

A satellite with four solar panels is shown in orbit above a planet's surface. The planet's surface is visible on the left side of the frame, showing a curved horizon and a dark, cratered landscape. The background is a deep black space filled with numerous small, distant stars. The satellite is positioned in the center-right of the frame, with its solar panels extended outwards. The overall scene conveys a sense of space exploration and technology.

Exploration
ON THE MOVE

