creatures of the world. Long before the birth of humankind, other creatures lumbered across the face of the planet and held mastery over it. These creatures were the enormous reptiles to which we have given the name "dinosaur."

The dinosaurs ruled the Earth for millions of years, but today the entire species is extinct. Why did the dinosaurs die out? Nobody knows for certain and over the years, as scientists have continued to study the problem, many theories have been proposed. The most popular hypothesis is one that claims the dinosaur became extinct because it was not able to adapt to the great climatic changes that took place at the end of the Mesozoic era, a time when the Earth, overall, became much colder. And not only were the dinosaurs unable to adapt their reptilian metabolisms to the lower temperatures, but also neither could the lush tropical vegetation on which the dinosaurs subsisted.

Members of the expedition that discovered the Vespucci Fossil.

Thus, deprived of warmth and food, the dinosaur eventually ceased to exist, or so the theory goes. But is this truly what happened?

We feel there is reason to doubt.

We do not make this statement lightly. We fully realize that the theory we are about to present flies directly in the face of accepted belief, but as our regular readers know, we have never feared controversy. It is our duty to ferret out the truth and we have not and will never shirk that duty. And if we have to step on a few scientists' toes in the process, so be it.

Still, we realize this theory will sound incredible at first, so we humbly ask the reader's indulgence until we've presented all the facts. We ask only that he or she bear in mind the fact that we did not achieve the sterling reputation for accuracy it enjoys today by spouting wild accusations and hypotheses.

And now, the theory:

THE DINOSAURS WERE A GENETIC EXPERIMENT CARRIED OUT BY AN ALIEN RACE!

The first trickle of evidence came from one of our many contacts in Italy. According to this contact, a paleontological expedition from the University of Verona was digging in the Po Valley when it came upon an amazing find, a petrified bone—specifically, a portion of the forelimb structure of a tyrannosaur. Such bones had been found before, but there was something unusual about this particular find: a tiny hole near one end of the bone. The hole was approximately 3 mm in diameter and 2.5 cm deep and very regular, almost as if someone had deliberately drilled it.

Indeed the paleontologists assumed the hole had been deliberately drilled and were therefore ready to dismiss the tyrannosaur bone as inauthentic. The bone, they reasoned, must be a fake planted by pranksters. Nevertheless, the fossil was submitted for analysis and dating by the carbon 14 method. To the surprise of the scientific community, the find was determined to be authentic.

The next question, then, became obvious: Who drilled the hole? Certainly not man, for the last dinosaur died millions of years before the appearance of the first man. Not only that, but even after man did appear, it was not until after more millions of years had passed that he was able to develop the technological capability that would allow him to drill a hole as precise as the one in the tyrannosaur fossil. As Dr. Mario Vespucci, leader of the expedition to the Po Valley put it, "This is a most amazing find. Most amazing. Quite simply, a fossil such as this should not exist. And yet, it does."

Scientists all over the world were every bit as amazed as Dr. Vespucci, and so the scramble was on to explain the origin of the mysterious hole. One of the scientific teams invited to take a crack at solving the mystery was the staff at our laboratory.

In view of our reputation as world leaders in the study of UFOs and extraterrestrial races, the reason was clear as to why we have been asked to participate in the study of what was already being called the Vespucci Fossil. Clearly, someone on the committee of paleontologists coordinating the investigation felt that there was at least the possibility of some kind of alien involvement in the creation of the amazing fossil. Admittedly skeptical, we nevertheless agreed to let a couple of our scientists look into the matter.

It was only by sheer luck that one of the scientists assigned to the project was Dr. Armand Sarris, who, when he received the assignment, was busily engaged in teleportation research. [For more information on teleportation, see "The Quest for Teleportation" in this issue.] In his experiments with white mice, Dr. Sarris, in order to monitor his subjects' reactions, would implant electrodes in the brains of the mice. He would do this by drilling tiny holes in the animals' skulls—holes not unlike the one Dr. Vespucci found in the tyrannosaur fossil.

Dr. Sarris, to his credit, noticed the similarity immediately and wasted not time in communicating his suspicions to Eugene Allan Schwimmer, the perceptive and extremely erudite editor of this magazine. Realizing the importance of Sarris' ideas, Mr. Schwimmer called a meeting of the scientific executive board and requested the assignment of a full investigative team to the project. The board quickly agreed.

After that, things began to happen quickly. Dr. Sarris flew to Italy to personally meet Dr. Vespucci and examine the fossil. There, Dr. Sarris' original hypothesis was strengthened. The hole could very well have been drilled for the purpose of receiving an implant of some kind, perhaps even an electrode like the ones used by Dr. Sarris to monitor laboratory mice.

It goes without saying that firmly believes that even as this article is being written, the Earth is being observed by one or more extraterrestrial races for reasons known only to themselves. How long has this observation been going on? We don't know for certain; it could be years or hundreds of years or thousands of years.

Or millions!

Was the Earth visited by extraterrestrials during the time that the dinosaur lived and did they implant sensing devices within these creatures' bodies in order to monitor them and study them?

I think so—there is simply no other way to explain the hole in the Vespucci Fossil.

itself; that is, merely to acquire knowledge about them. Hopefully, this was their purpose for the other alternative is much more serious and in fact carries with it a frightening implication.

The second hypothesis is this: Perhaps the aliens, like Dr. Sarris, were performing an experiment.

What kind of experiment could the aliens have been performing? Well, since the dinosaurs were a species that dominated the planet for millions of years, then suddenly disappeared, it is possible—perhaps even probable—that the experiment was the dinosaurs themselves. Dr. Samantha Davison, scientist-in-charge of the GENETIC DIVISION explains it this way: "We have long puzzled over the fact that the dinosaur, rather than evolving naturally from a previous least, not in my professional opinion.

"Dr. Sarris' second hypothesis, however, promises to shed new light on this baffling problem. I have read his preliminary report and from it, I have been able to formulate a hypothesis of my own.

"It is my hypothesis that the dinosaurs were created by an extraterrestrial race and were intended by them to rule over the Earth. The dinosaurs were, in my opinion, a massive experiment in genetics, a grand attempt to "build from the ground up," if you will, a race of intelligent creatures.

"But the experiment, unfortunately, was a failure. The dinosaurs were anything but intelligent—and they would never be intelligent, even after millions of years. That was how long it took the alien geneticists to realize their mistake. But when,

And what if the experiment "fails?" Will mankind one day become extinct?

Which leads to another, perhaps even more important, question: Why were the aliens studying the dinosaurs?

Again, Dr. Sarris came up with only two possibilities that make sense. The simplest hypothesis is one that states that the aliens were studying the ancient reptiles as an end in species and into a succeeding species, seems to have suddenly appeared—geologically speaking, that is—and just as suddenly died out. This simply does not jibe with what we know about evolution. Darwin's theories do not as yet adequately explain the sudden appearance and disappearance of the dinosaur—at finally, they did realize it, their reaction was swift and, for the dinosaurs, fatal. They wiped them off the face of the Earth, eliminated them completely."

But assuming that the dinosaurs were a genetic experiment conducted by an alien race, would they really have allowed such an experiment to continue over a period of millions of years?

According to Dr. Davison, the answer is yes. "We must always bear in mind the fact that time is relative and that, therefore, a time span of millions of years, though seemingly a long time to us, may, to an alien race, seem quite short. Yes, it is quite possible that such a race would be willing to conduct an experiment over millions or even billions of years. I see no logical reason for this not to be."

According to Dr. Davison, then, it is quite possible that the dinosaurs were artificially created and later destroyed by an alien race. And we at ANCIENT ASTRONAUTS agree. But if this is indeed the case, what are the implications; specifically, what is the implication for mankind?

In terms of its effect on mankind, the mere knowledge that extraterrestrials were present on the Earth in prehistoric times and were using it as a living laboratory for biological experimentation is mind-staggering. But what if—and this is an enormous "if"—man himself is an experiment? What if, having failed with the dinosaurs, the alien biological engineers went back to their drawing boards for a few million years and then tried again—with man?

Is man, like the dinosaur, the creation of an extraterrestrial race? Are we, despite our great intelligence and our advance technology, really no more than a simple experiment in genetics? And are the aliens who are observing us today doing so not for the benign purpose of acquiring knowledge, but rather, to see how the experiment "turns out?" Hopefully, the answer to this question is no, for if it isn't then we must all ask ourselves the most important question of all:

What happens if the "experiment" fails?

If we fail to live up to the alien geneticists' expectations, will we one day go the way of the dinosaurs?

It's certainly something to think about—isn't it? ●

Dr. Samantha Davison.

NOW—You can Live Like A King and never want again with the Miracle Power of...

OMNI-COSMICS

It's true! This hidden energy power responds at once to help you gain endless streams of wealth... control the thoughts of others... achieve protection from evil... make illness and pain disappear... and much more!

Dear Friend:

How would you like to be able to say a few words and transform an ordinary piece of glass into a MAGIC MIRROR which will produce all the riches, love, power, health and happiness you wish to create in your life?

Or how would you like to be able to say four power words to summon MAGIC SAGE who will come to your command any time you want him? Or say four other power words to help find lost people or treasure? Or nine words to heal an area of your body?

Now it's possible to do all these things and more—with the Miracle Power of OMNI-COSMICS. OMNI-COSMICS will enable you to perform the so-called "impossible" feats. With it, you will be able to attain a paradise on earth for yourself and for all those you love.

My name is Ann Fisher, and I'll tell you more about this amazing offer in just a minute, but first let me show you all the things OMNI-COSMICS will help you do...

- Produce money "from out of thin air".
- Make illness and pain disappear.
- Control the thoughts of others.
- Find lost people and treasure.
- Avoid problems before they arise by looking into the future.
- Win money in a horse race or a lottery.
- Travel astrally to faraway lands.
- Turn thoughts into solid material things.
- Repel black magic or voodoo attacks.
- Find your perfect mate and achieve marital happiness.

YOU WILL BE ABLE TO PRODUCE MONEY "FROM OUT OF THIN AIR!"

I'll show you how to use OMNI-COSMICS to achieve endless streams of wealth. And I'll tell you right now that whatever you desire, you can have—I MEAN ANYTHING—and it can be obtained quickly and easily.

You may want a new car, a new home, a swimming pool, a mink coat, a diamond ring, an exclusive apartment, a fabulous vacation, some money to clear up your debts, or an income for life of say $20,000, $50,000 or even $100,000.

Well now, with OMNI-COSMICS, you'll see how to materialize the miraculous things you desire... You can become as wealthy as you wish... You can live like a king and never want again! Just look:

• POOR WOMAN WINS $100,000—Florence, a woman in her forties, was short of money for years. I mean she was really poor. Her shabby clothes came from friends or the Salvation Army. She hadn't bought anything new for herself in many years. But six weeks after using an OMNI-COSMICS technique I showed her, a miracle happened to Florence—she won an whopping $100,000 after buying an Irish Sweepstakes ticket.

• FACTORY WORKER WINS $1,000 A WEEK FOR LIFE—John R., a factory worker, was desperately in need of money for his rent, car payments and a pile of unpaid bills. He was discontented and unhappy and he could see no help in sight. But after doing an OMNI-COSMICS ritual I showed him, he bought a lottery ticket which paid $1,000 a week for life—enough to pay all his bills, take a long trip with his family, and build a new house!

• STUDENT PICKS NINE WINNERS IN A ROW—David A. needed money to go to college in the fall. He had never been lucky at the races, but he decided to try OMNI-COSMICS to finance his college education anyway. After performing the right ritual, he went to the track and picked out all nine winners and came home with a grand total of $1,600—which was enough for college that fall!

YOU WILL BE ABLE TO CONTROL THE THOUGHTS OF OTHERS—WITHOUT EVEN SAYING A WORD TO THEM!

With this Power, you can get the lover you want, change the attitude of a troublesome child, get a friend or neighbor to respond to your requests, or get a boss to give you that raise or protection you feel you deserve. You can influence a person to see it your way or do the things you want him to...

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

ANN FISHER, an instructor of parapsychology at the State University of New York at Albany, and a nationally recognized psychic, medium, parapsychologist and ghost hunter, is a foremost authority and investigator of the higher powers of the mind. After many years of intensive investigation, she discovered the mighty powers of Omni-Cosmics—the miraculous power source revealed for the first time in this book. Ann Fisher has displayed her psychic abilities on many radio and television programs.

... you can stimulate the person's memory process, move his fingers, make him do what you want, repeat the words you want him to say, and do many other things. It does work. No one can resist this command power. See for yourself!

GETS SHY BOYFRIEND TO PROPOSE MARRIAGE—Marilyn K. was in love with Kevin. They had dated for two years and were very much in love, but Kevin was shy and couldn't muster up enough courage to propose. Marilyn then tried my method of contacting Kevin's subconscious mind and suggesting that he propose. Later—out of the blue—Kevin popped the question!

WOMAN GETS PROMOTION AND DOUBLES HER SALARY—Judy K. wanted to be promoted to a new position that was opening up where she worked. She knew she could handle the job, but she needed a chance to prove herself. A few weeks after she used an OMNI-COSMICS technique to tap her boss's mind, she was called into his office and given the job. A year later, she doubled her salary!

What's more, with the Miracle Power of OMNI-COSMICS, you'll be able to know the innermost thoughts of people in the next room or thousands of miles away—or even what a person is thinking when you talk to him on the telephone!

USE OMNI-COSMICS TO PROGRAM A PROTECTIVE FORCE AROUND YOU!

Today we live in an age with many negative influences around us. If you believe that voodoo and psychic assault does not exist in this Twentieth Century, you are incorrect. Negative forces do exist today and they do work.

Now, with OMNI-COSMICS, you can build a protective force around you so that you will have nothing to fear at all. That's just what John and Pamela did—and look at how they were saved...

• INVISIBLE FORCE SAVES MAN FROM DROWNING—John K., a fair swimmer, went out too far one day. When he was in the middle of the lake and there was no one in sight, he became very tired and started to sink. Somehow John, a regular user of OMNI-COSMICS, was saved. He didn't know how he got back to shore for he had felt an invisible force carrying him over the top of the water to land safely. OMNI-COSMICS saved him from drowning!

• OMNI-COSMICS SAVES LIFE OF YOUNG LADY—Pamela, a young student in one of my classes who habitually uses the protective powers of OMNI-COSMICS, was driving on a city street one day and heard a voice say "Stop or you will be killed." It was lucky she did, for another car went through the intersection at a high rate of speed. She would have been killed or seriously injured if she had not stopped.

You'll also see how, with OMNI-COSMIC protective powers, other people were able to repel a black magic attack... reverse a voodoo curse... travel with safety... get saved from a mugging attempt... and much more. THEY DID IT—AND SO CAN YOU!

SEE HOW TO USE OMNI-COSMIC POWER FOR INSTANT HEALING!

Do you want perfect health? OMNI-COSMIC healing power will respond immediately when you use the right power ritual. After a while all illness and pain will disappear!

OVERCOMES SERIOUS KIDNEY AILMENT—Terry J., a dear friend of mine, had just found out that he had a very serious kidney ailment. His doctor told him that his condition would shorten his life and that he "needed rest." But two months after he used an OMNI-COSMICS health ritual I showed him, his doctors were amazed to discover that his kidneys were in perfect working condition and that no signs of illness existed.

HEALS ULCER AND IMPROVES BAD HEART CONDITION—Perry had a very bad heart condition and also a serious ulcer. His doctor wanted to remove his ulcer, but was afraid to operate because of the heart condition. But when Perry went back to his doctor after using an OMNI-COSMICS ritual I showed him, his ulcer had healed and his heart condition was greatly improved!

With my PERFECT HEALTH ritual, soon you will feel your body becoming stronger, healthier and more dynamic. I DID IT—SO YOU CAN! Just look...

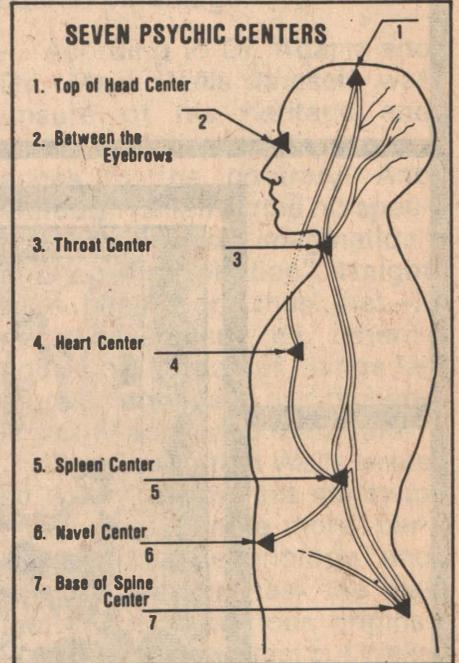

I was told when I was very ill with asthma, that I would have to use a breathing machine three times a day for the rest of my life. My doctor told me that only one out of a hundred was ever cured of this disease.

But I refused to accept this. By tuning in my OMNI-COSMICS power, I was able to get better and eventually cure the asthma!

So why suffer from less-than-perfect health when you can discover how OMNI-COSMICS can be used to overcome nervous stomach, migraine headaches, skin blemishes, and insomnia... lower high blood pressure... and heal ulcers? In fact, with OMNI-COSMICS, you'll even see how to lose weight effortlessly and be more youthful with lots of energy!

MIRACULOUS WEIGHT CONTROL AND MORE YOUTHFUL ENERGY!

Yes, with OMNI-COSMICS, you can lose weight and be thin for the rest of your life! Look at these astonishing cases... LOSES 95 POUNDS IN SIX MONTHS!—Samantha was 235 pounds at age 29. She had never had a date and was resigned to her dull life of work and watching television every night. But after using an OMNI-COSMICS ritual I showed her, Samantha lost 95 pounds and met a young man. She is now happier than she has ever been in her entire life!

LOSES 50 POUNDS AND GETS A MINK COAT—Joyce W. was 50 pounds overweight and suffered from high blood pressure, arthritis, and other ailments that kept her feeling sick most of the time. But after using OMNI-COSMICS power, she was able to lose those 50 pounds. Her health improved and she looked and felt like a new person. In fact, her husband was so proud of her new figure, he bought her a mink coat for her birthday!

WAS H.G. WELLS AN

In this illustration for Wells' novel, "The Star," we see how taken Wells was with the heavens. Is that because he felt he came from the sky?

He thought his rare vision was “divine,” and until now British readers proudly believed it! But the story of two brave scientists who dared to investigate might bring some startling facts to light!

■ In his lifetime, classic and renowned science fiction author H.G. Wells was something of a visionary. His stories are not only rare pieces of craftsmanship, but their topics were years ahead of their time—making him, along with other renowned writers such as Jules Verne, one of the fathers of “science fiction” as we know it today.

But a close examination of Wells’ life brings up some disturbing facts which bring the whole matter of his “divine inspiration” into question. According to two British scientists and students of extraterrestrial phenomena, Dr. Simon Adams and Dr. Alfred May, there is reason to believe that H.G. Wells was actually an alien!

When we heard about this amazing research study and the things it was bringing to light, we were immediately interested. At once, two investigators from our crack research team were dispatched to gather information on this new find, and perhaps to gain an audience with the scientists and learn more about this astonishing revelation! Certainly, if true, this could change the history of literature as we know it!

Our team had quite a story to tell our office. After successfully gaining an audience with the two scientists, presently engaged in their study of the life history and journals of Mr. Wells, our men were excited enough over what they had heard and seen to contact this office with a full report via transatlantic wire!

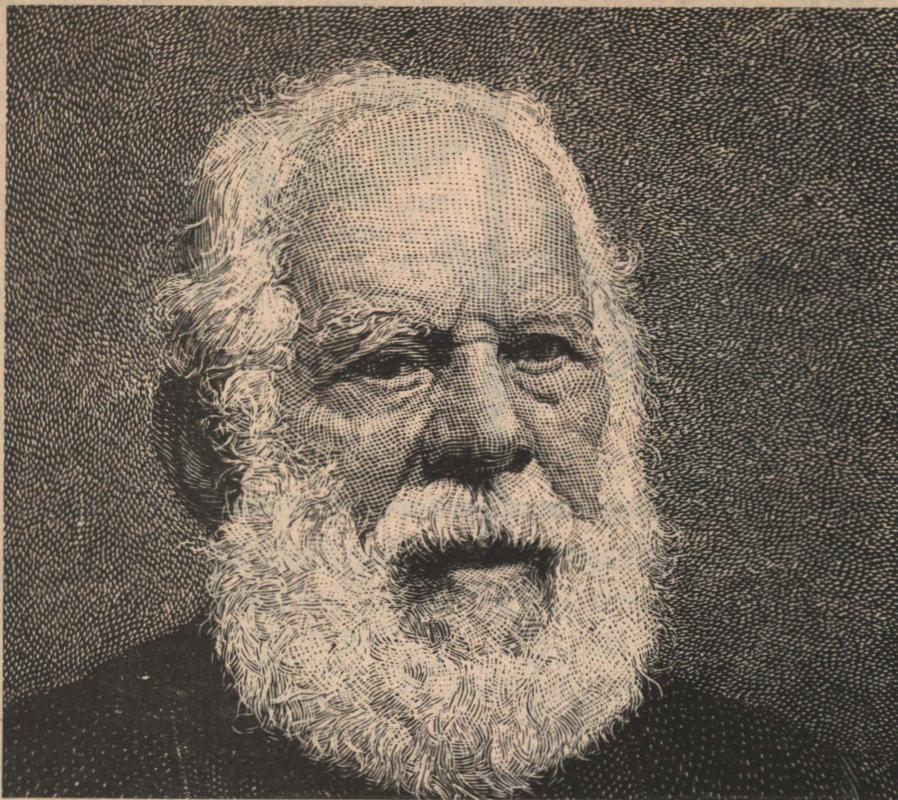

“We contacted Dr. Adams and Dr. May upon our arrival and were cordially invited to interview them for information into the mysterious origins of H.G. Wells. It seems that we have raised some real questions and are eager to allow the rest of the world to speculate upon these new developments, which are astounding if true. We met the two scientists the next afternoon. They are respected members of the British scientific community, not men given to making outlandish claims based on air, but careful investigators and sifters of all evidence that comes their way. They told us that they had suspended their credibility in this case when the facts came to light. They say there is reason to believe H.G. Wells was not born on this planet—nor of human parentage!

“According to Dr. Adams and Dr. May, Wells himself was unsure of his heritage and ancestry. This despite appearances to the contrary! And although he attributed his spectacular visions to “imagination” and “divine inspiration”, it might have been more than that—it might have been an inheritance from a race of beings far more scientifically and technologically advanced than ours!

“The reason that Wells wrote so lightly, despite his ability to tell our people more, perhaps, about technology and science, was to mask the real fact of his mysterious origins. It’s a little-known fact but Wells was adopted, and he always knew it. He continued his search for clues as to his parentage throughout his lifetime but only found frustration when he sifted the Earthly clues of ancestry.

We know this through the recent uncovering of secret diaries kept by Wells. He had constant tracers out for clues of life forms on other worlds, and he never stopped using his telescope on clear nights—no matter how cold or hot. He had a peculiar fascination with the stars, according to his friends, and often was found peering through the telescope far into the night. He would sweep the skies with it in all directions and later record his findings in his journals. But his journals tell only the mundane aspects of his findings—he would put haps, or sleep hypnosis. He believed firmly in such tools as sleep hypnosis and was heard to state that more parents and educators should explore it as an aid in their children's education and upbringing. Of course, he fascinated others with such theories but didn't continue them. They thought his imagination brilliant, but lent it down what he saw, such as the rising and the setting of the sun and moon.

His recently discovered diaries are even more revelatory. He felt sure he came from a planet or a stellar kingdom. He said it might lie somewhere to the north of Aldebaran. It had been seen through the telescope but only some years could be discerned due to its far-away position in parsecs from the Earth's galaxy. Wells felt sure that the concepts of such fictional possibilities as intergalactic wars or time travel had been the result of some kind of futuristic education by the aliens — brain implantation, per-no possible basis in fact. They may have been wrong.

"According to the two scientists who conducted this study, evidence makes Wells' claim that he came from another world more moot than vague. It is an arguable point. His calculations with the planets were not inaccurate; they lend credence to his claim that he came from another place, transported by faraway beings with superior

Wells often had bizarre dreams. He felt that these visions were due to his being born an alien. Perhaps the creature pictured here was a native of the planet which Wells really came from.

advanced technology. He asserts that he did not travel in a ship as such; he claims to a positive feeling that future travel will not require the bulky body of a vessel for transport when the secret of transport is uncovered. One day travel may be as simple as floating, or as a bird flies. His idea was that the closest possibility for his fall to Earth involved a form of time travel — a sort of slipping through a time warp. Thus his novel concerning same. He had been studying such possibilities all his life and saw no reason to doubt that they could have basis in truth.

"The doctors showed us samples of Wells' diaries, and gave us Xeroxed pages from his library to corroborate their findings. What they say is true. The fact that comes to light here is, H.G. Wells may well have been an alien!"

If you are shocked and astounded, imagine how those of us in the office felt when this story came in over the wire. It was quite an impressive find. You will have to agree to that, if H.G. Wells had been an alien, it would be quite a fact for recorded literary history, and could change the way we see all science fiction stories from now on! If aliens could implant education or different technol-

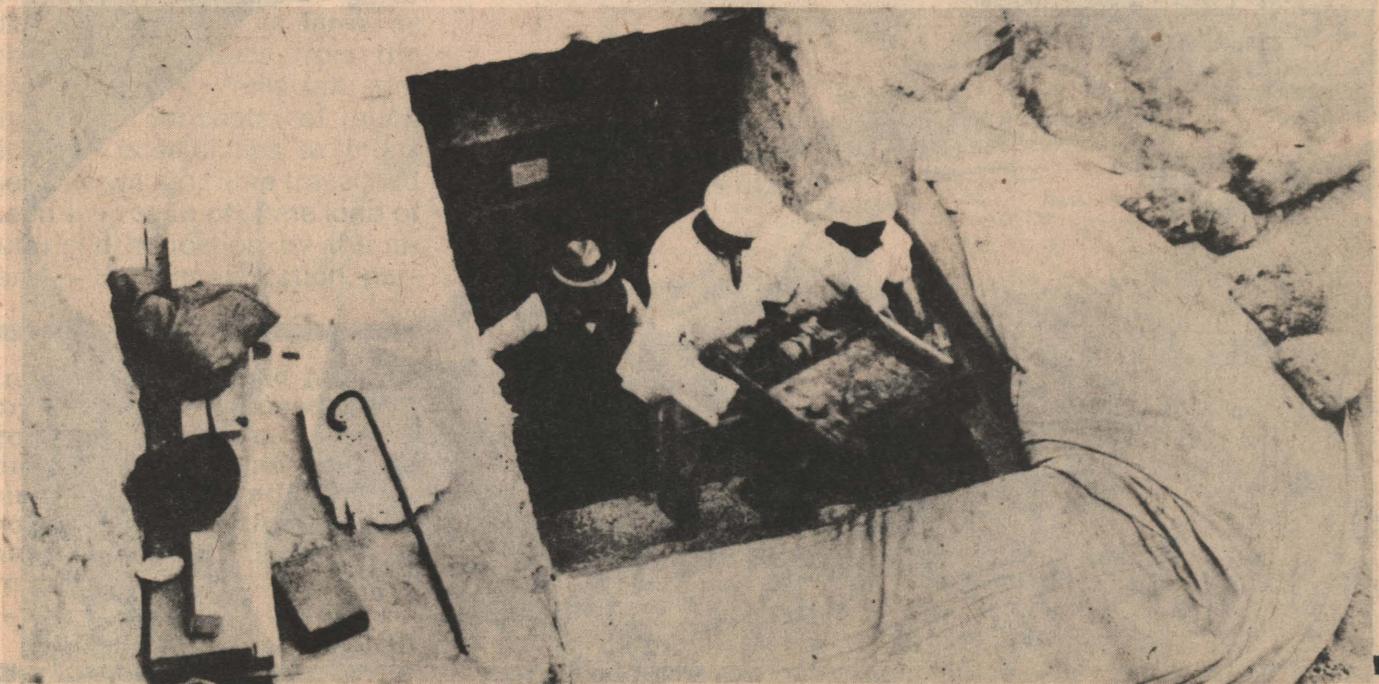

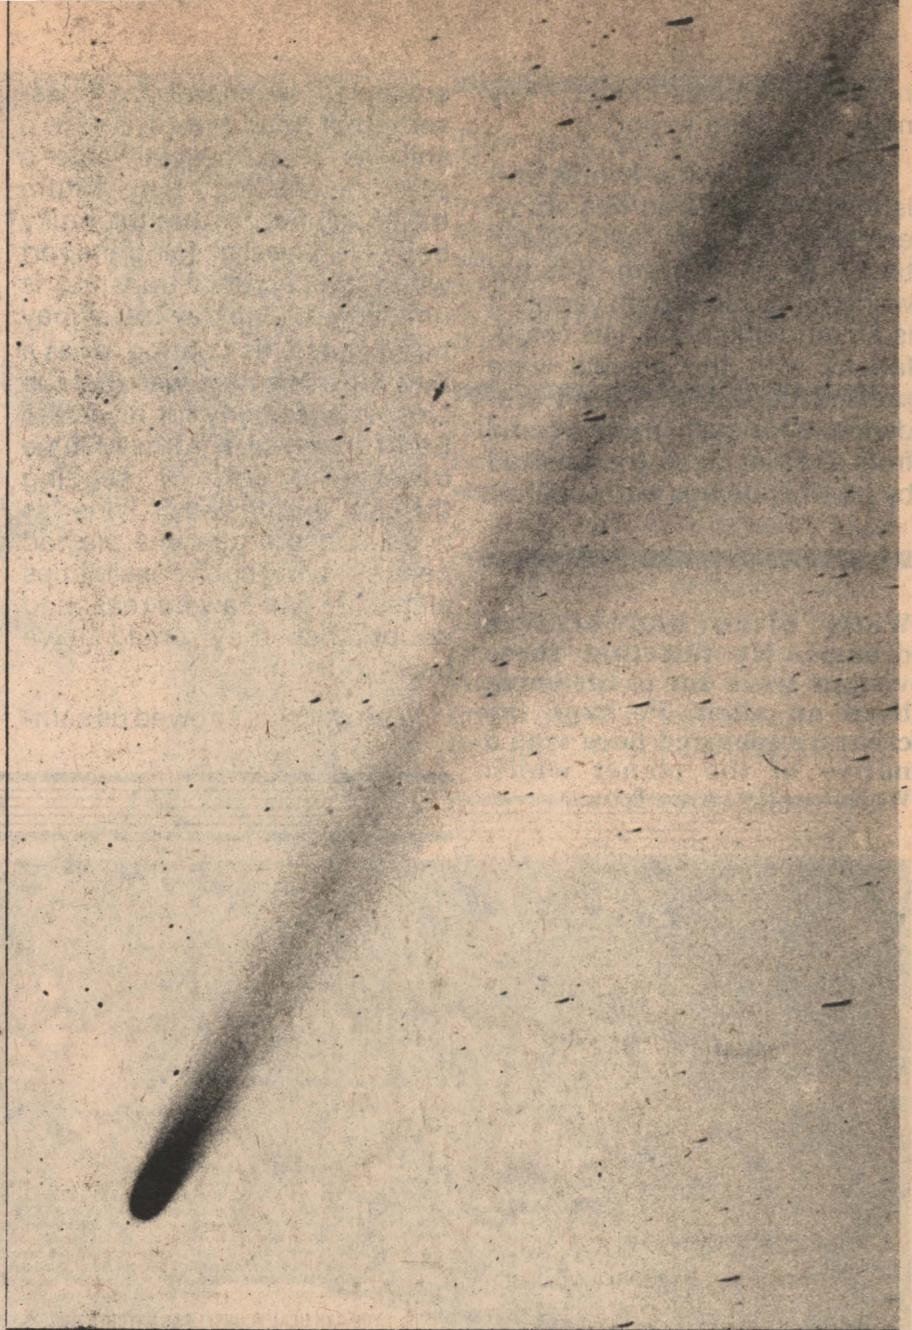

Wells was very interested in comets and the like. In fact, he found anything dealing with space fascinating. Once again, it was because of his predisposition towards believing he was alien in nature.

ogies inside the brain, who is to say they could not indoctrinate others through tele-transportation? Could aliens be educating our writers on Earth? We may know more than you think! Who knows, H.G.Wells may have brought his mysterious visions from the technology of another planet — which gives us new insight into the source of science fiction fantasy today!

These workers dug up the remains of Wells' secret cave. They were directed by the scientists to see if they could find any evidence of Wells' past life as an alien. Their findings proved inconclusive, but they did turn up some interesting remnants of Wells' life.

Now—enjoy a life of unbelievable riches, lasting love and constant protection with the secrets in this startling WITCH BOOK—

THE MAGIC POWER OF WITCHCRAFT

Whatever it is you need or want, Witchcraft can get it for you quickly, easily, and automatically, say these experts. You'll discover how it can bring abundant and overflowing wealth, find or bring back a lover, ward off evil influences, and much more—step-by-step in plain English, with complete easy-to-follow instructions!

Yes... Witchcraft! Every time you hear the word it brings with it the feelings of deep occult secrets—secrets that you would like to know so that your life can be better; so that your enemies will stop bothering you; so that serenity, love, power and comfort can be yours!

THE MAGIC POWER OF WITCHCRAFT lays bare these secrets for the first time! Do you want a bank account bursting at the seams with money? A love life that would make a sultan envious? Supreme power to crush your enemies and reward your friends? What would it be worth to you to utter a simple incantation that would cause any pain to vanish? Or say another, and immediately recover some lost object?

What would it be worth to you to fly through time and space, on astral wings, as Witches do... go wherever you wish... do whatever you wish... without being detected... watch the antics of others behind closed doors... hear private conversations... make time run forward or backward... read tomorrow's newspaper in a "black mirror"... find out what really happened in history... make your face old or young at will!

BRINGS AUTOMATIC ASSURED SUCCESS!

Witchcraft can bring your heart's desire! You can use it to heal someone, influence the boss to give you that raise, or make someone stop bothering you! It's easy! The easiest thing in the world! You don't have to be wealthy or super-intelligent to get started! Thousands of ordinary people all over the world are using Witchcraft Power right now!

Witches have known for centuries that people are scared of them and their powers! And rightly so! NOW YOU CAN SHARE THE SAME POWER that gives you literally life and death control over other persons! Is someone bothering you? No problem at all, with Magic Witchcraft. For example, there is a spell called the "Cross Not My Path" ritual, for people who are having neighbor trouble. When you use it, you know you will never again have trouble with this neighbor!

With these amazing Witchcraft secrets, other people will look up to you—in awe—you'll automatically dazzle others with your power to make things happen at your will, you'll be Master of your destiny, and never have to apologize to anyone for anything!

Whatever you want or need, whatever frustration is bothering you, Witchcraft will help you. It is not evil—nor is it Black Magic. Like electricity, it is simply a power given by nature for the use of men, to make life easier.

You'll see how to get paid without working... how to get expensive clothes and furs FREE... how to get a first-class plane seat FREE... how to vacation at the finest hotels, motels, pools and pleasure palaces, start living like a millionaire as Witches do!

AMAZING TECHNIQUE HAS HELPED THOUSANDS!

Witchcraft secrets like these can make you rich faster than anything else in the world! Here's how others have used them to make

Now! Let This Amazing Witch Book Bring You INFINITE WEALTH, FINE POSSESSIONS, A COMFORTABLE NEW HOME, FINANCIAL SECURITY, LOVE, CONTROL OVER OTHERS, And More—Easily And Automatically!

For centuries, these Witchcraft secrets were hushed up, so that those in power could stay in power! Feudal lords kept their bondsmen as slaves. Factory owners kept their employees in dreaded sweatshops, because these masters knew they must not allow their workers to realize that they need not labor their lives away. Witchcraft was suppressed because it works! Not because of any "evil" in it. If it hadn't worked, no one would have worried about it. If you want to gain power, all you need is this amazing Witch Book!

By using these Witchcraft secrets, you too can change your life and gain health, wealth, someone to love—or anything else—surely, swiftly and automatically!

• THE WITCH'S MONEY JAR!—You'll discover the secret of the Witch's Money Jar, a mysterious jar that fills with money—whenever you need it! All you need is some water, pennies, and an ordinary jar or bowl! You'll be amazed at the speed with which it fills with money—a seemingly endless supply of needed cash!

• THE WITCH'S MONEY MAGNET!—You'll see how to magnetize a dollar bill so that it multiplies! All you need to make your own Witch's Money Magnet is a dollar bill, a green candle, and the words on page 38. Once you do this, your dollar will double and keep doubling! You'll enjoy glittering luxuries, and start living like a millionaire, as Witches do!

• THE WITCH'S BLACK MIRROR!—Just as your TV set has been called your "window on the world," so the Black Mirror is your "window on the psychic world"—the world of the unknown. Making your own personal Black Mirror takes only a few moments and can open the way to unguessable visions. All you need is a bowl of water, some ink, and the chant on page 23. Suddenly you will see scenes from other places and times, or any scene you wish to see!

miracles happen in their daily lives!

You'll see how Vern, a man who likes to give a lot of expensive parties, was always short of cash until he discovered the amazing WITCH'S MONEY JAR—now all he has to do is dip in, for it brings him an endless flow of cash! Evelyn, a waitress, was always lending money to friends, and was always broke. Finally, she placed her last dollar on the table, and worked the MONEY MAGNET SPELL over it. All at once, dozens of people who had borrowed money from her, rushed to pay her back!

Hank was perpetually broke. One night he got together with some friends, and they decided to cast the MONEY SPELL. The very next day, Hank received in the mail a check for some $250 worth of insurance. (He had never heard of the company that sent the check, he was not insured with them, and had never even made a claim—but he accepted the money.) Another member of the group that used the spell, a 40-year-old secretary, received an automobile as a gift! All the other members of the group received amazing windfalls of money, as well! You'll see how Dexter, a retiree, lives RENT FREE and receives $200 a week at the age of 78, with a secret you'll find in this Witch Book! You'll see how Claudine, a secretary, was able to wear the finest, most expensive furs—FREE—and spend weekends at an expensive ski lodge in the mountains, where she met a wonderful man! How Ruth L., a widow—with nothing but a small pension, and a little savings—received her dream house by using the simple 5-minute ritual on page 38 of this book! Using the same Witchcraft secrets, YOU can achieve peace of mind and freedom from money worries for the rest of your life!

YOU CAN HEAL YOURSELF AS WITCHES DO!

Feeling sick today? Plagued by a lot of troublesome illnesses? Perhaps some relative is sick and constantly demanding your attention? Or perhaps it is even a pet that needs help? With the MAGIC POWER OF WITCHCRAFT, you can cure anything, say authors Gavin and Yvonne Frost: "In our experience... we have not found a single incurable disease!"

• ANDY DISSOLVES A GALLSTONE!—Andy M. developed gallstones. When his illness became too troublesome to ignore, he went to a doctor. Urine tests revealed that he was chronically alkaline. His body was badly out of balance. Using this Witchcraft method to restore balance to the mind and body—in a short while, X-rays showed that he had no more gallstones! Andy never again suffered the excruciating pain of passing stones!

In the same way, say Gavin and Yvonne Frost, almost all illness can be prevented. You are actually employing an ancient Witchcraft method to remove diseased tissue! Even if you do not have any belief in the results, the power will work for you!

One woman, who had been in a wheelchair for 26 years, due to polio and arthritis, used the Witchcraft healing method, and reported that she had no pain and could walk and garden again! A man reported that his son's deep 3rd degree burns miraculously healed overnight!

• SO SIMPLE A CHILD USES IT!—A 4-year-old girl asked if she could try to heal a man who was limping—due to a torn ligament—with this simple Witchcraft healing method. In a matter of moments, she started her chant, laying her hands on the weak ankle. The man was miraculously cured! To skeptics, this should be convincing PROOF that anyone can use it!

AMAZING POWER CAN BE YOURS!

Whether you want infinite wealth, or just a comfortable new home, financial security, fine possessions, love, companionship, new health and vigor, power to control others, secret knowledge, protection from evil, or anything else, the magic power of Witchcraft can bring it to you quickly, easily and automatically! It's the easiest thing in the world!

• HOW TO SEE INTO THE FUTURE!—Would you like to be able to see the future? You CAN with the magic Black Mirror you'll see how to make on page 23. All you need is some ink and a bowl of water. Then use the chant on this page, and you will be able to see many things. One man uses it to read tomorrow's newspaper. YOU can use it to check the stock market or that important horse race!

• MAKE TIME RUN BACKWARD OR FORWARD!—A

THE LAST WORD

Hope you've enjoyed this first issue of UFO SIGHTINGS. You should now be much more informed about alien intervention on this planet than you were before you read this magazine. The truth can be painful, but it must be known! The startling information presented within these pages has not been meant to scare people, but to inform them. I can only hope that we have accomplished that. Next issue should really be an eye opener. If you're interested in the UFO phenomenon, it's a must that you buy UFO SIGHTINGS. It is almost your duty to buy this magazine. After all, by realizing the alien presence in our society, we are taking a giant step towards building a stronger structure for the future. It is almost inevitable that in the years to come, the aliens will deem fit to contact us. The shock will be lessened severely if we come to grips with the problem now!

Rest easy, perhaps things will work out for the best. Keep watching the skies and believing. The true believers will be proven right in the end!

Till next issue,
Russell Wiener
