• BASE ENCOUNTER

Airman's UFO claims

A former US air force chief has given an astonishing account of an encounter with a UFO at a base in Britain.

Charles Halt is one of six senior former airmen and an enlisted man who went public yesterday in Washington with claims UFOs tampered with nuclear missiles in the US and UK.

Halt said he was working at RAF Bentwater near Rendelsham in Suffolk in 1980 when he had the encounter.

He said one morning several of his base's security officers saw lights in the forest. Two patrolmen were sent out to approach the craft, which they described as "triangular, dark metallic in appearance".

But it quickly and silently "vanished at high speed".

A few weeks later Halt was told the lights were back and went back out into the forest with a couple of policeman, a camera and a cassette recorder.

At the site he found indentations, increased levels of radiation and well as broken branches on the trees.

Halt said: "We saw a bright glowing object like an eye. It would appear to be winking and was shedding molten metal and silently moving through the trees and at one point it approached us."

He said that the object then exploded into five white objects visible in the sky and one sent a beam at the feet of the men.

"I have no idea what we saw, but I do know it was under intelligent control," Halt said. "My theory is it was from another dimension or extra-terrestrial."

The former officers presented declassified information to back up their findings and called on US and British authorities to release 60 years' worth of "X-Files" they say proves the existence of extra-terrestrials.

The men also said that the UFOs' deactivation of nuclear weapons was a message to mankind to move away from the arms race.
