LONDON, Nov. 25.

It was "very nearly correct" to describe the recent London flying saucer story as "all ballooney," the Under-Secretary for Defence (Mr Nigel Birch) told the House of Commons yesterday.

He had been asked what reports his department has received of the flying object seen by two airmen over London or other parts of Britain recently and reported to him.

Mr. Birch replied that on November 3 two experimental balloons were observed at different times. There was nothing peculiar about them.

They were meteorological balloons, fitted with a special device to produce a large echo on a radar screen.—
