

HAGEN'S "new" courthouse has been in operation since June 1971 but it's only now in October 1973 that the court furniture has arrived.

The two courtrooms have had only ordinary Admin issue dining tables and chairs up until two weeks ago when the judge's bench arrived.

Now each room has a judge's bench. But other furniture still to come includes an associate's desk, a witness box, a dock, desks for the prosecution and defence and some sort of partition to mark off the public seating.

Hagen Court staff, incidentally, have become a little nervous of having large stones lying on the ground surrounding the build-surrounding the building. The stones are part of a gravel mix put in to consolidate the clay ground.

The cost of putting them there must have been considerable. Now it's costing another $800 to take them away. Just in case some irate visitors to the court get the wrong idea . . .

REPORTS of unidentified flying objects (UFOs) have been spreading across the United States in recent days.

Ohio's Governor John Gilligan was asked about some sightings in his state.

He startled reporters by replying: "I saw one the other night, so help me."

Governor Gilligan said he saw the UFO last Monday night, near Ann Arbor when he and his wife were driving home from a weekend at their sum-weekend at their summer home at Lake Leelanau, Michigan.
