

“FLYING SAUCERS” AT L’TON DANCE

A TOPICAL “flying saucer” theme was used to decorate Heather Hall last night when members of the Launceston Young Liberals held a dance.

MULTI-coloured balloons added a bright note to the strings of paper saucers, while committee members were conspicuous in their space helmets.

Among visitors from other branches of the Young Liberals were Bob

Haines and Muriel Butler, presidents of the Hobart and Deloraine branches respectively.

Dance secretary

Miss Gwen Mann, who was secretary for the dance, chose a primrose light-weight wool “dress. The bodice had three-quarter sleeves with a bateau neckline and was finished with jet buttons.

Hobart visitor, Miss Anne Page, wore a fully circular skirt of grey and white polished cotton with a cravat of the same material at the neckline of her jewel green jersey blouse

Also from the South was Miss Sue Clennett, whose horizon ally striped dress was in shades of grey. A tiny peaked collar trimmed the plain grey yoke and she draped a black stole round her shoulders.

Daffodil nylon fashioned Miss Jacqueline Gregory's dress cut with a full gathered skirt. A "window box" of black roses provided a contrast at the low draped neckline.

Miss Valerie Brown's dress was of jade green velvet, the bodice being styled with long sleeves and a wide square neckline. Unpressed pleats formed the skirt.
