

Airline Pilot Reports Strange Lights

CHICAGO, Wednesday.

Airline Pilot Ernie Thorpe, 32 coming in to land at Chicago air port early yesterday, found that he had an escort of a mysterious group of lights.

"It wasn't a flying saucer, but I don't think it was an airplane or a military plane," he said today. "All we saw was a group of lights flying alongside of us. There were five or six white ones and a rapidly blinking red one—all in a straight line."

Radar posts reported nothing unusual.
