PERTH, Sat.

FIRST report of flying saucers in West Australia came this week from the Katanning district, 150 miles south-west of Perth.

People at widely-scattered points east of Katanning said that a slow - moving object passed north - west through the sky about 4.30 pm on Monday.

The object was described as round and dark, followed by a vapor trail.

It took about five minutes to cross the sky. It was accompanied by a noise like low thunder.

In Sydney last night atomic scientist Professor Marcus Oliphant said, "I thought Australians had more sense than to believe in flying saucers."
