CALLING MULDER: Been looking up at the stars lately? Seen anything strange?

If you have, chances are you aren't the only one.

There have been numerous reports of a UFO sighting last Saturday night.

Apparently at about 10pm on Saturday night a 'roundish' object was seen in the north-eastern part of the sky above Port Lincoln.

Word has it that the object was flashing red and green - and no it wasn't a plane!

I doubt it was a bird and it certainly wasn't superman.

So what was it?

Anyone who can explain the occurrence should contact the Times and explain it to us.

IN THE NAME OF FASHION: The Port Lincoln Cup was a fun afternoon of racing, socialising and fashion.

But for at least one man - it was a day of red faces.

During the 'best dressed man' awards at the Cup, one local identity was so overjoyed to have been nominated as a 'well groomed male' he ounded up to the stage.

It would have been the perfect performance, if it hadn't been for him slipping on the stage and doing a very uncomfortable, male version of the splits.

By the way he was walking afterwards, it looked like he may have injured his hamstring in the process.
