

CHEF HIRED FOR BBYA WEEKEND

A noted Sydney chef has been hired to cater Sydney BBYA's long-weekend camp at Stanwell Tops this June. Cuisine will be strictly kosher.

Indeed, the flavor of the entire three days will be thoroughly Jewish.

As well as a Friday night service, there will also be an Oneg Shabbat on the Saturday night to farewell the Sabbath Bride, followed by a party.

President of Sydney BBYA, Jenetta Frostig, described it as "a generally fun camp, with some interesting discussions, nature walks and other amusements planned".

Jenetta heads a revamped committee comprised of Richard Hyman (function co-ordinator), Jenny Cohn (secretary), Anne Zacs (committee member, publicity), Robert Max (treasurer), and Roslyn Dale (membership director).

The club is doing very well at the moment with 150 people having attended its last party.

Recently thirty young people were present at a discussion on "Jewish Identity".

Last week, ten members trekked out to the northern beaches area to attend a service at Sydney's Bahai Temple.

A Parliamentary debate will be staged at the B'nai B'rith Lodge Home on June 2, centering around the introduction of a bill for a tax on excess sex.

Next week, Mr Richard Tambling will be giving an address on a book he has just had published on unidentified flying objects and their likely impact on the future.
