SAINT FRANCIS OF ASSISI

(How come there's so many of you around?)

Question:

K.K. wants to know: Is St Francis a sort of group soul by now, or is he incarnated in more than one physical form?

Cosmic Awareness:

This Awareness indicates the latter as being correct. This Awareness indicates information has been given on this previously in terms of reincarnation of entities. This Awareness indicates that the consciousness which makes up an entity throughout a lifetime has many facets. That these many facets do not necessarily accompany each other throughout eternity. These facets may spread apart and move about into other realms apart from each other in terms of space, in terms of individuality.

This Awareness indicates those facets which were part of St. Francis at one period of time in his life were not prominent at another period of time in his life. This Awareness indicates that those facets, after the death of St. Francis in the physical sense, then moved on into further expression, not necessarily connected to one another.

This Awareness indicates that there are certain entities present upon this plane, each holding certain facets of the entity, St. Francis, as part of their consciousness. In this manner one entity can foster many reincarnations. This Awareness indicates that, likewise, many entities can be the reincarnation of a previous entity. This Awareness indicates that essentially, however, the soul of an entity whose individuality has been developed clearly, remains intact throughout eons of time and does not become scattered in its essential qualities. This Awareness indicates that the core being of an entity generally remains intact if that entity has developed a core being which is solidified in terms of its own crystalization and completion. This Awareness indicates that many aspects of the entity's consciousness, however, may scatter and go into different areas.

This Awareness indicates one's own thought forms, those emotions and feelings and thoughts which entities emit in their daily lives, do not necessarily stay with their physical forms or with their soul, but are emitted into consciousness and picked up by others who also experience those emotions and feelings. This Awareness indicates that many moods which entities feel are not, in fact, their own moods, but are moods which they have picked up from others. This Awareness indicates likewise the same is true with thoughts, feelings and emotions. This Awareness indicates likewise the same is true with certain characteristics and certain personality factors; that entities can siphon off personality factors and characteristics from other entities.

This Awareness asks the question: How many personality factors or characteristics can be taken from another before one can actually discern and claim to be that personality reincarnated? This Awareness also asks the question: How many personality factors can enter into another person before that person is said to be possessed?

This Awareness suggests that these are questions relating unto the Law of Relativity. That it is relative in terms of degree, in terms of dimension, in terms of quantity and quality. This Awareness indicates that when entities request information regarding their past life as to who they were in a previous lifetime, this as likened unto the stream of consciousness, wherein this Awareness or other psychics, look at the entity's consciousness and follow up that stream toward its source and into nooks and crannies, wherein that source once lived and experienced. This Awareness indicates that in this manner there can be discerned certain trace of energies leading back to an entity, an individual, which is described in various manners. This Awareness indicates that this energy can move on back to other points of reference. That each of these points of reference can be described as an entity, a character, a personality, a collective of emotions and feelings; that each of these entities can be described under a name. This Awareness indicates that, depending on how entities wish this to be interpreted, the name may be given that you were the reincarnation of such and such an entity. This Awareness indicates in reality these forces are constantly flowing: that nook and cranny, that fork in consciousness that goes by a certain name, is actually a vortex whereby energy flows through.

This Awareness indicates that this may be likened unto the name of a fork in a river, whereby you ask the water at one place, "Where are you from?" and the water answers, "I am from the fork on the right side of the river, upstream, called the St. Francis of Assisi Fork." This Awareness indicates that other waters may also claim the same source. This Awareness indicates that the timing of those waters is different: the one water passed through the fork at one time, the other water passed at another time.

This Awareness indicates that all consciousness is one consciousness, even as all water is one water. Yet each of these forces of consciousness has chosen a different path, has passed through different points of reference, has existed and flowed under the different names of different entities, has channeled in certain ways according to the form and structure of those forks in the river of consciousness, according to the form and structure of the experiences, the shapes of body, the race, the ideas, the training, the environmental input of the entity through which that consciousness flowed during that particular time.

This Awareness indicates that those forces of consciousness which have flowed through those particular places have been colored and affected by those experiences, by those past lifetimes, by those movements through those nooks and crannies and those forks. This Awareness indicates that where they arrive at the present time and the experiences of those past times, there is a flux of energy which is called "me", based upon the previous experience of that energy, the collective memory on all levels of that particular energy. That energy is such that it is looking out from the form which it has now created to flow through as a node or fork in the river, in the stream of consciousness under a particular name, referring to itself as a character or personality in present lifetime.

Question:

Then that would explain, for example, somebody wrote in and said that in the Edgar Cayce Readings, that one of the disciples, I forget which one, was alive in Virginia Beach, and that today in Virginia Beach he is alive right now and wasn't doing very much with his life; and it was one of the disciples that Awareness mentioned in the York trance was present and doing work on the earth plane. Would that explain the seemingly inconsistency of that?

Cosmic Awareness:

This Awareness indicates this in the affirmative. This Awareness indicates that each entity in this present lifetime can look at oneself and say, "Am I truly the same entity I was 10 years ago, or am I someone entirely different?"

This Awareness indicates that many entities remain stable throughout their lifetime, that many entities shift personalities and characteristics in a very short time. This Awareness indicates that you look at the example of that entity considered in the story of the Three Faces of Eve. This Awareness indicates that in this entity there were not only three, but five or more personalities which expressed themselves through this entity. This Awareness asks you at this time, if a trance reader were examining any one of these personalities in a future time, a future lifetime, and that personality were to ask: "Who was I in my last lifetime," and the trance reader looked and said, "You were Eve Black," this Awareness indicates that this would be accurate.

This Awareness indicates that supposing another personality of Eve Black also came to the trance reader and said: "Who was I in my last lifetime?" and the trance reader responded, "you were Eve Black." This Awareness indicates that there would seem to be an inconsistency, for these two people walking around in their own individual bodies, both claiming to be the reincarnation of Eve Black. This Awareness indicates that continuance of this could produce five particular bodies, each claiming to be reincarnated from the same entity. This Awareness suggests that this seeming inconsistency could, in fact, be a reality.

Question:

A number of years ago, during an LSD experiment, the entity Debby H. had a voice express itself through her as one of these aspects that called itself the "Observer". It asked the question, something to the effect that, "Debby? Isn't that rather an odd name? What do you think of Debby?" It was almost like another entity was speaking through her. Would the information just given by Awareness explain this phenomenon?

Cosmic Awareness:

This Awareness indicates this as in the affirmative. This Awareness indicates there are 144 aspects of consciousness in each entity. That this actually can be divided into 12, creating 1,728 aspects. That this could also be divided by 12, labeling 12 aspects in each entity. This Awareness indicates this as arbitrary, according to the frame of reference that entities wish to use in describing the consciousness of themselves.

This Awareness indicates that an entity can be described as an arm or as a hand. That Shakespeare used this as a means of literary genius. That the action of referring to 'the hand that rocked the cradle' is a means of literary technique which uses this principle. That one can be referred to as the eye, the nose, the hand; yet in reality the entity can also be referred to by a name. Still, the entity is not the name. The entity can be referred to by the total shape of the body, yet the entity is not just the shape of the body.

This Awareness indicates entities could call each other liver, or heart, or hand, arm, eye, nose, ears, or hair. That entities could call each other by many different names, but the total entity is composed of Who and What he is, has been, has experienced, and does continue to experience from moment to moment. That there is no possible word to describe an entity, for the entity is what the entity 'is'. I am that which I am.

This Awareness indicates that entities can have many aspects of consciousness. That entities can be channels for other forces, and when those forces enter in and speak through an entity, who is to deny that the force which speaks through the entity is, at that moment, part of the entity himself? This as also arbitrary. If one channels negative forces, can one deny the fact of being negative? This as arbitrary. One can deny the fact of being negative, or one can accept the fact of being negative, according to the frame of reference the entity chooses to use.

This Awareness indicates that if the entity wishes to identify that negative quality with oneself, and say, "I am evil", then indeed the entity is evil. This Awareness indicates that if the entity wishes to look at the negative force which is being channeled and say, "the evil force is attempting to violate me", then indeed the evil force is attempting to violate the entity, and the entity can deny being part of that evil force. This can be a reality, a truth.

This Awareness indicates the word is that which creates the reality. The word created that which is the heaven and earth, that which is the truth from moment to moment. As you describe your experience, this is the truth for you.

This Awareness indicates that this use of the word is only true within your particular frame of reference. That wherein another uses a different frame of reference to discuss your behavior, stating that they do not accept the fact that you were violated by evil forces which possessed you and caused you to behave in a particular manner, but rather think that you, yourself, are evil, these are two different frames of reference. This Awareness indicates that from one frame of reference a particular type of behavior can be judged as evil and wrong. From another frame of reference, that behavior can be seen as being correct and as being right, or whereby the entity who expressed that negative channeling may feel himself to be violated and victimized.

This Awareness indicates it is a matter of which frame of reference are you looking through, and no communication, no clear communication, no truth can be shared by entities until they look through the same frame of reference and discuss the situation from that viewpoint.

Closing message:

This Awareness suggests that regarding the messages given in this reading, that each entity visualize himself as walking around through time and space with a wooden frame around his or her body,

This Awareness suggests that this may be seen as a wooden frame being held by the entity, through which the entity looks.

This Awareness suggests that you visualize this clearly for a few moments as you leave this reading and walk around in your daily activities.

This Awareness suggests this may continue for a day or a week as you choose, and that you continue walking around with this wooden frame in front of you, allowing you to look out at the world through this frame.

This Awareness suggests that you do this as a reminder to question yourself as to what your frame of reference is, while looking at this or that concept or experience.

This shall be an exercise which shall do wonders for your self-realization.
