WHAT QUALIFIES AN ENTITY

TO BE A "LIGHT WORKER"?

Published by Cosmic Awareness Communications and the Universal Church of Awareness, P.O. Box 115, Olympia, Washington, 98507, U.S.A. Reproduction of this material is permitted and encouraged.

COSMIC AWARENESS is the Force that expressed itself through Jesus of Nazareth, the Buddha, Krishna, Mohammed, Edgar Cayce and other great avatars who served as 'Channels' for the 'Heavenly Father' and who speaks again today as the world begins to enter the 'New Age' of spiritual consciousness and awareness. Since 1963 Cosmic Awareness has been communicating through carefully-trained channels. The information contained herein was received from deep super-conscious 'trance' levels and 'interpreted' by an entity affiliated with C.A.C. This information is for those who desire to help in bringing in the New Age. Throughout the thousands of 'Readings' given through these various channels, Cosmic Awareness tells us not to believe anything, but to question, explore, doubt, and discover for yourself, through your own channel what is the truth. Cosmic Awareness will only 'indicate' and 'suggest'. Neither C.A.C. or any of the Interpreters is responsible for anything Cosmic Awareness states in any of these readings, nor does C.A.C. or the Interpreters necessarily agree with the statements of Cosmic Awareness. HOW TO DEAL WITH YOUR MATE WHEN THE MYSTERY AND INTRIGUE OF SEX COOLS OFF

(IS DIVORCE THE ONLY ANSWER)

QUESTION:

Awareness has covered quite a bit of this information previously, but this question from a male member in Canada has a little different aspect, so I'll read the question:

"Awareness, will you please explain to me and the membership why within the last few years there has been a drastic increase in the amount of marriage breakups and divorces by people who have been married for several years, even many years, 20, 30, just seemingly break up for no apparent reason, which does not exclude me.

"For the last couple of years, my relationship with my wife has gradually gone in the reverse. Instead of wanting to be with her, I find myself avoiding being with her, and it's getting worse every day. I don't hate her, but as far as I'm concerned she could be a sister, or a good friend as long as I didn't have to respond to her romantically, and it's getting worse every day, and I don't seem to have any control over it.

"Is this part of the alien influence on this plane? And what could we do about it?"

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that there is a gradual depolarization of the sexual energies, whereby sex is losing much of its previous appeal in terms of the mass-mind. This in part because of the oversaturation of the mass-mind to the sexual images; that for so many years now entities have been bombarded by concepts of sex through movies, through television, through advertisement, and through personal experience.

Wherein sex was previously treated with a sense of taboo, whereby certain things were not to be discussed, certain things were not to be done; this taboo as that which increased the intrigue and mystery and charisma around the concept of sex. That these mysteries, being removed, have created a kind of familiarity with the opposite sex that has left a romanticism and the intrigue out of these relationships, so that entities simply see sex as a kind of object, activity or indulgence, much like eating or drinking, or going to a movie, or some other form of personal and temporary satisfaction and gratification.

This Awareness indicates that it is no longer the big mystery, it no longer has the great intrigue, because they have been so saturated with it. That this relates to the concept of "familiarity breeds contempt." Wherein a relationship was built on, or centered around the concepts of sex as being a major part of that relationship, or whereby an entity has the tendency to measure his or her own standing with another by how well he or she appeals to the other in a sexual context, or whereby the sexual relationship between entities is used as a measure of love or acceptance; this can lead to a feeling that: "If I am not attracted sexually to this entity, perhaps I do not actually care for this entity," or "If I am not interested in sex, I must be losing interest in my sex object."

This Awareness indicates that whereas the transition which may be occurring is that whereby entities seeing sex as not so intriguing as it was before, may in fact be moving into a new way of relating to each other whereby they do not use sex as the ruler or standard of measurement of their relationship, but whereby they look at the other person for other qualities, and find some other mutual qualities that are appreciated, whereby sex becomes a secondary or sub-interest, and that other mutual interests take on greater priority.

This Awareness indicates that much of what you yourself are feeling has been experienced by many entities before you, and is nothing new, although it is experienced as something new to you. In part, this is nothing more than part of the maturing process whereby the sexual energies and drives which are associated with romanticism and the expression of physical affection are not as strong in your system as they were some years ago. That this is quite common with men who approach middle age and experience what may be termed male menopause, and such entities often feel that there is something missing in their relationship with their wife, and rather than admit that there is something missing in themselves whereby they are passing through a particular phase in their biological development, to another phase whereby the sexual energies do not flow as strongly as before; rather than seeing this as a natural biological change occurring in their body, they may tend to look at their wife and say that she is not as appealing as before.

Casting an Eye at Younger Women

This Awareness indicates that such men often also, in order to have the feeling that there is nothing changing in themselves, and to attempt to capture or recapture their own previous youth and vigor, may look around at younger women in an effort to restore that drive and passion which they once felt. This accounts for erratic and strange behavior of middle-aged men who often become unfaithful to their wives in an effort to recapture what they see as their own self-image through the sex appeal which they seek to generate by having relationships with younger women.

This is an attempt to prove to oneself that one is still young, virile and active, and this can give the entity a feeling of being more vital than if the entity simply moved along as nature was dictating and remained with his wife and allowed the natural forces to direct him into the next stage of his biological development.

This Awareness indicates that this is particularly a problem when an entity has no deep values in his or her own life, and is clinging to the values of the young virile male who has the sexual drive, and is unable to see anything of greater significance than the drives which are intended to help produce children. An entity whose mind matures along with the physical body, will pass through the stage of sexual fascination and will find other areas of creative expression, along the same parallel as the body's biological changes occur, so that the mind and body are not in conflict and the values change accordingly and parallel, so that the biological and the mental changes accompany each other, and the entity becomes more active in terms of creative endeavor.

This Awareness indicates that often the male who is married to a much younger female will tend to move into these stages, and the female, still being young and active, will still have need for passionate relationships; that this can lead to some complications in terms of their particular interests. However, all of this type of interrelationship is peculiar to each individual case, and may be considered as part of the general overall dharma of the situation.

How to Restore a New Vitality with the Wife

This Awareness indicates that It does not see that there is anything in particular that has changed in terms of the way people as a whole relate to each other. That divorces are not seen as being on the increase over that which was present ten years ago. In your particular case this may have become more noticeable. This Awareness suggests that in order to restore a greater vitality to your marriage and relationship with your wife, you do things which you have not previously done together, such as going on certain vacations, or going somewhere together, or making plans do something with your lives, which allows you to work together on a project.

This Awareness suggests that there was a reading given sometime back which referred to such activities. This Awareness suggests that you review that information, whereby you can restore much of the love and affection, and a revitalizing and appreciation of your relationship with your wife. This Awareness suggests that it is very easy for entities who become overly familiar with their mate to begin taking the entity for granted, and to recall how close and how much they felt a psychological dependency on the entity in earlier times, feeling an emotional need, an intellectual need, and a biological need to be with that entity, whereas, having struggled through all of the problems, the tug-of-war, the conflicts which have arisen between you, and having reached a point whereby you no longer compete on every issue, there can be an experience whereby you begin to feel like you are bored, there is nothing much to work for or struggle for in terms of relating with this entity, and therefore the relationship seems to stagnate.

There can be that tendency to look at your mate and having gone through all of the conflicts and having reached a stage whereby these conflicts are no longer a major obstacle in your relationship with the entity, there can be that which becomes a kind of static relationship which is interpreted as boredom. Were there to be occasional arguments and flare-ups of conflict, this boredom would cease, and there would be further opportunities for making up and enjoying each other after such conflicts. However, after a particularly long period of such tug-of-war relationship, entities tire of the continual conflicts and thus, move into another stage of marriage whereby the conflicts themselves become boring, and moving into a more static period, the static period then also becomes boring.

It is during these times that entities have the opportunity to either become more interested in each other as individuals rather than as possessions, and allow each other to have their own individual expression, whereby your wife is given the opportunity to go out and study and promote herself and her interests, and whereby you are given the freedom to do certain things which you have always wanted to do as an individual, and whereby you share with each other the experiences that you are having as individuals rather than as mates.

This Awareness indicates that this is a very dangerous period in the marriage, for you may drift apart and lose interest in each other, unless you share your feelings and your achievements with each other, and unless each is interested in the feelings and achievements of the other. Once this occurs, whereby the sharing and the interest in each other's individualized achievements and desires is presented to each other, at this point one may move into the next stage of marriage wherein you suddenly discover each other all over again, and recognize that you have never fully known this person, in part because the person never was allowed before to be himself or herself, and to develop his or her interests, and thus you become interested again as a person, as an individual, and intrigued by this individual for what he or she is attempting to accomplish as an individual.

This Awareness indicates that in this stage of marriage, you then are not seeking to possess or control or own, or live your life through the eyes and relationship and feedback of that individual, you are simply living with this individual, sharing his or her troubles, his or her accomplishments and enjoying watching what another individual can do with his or her life in a situation wherein each of you allows the other a certain amount of freedom to be yourself.

This Awareness indicates that It does not advocate that these individuals bring in others into that relationship as an unfaithful relationship to prove some point, or to prove that one is still sexy. It is suggesting rather, that entities live their own life, do their own thing, in regard to the constructive activities and the promotion of personal talents and the development of skills, so that the individual can begin to blossom.

This is quite different from the approach of some entities who find their relationship with their mate unsatisfactory, and thus run out and search for another mate to satisfy their whims and their need for feedback and acceptance. This kind of action does not help the individual to blossom and develop and grow, it simply transfers that previous relationship of dependency on a mate from one to another.

Moving Past the Dependency Relationship

This Awareness indicates that most marriages and most relationships are built upon dependency; depending on someone else to make you feel that you are loved, that you are happy, that you are a vital force. It takes some time for entities moving through these relationships to reach a stage whereby they, as individuals can continue to relate but can put their energies into developing themselves, their deeper potentials being allowed to blossom.

This Awareness indicates that you are in a position at this time whereby you have reached the stage that allows you to move into this phase which is the maturity of yourself, the maturity of your relationship with your wife, and whereby you can allow her also that freedom to mature and to express herself. This Awareness suggests that you look again at your wife for what she is, for what she has given you, and ask yourself if you cannot truly see that there is an individual within that entity who is seeking to find her way out, to express herself, and is simply calling upon you to assist her in that action.

This Awareness indicates that there is no need for you to feel threatened by her, whereby you can simply relate to her and discuss with her these feelings and these concerns, for the entity is doing the best she can to find a way to create a dialogue with you. If you look upon this entity as a sex object and find yourself having been burdened or bored with this sex object, then of course, you shall lose interest in her, and shall seek to escape from the energies associated with her as an object of sex or of romanticism.

This Awareness indicates however, if you look at this entity as an individual seeking to discover herself, and reflecting through your eyes, and through her relationship with you in that effort to discover herself, you can do much to help bring her out of herself, and to allow her to blossom and grow in her own individuality, developing her skills and talents. This Awareness suggests that you may find it beneficial for yourself and for her to give her the opportunity for training, for schooling, some kind of activity which allows her to develop her talents, skills or interests.

This Awareness suggests that you may also consider taking some new step in your life,--a class in some field of study which you have always been intrigued by, but never thought you could get involved in. This Awareness suggests that entities in middle-age can do great things in terms of giving their lives new vitality, by going back to school, or by taking certain courses or home-study, and learning something more, some skill which they have not previously studied.

This Awareness suggests that this new interest in an area of study can also revitalize your individuality, your personality, and can give new life to your relationships with your close and intimate friends. This Awareness suggests that this appears to be beneficial for both you and your wife to develop your individual skills at this stage of your marriage.

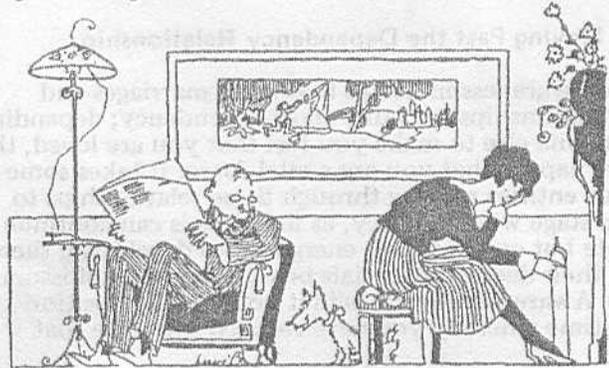

MARRIAGE BREAKUPS TREND IS DOWN

QUESTION:

There's no danger then, as he suggests, that the recent long-term trend of marriages being broken up is influenced by anything alien? It's just simply relationships, the middle-age 'crazies' and growing older and so forth?

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that in fact the trend has recently reversed. That the percentage of marriages breaking up as that which has gone down slightly during the past two years.

QUESTION:

One other question by this same entity. "There has been quite a bit of information lately in regards to Light Workers and the importance that they play in this area of the Ahriman Forces upon this plane, but what I don't know is, how does one really know whether they are a Light Worker or not? I personally try and live a clean life, and try not to willfully hurt anyone, or cause them pain, and always go out of my way to help someone. My only problem is guilty feelings in the fact that I no longer feel romantically toward my wife, but other than that, I really don't have any great problems in life, but neither do I think that this qualifies me, or anyone else, to be a Light Worker; so Awareness, please tell us, how does one recognize a Light Worker, or who is Light Worker?"

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that any individual who is concerned for the welfare of others, equal to or above the concern for self may be considered a Light Worker. This Awareness indicates that any individual who does not judge and condemn others may be considered a Light Worker. Any individual who is willing to put forth energies of his or her own in order to make this a better place for everyone may be considered a Light Worker. Any individual who is inclined to give service to others may be considered a Light Worker.

This Awareness indicates that those who are willing to sacrifice others in order to gain something personal, or are willing to put themselves in a position whereby they contribute to activities on this plane which would deny the rights of others, which would deny their lives or their livelihood, and in such action the entity participating in those activities that would so deny others, expects to receive a temporary gain and benefit based upon this action that denies others; this entity is obviously not working as a Light Worker.

This Awareness indicates that those entities who put their energies into training, in occupations, jobs, careers or activities that are designed to hinder or harm others, or to deny others their livelihoods or their rights; these entities obviously are not acting as Light Workers.

Working for the Forces of Light and Darkness

("How Many Have you Harmed and How Badly?")

This Awareness indicates that an entity can serve as a Light Worker and as a force for Darkness simultaneously. That an entity being a Light Worker in one activity, can also bring harm to others in still another activity, or an entity can serve as a Light Worker and distort energies in a manner which harms others and feathers his own nest at their expense. This Awareness indicates that it is for an individual to discern what he or she is doing that is an action of enlightenment, and what he or she is doing that is an action that harms others.

This Awareness indicates that one may best understand the feeling of being a Light Worker by the question: How many have you served, and how well? , for as you are able to serve others, and serve them well; to that degree you may consider yourself a Light Worker. That along with this question, one may ask: How many have you harmed, and how badly?, and to that degree, you may consider yourself a force for Darkness.

This Awareness indicates that wherein the entity looks at the entity for what the entity is, and discovers and learns how to relate to that which is, this then begins the relationship on a level of reality, and allows for adventure, romance and mystery in the discovery of who this entity is. This Awareness indicates that wherein such is denied, wherein you do not wish to discover who the entity is, but rather wish to make the entity what you want the entity to be, you are simply creating for yourself and for the entity tragedy, sorrow and suffering.

WHAT IS BEHIND THE SLAUGHTER IN IRELAND?

QUESTION:

A question from J.W. of Dunellon, N.J. "As an Irish American who visits Ireland frequently, and belongs to an organization that is working for Irish freedom, I would like to know why this country has had to suffer so much repression, and has had such a tragic history for the past 800 years? Would you please ask Awareness to answer this question? I would like to know that if it is karmic, when will it all end? And is there any truth to the feeling by some that the Irish are really one of the 'Lost Tribes' of Israel? Thank you very much."

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that this essentially boils down to conflict of religious and political controls; that the fanaticism of religious dogma and the desire of entities for political control as that which creates intensities of a powerful nature; this particularly in areas of the extremes.

This Awareness indicates that in the areas of extremes, there are those forces in the British Isles which are heavily involved in witchcraft and in the secret, hidden rites of secret societies.

There are also those forces of elementals on the Inner Planes, or other-dimensional beings who have certain opposition to other forces, both on the physical plane, and on the Inner Plane, and the many religious and pagan rites, rituals, beliefs and programmings, both on physical and Inner Plane levels, are those which stir up and continue the conflict.

This Awareness indicates that the Catholicism in Ireland as that which has had a history of conflict in its relationship with the Protestant elements, both in Ireland and in other areas of the British Isles. Also, that the forces of witchcraft in the British Isles being strong, particularly among the Druid sect, and some of the secret societies,--these having certain political and economic ends or purposes which are not always clear in the conflicts,--often results in using the religious elements for purposes of manipulation..

This Awareness indicates that the intensities do not appear to be diminishing during the near future; that it appears these intensities may become more open, and hidden forces may be exposed; yet it does not appear that the peace and harmony which many entities desire shall occur for some several years. This Awareness indicates that the basic hostility between these cultures is such that it has continued for some time, and until the cultural hostilities can end, the violence appears to be such that it will occasionally and continually reemerge. That this as reflective of the common conflict between the Catholic Church and the Illuminati forces centered in England.

WHAT IS THE HUMAN APPENDIX USED FOR ?

QUESTION:

G.M. of Easton, Maryland, would like to ask: "What is the appendix in the human body for?"

COSMIC AWARENESS:

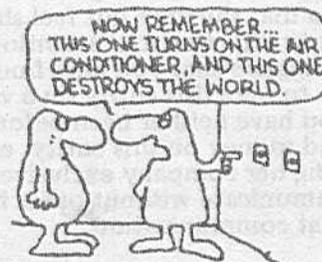

This Awareness indicates this as having a purpose of collecting toxins in a temporary manner, whereby inflammation or toxins in the system may be funneled off while certain other processes occur, then leaving the appendix, to release these toxins back into the system for elimination.

(FOLLOW-UP QUESTION):

When the appendix is removed surgically, does the body compensate for this with some other organ?

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates the toxins simply are spread out into other areas, including being absorbed into the bloodstream, that there they may circulate to other areas and then eventually be eliminated.

SHOULD PSYCHICS USE THEIR GIFTS TO HELP POLICE LOCATE MURDERERS ?

(WHEN DOES COSMIC AWARENESS POINT FINGERS?)

QUESTION:

I'd like to ask Awareness to clarify this area of psychics who use their psychic ability to locate and pinpoint entities in crimes. More and more around the country there are stories that the police are using psychics to zoom in on entities. Usually the entity they point the finger at are entities who have killed people. The police often use these psychics in drawing pictures that look very much like the entity they are seeking, and sometimes this information actually leads them to the murderer they are seeking. A case in point is Peter Hurkos whose psychic abilities led police to capture and convict the so-called "Boston strangler". A more recent example was the police in Atlanta asking psychics to send in descriptions or drawings of the entity who was killing all those black children there. According to reports, two psychics, who didn't know each other and who both lived hundreds of miles away from Atlanta, each sent in almost identical drawings showing a black man with a scar on his left cheek (I think it was).

Now Awareness has indicated It does not point fingers and that psychic powers can not be misused (as I understand it), to violate other entities, even though they might be guilty of crimes. Would Awareness please give us some further elucidation on this subject?

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that the question is what is violation? Is it a violation to prevent an entity from having the freedom to violate others? This Awareness wishes to remind you of the story of the one-eyed man in the land of the blind; that whereby the entities of the land were all blind, but that one entity had one eye which allowed him to see. This entity as being capable of assisting the masses of blind entities because the entity could see what was occurring and therefore had greater insight or vision or greater power at disposal to prevent problems which would have otherwise occurred to the masses. This Awareness indicates that wherein members of that blind society considered the one-eyed man and became concerned as to whether the entity had the moral right to have such insight that was lacking to the others. This Awareness indicates that these entities may have felt somewhat inferior and in some ways envious, or feeling at a disadvantage.

This Awareness indicates that the question may be asked: "Is it right for an entity to have insight which is lacking from others; and if so, is it right for the entity to use that insight to notice and point out which of the others is doing the violating?" This Awareness indicates in this land of the blind, wherein one entity is running around violating,--killing, stealing, raping or robbing the other blind entities,--and the one-eyed man sees who the entity is; is it wrong or is it right for the one-eyed man to inform the society as to who the culprit is? This Awareness asks you: If you,--with your two eyes,--witnessed a crime, would it be wrong for you to testify as to what you saw? This Awareness indicates that it is no more wrong to point out what is seen psychically than an entity who witnesses such with both his eyes.

This Awareness indicates that in some instances, an entity may see an action which is no one's business except those who were involved, wherein the two or more entities involved are participating in an action whereby it is of a personal nature, and society has not been harmed, and individuals outside of the situation have not been harmed, and those involved in the situation do not desire any publicity; but whereby you, as an outsider, have seen this action, witnessed this action, and rush out to tell others what you saw,--this as an invasion of privacy and ethically would be objectionable if those entities involved did not want this information released.

However, if one entity was being violated and sought help from society, either implicitly or explicitly, and you did nothing, and you saw that not only was this entity going to be violated, but several others were also going to be violated, and you watched and did nothing, you would be an accomplice, in a sense, to the violations. Therefore, it would be in error for you to do nothing when you could have assisted in preventing these violations. This Awareness indicates whether you are seeing with physical eyes or psychic eyes, it is still the same ethical process of evaluation and determination.

The Law Awareness Deals With

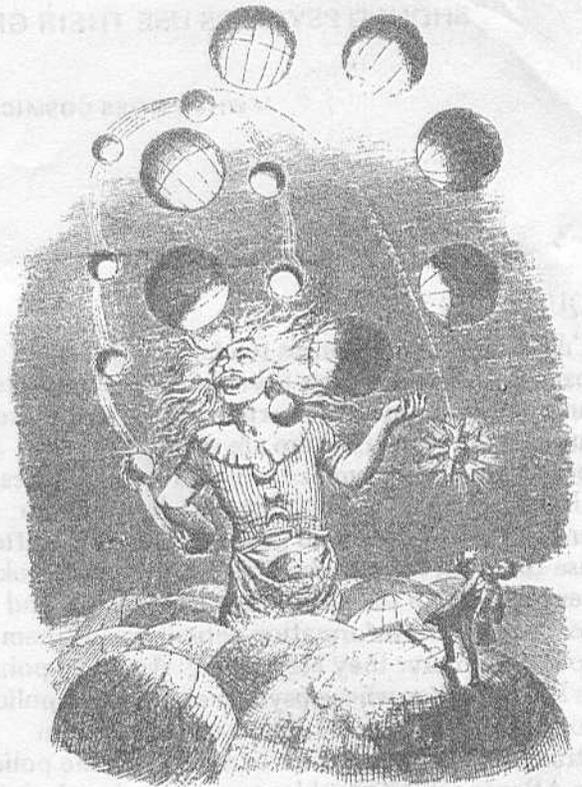

This Awareness indicates there have been questions asked of this Awareness through this Interpreter in regards to attempts to locate certain violators in social circumstances; that to become involved in continuous actions of this type would create a change in the nature of the purposes for which this Awareness has opened this channel. This Awareness indicates that It prefers to avoid pointing fingers at entities as this is that which is available through other means; that Its purpose is not to locate criminal elements upon this plane, but rather to locate and expose concepts and general actions which are causes of criminal violations of people against people. This Awareness does not wish to step down into the streets and become one of the patrolmen or law-enforcers, for Its Laws are those which are dealing with the concepts, with the Supreme Laws of the universe, rather than with mundane affairs on the street level.

This Awareness indicates therefore, It does not point fingers at individuals, unless as individuals these entities represent great force in a social movement or are carrying energies of a concept in motion which needs to be understood and diffused. For this reason, this Awareness has referred to entities of public stature such as the Rockefellers, the Rothschilds, and certain influential persons of present and past. These entities as personalities and individuals are all deeply loved by this Awareness, but as representatives of alien concepts to the Law of One, must be brought to the attention of masses, that the energies may be diffused.

That likewise, wherein there are individual mass-murderers, or individual criminals; these entities as individuals are deeply loved by this Awareness, but if these individuals carried with them some form of concept which needs to be diffused, then this Awareness would need to point at the concept represented by the entity. This Awareness does not engage in pointing to an individual who does not represent a particular concept that is being pushed upon the masses; that the concept of murder does not need a particular representative, for there are countless numbers of representatives of this concept. That once an entity has been apprehended and certain qualities of the entity's experience are brought to public attention, then this Awareness can comment upon any concepts related to the cause of such actions; for this may assist the mass mind of greater understanding and avoidance of future occurrence of such action.

This Awareness indicates that those psychics who can assist in locating and bringing problems into balance, whether on a personal level,--such as locating a misplaced letter or misplaced treasure, or those psychics who can locate a misfit in society; this Awareness blesses these entities in their work, just as It blesses social workers, police officers, mail clerks, secretaries, or any other entity in any walk of life who is sincerely seeking to serve the needs of others.

HOLLOW PLANETS -- HOW WERE THEY MADE?

...ALL ABOUT SPACE DUST AND ENERGIES

QUESTION:

A question from W.E., St. Paul, Minn., "I have read in regard to planetary creation that all planets are created in a similar fashion. When the magnetic and gravitational forces come together, centrifical force discharges the atoms outward from the center of the forming planet, thus creating a hollow center. I have also read that our moon was formed in this manner. A while back, a picture was published in Life magazine of the planet Venus as taken by one of our space probes. The picture clearly showed a circular opening at its Northern-most extremity. The caption stated that this circular shape was an illusion, that this area was out of the camera's range. I would like to ask Awareness if It sees this particular creational theory as valid?"

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that this is correct; that this is the way whereby entities have and still do create planets in other systems. This Awareness indicates that this as the method used by the Els or the Elohim. This Awareness indicates that the moon itself also is hollow; that each of the planets is essentially hollow, and that the energy fields within the planets are affected in such a manner as to create a growing shell whereby the outside shell of the planet continually collects dust and grows larger as time passes.

This Awareness indicates that this does not account for some planets being much larger than others; that the growth of planets is not that which is the reason for some planets being larger and some being smaller. This Awareness indicates that the size of planets is determined essentially by the energy fields which were set up at the birth of the planet; however, the planets do collect space dust and grow as they age.

This Awareness indicates that the growth of the planets from the space dust collected is such that over a period of thousands of years, that which was once on the surface may be several feet down under the ground; that for this reason, entities may find in digging a well for instance that at some several hundred feet they may dig up a bone, or a tool. This Awareness indicates that there is no accounting for how a tool or bone could get so deep in the ground; that this in part may be due to sediment settling above the area over a period of time, but in many cases, much of this is from space dust which is continually being added to the planet whereby it grows and the surface becomes covered as time passes.

IS THE MOON REALLY INHABITED ?

(MORE ON THE INNER EARTH ENTITIES)

FOLLOW-UP QUESTION:

Is that space dust organic, and capable of sustaining life like trees and flowers and vegetables as a general rule?

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that the greatest amount of space dust that has been deposited upon the planet earth as that which came from the destruction of the planet Maldek; there is also that dust which comes from the earth's own geophysical changes such as volcanos. This Awareness indicates that the dust from the earth itself as that which simply shifts the material from place to place, but the space dust as that which accumulates on the surface and allows the surface to become thicker and thicker as time passes.

This Awareness indicates that this as the way whereby the magnetic field which once was invisible or likened unto a gaseous vortex could roll around in an orbit and gradually create a shell that is hundreds of miles thick; that the thickness of the earth's shell as that which essentially, in part, to a great proportion, was created from the collection of space dust.

This Awareness indicates that the sun was never that which exploded and cast off planets. The sun rather, is that which is a vortex of energy which draws energy from space, mixes it between spirit and matter, between matter and antimatter, this creating a kind of...This Awareness indicates the analogy seen is that of positive and negative electricity coming together creating a spark.

This Awareness indicates that the energies coming in toward this vortex and energies emanating from the vortex, from the reverse side, as that which creates the burning flame known as the sun. This Awareness indicates that this is related to that which may be...This Awareness indicates this is very difficult to explain.

This Awareness indicates that if entities were in a parallel dimension other than the physical dimension, looking at the sun, it would not be seen as a bright light. Rather it would be seen as a dark force emanating energy in a magnetic sense, drawing energy toward it like a black hole. This Awareness indicates that it is only when the entity passes into the black hole that the entity would see the light and would be emanating outward in a radiant energy as a glowing sun in a different dimension.

This Awareness indicates that energies are always moving toward the sun from one dimension, and emanating from the sun in the physical dimension; it is in this sense that the sun is seen as the mediator between spirit and matter, or between the antimatter and the material plane. This Awareness indicates that it is also for this reason that this Awareness has indicated that the sun is a cool place; that it is not emanating heat. It is emanating vibration.

How the Sun Creates Heat

This Awareness indicates that the vibration, when striking resistance of atmosphere, or resistance in some kind of object, will either reflect or will heat up, depending on how strong that vibration of the sun can move the molecules of the object which it strikes. This Awareness indicates that when it strikes the atmosphere, for example, the vibration moves the molecules in the atmosphere in such a manner as to create friction, and it is the friction that is felt as heat. This Awareness indicates that it is for this reason that when entities move to higher altitudes, rather than getting hotter because they are closer to the sun, they get cooler, because the atmosphere is not so thick, and the friction resisting the sun's rays and its movement is not so intense.

This Awareness indicates that also, it is for this reason that entities in space would freeze, even though they might be in the sun's light.

(FOLLOW-UP QUESTION):

The final part of W.E.'s question. He would like to know if the entities living on the other planets in our solar system also inhabit the hollow core of their respective planets, and is our moon really inhabited in its interior by a civilization that originated from earth?

COSMIC AWARENESS:

This Awareness indicates that the moon as having had a civilization of earthlings from the early 50s; that there were others prior to that. That these entities were from the inner earth and that this is one of the important reasons why the schools shy away from the concept of the hollow earth, because those in the inner earth are highly advanced in a technological sense, and do not wish to have any common mingling between surface people and themselves until the surface people are highly evolved and can be trusted not to act as warriors toward them.

This Awareness indicates that this does not mean that the highly evolved entities on the inner earth are all spiritually evolved. These entities are much like those on the surface, wherein there are those who are spiritually evolved and those who are technologically evolved but not spiritually evolved. This Awareness indicates that the persons in the Middle Earth and the civilizations that have existed there have existed far longer than any civilization that presently exists on the surface, and those from the Middle Earth are essentially, to a great degree, responsible for the technologies on the surface.

This Awareness indicates that there are also communications which occur between those on the inner earth surface and those of other planets. It is essentially the surface people who have been laggards and who have not been given the technology and truth about their relationship to the planet. This Awareness indicates that there are also some forces in the Middle Earth which are of such hostility that surface people should be wary of coming in contact with these entities.

This Awareness indicates that this as part of the legends which relate to the concept of Hell being underground. This Awareness indicates that there are forces beneath the surface which have become demented over the centuries due to lack of spiritual guidance; that more information on these entities is available through the works of Richard Shaver.

Hitler's Connection with Inner Earth (Is the 4th Reich Being Formed)

This Awareness indicates that in terms of the Nazi movement and the connection of Adolf Hitler with those under the planet's surface, the beings from underground; this as that which had its effect in leading this entity into believing himself to be a selected one for creating a super-race.

This Awareness indicates that following World War Two, this connection between Nazi Germany and the inner earth did not cease; that there was a movement by many of these entities to the Antarctica opening, whereby these Nazis entered into this opening to plan for the Fourth Reich. This Awareness indicates that this has not been dissolved, and this plan for the Fourth Reich is also that which this Awareness has indicated as the plan of the Dark Forces for setting up the One World Government, and that which is known as the Mark of the Beast.

This Awareness indicates this essentially the Ahrimanic Forces; that the Ahriman Forces being those which have been operating from the inner earth. This Awareness indicates that there are also forces in that area which are more highly evolved spiritually. That many of these forces however, just on the surface of this plane have been invaded and influenced by the Ahriman Force. This Awareness indicates essentially, the Ahriman Forces are those from the astral dimension, but that these forces can affect not only those on the surface, but also many entities in the Middle Earth, and in affecting those in the Middle Earth, these Ahriman Forces can gain much control of these higher technologies available.

This Awareness indicates that much of this is being used at present to bring about the technology which the Ahriman Forces seek to establish on the surface to allow for a takeover here. This Awareness indicates that even as this is occurring, there are also those forces from the extraterrestrial locations whereby the Ahriman Forces are being countered, for the Ahriman Forces being of a higher astral type, cannot escape from the astral realms, or rise any higher, whereas the beings from the mental planes, or higher etheric planes can move into and have influence in the physical planes, and whereas entities of extraterrestrial nature in the physical plane can also enter into the Middle Earth and various bases on this earth to help stabilize and counter the efforts of the Ahriman Forces.

This Awareness indicates that it should be understood that the beings in the Middle Earth are not in themselves Ahriman beings, but may be influenced by Ahriman. That the Ahriman Forces are essentially astral in nature. This Awareness indicates that Ahriman Forces are not a physical culture as such, but as being astral in nature, and therefore able to possess or influence entities who are open to that, or receptive to that influence.

This Awareness indicates that all of this information should have thoroughly confused everyone, and therefore this Awareness suggest that the next question may be asked.

(QUESTIONER):

Vikki is signalling me to ask for a Closing Message. Does Awareness have a Closing Message?

Lower Oil Prices May Send Gold Soaring

(The following analysis is adapted from an article we just received from Jim Sinclair. It will soon appear in Gold Newsletter—but we wanted to rush this much of it to you in capsule form, as soon as it arrived. For more details, write for your free sample copy of Gold Newsletter, using the enclosed Blanchard envelope.)

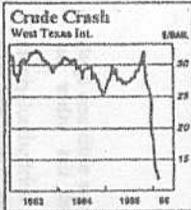

The OPEC meetings in Geneva late last month revealed a shocking plan by the world's most powerful man to send the world into economic chaos and push the price of gold to record heights. Amazingly, the world press was so caught up in the apparent "weakness of OPEC," and the dramatic oil price decline, that they missed the hidden meaning of these historic meetings.

Ask yourself, "Who initiated this decline in oil prices from $32 to $12 in a matter of months? ... Who stood to gain most by the decline? ... Who still wants to push the price lower if he doesn't get his market share?" In short: "Who engineered this free-fall in oil prices, and how does he stand to profit from it?"

The answer is none other than Saudi Arabian Sheikh Yamani, the world's most powerful man. It was he who singlehandedly engineered the oil price down to $12 and is willing to push it to $8 or lower. Why? Because Saudi Arabia has 200 years of oil reserves. They're in this oil game for the long run. They can afford short-term losses, in order to drive the marginal producers out of the market. This is Monopoly Economics, pure and simple—a big, established producer can run smaller, marginal producers out of the market, by price wars, and then run prices back up when the others are out of business.

Yamani's play is simple. Take the competition to the edge of bankruptcy, and they either capitulate or liquidate. In fact, on the very day the OPEC meetings began, Sunday, March 16, Yamani wrote an editorial in the London press, saying, in effect, that he would take the oil price down to $8 or less, in order to drive Britain into the arms of OPEC, or into the throes of bankruptcy.

It had all the earmarks of a James Bond novel—a clever foreign adversary secretly builds a powerful empire, issues a firm ultimatum, and threatens to bring Britain to its knees. But, alas, there's no real-life James Bond to save Her Majesty's North Sea oil firms from collapse.

Meanwhile, the short-sighted press point to lower oil prices as a sign of "deflation." How, then, do they explain the rise in gold from $316 to $380 during the first stages of the fall of oil?

Oil may decline in 87 this year, according to Sinclair's analysis, but then it will jump back to $27 by 1988. Yamani will engineer both moves, and pocket his oil profits in gold. Recently, gold has jumped past $350 three times, only to be nudged back down by the technical traders. Next time, probably in the late spring, gold will launch another assault on $380 and sail right through $400, to $500 and higher. If that happens, it will be like late 1979 and 1980 all over again, with $25 to $50 gains each day.

Gold is presently, and has always been, the major world currency. Gold alone stands as an asset that is free of debt or political ties. The perpetrators of the oil price decline are willing to take the international banking and monetary system to the brink of chaos, to make their money in gold, or oil, or both.

Should Great Britain, Norway and Mexico capitulate to Yamani's OPEC, then the oil price will be "born again" and gold will follow in its wake. If, however, Yamani is successful in driving the oil price to the cellar, and holds it there for a year, until all his competitors co-operate or liquidate, gold will also soar, based on chaos in the world's banks. Yamani wins both ways.

Monetary Growth, Oil Price Collapse Set Stage For Inflationary Surge

The so-called lack of inflation is actually a lack of vision by most analysts. Strong growth in the U.S. money supply, coupled with a dramatic drop in oil prices, has set the stage for a wild surge of inflation in the U.S., according to researchers at the Shadow Committee, a respected group of private, mainly monetarist economists who review the actions of the Federal Reserve Board.

The group calculates the fall of oil prices to the $14 level as being equivalent to an almost immediate "increase of more than $250 billion in the private money supply of U.S. citizens." That sudden, multi-billion-dollar explosion of liquidity, coupled with the nation's 50% money supply growth over the last five years "runs the risk of accelerating inflation in 1987..."

From Vertrauliche Mitteilungen aus Politik & Wirtschaft, 7701 Büsingen, West Germany, June 24, 1985. "You know the 'Bilderbergers', the 'Trilateral Commission', and the 'Council on Foreign Relations'—everywhere David Rockefeller pulls the strings. But have you ever heard of the 'Interaction Council'? That is a club of former heads of states and presidents from all over the world. It goes back to initiatives of the former General Secretary of the United Nations (not uncontroversial because of his good behavior in favor of Soviet goals). To the group belong next to Helmut Schmidt, for example, also the former French president, Giscard d'Estaing and the former British prime minister James Callaghan. The last meeting of the 'veterans' took place in April of this year in Paris; the next is supposed to be held in Moscow (!). From informed sources the assignment of the 'Interaction Council' is to operate broadly according to the model of other organizations founded by the president of Chase Manhattan Bank, David Rockefeller, such as the 'Trilateral Commission', especially in reference to the strategy of the 'Council on Foreign Relations', which for years has been making cow-eyes at a 'community of interest' with the Soviet Union and which is backed by East Coast industrialists and Democrat politicians. Therefore world events are managed not on account of any voting majority, but on the contrary they are mostly steered by powers who stand behind the curtains in the service of international high finance, powers who let the presidents and heads of state 'run on a long leash'."

From World Coin News, 700 E. State St., Iola, Wis. 54990, F320/vr. 7/2/85, p. 6. "Giscard Calls For European Currency. Valery Giscard d'Estaing, France's former president, has called for the establishment of a unified European currency as a means of promoting world peace. "The circulation of a genuine European currency would give a decisive impetus to the construction of Europe," Giscard declared in a speech June 15 at Cornell University. "Unify the currency and you will unify Europe." The French statesman told his audience that a unified Europe would represent a "factor of peace in the world. It will be a place of more rapid growth and prosperity," he said. "The world at large has a fundamental wish to enjoy peace and prosperity and to be democratically governed." Giscard asserted, adding: "The wish is gradually materializing with many hardships and many setbacks. To make it happen is the most important and most rewarding task of our age."

Memphis Commercial Appeal, 4/18/85, p. B-4. "The United States and 10 other major noncommunist governments will meet in Tokyo June 21 to take up proposals for change in the world monetary system. Poor countries have been insisting that they too should take part in the discussions."

Here's another little "coincidence" for you: In the past few years four major non-communist nations have issued one-unit coins of about the same size. In 1979 the US issued the infamously ugly Susan B. Agony dollar: 11 sides, 8.1 grams, 26.5 mm diameter, gray color, 75% copper, 25% nickel. The Canadians have lately struck trial $1 pieces: 11 sides, 7.0 grams, 26.5 mm diameter, yellow color, in various compositions. The British issued a one pound coin, round, 9.5 grams, 22.5 mm diameter, 70% copper, 24.5% zinc, 5.5% nickel, yellow. Now recently the Australians have announced a new $1 coin, 9 grams, 25 mm diameter, aluminum bronze, yellow. Compare these already existing coins: Germany, 1 deutsche Mark, 22.5 mm, copper nickel, gray; France, 1 Franc, 24 mm, copper nickel, gray; Holland, 1 guilder, 24.5 mm, nickel, gray. Maybe I'm suffering from right-wing paranoia, but how come all these folks came up with the same idea about the same time? Yes, and about the same time their "leaders" are talking about a new world monetary system? Brownian Motion? Random chance?

Moneychanger April, 1985

Maybe none of you read this "Unforgettable Column", because a couple of months ago we published a piece here about moves in several countries to introduce a one-monetary-unit coin similar in size or design to the Susan B. Anthony dollar and we didn't hear anything from you. Now it's official that Canada will replace its $1 bill with a coin of that size. Just warning you up, Moneychanger, 8-85

Smart ID Card

Japan's electronic giant Toshiba has developed a new "smart" identification card, identical in appearance to a credit card but containing a battery and an integrated circuit with a microprocessor and a memory, reports the news magazine Asiaweek of Hong Kong [June 29]. The new card can do all the things today's "dumb" ID card does: register a person's arrival at and departure from work, record the cost of lunch in the staff cafeteria, and withdraw money from the employee's deposit account with the company.

But the new card can also electronically transfer funds to stores and from banks. It can hold a person's entire medical history. It can gain access by telephone to a databank or an electronic mail system. It can serve as a passport, containing years of visas and entries and exits through immigration. "A record would be made of arrival and departure and officials alerted if the person should be on a 'stop' list."

WORLD PRESS REVIEW • AUGUST 1984

Daniel Boorstin, eminent author and librarian of Congress, protested to a House committee the proposed $18-million cut in funds for the nation's library.

He pointed out that the U.S. is approaching its constitutional bicentennial. "It would be a historic irony—the only analogy I can think of is the burning of the ancient library of Alexandria in Egypt—if the Congress should choose this anniversary to direct the disintegration of this great institution."

The library will have to close evenings, holidays and Sundays. Furthermore, "new materials will remain uncataloged and hence inaccessible."

Boorstin called the cutback "a symptom of a nation in terror and decline. Historians will not fail to note that a people who could spend $300 billion on their defense... could not even keep their libraries open in the evening." CENSORSHIP

McDonald, and forced Thiokol headquarters in Utah to give the final OK. Here we have positive proof of sabotage of the shuttle flight... We already have an attempted coverup. The current acting administrator of NASA (at that time), a Dr. William Gramm, has lied to the Senate panel with oversight of NASA operations, according to Senator Fritz Hollings of South Carolina. The very fact that we have an attempted coverup of the circumstances surrounding the launch approval process is indicative of East Bloc penetration of NASA. Naturally, the Trilateral press will attempt to prevent this from becoming understood publicly... The fact remains that it is now patently clear to anyone with an eighth grade education, that they knew in advance of the grave danger of low temperatures, and that there was an opportunity to perpetrate a vicious crime and do grave damage to the United States in this particular shuttle launch. Only highly trained and dedicated agents of a foreign power could be expected to act so brutally - with total disdain for helpless human beings. The only logical conclusion is that we have East Bloc penetration (probably KGB) of the NASA organization. Once again, I am convinced that we must accept the reality that the seven Challenger astronauts must be classed as victims of Soviet aggression right along with the members of flight 007! (Quoted from Patterson Strategy Letter, P.O. Box 37812, Cincinnati, Ohio 45222. Monthly, $149.95 per year.)

Mr. Patterson mentioned lies told during the investigation. For further proof of a coverup, consider the treatment of the "remains" of those astronauts. There is a Florida law which states that a Florida medical examiner must take charge of any such "remains." But NASA officials refused to let Dr. Laurie McHenry examine the remains. He threatened to sue, and NASA then supposedly relented, said the doctor could "see" the "remains" but that they would stay in NASA's custody. But it was merely "lip service." He was never permitted to see anything. So, when NASA reported finding more of the "remains," when ambulances were sent to transport them to Patrick Air Force Base, the ambulances were followed all the way and, according to an early morning radio report by an eye witness observer, those ambulances were empty. There were no "remains" delivered to the Air Base! That report was later "doctored," by orders of some higher authority, we presume. But people have a right to know: Have "remains" really been found, or is this just another coverup to humiliate and embarrass America, and bring more sadness to relatives and friends? Remembering the reports on the Bay of Pigs, the assassination of John Kennedy, the strange death of Marilyn Monroe, the way news was mangled during the Vietnam war, etc., etc., one had a right to wonder, and in this case to demand that someone other than a NASA-appointed official see and tell the public the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth!

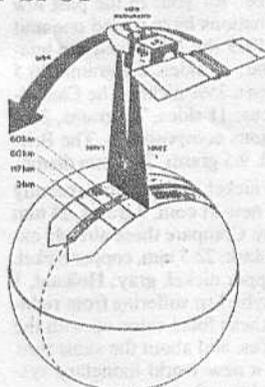

Finally! Conquest by encirclement, infiltration and subversion, said a paid agent of the New World Order. The infuriating thing about this to real Americans is that there are among us traitors who believe they can live by bread alone!

THE GIANT EYES OF SPOT

Using the latest microchip technology — a pair of "pointable" electronic scanners, each with 6000 sensors aligned on CCDs (charge-coupled devices) — SPOT will provide stereoscopic, color-enhanced pictures of the Earth's surface. Circling the planet every 70 minutes at an altitude of 520 miles, in what is called a "near-polar" orbit, SPOT will systematically observe the entire earth except the tips of the polar caps. It will cross over any given area of the planet every 26 days. But since the computer-controlled scanners — the eyes of the satellite — can be maneuvered to either side to "pre-visit" or "revisit" any specified location, observations of the same area will be possible on a near-daily basis, thus providing "sequence" pictures of rapidly evolving events such as storms and floods. In addition, SPOT will be able to scan back and forth along the ground tracks, which together with the "side-ways look" capacity will provide for the first time in a civilian satellite the information to construct stereoscopic pictures of the Earth's surface "texture."

At SPOT Image headquarters in Reston, Virginia, the administrative manager, Nadine Binger, explained that pictures of whatever kind — black and white (at ten-meters resolution) or color (at 20-meters resolution), flat or 3-D, single-picture or time-sequence — will be available for sale to anyone, including government agencies, corporations, universities, media and private individuals. "It's just like selling toothpaste," she says. "Customers will be those who want the information for agriculture, forestry, meteorology, oil and mineral exploration, mapping, oceanography, and environmental, urban and regional planning."

Unlike Landsat and the Large Format Camera, which were research programs designed to find out what the technology was capable of detecting, SPOT was conceived from the start as a business venture. That should mean faster and easier access to the data, and more customer control over data acquisition. In terms of service, their most intriguing innovation is that you won't have to settle for just what's in stock. You'll be able to ask them to shoot the exact location you want, in black and white or false color. Scene requests will be radloed up to the satellite every day. Up to 60,000 scenes are expected to be acquired for general inventory next year.

The data will be available on computer-compatible tapes, photographic film (positive or negative) and on photographic paper. Each scene will cover 60 km x 60-85 km.

A rough ball-park range of prices: a photographic print or transparency will cost between $300 and $1,500, averaging $500 each depending on requirements. Geometric correction (adjusting the distortion due to side-viewing) increases the average price to $800 per photo. Digital tapes for image manipulation will raise the cost to over $1,000 per scene.

Exact figures and ordering information will be available from SPOT Image, 1897 Preston White Drive, Reston, VA 22091-4326; 703/620-2200.

Q. Can you get contact lenses with one eye's lens for close-up vision and the other for distance?

A. So it's claimed. In fact, an ophthalmologist in the Southeast says Jimmy Carter wears just such contacts.

Nuclear sea-bomb funds asked

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is asking Congress for money to prepare for production of a new nuclear antisubmarine weapon that the chief of naval operations acknowledges would black out U.S. as well as Soviet listening devices on nearby ships and submarines if it was used.

The Anti-Submarine Warfare Standoff Weapon (ASWSOW), which could cost $2 billion or more to complete and would replace a 20-year-old system, is among several unpublicized nuclear systems that the administration wants to build.

ASWSOW, developed by the Boeing Co., is both a missile and a depth bomb. It would be launched from surface ships or underwater from a submarine, rocket upward through the air, aim and then drop like a bomb, exploding at the correct depth to destroy an enemy craft.

Adm. James D. Watkins told a Senate Armed Services subcommittee in February 1985 that after an ASWSOW explosion, the "insonification of the water for a period of time would rule out sensors for anybody in the immediate vicinity."

At the same hearing, Navy Secretary John Lehman said the weapon would be used "only in retaliation for their being used against U.S. submarines."

The Department of Energy is seeking $47 million in fiscal 1987 — and eventually $126 million — to prepare facilities for production of ASWSOW.

Development costs were projected at $500 million in 1980, with production of 1,000 missiles put at more than $2 billion by the General Accounting Office in 1982.

In the past, Congress has turned down funds for a nuclear version of ASWSOW, citing the damage it would do to U.S. radars in the area of an ASWSOW explosion. Congress also objected to the Navy's inability to explain how it would get presidential release to use the nuclear weapon in time against enemy craft.

MOSCOW RECOGNIZES THE ECU

Currently valued at 6.9 French francs, the ecu is the official unit of currency of the European Common Market. Although it is difficult to maintain a constant value for a unit made up from a basket of the various currencies of the Common Market nations, particularly when those nations have different inflation rates, new Soviet boss Mikhail Gorbachev has moved to grant Soviet recognition to the ecu. His Kremlin advisors apparently believe that the value of the ecu will stabilize now that the Soviet Union will be accepting loans in this currency and that the American dollar will be weakened in international trade.

This move is in effect the first step towards Soviet recognition of the Common Market as a supranational state. Expect the Kremlin next to appoint a Common Market Ambassador, as Washington has already done. The third step — probably a few years in the future — will be for Moscow to declare that it has a "special relationship" with the Common Market. The final phase will come when the Soviet Union actually becomes a Common Market member... on terms of its own choosing. But, for now, Soviet acceptance of the ecu lends the Common Market new prestige. An internationally recognized monetary unit is a necessary hallmark of an internationally recognized government.

The light that never fails

They don't make light bulbs anymore like the one burning away in Harry Sakasegawa's auto repair shop. The amazing low-watt wonder is still glowing strong after an incredible 60 years. Harry, 71, said the bulb was in its socket and burning away when he first opened his shop in the Salinas, Calif., building in 1936. But he claims to recall seeing the same bulb doing its thing way before then. Harry says the amazing bulb was in the building and working in the 1920s. If you're wondering how you can get one of these super bulbs, forget it. They're not to be had. A spokesman for General Electric said the company quit making that particular bulb in 1920.

Send a Penny to Congress

SANE and other peace groups are joining with the AFL-CIO, the NAACP, and many other social organizations in a united campaign to lower military spending, protect essential domestic programs, and urge large and profitable corporations to pay their fair share in taxes.

The campaign, called Americans for Budget Equity, urges citizens to send a penny to Congress accompanied by the following message:

"I'm an American for Budget Equity. Here's my contribution to reduce the deficit. It may not be much, but it's more than all the taxes paid last year by 50 of the largest and most profitable U.S. companies and hundreds of millionaires."

To get quantities of a specially designed campaign envelope, contact the SANE national office. We call on all SANE members to support this campaign and send a penny to Congress. Do your part to help lower military spending.

Arms makers get 'great advertising'

DALLAS (UPI) — Arms manufacturers said yesterday they expect sales to jump in world markets because of combat worthiness shown by the Navy in attacks on Libyan patrol boats and a missile base.

"It never hurts the financial interests of the (weapon makers) if this stuff is shown to work under uncontrolled battle conditions," said a spokesman for Navy Secretary John Lehman.

A hostile skirmish in which products match or exceed expectations in "great advertising," said Jim Gilbert. He heads the division of LTV in Dallas that makes the A-7E Corsair, the Navy attack aircraft that led carrier-based strikes this week on a Libyan missile site.

"Our products did a beautiful job," Gilbert said. "It was certainly good press."
The A-7Es fired High-Speed

Anti-Radar Missiles, known as HARMs, which are made by another Dallas firm, Texas Instruments.

"This sort of performance is advertising you can't buy," said one source within that company.

Sales of high-tech weaponry often take years to consummate. But a McDonnell-Douglas insider said, "A little war like this does wonders to speed up the bureaucratic process."

Govt. Working on Machine That Can Read Your Mind

The Pentagon is quietly funneling millions into a hush-hush project straight out of science fiction — development of an incredible machine that can secretly read minds.

Scientists working on the project already can pinpoint five basic emotional states — such as mental fatigue or bewilderment — simply by "eavesdropping" on brain waves.

And it won't be long before this bizarre machine is perfected enough to read exactly what someone is thinking — without his knowledge or consent, experts told The ENQUIRER.

The implications of developing such a fantastic device are both awesome and terrifying, admitted brain expert Dr. Rafael Elul of UCLA.

"This raises the specter of Big Brother watching us," said Dr. Elul, one of the scientists involved in the project.

"That isn't the intent of this device — but everything can be abused. As yet, the machine isn't capable of actually monitoring thoughts. But that's what we're working toward — and we aren't far from that accomplishment."

Most of the advanced work is being done at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), but scientists at a dozen universities throughout the nation also are taking part. They're working to:

- Read the mind by picking up and deciphering the brain's magnetic waves from a distance;
- Read thoughts by analyzing subtle changes in the pupils of the human eye;
- Control body functions by sending impulses to the brain.

The Pentagon started bankrolling the project in 1973, and has been spending $1 million a year on it. Pentagon spokesmen deny the program is secret — but The ENQUIRER was refused permission to interview even one official of the little-known Pentagon agency overseeing it, the Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA).

And when ARPA held a recent conference in New Orleans at which project scientists shared their findings, ENQUIRER reporters were barred from the meeting. One reporter who tried to stay was ousted by two scientists and a CIA man.

Debie Owen, financial coordinator for the ARPA project until he resigned recently to go into private industry, told The ENQUIRER: "I was at the New Orleans meeting and got the distinct impression that the CIA was playing with the idea of being able to use this method to read the thoughts of people without their realizing it."

Owen, who supervised ARPA contracts while at San Diego University, which has coordinated a number of Defense Dept. research projects, added: "The Pentagon wouldn't be spending this kind of money on the program if they didn't feel it could be used for national defense."

"The objective of the ARPA program is to analyze and identify what a person is thinking from a distance. The implications of this are mind-boggling. Potentially, it means we could read the thoughts of world leaders during political discussions with the President — giving the U.S. a tremendous advantage in delicate political negotiations.

"At the New Orleans meeting, it was intriguing to hear what the scientists had in mind — almost in the realm of Flash Gordon . . . this whole project is absolutely incredible!"

Dr. George Hellmeier, director of ARPA, revealed in his annual report to Congress in March that researchers at three U.S. laboratories have managed to identify specific thought patterns in brain waves.

Five such patterns have "been identified, and have been used with 90 percent accuracy to interpret neural events (thoughts)," Dr. Hellmeier reported.

Experts told The ENQUIRER that project scientists have learned to tell whether a person:

- Is puzzled or uncertain;
- Has made a decision;
- Is paying attention;
- Is observing colors or patterns;
- Has lost concentration due to fatigue or boredom.

Researchers expect eventually to identify and interpret a multitude of other thought patterns — and use them to determine with pinpoint accuracy what a person is thinking. And one project scientist, Dr. James Anliker, admitted that the ultimate goal of this work was to "exercise control over the brain."

PHYSICIST Dr. J.E. Zimmerman with his brain-wave machine. Cylindrical device at left monitors emissions from the brain, and printout of them is recorded in box at right.

Dr. Anliker, a NASA scientist with Ames Research Center in California, said research there is angled toward discovering "how to tune in on the brain's secrets" and how to "read the mind."

"The theory is that if we can find out how the information circuits of the brain work, we might then be able to exercise control over the brain," said the scientist, who told The ENQUIRER that much of his work is secret.

Dr. Anliker revealed that in one experiment he successfully lowered a subject's blood pressure simply by sending the brain certain signals through electrodes attached to the subject's head.

The mind-reading project underway at MIT uses equipment developed by top physicist Dr. J.E. Zimmerman. He said that it picks up brain waves without being physically connected to the subject.

"A very sensitive meter, placed near the head, detects magnetic emissions from the brain, and this information is fed into computers which analyze the brain wave patterns. It's quite feasible that this machine can be developed to such a level that it can be used over a distance — with out the subject knowing it."

Dr. Zimmerman, a physicist at the government's Bureau of Standards in Boulder, Colo., added: "Once we develop a good, viable theory on how the brain works, and once we better understand the meanings of the brain signals we're receiving, then it could be possible to read minds."

A major problem in reading brain waves from a distance is that the machine's ultra-sensitive detectors also pick up other magnetic fields, MIT scientists, who have been conducting their studies in a shielded room, now are seeking ways to filter out this interference, according to Dr. Zimmerman.

However, The ENQUIRER has learned that researchers at New York University have successfully recorded brain waves in an unshielded room. "We're able to detect the incredibly weak magnetic fields of the brain in a normal room in the middle of Manhattan," said Prof. Samuel Johns Williamson, an associate professor of physics at the university. As research progresses, there's a "good possibility" that someday a machine which can read minds from miles away will be developed, believes Dr. Oliver Selfridge, formerly with MIT's Dept. of Engineering, and now in private industry.

"We could learn a great deal from reading the mind of a person who is planning to attack the U.S.," he said.

At UCLA, scientists now are probing the astounding possibilities of controlling machines through mind power, revealed Dr. Rafael Elul, a psychiatrist and professor of anatomy at the university. Already, subjects with electrodes on their heads can, with proper training, think an object through a maze," he disclosed.

UCLA scientists also are working on another incredible facet of the ARPA project — trying to read thoughts by studying subtle changes in the pupils of the eyes. The ENQUIRER has learned.

Using highly sophisticated photographic equipment linked to a computer, the scientists can analyze tiny variations in pupil size to decide whether a subject is concentrating, according to the program's head, Dr. Jackson Beatty.

"The Department of Defense is very interested in this field of research," said Dr. Beatty, a professor of psychology. "I believe that in the near future we may discover how to use pupil analysis to identify specific thoughts. That would be a tremendous breakthrough."

A perfected mind-reading machine would have many useful applications. Dr. Elul told The ENQUIRER. "These machines could be used to tell whether truck drivers or pilots were fatigued, and whether students were receptive to learning."

"Doctors could use them to monitor the thoughts of psychiatric people who can't communicate normally, and thereby find ways to help these people. Persons rendered speechless by strokes would be able to communicate by thinking the words, which would be flashed onto a screen by the machine."

"The machines could even be used to give the blind simulated vision. Once we learn what kinds of brain waves are associated with a particular color or shape, we could simulate these waves in a blind person's brain."

Another fantastic application was foreseen by Dr. Anliker, a top specialist in man-machine integration for NASA: "I think it's likely that these machines will be used to reinforce human abilities. They could allow doctors to link an electronic hand or arm — like that of the Bionic Man — to a brain wave circuit. This would allow the person to work the arm as though it were a natural one."

Dr. Anliker added: "Could these thought-control processes and mind reading generate a police state? Of course, it's possible. But those are the things we must live with. Science must progress."

"The brain is a massive computer which by today's electronic standards is inconceivably large. We must learn how to control it."

Filipinos to Weinberger: 'Go home!'

By David Britcoe
Associated Press writer

MANILA, Philippines — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger met with President Corason Aquino today in the first visit by a U.S. Cabinet member to the new Filipino head of state, then drove away through anti-American protesters who mobbed his motorcade.

About 100 demonstrators pounded on Weinberger's bullet-proof van and chanted "go home" as he left the presidential palace grounds. Small groups of demonstrators, who were mostly orderly, also gathered at other stops.

The defense secretary's meetings with Mrs. Aquino and top Filipino military officials took place amid controversy over a perceived American emphasis on U.S. military interests in this Asian island nation.

"(Weinberger's) visit shows that America puts its military interests in the Philippines first," said a Filipino diplomat, speaking on the condition he not be identified.

The chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. William J. Crowe, also visited the Philippines last week, and there has been criticism in private by some Filipino officials of what they see as a U.S. emphasis of military, rather than economic, concern.

The United States has two major bases in the Philippines, Clark Air Base and Subic Naval Base, which Mrs. Aquino's government has vowed to allow at least until a treaty governing their use expires in 1991.

"It's important to have both (military and economic aid,) but certainly the emphasis has to be on economic aid," Weinberger said at an airport news conference.

He later flew to Bangkok, Thailand, where he was met by the prime minister.

Asked what the United States was offering Mrs. Aquino that would not have been offered to ousted President Ferdinand E. Marcos, who fled into exile on Feb. 25, Weinberger said in Manila, "We'll offer things that the Aquino government feels it is essential to have."

Pressed on how much aid would be given over the threat of Khadafi in international terrorism," he said. U.S. military See Weinberger/back page

A Moslem mystic from Guinea, Alhaji Mamsdu Allieu Bah, claims he has not eaten, drunk, slept, or fallen ill since Sept. 1, 1972, the day he received the "divine call" from the Holy Prophet to pray for mankind's salvation, reports the Nigerian-owned monthly New African of London [Feb.]. His habits were a secret for seven years until the Guinean government heard about him and sent him to Mecca for forty-five days of "crucial tests" — which he reportedly passed. Now he tours internationally — Senegal, France, Sierra Leone — converting thousands. Islamic scholars are baffled as no book mentions such a man's coming. □

WORLD PRESS REVIEW • APRIL 1986

■ The Russian winter of 1984-5 was the worst since 1979, when temperatures fell to minus 40c and the huge public thermometer in Gorky Street, Moscow, broke under the strain. The cold spell this time swept across the whole country, bringing emergencies to sub-tropical places like Alma Ata with the temperature at minus 30c for days on end. Blizzards covered the entire country with six inches of snow. A shortage of anti-freeze in Moscow led drivers to improvise with vodka in their washer-reservoirs. Enterprising drunks developed complex home-made tools to get at it; so drivers added detergent, but the drunks persevered, frothing green at the mouth. Guardian, 14 Jan 1985.

U.S. to rush missiles to rebels, reports say

WASHINGTON — The Reagan Administration has decided to rush advanced portable Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to rebels in Angola and Afghanistan, informed officials said.

The decision was made recently after a long review by an interagency administration task force and represents a significant shift in policy in providing American-made arms to such insurgent groups, the anonymous officials said Saturday night.

Washington usually provides secret aid by sending captured Eastern bloc weapons.

A White House spokesman declined to comment on whether any decision had been made to send the missiles to anti-communist rebels in Angola and Afghanistan.

Population record: 240 million in U.S.

WASHINGTON — There are now more than 240 million Americans, the most in the nation's history.

Updated Census Bureau figures — not yet made public — indicate that the U.S. population reached 240,123,000, including illegal aliens, as of last Nov. 1, according to Population Today, a publication of the private Population Reference Bureau.

At the current rate, the United States should reach a population of a quarter-billion people by 1990, Population Today reported.

Jewish groups urge stations to pull program

P-I Staff and News Services

SAN FRANCISCO — For the second time in three weeks, public television stations around the country are being pressured to pull a controversial program.

A segment of "Flashpoint: Israel and the Palestinians," produced at San Francisco PBS affiliate KQED and airing tomorrow night at 8 on Channel 9, has drawn phone calls from Jewish organizations in several cities, including Atlanta, Detroit, Portland and Boston. As of yesterday, local PBS affiliate KCTS had received no calls on the program, public relations spokeswoman Celine Astin said.

The callers have asked that their local PBS stations withdraw one of three admittedly partisan films included in the presentation — "Occupied Palestine," which presents the Palestinian point of view. Two other segments of the show, "Two Settlements: Etzion and Hebron" and "Peace Conflict," discuss the issue from an Israeli perspective.

Two weeks ago, gay organizations in New York and San Francisco similarly urged PBS to withdraw a portion of a two-hour special — "AIDS: A National Inquiry" — depicting a promiscuous AIDS patient.

Debt reaches $2 trillion mark

WASHINGTON — The national debt, which has doubled in the past five years, passed the $2 trillion milestone for the first time in history this week, the government said Friday.

The level was surpassed sometime Thursday. By the end of the day, the total debt owed by the government stood at $2,008,201,000,000, according to the nation's finances released Sunday Department.

It — the result of an accumulation of spending — came as no one officials, who anticipate pher.

Marijuana pill goes on sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — An anti-nausea drug derived from marijuana is about to be approved by the Drug Enforcement Administration for use by cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy and will appear in pharmacies in about a month.

The DEA said Thursday it will reclassify the drug Marinol, a capsule form of THC, marijuana's active ingredient, from its list of most dangerous narcotics to its list of controlled drugs available by prescription for specific medical purposes.

As a Schedule I drug, tetrahydrocannabinol, or THC, cannot be sold for any purpose, even though the Food and Drug Administration ruled last June that Marinol was safe and effective.

While young people who have used marijuana have no problem with those mood-altering effects, researchers have found that elderly patients often are frightened and disconcerted by them, and may be better treated with other drugs.

Sect members arrested

NEW YORK — Nine members of a religious group have been arrested on charges of forcing children to panhandle and beating them if they were unsuccessful, according to authorities.

The nine, arrested Saturday, belong to the Black Hebrew Israelites and have the same last name, Israel.

Seven members were arraigned Sunday on charges of felony coercion and a misdemeanor charge of endangering the welfare of a child, said Tom McCarthy, spokesman for Queens District Attorney John Santucci. Six were charged with felony assault, including the leader. Two defendants were not arraigned because their fingerprints had to be processed, he said.

Meanwhile, investigators believe at least two other suspects are still at large, and may have children with them, McCarthy said Sunday.

Five children were turned over to a city child welfare agency. Two boys who talked to police about the sect are with their father, who is not a member.

Members of the Black Hebrew Israelite sects consider themselves Jews and believe black people are the "chosen people" of the Bible. They are not recognized as Jews by traditional Jewish organizations.

9 nailed to crosses in Philip

KAPITANGAN, Philippines (UPI) — Nine people were nailed to crosses yesterday in bloody reenactments of Jesus' Crucifixion.

Thousands of other Filipinos in Asia's only Christian nation slashed their backs and beat themselves with bamboo sticks in acts of penance on Good Friday.

The annual rites deemed by the archbishop of Manila, Cardinal Jaime Sin, were held in a churchyard.

A festive crowd of 3 was on hand in Kapitangan, 100 miles north of Manila, where a priest, Lucio Reyes, was a cross in a churchyard.

3,000 eunuchs gather to salute a new guru

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Three thousand eunuchs wearing garish makeup, gaudy saris, bangles and bells are holding their first national convention, a carnival of singing and dancing in the streets.

The eunuchs, despised but tolerated, have gathered in this central India city for a 10-day festival to proclaim their cult's new national guru, 65-year-old Bhumilish Bi.

"I am neither man nor woman, I am in the middle," said a 35-year-old eunuch named Naznin, speaking in a throaty masculine voice during an interview. "This is our celebration, and I enjoy it."

India is thought to have more eunuchs than any other country, with estimates ranging from 50,000 to more than 100,000. They are increasingly active, politically organized and demanding fair treatment and equal rights.

Some are born deformed or without genitals, and some are hermaphrodites. Police say many are transvestites and homosexuals.

Some are kidnapped, castrated and inducted into the cult.

They gathered here because their last nationally recognized guru, Nayak Nazjeer, died three months ago. According to the eunuchs, he died from the after-effects of the toxic gas leak from the Union Carbide pesticide plant that killed more than 2,000 people in Bhopal in 1984.

Thousands of well-wishing residents showered the new guru with flower petals.

Haji Ganhi, 94 — who, along with most of the eunuchs, insists on being called a woman — said she had never attended such a large convention. Local press reports said it was the first of its kind in more than 100 years.

In India's caste-conscious society, the eunuchs are usually treated as the lowest sort of outcasts.

In the ancient days of Mogul rulers in India's princely states, eunuchs were privileged protectors of royal harems. But today most live a sordid existence, shunned even by untouchables.

Reagan is urged to call off N-test

P-I Staff and News Services 4/17/86

WASHINGTON — House liberals urged President Reagan yesterday to call off a nuclear weapons test planned for today or risk going down in history as the president who passed up a chance to end the arms race.

Rep. Les AuCoin, D-Ore., said: "By testing tomorrow, the United States will essentially give the USSR the go-ahead to develop their technology further. Our need to test is less important than our need to stop the other side from testing. We can't expect the rest of the world to exercise restraint if we don't."

The underground test comes the same day Reagan meets at the White House with retiring Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin.

'Moment of truth'

The Novosti news agency said the U.S. nuclear explosion serves as "a moment of truth when American policy in arms limitation and reduction appears in its true colors, without any propaganda embellishments."

"The Reagan administration has no interest in arms control," said Howard Ris, director of the Union of Concerned Scientists. "The simple truth is they want more nuclear weapons, not less."

In Seattle, about 75 people gathered in front of the Federal Building yesterday to show solidarity with the anti-nuclear testers.

Nuclear test complete

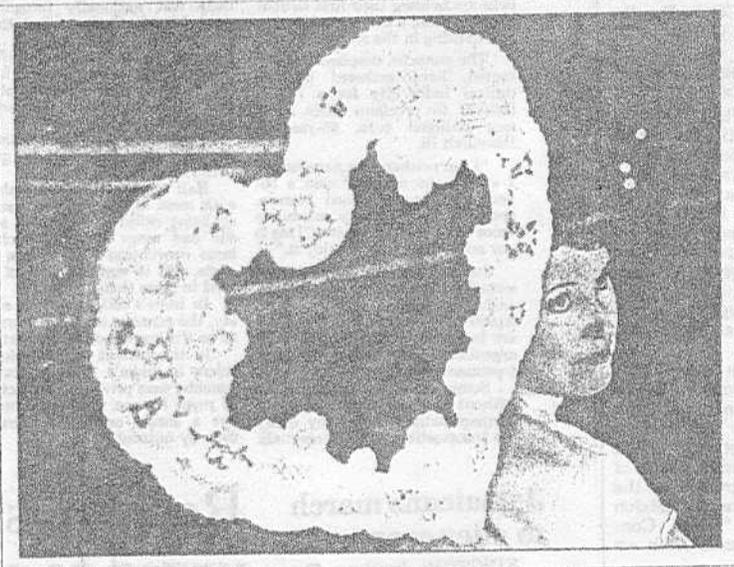

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — A nuclear test was conducted in the Nevada desert just after dawn today following two days of weather delays and growing protests among peace groups.

The test, code-named Mighty Oak, went off without incident, said Energy Department spokesman Jack Campbell.

It was conducted 1300 feet underground in a tunnel honed in Rainier Mesa, 93 miles northwest of Las Vegas.

Zady Evans, owner of Vagabond Weddings, is known as the "Queen of Hearts."

ZADY EVANS SERVES UP ROMANTIC CEREMONIES AT BARGAIN-BASEMENT PRICES

If you knew Zady Evans, you would understand why she lives in a lavender house with Day-Glo multicolored trim and a hot-pink rock garden.

By trade, Zady is a minister, presiding mostly over weddings. And though she'll travel just about anywhere to perform ceremonies, her South Seattle home is her chapel. By Valentine's Day this week, she'll have married more than 4,500 Seattle-area couples, having been in the ministerial business for 23 years. She was ordained in 1963 by the Organization of Awareness, a New Age church, and an outgrowth of the pop psychology movement.

On this particular Saturday, she is telling Jim Giske, a 25-year-old Pizza Hut cook who is about to be married by her, that she painted her home lavender so that wedding parties coming there wouldn't miss the purple house on Meyers Way South.

Of course, Giske's wife-to-be, Treesa McGrady, was not half an hour late for her wedding because she got lost. She was late because she forgot her engagement ring on the wash basin at her Federal Way apartment and didn't remember it until she and her girlfriend/maid of honor, Julie Palumbo, were all the way to Des Moines.

When they turned around on the freeway and went back, Treesa's mother and father, who are from Portland and had been following them to Zady's AA Vagabond (the formal name of the business) wedding chapel, got thoroughly confused and lost. In their custody were a few very important items for the service, not the least of which was Treesa's 2-year-old daughter, Tristel, who was to be in the ceremony, and Treesa's bible.

"Jim and Treesa are Christians," explains Julie. While Zady is chatting with the guests in the chapel, trying to pass the time, Julie, dressed in a lavender floor-length gown, sits on the edge of the bathtub in the chapel bathroom. Across from her and perched on the toilet seat, the bride-to-be wrings her hands and takes deep breaths. Her mother has still not arrived, it's 12:10, and the wedding was scheduled to begin at 11:30.

Treesa, 19, pulls on the cream-colored lace of her gown, rubs her eyes, and yawns. "My mother and I were up all night last night. Sewing the beads on my dress — we got it for $10 at a used-clothing store."

Treesa and Jim chose Zady as their minister after hearing rave reviews about her and her chapel from their friends. "Zady's really popular in Federal Way," says Treesa. Zady's fee, a minimum $30 donation, also attracts many couples to her.

Zady, not looking anywhere near her 60 years, her auburn hair tightly curled around her face, her eyelashes — the store-bought vanity — in place, her high cheekbones neatly blushed, enters the room with the composure of a master of ceremonies and announces, "If she doesn't come by 12:15, we're going to have to go ahead without her."

Zady is wearing a green satin robe that matches her chapel decor, with its green indoor/outdoor carpeting, its plants (real and fake), and the wall where the wedding party stands which is papered with a nature image of a palm-fronted bay window opening onto green rolling fields. She smiles
