

"Huge Object" In Paris Sky

PARIS, Sunday.

An unidentified object twice as big as a normal airliner hovered over Paris on Friday night, radar men at Orly Airport reported yesterday.

They said the object showed up on their radar screens at 10 p.m. They estimated it moved at 2,700 kilometres (about 1,700 miles) an hour in between hovering at various points over the capital.

An Air France pilot heading for London from Paris reported that he saw a red light winking above his plane after being warned by the Orly sky control of an unidentified object.

He was flying at 5,000 ft.

He said he changed course to avoid it.

Then it disappeared into the clouds.
