

Queer Object In U.S. Skies

STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—
Four people claimed last night to have seen a strange object in the sky over Ellenton, South Carolina, the site of a proposed hydrogen-bomb plant.

They said they saw the strange brilliantly lighted object shortly before midnight.

According to one eyewitness, Golphin Dunbar, it looked like "a great big white star with red lights," and it moved "around back and forth and up and down over the town."

Another witness the Rev. R. D. Parkinson, a Baptist Minister, said that he was reluctant to talk about flying saucers because everyone was already excited about having to abandon the town to make room for manufacturing the H-bomb.