

FLYING SAUCER AGAIN?

BRISBANE, Thursday.— Several people, including two airline pilots, say they saw an object emitting a bright light streak horizontally across south Queensland and northern N.S.W. skies last night.

Reports came from as far apart as Kempsey and Nambour. In each case the object was observed for from three to five seconds between 7 p.m. and 7.10 p.m.

A Queensland Airlines pilot (Captain J. Herman) said to-night he and co-pilot D. Quinn had seen the object two minutes after flying over Nambour.

Captain Herman said it was a greenish, bluish light and flew horizontally across the windscreen before the light went out suddenly. He thought it was moving at about 600 miles an hour.

It had a short tail, which could have been which could have been sparks from some sort of exhaust. It looked very much as he should imagine a jet plane would appear at night.

Captain Herman has reported the incident to the Civil Aviation Department, which will consider the report to-morrow.
