

This Arizona Desert photograph of a Flying Saucer, by astronomer George Adamski, is now said to be identical, in appearance, with one taken and developed by two school boys whose motives and limited understanding of the subject matter of their picture are conceded to be beyond challenge.

