

A STRANGE LIGHT.

SEEN IN THE HEAVENS.

Sydney, Saturday.

A strange light was seen in the heavens from Tumut to Fairfield last night. The same phenomenon was reported as having been seen at Moss-vale several times, but it was not visible to the officer in charge of the Observatory. He suggests that the approaching opposition of Mars is responsible for these phenomena. At the present time the planet Mars is a conspicuous object in the north-eastern sky at about 10 o'clock, and his ruddy light may prove confusing to the uninitiated.
