Spaceship offer to university

BOULDER, Colo-rado, Tuesday (AAP). — A man who claims to be from another universe has offered to arrange the landing of a spaceship for members of the University of Colorado's study of unidentified flying objects, according to a member of the research group.

Mr Jim Wadsworth, a research investigator for the US Air Force-sponsored study, said yesterday that the man had visited the university campus several times but had not been seen for a month.

The man called himself by various names.

On his first visit he said he was Sir Salvador from the third universe and on other occasions he was simply Mr Dixon from the second universe.

Snippy investigations

The group is also investigating the mysterious death of a three-year-old horse found near Alamosa, Colorado.

Dr Robert Low, project co-ordinator for the study, said a senior investigator had been sent to the site.

The horse, called Snippy, was found last month with all the flesh stripped from its neck and shoulders.

Its owner, Mrs Berle Lewis, said an autopsy performed on the gelding late on Sunday night had revealed that its abdominal, brain and spinal cavities were empty.

Mrs Lewis said the pathologist, who wished to remain anonymous, had told her he could not explain the absence of the organs ner he could not explain the absence of the organs.

Dr Low said he did not put much stock in the autopsy and would decide upon its value if he saw the autopsy report and the credentials of the doctor who made it.

Mr Wadsworth said the man who called himself Sir Salvador and Mr Dixon was apparently not connected with the death of Snippy.

"We sort of went along with him to a certain extent just to hear him out". Mr Wadsworth said.

The man, aged about 50 and well dressed, had offered to produce a spaceship to demonstrate its versatility and power.
