The UFO mystery deepens

MY neighbours, my daughter and grandson all saw the orange lights being disputed on your web site on Saturday night at about midnight.

They were in groups of two or four and started over towards Pontypool direction and travelled across the sky disappearing at the same point over Newport.

The display went on for some 20 minutes and there were definitely in excess of 40 lights.

We tried to take photos, but the pictures were disappointing looking like streaks rather than individual lights

We were all completely sober at the time! Internet trawling has provided one plausible explanation other than the alien invasion theory.

Apparently at certain temperatures mirages can be caused in the sky of certain objects such as car lights. It is therefore possible that these lights were in fact the tail lights of cars on the M4.

This would explain the fact that they appeared to disappear as they would not be seen after they turned down towards St. Julians and also the grouping of two or four.
