FURTHER light has been thrown on the flying saucer mystery by the discovery in Morwell of what might well be a flying saucer nest. Local resident reports the finding in his front garden of a carton, covered with strange markings, containing 12 compartments. Nestling in two of the compartments were two cylindrical objects, with a silver disc at one end. Held to the light they emitted an amber glow and appeared to be filled with an effervescent liquid.

He maintains that as their Mars will be closest to the Earth next weekend, happenings around Morwell should be interesting.
