

Women Have Close View Of Flying Saucer

OSLO, Wed.—Police in north and central Norway set out today in search of a "flying saucer" from which two young women reported seeing a dark, long-haired foreign-looking man emerge while they were picking berries in nearby hills.

They described the man as appearing friendly and anxious to talk but he was unable to understand English, French or German.

After the man vainly tried to explain himself with words, gestures and drawings, he climbed into the "saucer," which rose straight into the air and disappeared.

The North Norway newspaper "Helgeland" reported the women, who are sisters aged 24 and 32, as saying that the saucer was about 16ft. in diameter and looked like two saucers put together. It started with a slight humming sound like that of a bumble bee and rose at great speed. The man wore a kind of khaki overall without buttons but overall without buttons but possibly with a belt.

The women, who live at Mosjoen, at first suppressed the story for fear of being disbelieved. Then one of them told her husband.

When police questioned the sisters separately both told a similar story with only minor divergences. They said that the man showed them the saucer on the ground in a hollow.— Reuters.
