

Teatime visitor

ALL those who still don't believe in flying saucers — stand in the corner.

Here's one, for sure — well, almost sure — drifting one recent teatime over Rosedale in Gippsland (V).

Brett Hallam, of Hawthorn, happened to be visiting friends in town and was washing his car when the strange apparition appeared in the sky and caught his attention. As he is studying at the Melbourne School of Photography Brett always has his camera at the ready and took the picture.

Of course, it's a freak cloud formation and disappeared in about 30 minutes. But curiously enough it was not far from this spot that much more real evidence of a UFO was noted a few years ago, when a ring of scorched grass was visible after a sighting.

