Pandemic Assistance – Just Around the Corner

By H. Paul Shuch, Executive Director Emeritus

The global pandemic from which we are only now beginning to emerge has, for well over a year now, impacted all of us. The SETI League is no exception, although we have perhaps weathered the storm better than most. Members of your leadership team had already been working from home for some time, reducing both facilities overhead and commute costs. Our volunteers around the world have continued their activities, as their personal schedules and resources would permit, and we remain no less successful at detecting evidence of extraterrestrial technology than we had been for the past quarter century! So, the search goes on.

If you've been following our Event Horizon page on The SETI League website, you will have seen that nearly all in-person scientific conferences and meetings have been either canceled outright, or replaced by virtual meetings on Zoom, or other remote access platforms. This is how we handled the recent Annual Membership Meeting, and how we expect to continue holding it for the foreseeable future. Perhaps the only bright side of this public health emergency is that it's dragged many of us, kicking and screaming, into the 21st Century. But then again, isn't remote communication what SETI science is all about?

Though I certainly have missed in-person contact with my colleagues worldwide, an unexpected benefit of curtailing travel is that my travel budget has gone unspent. Thus, your SETI League has remained solvent, despite a significant (and fully expected) reduction in contributions and member dues revenues. As the financial information in this newsletter will confirm, we have operated this past year at a deficit, but are fortunate enough to be able to continue doing so for some time into the future.

So, just as governments and non-government organizations around the world are doing to mitigate the impact of the current pandemic, The SETI League is in a position to assist, at least in a small way, those of you who have stuck with us through thick and thin. At our virtual Annual Membership Meeting in April, your Board of Trustees voted to extend, at no charge, the membership period for all members currently in good standing, through the end of 2022. Of course, if your financial circumstances permit and you are so inclined, we would welcome membership contributions during this dues holiday. But, if you choose not to contribute financially, rest assured that you will still remain one of us.

On behalf of the SETI League Board, I thank you all for your generous support and encouragement over the years, and wish you health as we begin the slow return to normalcy.

Yours for SETI Success, Paul

Guest Editorials:

In Support of the Next Generation Arecibo Telescope

by Claudio Maccone

Chair, IAA SETI Permanent Committee

We, the SETI Permanent Committee of the International Academy of Astronautics (hereafter called “IAA SETI Committee”) support and endorse the contents of the white paper titled: “The Future of the Arecibo Observatory: The Next Generation Arecibo Telescope.” Our organization recognizes the scientific, economic and cultural impacts of the Arecibo Observatory and supports rebuilding a new telescope at the same site. We believe this new unparalleled instrument will push forward the boundaries of SETI (the Search for ExtraTerrestrial Intelligence), Planetary Science, Space and Atmospheric Sciences and Astronomy for decades to come.

Readers might wish to know a little more about the IAA SETI Committee. It was established more than fifty years ago by a small group of far-sighted radio astronomers from both the Soviet Union and the Western Countries: Rudolf Pesek and Nikolay Kardashev from the East, Frank Drake and Carl Sagan from the West, just to mention a few. Over the years, the interest to radio SETI grew in the most technologically advanced countries and nowadays the IAA SETI Committee has 96 Members, many of which are distinguished scientists of world class.

We meet once a year during the International Astronautical Congress (IAC) that currently hosts three SETI Sessions:

1. SETI 1, devoted to SETI Science and Technology.
2. SETI 2, devoted to SETI and Society, namely to the consequences that the first Contact with an Alien Civilization might have on Humanity, probably still largely unprepared for such an event.
3. Interactive SETI presentations, i.e. informal presentations to the interested IAC attendees.

Those wishing to better understand the past and present activities of the IAA SETI Committee are invited to peruse the relevant website Overview (iaaseti.org).

Let me just conclude by pointing out that a number of SETI searches were conducted at the Arecibo radio telescope in the past, notably by Teams from the SETI Institute and the University of California at Berkeley. This tradition must be continued in the future, and that will happen only if the Team of the Next Generation Arecibo Telescope will succeed in reviving this unique instrument that we have been loving for decades.
