

Strange Light in the Sky.

A most beautiful light, like a ball of red fire with glorious changing colors—first bronze blue, then dazzling silver, gradually changing into vivid red—had made its appearance in the sky, and is mystifying everybody. Many people consider that it is some remarkable phenomena caused by the great fall in temperatures during the past few days, and others look upon the mystery as something real, owing to its position changing and continual blinking and everlasting color changes. In the olden days these mysterious lights were looked upon as lucky omens, and people gazed up for hours in the hope of seeing the unusual sight. It is known that a well-known Aeroplane (The Silver Streak), with glistening silver wings and body, is touring this district, and the knowing ones consider she is responsible for the mystery, in connection with the "King" Tea Bonzer Prize Competition for wrappers, which is now in full swing throughout the length and breadth of New South Wales. In any case the beautiful sight is a memorable one and one well worth seeing.—
