NEW YORK, Tuesday.—A cosmic ray test today whipped up the "flying saucer" hysteria in the United States.

People reported seeing a mysterious chain of "flashing white balloons" hanging vertically over Asbury Park, 50 miles from New York.

A newspaper sent up a photographer in a plane, but the balloons had then drifted seaward.

Military and weather stations said they knew nothing of the objects, but later Prince-town University revealed that it had conducted an elaborate cosmic-ray test.

The University sent up 28 balloons, each 12 feet in diameter strung together.

Meanwhile reports of "fiery blobs" in the sky continue to blobs" in the sky continue to pour in from all over the nation.

The "flying saucer" hysteria began after two U.S. pilots reported having seen a plane resembling a "Speed Gordon" rocket ship last Saturday night.
