MORGANTON, NC

Brown Mountain Lights Phenomenon

The UFORCOP team traveled to Morganton NC on September 2, 2011 to start researching the Brown Mountain Lights. The team did the preliminary research and viewed and photographed the lights. There are a number of theories and the team will be traveling to the site again in late October or early November to gather more information and check other viewing locations.

We were joined at the site by Richard Lang, director of ARIRA who is familiar with the area and will again join us on our second visit to the site. Equipment used included Infrared Cameras, both still and video and night vision scopes. Whatever the lights are they are massive in size and vary in colors. They were visible from 1930 hrs to 2230 hrs. A portable gas analyzer will be used on next trip to check for any gases in the area of the lights.

UFORCOP has joined forces with ARIRA, Aerospace Research Investigation Reporting Agency, UFO Research of North America, UFO Clearinghouse, and the Institute of Frontier Science as partner sites in the search for the truth.

Appearances

UFORCOP attended a charity benefit for Animal Rescue in Tamaqua PA and had the UFORCOP mobile unit on display as well as Tim Heckman's Bigfoot display. They had a great crowd and it was for a worthy cause, and we had a lot of fun meeting and talking with folks about UFO's and Bigfoot. The children were fascinated by Tim's Bigfoot display.

UFORCOP MOBILE UNIT

QualComm Global Star Satellite Communications have been added to our mobile unit, also a new IF Night Vision System, and in August a Ladder Rack, Emergency LED Warning Lights, Ladders and Repelling Gear were added, along with mobile and portable communications and a multi-band scanner. A 3500-3750 watt generator was also installed.

Paranormal

UFORCOP is going to Gettysburg in the autumn of 2011 to do a paranormal investigation of strange things reported at that location.

CRYPTO ZOOLOGY

NEWS FLASH!

ARIRA (Aerospace Research Investigation Reporting Agency) pronounced (a-rye'-ra) is a private research organization.

ARIRA is dedicated to independent research and investigation, focused on Unidentified Aerial Phenomena (UAP) and other Anomalous Phenomena, within the framework of physical reality, anomaly, the effects on society and human consciousness.

ARIRA advisory board members, investigators, researchers and dispatchers (agents) are selected and invited to serve, based solely on academic accomplishment, research capabilities, investigative credentials and experience in this field.

ARIRA is not a member organization and individuals cannot purchase a membership or pay an annual fee to belong to this network or have access to this research data.

Our logo looks very official and that was our intension. The words in the acronym were chosen carefully in that an "Agency" is defined as an entity, through which energy is exerted and an end result is achieved. The ARIRA Project is exactly that, an entity that facilitates investigation, conducts research and produces reports. ARIRA is totally dedicated to research and is entirely self-supporting.

Meet the mountain lion who completed an astonishing 2,000-mile walk across the U.S... before getting run over by an SUV.

- Mountain lion's walk is one of longest-ever journeys for any land mammal

- Animal travelled from South Dakota to Connecticut but died on highway
- Passed through Minnesota, Wisconsin, Canada and New York on his way

He walked 2,000 miles across the U.S. and Canada in what was one of the longest-ever recorded journeys for a land mammal.

So it was unfortunate that the 140lbs mountain lion who made it all the way from South Dakota to Connecticut met a grisly end after being hit by a sports utility vehicle on a highway last month.

The animal originated in the Black Hills region of South Dakota and was tracked by DNA from its hair and droppings as it passed through Minnesota and Wisconsin in 2009 and 2010, officials said.

Dead cat: A worker examines the deceased mountain lion in Burlington, Connecticut, after it made a 2,000-mile trip from South Dakota and was killed by a car last month in Milford, Connecticut

‘It is a testament to the adaptability of the species that it can travel so far from its original home in South Dakota to Connecticut,’ Connecticut environmental commissioner Daniel Esty said.

‘It’s a symbol, perhaps a signal of a stronger bounce back of some of our wildlife species,’ he told the Hartford Courant. ‘It was an incredible journey that ended in a tragic death on our highway here.’

He was the first confirmed wild mountain lion in Connecticut in more than 100 years, but was killed on June 11 when hit by a vehicle on the Wilbur Cross Parkway in Milford, Connecticut.

North America’s mountain lion population is estimated at 100,000, mostly living in western regions and seldom travelling more than 100 miles.

Authorities initially believed it was a captive animal that escaped, but tests showed it was not neutered or de-clawed and had no implanted microchips - commonly used in domestic animals.

Journey: The animal originated in the Black Hills region of South Dakota and was tracked by DNA from its hair and droppings as it passed through Minnesota and Wisconsin in 2009 and 2010, before arriving in Connecticut

Tests also determined the cat, aged between two and four years old, was likely to be the same one that had been seen earlier in Greenwich, Connecticut - a New York City suburb 30 miles away.

State environment official Daniel Esty

The death was followed by a flurry of big cat sightings in Connecticut, but experts dismissed most as unreliable. Officials believe no native mountain lions live in Connecticut.

Although it was an anomaly, Mr Esty said the presence of the wild mountain lion is a good sign of the ability of Connecticut's conserved land to sustain wildlife.

He said: '(The discovery is) a strong symbol of what we had all hoped for who work in the conservation area, that wilderness areas and biological diversity can be preserved and protected.'

'This guy had a really adventurous spirit.'

It's believed the lion crossed a river in Connecticut. 'Rivers do present a bit of a challenge for them,' biologist Paul Rego told the New Haven Register. 'Certainly not insurmountable, though.'

State environment official Daniel Esty

Genetic testing showed the cat had the same genetic structure of the mountain lion population in South Dakota's Black Hills region.

Genetics experts in Montana matched the DNA with samples collected from a cat spotted in eastern Minnesota near Minneapolis and in northern Wisconsin from late 2009 through early 2010.

It was unclear what route the animal took to Connecticut, but biologists said it could have travelled south near urban areas or north through Canada.

Several museums are now considering displaying the animal's body, which is now in a freezer, but is still not known exactly why the lion decided to make the long journey.

QUESTION?

DID THIS CAT CROSS INTO NORTHEASTERN PA ?
COULD HE HAVE BEEN THE CAT SIGHTED IN NORTHEASTERN PA A FEW MONTHS AGO? WE WILL NEVER KNOW.

ABDUCTION DEFINITION

The terms “ Alien Abduction or the Abduction Phenomenon” describe, subjectively real memories of being taken secretly or against ones will by apparently non-human entities and subjected to complex and psychological procedures...

ABDUCTION FORENSICS

- Capture
- Examination
- Conference with captors
- Tour of the craft
- Loss of time
- Return to place of abduction
- A feeling of oneness with universe or GOD
- Living with the mental aftermath of the event

ALIENS AREAS OF INTEREST of ABDUCTEES

- Cranium
- Nervous System Functions
- Skin Samples
- Reproductive System both Male and Female
- Cardiovascular System
- Respiratory System
- Lymphatic System
- Abdominal (Lower Region only)

Above are listed areas that are for the most part identical in every abduction report.

OVERSEAS CASES

England and Brazil have reported sheep mutilation cases. Inquiries continue on our part.

If you have seen something strange in Pennsylvania in the air or on the ground we would like to hear from you.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Budd Hopkins June 15, 1931 – August 21, 2011

I'm very sad to pass along that Budd Hopkins a noted researcher and head of the Intruders Foundation died from complications of liver cancer. August 21, at 1:35 pm. He was a central figure in the abduction phenomenon and related UFO research. He will be missed.
